Incoming Phone Calls To Patients Halted At Quincy Hospital

By DEIRDRE SULLIVAN

All incoming personal phone calls to patients at Quincy City Hospital have been curtailed as of Tuesday.

Citing a study done by the telephone company, and complaints from the switchboard operators of an overflow of calls as the reasons for the suspension of the incoming calls, Hospital Director Harlan Paine, noted that the patients will still be allowed to make outside calls and messages to the patients from the outside will be delivered.

The study done by the telephone company cited that in just one day, more than 300 busy signals were reported and 768 in one week. Paine noted the "serious problems" that could arise if someone is trying to get through in an emergency and the lines are busy.

In 1972, the hospital attempted to relieve the overflow of incoming calls by limiting them to the hours of 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., but the plan apparently has been unsuccessful. Thus a total curtailment of calls has been deemed necessary by the hospital administration.

Paine also stressed the inconvenience to patients that the calls pose. Many times calls come at inappropriate times when a patient cannot come to the phone.

The move to end all incoming calls is following suit of many other hospitals in the area that have already stopped them, Paine said.

The new policy was voted on at an April Board of Managers meeting. Inconvenience to the patients and overload of the switchboard were cited as the major reasons by the board for the move.

"Operation Speed Watch", a project designed to curb speeding and reckless driving on West Quincy's residential streets, will be launched within two weeks.

Initiated by Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, the program will seek to identify when and where speed violations occur and will also pinpoint chronic speeders and reckless drivers.

Problem areas to be covered by the program include Connell St., Robertson St., Stedman St., Hall Place, sections of Quarry St. and possibly Independence Ave. Sheets said other streets will also be monitored.

The project will rely on the vigilance of West Quincy residents who volunteer to watch for speeders, record license numbers and pass the information to Sheets' office.

According to the project plan, Sheets would then contact the violator, informing the individual he or she had been speeding on a residential street where many children play. Sheets said the individual would be asked to drive more slowly and more carefully through these streets. Police help would be enlisted if drivers repeated their violations, Sheets said.

The councillor said he hopes to have three volunteers per monitored street.

Noting the occurrence already of several car accidents involving injury to children, Sheets said speed traps will be installed and signs will be posted marking each street covered by "Operation Speed Watch". He said:

"In spite of the outstanding work done by the Quincy Police

Committee Reports 2,300

Local Job Placements

The Employer's Advisory Committee of Quincy's Division of Employment Security (DES) has recommended a plan of action to increase job placement and thus help reduce the South Shore's unemployment rate.

The Committee, formed under the auspices of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has met many times with Quincy's DES staff in an effort to improve efficiency at the Quincy office.

Committee recommendations adopted by DES include:

* Placement of a sign "South Shore Job Center" at 1433 Hancock St. to easily identify the office location.

* Interior office renovation to increase privacy between interviewer and client.

The Committee also recommended the adoption of a unit referral system under which local staff members would specialize in certain occupations, thus becoming familiar with specific job characteristics.

Harold Davis, manager of economic development at the Chamber and spokesman for the committee, said the co-operation between the advisory committee and the Quincy office has already resulted in a job placement increase over last year.

Davis said the Quincy office has recorded 2,300 job placements in fiscal year 1975, 600 above the placement record of fiscal year 1974.

"This was the biggest percentage increase recorded across the state," said Davis.

Davis said the Committee recommendations will increase the number of job orders placed with the DES and will also increase the number of job seekers using the Quincy office.

"If the program is enacted," said Davis, "I am confident a substantial reduction in unemployment on the South Shore can be achieved."

Directory Available On Pre-School Facilities

A directory of pre-school facilities in Quincy has been compiled by Mrs. Jeanne B. Evans, a member of the Education Task Force of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Mrs. Evans, a mother of two pre-school children, and a graduate student in counseling at Boston State College, designed the booklet especially for parents of pre-school children who reside in Quincy.

She points out in her preface that according to the 1970 U.S. Census Report 8.1% of the population of Quincy is composed of children under the age of five. That is approximately 7,125 children.

She also notes that prior to publication of the directory, entitled "Pre School Facilities, A Directory of Child Care Resources in Quincy, Mass.", there was no resource which parents could turn to for information on licensed day care facilities.

In gathering data for the directory, Mrs. Evans surveyed directors of licensed facilities in Quincy, asking them to respond to a number of basic questions about their facility.

Some of the questions asked were: How many children does your facility enroll? What is the cost of your program? What are the hours and days of operation?

Mrs. Evans stressed that the directory does not attempt to evaluate pre-school facilities in Quincy, but instead, serves as a helpful resource in providing parents with some basic information needed when looking for a day care service.

The directory, printed by the production department of the Quincy Public Schools, is available to the public at the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, the Mayor's office, and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

John Comer Elected A.L. State Commander

Quincy Assessor John P. Comer of 45 Lancaster St., Quincy Point, was unanimously elected commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion Saturday. The election and a 14-division parade highlighted the 57th annual, four-day state convention in Boston attended by some 2,000 Legion delegates.

Comer, 43, is only the third man to run unopposed for the office of commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion.

Past commander of the Thomas J. Roberts Post in West Roxbury, Comer has held every office within that post. He is also past senior vice-commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion and is past Suffolk County Commander as well.

During Saturday's final convention day, the delegates passed a resolution voicing their opposition to limited-scope wars such as the war in Vietnam. The resolution stated in part:

"U.S. forces [shall] never again be used for the containment of hostile forces in a prescribed zone...[They] shall not be hindered in their ability or determination to pursue, engage or destroy forces that are designated as hostile."

Comer was stationed in Germany three years during the Korean War.

Former co-owner of a real estate company in Dorchester, and former owner of a Dorchester driving school, Comer worked for John Hancock Life Insurance before coming to Quincy.

Appointed assistant assessor in July, 1969, Comer became an assessor in March, 1970.

He and his wife Eileen have three children, Peggy, Nancy and John.

Over $1,000 In Prizes

Saturday Deadline For Entering Miss Quincy Bay Pageant

Saturday is the deadline for entering the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant to be held Friday evening, July 18 in downtown Quincy.

The winner and four runners-up will share in more than $1,000 in prizes including $500 in scholarships from the Carol Nashe School and Model Agency, Boston.

The top winner will receive a $300 scholarship and the four runners-up $50 each in addition to hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise.

The winner will also reign over Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 6-10.

The pageant, open to South Shore single girls aged 16 to 25, will highlight the sixth annual three-day Sidewalk Bazaar July 17-18-19.

It will be held at 9:30 p.m. on a portable boardwalk in front of the Hancock Bank.

All contestants will receive a special gift for participating in the pageant.

Henry Bosworth, of The Quincy Sun, pageant chairman, said entry forms must be submitted by 5 p.m. Saturday to him or to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association office, 1416 Hancock St.

Entry forms are available at the QCPA office, and member stores and other businesses.

Quincy Man Off On 3,000-Mile Bike Trip

By POLLY DREDGE

David D'Olimpio of 70 South Walnut St., Quincy Point, responding to the call of "Go West Young Man", left Tuesday for a 3,000-mile two-month cross-country bicycle trip.

D'Olimpio, 21-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine D'Olimpio planned on biking to Montreal, taking a train to Vancouver, and then starting out on his eastward trek through 15 states.

He will ride southeast from Vancouver to Colorado, then head east for a visit with relatives in Nebraska.

The 21-year old Lowell Technical School and Quincy High School graduate hoped to steer clear of "tourist traps", but told The Quincy Sun he would be riding through Yellowstone and Rocky Mountain National Parks.

Riding 10 hours a day, hoping to cover 50 miles daily in the Rocky Mountains and 100 miles daily on flat land, he mapped his route similarly to the American Youth Hostel charts.

Traveling alone on an Italian 10-speed, equipped with a saddlebag back, D'Olimpio said he planned on meeting up with American Youth Hostel Riders when he could.

A student in winter, cement finisher in summer, and waiting to hear on his acceptance at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, D'Olimpio had no immediate plans after graduating from Lowell Tech. After a bike trip to Maine and a thought provoking Tanglewood concert last summer, he decided he would like to see the country. And what better way than on a bike?

An eight year soccer veteran, he started intense training with a Lowell track coach in January, to build his wind capacity and leg muscles.

Carrying spare parts, tools, quick energy foods, and camping gear, the lone rider hopes to return with tales of western living.

Guy with van has dating problem

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I want to write about a problem several of us are having — keeping a date with a girl after her parents discover that we are driving a van. I can't understand why this should make so much difference.

I understand that adults think vans are filled with pot-smoking adolescents doing all sorts of undesirable things. All of which is another of society's exaggerations. There isn't anything you can do in a van that you can't do in a sports car. I like a van because we can all go together and not waste gasoline. Besides, I enjoy being with my friends.

I hope you print this so that if your daughter dates a guy with a van he will at least have a chance.

Agrarian

Dear Agrarian:

You said it and I printed it. Now, let's hear it from the parents.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

When I was in high school, giving a speech absolutely terrified me. My palms were wet. My knees shook. My voice quivered. BUT my stomach didn't have butterflies, it had hummingbirds.

As time went on, my nervousness subsided to a point. College was a little easier. Now, as part of my job, I'm supposed to give a speech. It involves flying to a meeting and presenting different facets of the business.

I am 28 years old and people have told me that I am climbing the executive ladder very quickly. On a one-to-one basis or a small group things aren't so bad, but a formal speech would terrify me. I realize that doing this type of thing is going to be required of me more and more. How can I stand in front of one hundred people without melting into a puddle of jello?

Tongue-Tied

Dear TT:

Almost every town has a chapter of Toastmasters. Check yours. Speeches are routine and the members aid each other in perfecting their ability to transmit ideas into the spoken word.

Keep your speech brief. No one likes a lengthy speaker. Brevity alone will be a plus factor. And keep in mind that others are just as nervous.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I know that you usually don't answer this type of question in your column, but I've asked everybody I know and no one has the answer. I am 16 years old, 5' 7" tall and weigh 120 pounds. That sounds great, but my figure has its problems. My legs are too long and I am very, very short waisted. With everybody wearing belted pants and skirts I can't look fashionable. Could you tell me what I can wear and still look "in"?

Legs

Dear Legs:

Not everybody who is fashion conscious is wearing belts at the actual waistline. There are several ways to look "in" without sacrificing your figure. Skinny little sweaters and T-shirts are youthful. Longer jackets and sweaters are one look that will flatter your figure. Stay trim and don't draw attention to the actual waist with wide belts. In other words, dress to flatter your figure.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am on the slim side which is great. However, I think my legs are too skinny. Could you please give me some exercises to build up my legs?

Legs

Dear Legs:

To build up leg muscles try bicycling, skating, swimming, or ballet. The following exercise can help make leg calves firm and shapely: Rise on toes, one foot at a time, slowly lower body balancing on one leg. Repeat 10 times keeping other leg bent. We are all born with certain limitations so do not expect miracles.

Yankee Dill Kabobs

1½ pounds chuck—2 inch cubes
1½ pounds lamb—2 inch cubes
*16 ounce jar Cain's Whole Dill Pickles
1 package cherry tomatoes
½ pound white boiling onions
Marinate cubed meat in Cain's Dill Pickle Juice 6 to 24 hours before your guests arrive and cook their own kabobs to their individual liking. (Medium rare is delicious!)

Yankee Bean/Potato Salad

6-8 strips crispy fried bacon
6 medium potatoes cooked and diced
1 cup drained kidney beans
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 cup celery, finely chopped
1 cup green pepper, finely chopped
2 hard cooked eggs—diced
Toss these ingredients well in large salad bowl and set aside. Combine the following:
¾ cup Cain's Mayonnaise
(not salad dressing)

2 tablespoons bacon drippings
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons fresh grated lemon peel
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix well and add to vegetables. Stir until well blended. Garnish with a tomato cut into eighths to form a rosette and fill with a large scoop of Cain's Mayonnaise. Sprinkle with crumbled egg yolk and a dash of paprika.

Add a big bowl of crisp and chunky Cain's Potato Chips and an assortment of your favorite Cain's Pickles for complimentary texture and color.

*Save all Cain's pickling juices with their own special combination of spices and add fresh vegetable strips. Marinade at least 24 hours for an economical treat.

STITCHING WITCHERY

Perserve Pattern On Interfacing

By BETTY W. KINSER

Is your favorite pattern about to curl up and die?

Preserve it forever by fusing it to iron-on nonwoven interfacing. Set the iron to the coolest temperature that will work and gently press each piece to the interfacing. Do not use steam. If some of the markings have faded, refurbish with a little magic marker.

Dear Betty:

I enjoy your column very much. Being a mother of a 6-year-old boy and 9-month-old twin girls, sewing really helps my budget. I use knit scraps to make patchwork bibs (they use so many!). Place plastic between two layers of knit and bind with tape. They go through the washer and dryer perfectly. — Sandy Graddy, Mt. Vernon, Ill.

Super idea, Sandy. The bias tape binding can be extended at back neck edges to serve as ties. What a money-saver.

Dear Betty:

I'm a self-taught seamstress and recently attempted to use elastic thread. I did everything the instructions called for, but could get no pucker from the thread. Can you tell me what I didn't do? — Mrs. R. C. Winder, Mt. Vernon, Ill.

Quick lesson No. 2: Wind the elastic thread on to the bobbin by machine (if your machine can handle it); by hand if necessary. The elastic should stretch slightly as it would. Set your top thread on a long stitch.

Run a row of test stitching on a scrap of your fabric. If you wish to adjust the fullness, adjust the stitch length of the upper thread. Following the first row, you will need to stretch all previous rows as you stitch to keep your fabric flat and your shirring even.

QUICK STITCH: Have you ever wondered about the difference in acrylic and nylon? Or polyester and cotton? For under $3 you can buy a handy book titled "Butterick Fabric Handbook" that tells you all about fabric, fibers and their care. It's available at most sewing counters.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Guard health carefully — avoid overexposure to heat or sun. You benefit from a close associate now, both financially and pleasure-wise. Problems with temperamental superiors should be taken in stride.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Also Libra Ascendant) — Important news could come to you from someone far away. Have second thoughts before parting with cash. Good time for introspection and to evaluate your goals and progress. Legal matters are settled.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Evaluate your progress and goals by writing it down — you gain perspective this way. Friends are supportive. Be patient, pay attention to detail, and keep private affairs just that way — private!

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Don't be hesitant to admit you are wrong — keep relationship harmonious. Career, finances and health prosper. Exert special effort to get along with neighbors who may be rigid in their views.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Possibility of a promotion or improved position. Finances held with others are highlighted. There is a possibility of long-term profit. Conquer fear and proceed in a straight course.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Good time to shop and find what pleases you and what you can afford. Ideas occur a mile a minute now. Evaluate them realistically, from a practical view, before sharing them with others.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Desire to travel could be strong. Be sure you keep a promise you've given. Guard money from theft. Be very discriminating about the company you keep. Trust your judgment — release the past.

These tornadoes are "super"

Deadliest of all tornadoes is the "super" or "long track" tornado, which can measure one to one-and-a-half miles wide. It accounts for two per cent of all tornadoes.

OUR CHILDREN

Advice offered on college choice

By DR. WILLARD
ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. How much should parents participate in the selection of the college their child will attend? I think they really should be involved a great deal in this important decision, but my wife believes in a "hands off" policy. Which side are you on?

A. The best approach is probably somewhere in between. Parents who know what's available, and what capabilities, interests and needs their children have should get into the picture. But the final decision ought to be made by the person who has to live with it.

He or she will need some ground rules to start with, however. For example, what are the costs, and how are they to be met?

A competent high school counselor can also be very helpful in an objective way.

Q. We're planning ahead for next summer, and will soon make some camp arrangements for our 9-year-old son. Both my husband and I would like him to go to a sports camp that will help make a man out of him. However, every time we bring it up he begins to cry.

He isn't an effeminate child in any way, but both of us want to be sure he doesn't become one. Any suggestions?

A. Is it the idea of a sports camp, or of any camp, that bothers him? If it is the latter, his fears could be due to his not yet being ready for one or not knowing what a camp really is like. Some of the camp directors have orientation sessions, with slides or movies, and they can be effective in providing some information.

You may of course be pressuring too much and too early. The "camp readiness" factor doesn't develop at the same time in all children.

It may help to talk the subject through with him rather than talking "at" him about going to camp.

Q. Our daughter's teacher told us that she has a learning disability. Does that mean she is mentally retarded? We are so worried.

A. As experts in the field of learning disabilities currently define their area, it does not include individuals who are mentally retarded.

You should find out (1) what learning disability the school feels your child has, (2) what they are doing about it, and (3) what they recommend you do to help your youngster. A direct contact or series of them to obtain this information is very important. Please follow through soon.

British moms get 'food for thought'

LONDON — The Department of Health has issued a letter aimed at radically changing the way young babies are fed, advising that babies less than four months old should not be given

PROTRUDING OBJECTS PERIL

Most protruding objects around the house or at work are not potential dangers. But then there are those that are just begging for the human form to strike. Such as protruding pipes, hooks, towel racks, branches, shelf corners or open cabinet doors.

A photo in a medical journal provided gruesome evidence of how serious such an accident can be. It depicted an eye nearly torn from the socket by the projecting hook of a peg board.

The "run into" accident usually occurs unexpectedly. Your best defense is to get rid of the things that lie in wait for the unwary. Inspect your home for projecting menaces. A glass shelf over a sink is a sure trap for anyone bending over to rinse his face. Check your work bench and make sure that there is nothing you could strike as you bend over it. Also make sure that the lighting is adequate to give the potential victim an even shake.

'An Evening With Ruth Gordon' A Night To Remember

RUTH GORDON waves as she receives a standing ovation at "An Evening With Ruth Gordon" for Quincy Historical Society at Eastern Nazarene College auditorium. "I can't tell you what this means to me," she said. "You know your home town—that's the toughest. I wish Mama and Papa were here—I bet they are."

Quincy Sun Photos by Steve Liss

SEVENTY-EIGHT YEARS young, Ruth Gordon in black short dress is congratulated by Mayor Walter Hannon following her performance. Hannon presented her with a plaque proclaiming "Ruth Gordon Day", a Paul Revere bowl and cited her for never forgetting her home town.

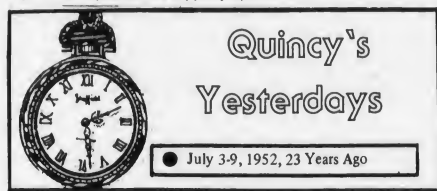

"YOUR FATHER is going to be in the new book I'm writing," Ruth Gordon tells William C. Edwards, Jr., son of late City Historian William C. Edwards, Sr. At the left is Mrs. Edwards and center rear, Mrs. Kay LaBeau, Miss Gordon's long-time friend.

Deegan Favors MDC Incinerator

City Manager William Deegan said he would recommend that Quincy join the MDC's co-operative incinerator system, as authorized by recent legislative action.

Under the proposal, the MDC would set up a co-operative incinerator system for 18 communities, including Quincy.

Originally, Quincy was not included in the plan, but was added through an amendment offered by Rep. William Jenness.

Rep. Clifton Baker introduced an additional amendment which provided for the construction of one of the MDC incinerators on state owned land on the Quincy-Milton line, near the Neponset River.

Deegan said the incinerator would solve two of Quincy's long standing problems: the dump and disposal of garbage.

RECORD NUMBER OF STUDENTS NEXT YEAR

Dr. Paul Gossard, superintendent of schools, announced that Quincy's 21 elementary schools would have an all time record number of students in elementary schools next September - 8,221.

This increase of 744 from last year was the result of the rapid birth rate following the war. The increase was expected to continue for the next five years.

Atherton Hough School in Houghs Neck had top enrollment - 711, with the Washington School in Quincy Point with the lowest - 178.

Student teacher ratio would be one to 29 in the Quincy schools next fall.

KENNEY TO ORGANIZE WOMEN'S COMMITTEE

Mrs. Rose Fiske of Granite St. received a letter this week from Congressman John F. Kennedy, candidate for the U.S. Senate.

In the letter, Kennedy announced his plans to set up a women's committee in Quincy to assist him in his campaign. The committee would be in charge of voter registration.

Co-ordinating the women's committees in the state was the Congressman's sister, Pat Kennedy.

Plaque From USS Quincy Turned Over To City By Navy

The builder's plaque from the USS Quincy was presented to the city Friday by Commander James Schneider, USN.

The 10 inch by 20 inch bronze pla que is the second of three items saved from the USS Quincy [CA 71] presently being scrapped on the West Coast.

Several months ago Mayor Walter Hannon heard that the ship, completed at Fore River in 1943 and the first cruiser to engage the enemy in the Normandy Beach invasion of 1944, was to be scrapped. He requested the ship's wheel, builder's pla que, and bell be returned to the city.

The 1,600 lb. bell was presented to the city in ceremonies last March. The ship's wheel is still to come by way of the Navy curator's office in Washington, D.C.

The presentation of the plaque is Cmdr Schneider's last official act with the city on behalf of the Navy. He will be retiring after 22 years with the Navy, the past three here in Quincy as Commanding Officer of the Naval Reserve Center.

Also turned over to the Mayor were numerous athletic trophies won by personnell from the first USS Quincy [CA 39] recovered from the waters of the Pacific after the sinking of the ship during the early months of World War II.

The pla que and trophies will be turned over to the Historical Society for viewing by citizens and visitors to the city, according to Mayor Hannon.

He said he was pleased to be able to recover these items from the city's two Quincys', and that they were able to come back to the city where they belong.

Hannon said preparations are now underway for the mounting of the bronze bell next to City Hall. The bell will be mounted on an oak frame constructed by the Design Shop at General Dynamics, and given to the city.

60 7th, 8th Graders Selected As 'Quincy Youth Volunteers'

Sixty seventh and eighth grade students have been chosen to participate during the month of July in the "Quincy Youth Volunteers Program" sponsored by Mayor Walter Hannon.

The program is designed to assist in clean up efforts in the city's neighborhoods and will take place during July and August.

At a drawing at City Hall, Mayor Hannon selected the first group of young people, including 25 alternates, who will begin neighborhood work projects in July.

More than 500 students had submitted their names to the Mayor for this program.

Another drawing of 60 volunteers and alternates will be held for the month of August, Hannon noted.

An equal number of boys and girls have been selected from the city's five junior high schools, with 12 students participating from each school.

Hannon said he was pleased by the enthusiastic response of the young people to this type of program. "After visiting and talking with students from all five junior high schools, I am positive that this program will be a success," he said.

He also pointed out that the student volunteers will be supervised by young adults, under the direction of Ray Cattaneo of the Park Department.

Students selected to work during the month of July are:

Dr. Creedon Speaks On 'Quincy Method' At NIE Conference

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon recently addressed the National Institute of Education [NIE] on Quincy's Student Centered Learning System - the so-called "Quincy Method".

Creedon, invited to speak before the NIE, flew to Washington, D.C. accompanied by William L. Phinney, assistant superintendent for instruction, and Richard K. Chrystal, director of staff development.

The NIE is a research agency of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare established in 1972 to improve educational opportunity and teaching effectiveness.

Creedon's letter of invitation hailed the Quincy method as "...comprehensive, forward-looking...one of the most important developmental instruction programs in the country today."

The Quincy Method emanates from the philosophy of Col. Francis W. Parker, Quincy's first school superintendent [1875-1880], who revolutionized public schooling by emphasizing the "humane treatment of little folk," pragmatic instruction and relevant curriculum. The Student Centered Learning System now incorporates the educational principles of modern-day learning theorists and curriculum specialists such as Piaget, Skinner, Tyler and Brunner. The SCLS covers every aspect of learning, from goals and objectives to testing and instructional strategies. The method undergoes revision and refinement during summer workshops attended by the Quincy teaching staff and visiting scholars. The third month-long workshop is now in session at Quincy High School.

Ruth Gordon: A Gal And A Night To Remember

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Last week's "Evening With Ruth Gordon" at Eastern Nazarene College for the benefit of the Quincy Historical Society was an Academy Award performance—without a script.

For more than an hour, Miss Gordon stood on a barren stage and just talked—completely captivating her audience as she reminisced about growing up in Wollaston, and trying to become an actress.

She remembered names, dates and events as though they were yesterday—instead of 60 years ago.

Those who were present shared a memorable night they will long remember.

She noted she will be 79 in September. It's hard to believe that. She's so bubbly.

Frankly, I still can't make up my mind whether she's Quincy's most famous senior citizen—or teenager.

PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFUL Morris Udall says the race for the Democratic nomination is "wide open" and that if he gets it, he can beat Gerald Ford next year.

During a luncheon at Peter's Landing last Friday, Udall, sitting beside this writer confided that he considers Henry (Scoop) Jackson as his biggest threat for the nomination at this time.

"But I think I can get the nomination and I feel I can defeat Gerry Ford next year," he said.

Asked what he would do if long-time friend Senator Edward Kennedy should decide to get into the race, Udall said candidly: "I would have to take another look at it." [Whether or not to stay in]

City Council at-large contender Paul Harold who introduced Udall, noted that the Arizona Congressman was attempting to take the same White House route—only in reverse—taken by John Quincy Adams.

Adams went from the Presidency to Congress. Udall wants to go from Congress to the Presidency.

Among those at the luncheon were Mayor Walter Hannon, former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, Rep. William Delahunt, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Rep. Joseph Brett, City Councillors Joseph LaRaia and John Quinn.

Earlier, Udall visited with Mayor Hannon, the First Parish Church where Presidents John and John Quincy Adams are buried. Later he spoke at Kemper Insurance in North Quincy.

The night before he attended the campaign kick-off for Paul Harold. And it may have been the first time in Quincy's political history that a Presidential candidate appeared at such a function for a city council candidate.

Udall incidentally made one little boo-boo at the Harold time. He apparently assumed that Quincy's elections are partisan and addressed the crowd on several occasions as "fellow Democrats."

A good third—if not more—of those in attendance were Republicans and it irked them a bit. Republican Joyce Baker stepped over to straighten him out in a nice way after he spoke.

AND, speaking of Joyce Baker, reports are that she will withdraw from the City Council at-large race.

MARY COLLINS of Squantum reportedly has had a change of heart about running for the School Committee.

GUY FAIELLA, chairman of the Quincy Board of Registrars, entered the New England Medical Center Hospital, Boston, Wednesday for surgery on his hand. He is expected to be confined for a week to 10 days. After the November election, he and his wife are planning a cross country trip by car.

BEAU PAGE, who had his differences with Mayor Hannon's administration some months ago, is back in the Hannon camp campaigning for him.

NEWLYWED Mrs. Vicent Berbarian [the former Doris Elstob] returned from her honeymoon to a royal reception at the Quincy Savings Bank downtown branch where she is assistant manager. Posted in the window was a big sign proclaiming: "Welcome Back, Mrs. Berbarian".

WELL, Governor Dukakis must be making a few points with the distaff side. He recently sent a letter to Rep. Thomas Brownell's wife, Margie, and probably has sent similar ones to wives of other legislators. It read:

"The last few weeks have been hectic ones, both politically and personally for many of us. The extended legislative sessions on the issues of taxes and bonding, often going late into the nights, and the problems caused by the state's fiscal situation have inevitably had an effect on the amount of time we have been able to spend with our families.

"Let me thank you for your patience during this period. I am sure that as a legislator's spouse you realize that long hours are necessary and appreciate, as I do, the amount of time and effort that is required to be an effective legislator."

SMILE DEPT: From the Massachusetts Police Chiefs newsletter via good friend Hector Pelletier: "Girls with glasses still get passes—but—they must have beautiful frames."

QCA Readies Petition Drive To Put 10-Story Limit On Ballot

The Quincy Citizens Association [QCA] will begin door-to-door canvassing in early August, collecting signatures to place a 10-story height limit referendum on the November city election ballot.

Citing the "agonizing history" of the city's height limit debate, QCA President Pasquale DiStefano said the move for a referendum marks "a last resort" for the Association.

"This is not a threat, it's a last resort," he said. "We've exhausted all means of attempting to get reasonable height limitations in the City of Quincy...It's the only legal recourse we have."

Criticizing city planners and the City Council of "insensitivity to people's wishes and desires," DiStefano said the issue must go to the people.

"We are going to go before the people and let them decide once and for all," he said.

DiStefano said he made a final effort to talk privately with Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin about height limits but said he was unsuccessful.

The QCA has retained Atty. Peter MacDonald of Quincy to draft the wording of the petition. MacDonald was to present the draft to the QCA at an 8 p.m. meeting Wednesday to be held at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd.

DiStefano said the petitions will be printed "within two weeks" with circulation scheduled to begin in early August.

Approximately 5,700 signatures are required on the petitions and DiStefano said the QCA has set a goal of attaining 10,000 to 12,000 names.

Once the signatures have been gathered and certified, the petition can be presented to the City Council which then has three options: make the referendum law, call a special election or put the question on the ballot of the next city election.

DiStefano says the QCA has compiled research which "explodes the myth" that high-rise buildings can broaden the city's tax base. He said QCA investigation has shown high-rise buildings "eat up city services" and use "twice as many services as the taxes they generate."

DiStefano said the QCA has made every effort to bring the height limit issue to the public's attention and said he is confident the people of Quincy "will vote overwhelmingly for it."

He labelled as "political rhetoric" the contention a height limit will cripple the growth of Quincy. He said the QCA wants progress for Quincy but "sensible restraints" as well.

SPAIS Seems To Be 'Out Of Business'

cover the purchase price of SPAIS - a computerized informational system which served Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Weymouth - thus keeping the project alive.

The Committee is scheduled to meet Wednesday, July 9 to decide the fate of Project SPAIS.

This year's SPAIS budget neared $250,000, said Grindlay.

Describing SPAIS as "out of business as far as the city is concerned," Grindlay said the three other communities served by SPAIS withdrew from the project over the past six months.

All employees at the SPAIS office - five civilians and three police personnel - have been given a two-week vacation effective last Friday. Grindlay said:

"If nothing happens July 9, the employees will be terminated."

He said the police officers - two Quincy men and one Weymouth officer - will be re-assigned within their community's police forces.

Grindlay said if the Committee awards the grant, and if the three other communities agree to re-enter the project, Mayor Walter J. Hannon "will consider bringing the employees back." Grindlay said:

"Unless these two things happen, we're not going to continue the project."

Mitchell said the town of Braintree has indicated to him its willingness to seek funding to continue involvement in SPAIS. He also noted Milton and Weymouth have indicated an interest in reviewing their former positions to withdraw from the program.

Mitchell said if the $122,800 grant is awarded, the remaining cost to Quincy would amount to an annual operational expense of $96,000. He noted, too, SPAIS would then be able to offer continued law enforcement work to the other three communities at "substantial cost reductions."

SPAIS provided what Mitchell called "an improved communications link" with the state police and the project continually updated files of wanted persons and provided information on stolen vehicles.

On a local level, SPAIS compiled weekly and monthly statistics to various departments, including robbery rates, police vehicle response time and police activity figures.

He said the system could be expanded to include a variety of local services such as voter list preparation, property tax, water billing and payroll work.

Department, it is absolutely impossible to cover all the residential streets in Quincy where speeding and reckless driving occurs."

The program will last at least six weeks, Sheets said, after which Mayor Walter J. Hannon will receive a project evaluation.

The City Council approved Monday a $480 appropriation order issued by Hannon to provide for clerical assistance needed to handle volunteer reports reaching Sheets' office. The money will also be used for the street signs to be used in the project.

Sheets noted a similar program was conducted last summer on Canal St. on a limited basis with apparent success.

He said both Hannon and the City Council will receive evaluations of the project when completed.

Holiday Mail Schedule

Officer-in-Charge Richard E. Samuelson announces the following schedule for the Independence Day weekend, July 4-5-6:

With dirty textbooks in our schools, do liberals nowadays think children should be obscene and not heard?

Greed and unconcern is what motivates some politicians, until their fist is caught in the cookie jar.

America supposedly won World Wars I and II and lost in Vietnam but the end result is the same — a world in a sorry, uncertain state.

With the summer months here, hockey sticks won't figure so much in the news of violence.

First Civilian

John Calarese Director Portsmouth Naval Shipyard

John B. Calarese of 115 Hollis Ave., North Quincy, has been named new director of the Boston Caretaker Group, Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, becoming the first civilian to fill this traditionally military position.

He succeeds Capt. William J. Norris of the U.S. Navy who retired at the end of May.

When the Boston Naval Shipyard officially closed in July 1974, the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard assumed jurisdiction over the old yard, designated as a caretaker group.

Calarese, a graduate of Boston English High School and Northeastern University, holds the distinction of two other "firsts".

During over 34 years with the federal government, Calarese was the first blue collar worker to be promoted to the white collar ranks after completing his apprenticeship. He later became the first civilian to fill the position of industrial engineering officer, later retired director of management engineering.

Leavitt Lombard of North Quincy was also named to a key position in the Boston Caretakers Group.

Goldenrod Yearbook

Available At QHS

The Goldenrod, Quincy High School's yearbook, will be available today [Thursday].

The books, scheduled for distribution last Friday, did not arrive on time.

Yearbooks can be picked up today [July 3], Monday, July 7 and Tuesday, July 8, beginning at 9 a.m. in the English Research Center at Quincy High School.

Extra copies of the yearbook will be available for students who have not ordered the book. Yearbooks cost $10.

John Bersani Resigns

From Cemetery Board

John A. Bersani of 90 Hall Place, West Quincy, has resigned his 10-year post as a member of the Cemetery Board of Managers.

Bersani recently joined

Watertown Engineering in Quincy, a company dealing with burial vaults. He said his position there, in charge of sales, could cause a conflict of interest. In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Bersani said:

"For personal reasons and with regret, I am submitting my resignation from the Board of Managers of the Cemetery. Thank you for having let me serve the city on the board these many years."

Bersani's resignation will be effective at this month's board meeting.

A K-9 Corps demonstration will be held at 6:30 p.m. and a talent show scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. will close the day's events.

Joseph Uppling Grand Marshal For Squantum Parade

The Squantum Community Association announces 71-year-old Joseph Uppling has been selected as grand marshal of the Fourth of July Parade.

Uppling was born in Caribou, Me., but moved to Squantum at an early age, and has taken active part in the community since 1907. He now lives at 8 Seal Rock Lane, Squantum.

The semi-retired musician will be unable to attend the parade, as he has a professional engagement in Canada. His daughter Margot Robinson, and fifth generation grandchildren Lydia, Andrew, and Kristina will represent the grand marshal in the parade.

Between professional engagements, Uppling finds time for the community. Organist at St. Chrysostom's Church, and choir director for a group of Shriners in Boston, he uses his knowledge gained from years of experience.

Piano man and organist for the Columbia Broadcasting System for 18 years, he also played with the Ice Follies, Ice Capades, and the Sonja Heinie Ice Show. He played with bands in New York, Boston, and for notable entertainers like Gary Moore and Jimmy Durante.

Uppling and his wife Marjorie are active members of the Squantum Community Association.

It is hoped he will return from Canada at mid-morning Friday, to enjoy the rest of the day's activities.

Wollaston, Other MDC Beaches

Officially Opened

MDC beaches in the Quincy Shore area are now officially open for the 1975 summer season.

Lifeguards will be stationed at the following MDC beaches in the Quincy area: Wollaston Beach, Tenean Beach in Dorchester, Malibu Beach in Savin Hill, Carson Beach, "M" Street Beach and Pleasure Bay, all in South Boston and Nantasket Beach in Hull.

MDC Parks and Recreation Director Robert W. Williams urged bathers to look for signs designating sections of the beach as attended by a lifeguard. He said:

"We hope residents and out-of-state tourists will enjoy our beaches to the fullest possible extent, but we are urging all bathers to take note of reasonable swimming precautions."

At Pageant Field

Wollaston Community Assn. Plans Variety Of July 4th Activities

The Wollaston Community Association will hold its second annual Fourth of July celebration Friday at Pageant Field, Merrymount Park.

The day's fun will begin at 9 a.m. with a doll carriage parade for children aged three to seven in the baseball diamond.

A Horribles Parade for youngsters through age 14 will follow at 9:15 a.m.

Cold drinks will be served at 9:30 a.m. in the green shelter and a Bicycle Parade will also begin at the same time. This parade is also for youngsters through age 14.

Foul shooting contests will start at 10 a.m. in the basketball area for teenagers, 13 and over. The 50-yard dash competition will be conducted in three age categories: 5-7, 8-10, and 11-12.

The races will begin at 10 a.m. Wheelbarrow races and backward races will be held between 10:20 a.m. and 11 a.m. at Pageant Field No. 1 and No. 2. Both races will be conducted in three age brackets: 5-7, 8-10, and 11-12.

A toddler dash for children through age 4 will begin at 11 a.m.

A pie-eating contest will also begin at 11 a.m. in the Field House. Competition will be divided into the following age brackets: 5-7, 8-10, and 11-14.

An egg-throwing contest will start at 11:30 a.m. in the Ball Field. Competition will again fall into the above categories.

Free ice cream will be served in the green shelter at 12 noon. All prizes will be awarded at the information desk.

Anyone wishing to make donations to help finance the celebration is asked to contact Pam Spring [773-7852], Kathy Roberts [479-8280] or Robert Uchak [773-1323].

Wollaston Twin Brothers Win Harvard Book Award

Twin brothers Peter and Philip Maloney, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Maloney of 311 Safford St., Wollaston, have received the annual Harvard Book Award sponsored by the Harvard Club of Boston.

Junions at North Quincy High School, the boys earned the award by virtue of character, scholastic excellence and extra-curricular achievement, "best exemplifying the traditional ideal of American citizenship."

School Principal Peter J. Chisom said this year marks the first time the award has been given to brothers during one year.

Paul Maloney, older brother of Philip and Peter, received the same award in 1968.

Peter Maloney also received the Quincy Historical Society award for excellence in U.S. History during the 1974-1975 academic year.

Dean Junior College Honors Rep. Joseph Brett

It was Brett's 50th alumni reunion as a member of the Class of 1925.

Brett was presented the Alumni Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his service to both the college and community. He is past president of the Dean Alumni Association and has served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives since 1959.

Brett has been appointed to many special state commissions including Education, Mass. Transportation, and Military Affairs. In addition, he has served on such legislative committees as Metropolitan Affairs and Urban Affairs and has been closely involved in developing legislation on housing, planning, and zoning.

In presenting the award, President Crockford said: "Joe Brett is best known as a champion of the little people of his community. Through his largess, thousands of Quincy area residents have attended Red Sox baseball games and participated in little bowling leagues. He has assisted scores of boys and girls to further their education."

Brett is past president of the Massachusetts Elks Association and has been nationally recognized for his service to that organization. He resides with his wife Ruth at 254 Fenno Street, Quincy.

ENC Receives $3,918 Grant

'Anti-Snob' Zoning Request Denied For West Quincy Elderly Complex

The Quincy Zoning Board has denied a developer's request to apply the "anti-snob" zoning law to a proposed elderly housing complex in West Quincy.

West Park Trust had re-submitted the proposal in an effort to sidestep a citizens' court appeal of the board's earlier approval, according to Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets.

The developer had also attempted to form a new company, Copeland

Development Associates, to create, in effect, a different application for the same project, Sheets said.

Sheets testified vehemently against this application of the "anti-snob" law, saying it implied Quincy was not adequately providing for its people.

The law, adopted in 1969, is designed to force upper income communities to accept low and moderate income housing often excluded by zoning laws.

Commenting on the board's decision, Sheets said:

"The city has rejected an effort to impose [anti] snob zoning and has made it very clear we have a commitment to take care of our elderly and that it is wrong to misconstrue a law in order to promote development."

During a hearing in May, Sheets quoted state guidelines indicating Quincy exceeds by 10 per cent the suggested number of low and moderate income subsidized housing.

Sheets emphasized he felt the city should work for more subsidized housing but stressed the city has not denied the needs of elderly citizens through snob zoning. He said:

"You cannot superimpose this kind of construction project on the city of Quincy based on the rationale we have not done our part for our people...We are not at odds with the needs and interests of our people. If we had been, I would be leading the charge."

Developer Thomas Sears cited other statistics from the state Department of Community Affairs and the city's planning department, claiming Quincy needs some 6,000 additional units of subsidized housing immediately. The city now has 2,929 units.

In March Quincy's zoning board granted needed variances for the project. The proposed seven-story, 100-unit building would be located at the corner of West and Copeland Sts., a residential zone with a three-story height limit. The area also has less parking space and open space than required.

Eighteen West Quincy residents have appealed the variances in Norfolk County Superior Court. They claim the site crowds the property and neighborhood and would further tangle an already-busy intersection. They claim, too, a hardship need has not been proved to grant the variances. A single-family house is now located there.

Sheets had testified construction could theoretically occur in any section of the city if approval of the "anti-snob" zoning application were granted, since "anti-snob" zones can be applied everywhere.

In Colonial Costumes

Nursing Home Patients To Celebrate City's 350th Anniversary

Residents of the Quincy Nursing Home will don hand-made colonial costumes, hold historical readings and join in a gala song fest at 12:30 p.m. today [Thursday] to commemorate the city's 350th anniversary and the nation's bicentennial.

A buffet, featuring such colonial dishes as Captain Endicott clam chowder, will be prepared by Allan Gurney and served to Mayor Walter J. Hannan and city officials.

At 12:15 p.m. a flag-pole dedication, led by James Sullivan, will be held at the residents' 11 McGrath Highway home.

Sister Jean Mulloy, C.S.J. of St. John's Church will assist residents in a slide-show presentation and narration centering around Quincy's heritage. Quincy Nursing Home resident Ann Tighe and Rev. Arthur Curtis of Bethany Congregational Church will assist with the afternoon's narrative activities, also.

A demonstration of the minuet is planned by residents Gordon Morrison, Mrs. Helen Coleman and James Sullivan.

Miss Maude Wheeler, a former Quincy High School history teacher, will be the hostess for the event, portraying Dorothy Quincy.

A presentation will be made by the residents to the Quincy Historical Society of a hand-made crewel portrait of Betsy Ross sewing the American flag.

A contingent from the Weymouth militia is also

'Anti-Snob' Zoning Request Denied For West Quincy Elderly Complex

The Quincy Zoning Board has denied a developer's request to apply the "anti-snob" zoning law to a proposed elderly housing complex in West Quincy.

West Park Trust had re-submitted the proposal in an effort to sidestep a citizens' court appeal of the board's earlier approval, according to Ward 4 Councilor James A. Sheets.

The developer had also attempted to form a new company, Copeland

Development Associates, to create, in effect, a different application for the same project, Sheets said.

Sheets testified vehemently against this application of the "anti-snob" law, saying it implied Quincy was not adequately providing for its people.

The law, adopted in 1969, is designed to force upper income communities to accept low and moderate income housing often excluded by zoning laws.

Commenting on the board's decision, Sheets said:

"The city has rejected an effort to impose [anti] snob zoning and has made it very clear we have a commitment to take care of our elderly and that it is wrong to misconstrue a law in order to promote development."

During a hearing in May, Sheets quoted state guidelines indicating Quincy exceeds by 10 per cent the suggested number of low and moderate income subsidized housing.

Sheets emphasized he felt the

"You cannot superimpose this kind of construction project on the city of Quincy based on the rationale we have not done our part for our people...We are not at odds with the needs and interests of our people. If we had been, I would be leading the charge."

Developer Thomas Sears cited other statistics from the state Department of Community Affairs and the city's planning department, claiming Quincy needs some 6,000 additional units of subsidized housing immediately. The city now has 2,929 units.

In March Quincy's zoning board granted needed variances for the project. The proposed seven-story, 100-unit building would be located at the corner of West and Copeland Sts., a residential zone with a three-story height limit. The area also has less parking space and open space than required.

Eighteen West Quincy residents have appealed the variances in Norfolk County Superior Court. They claim the site crowds the property and neighborhood and would further tangle an already-busy intersection. They claim, too, a hardship need has not been proved to grant the variances. A single-family house is now located there.

Sheets had testified construction could theoretically occur in any section of the city if approval of the "anti-snob" zoning application were granted, since "anti-snob" zones can be applied everywhere.

Nursing Home Patients To Celebrate City's 350th Anniversary

Residents of the Quincy Nursing Home will don hand-made colonial costumes, hold historical readings and join in a gala song fest at 12:30 p.m. today [Thursday] to commemorate the city's 350th anniversary and the nation's bicentennial.

A buffet, featuring such colonial dishes as Captain Endicott clam chowder, will be prepared by Allan Gurney and served to Mayor Walter J. Hannon and city officials.

At 12:15 p.m. a flag-pole dedication, led by James Sullivan, will be held at the residents' 11 McGrath Highway home.

Sister Jean Mulloy, C.S.J. of St. John's Church will assist residents in a slide-show presentation and narration centering around Quincy's heritage. Quincy Nursing Home resident Ann Tighe and Rev. Arthur Curtis of Bethany Congregational Church will assist with the afternoon's narrative activities, also.

A demonstration of the minuet is planned by residents Gordon Morrison, Mrs. Helen Coleman and James Sullivan.

Miss Maude Wheeler, a former Quincy High School history teacher, will be the hostess for the event, portraying Dorothy Quincy.

A presentation will be made by the residents to the Quincy Historical Society of a hand-made crewel portrait of Betsy Ross sewing the American flag.

A contingent from the Weymouth militia is also

Morrisette Hot In Quest For 19th Zone Title

By TOM SULLIVAN
Morrisette is hot after its 19th Zone 6 title.

Following Monday's 2-1 win over Cohasset, Coach Ray Cattaneo's team was tied for first place with an 8-1 record, losing only to the other co-leader, Weymouth.

In addition to winning the Zone 6 crown 18 times, Morrisette has gone to the finals of the state championships six times but has never won the state title.

Morrisette last night [Wednesday] played Canton, which is right behind the co-leaders with a 6-2 record. Friday Morrisette hosts Weymouth in a big holiday game at 2 p.m. at Adams Field, Monday faces Quincy at 8 at Adams and Tuesday will meet Wollaston at Adams, also at 8.

Sunday at 8 Wollaston hosts Hingham at Adams, Monday Wollaston plays at Weymouth, next Wednesday Quincy meets Braintree at 8 at Adams and next Thursday Wollaston plays at Canton.

Monday's Morrisette-Cohasset game at Scituate was far different than the previous meeting, in which Morrisette breezed, 14-0. Mark Dwyer, getting his second win over Cohasset's first year team, nipped Woody Torndorff in a fine pitching duel. Dwyer gave up only three hits, struck out 13 and walked only two. He fanned the last nine batters. Torndorff held Morrisette to five hits, struck out five and walked six.

Morrisette scored in the second inning when Joe Glynn walked, Dennis McGuire was hit by a pitch and Dwyer walked to fill the bases. Glynn scored on an error.

After Morrisette tied it in the fourth, Morrisette won it in the sixth when McGuire singled, Steve McKinnon walked, Paul Messina reached on an error and Dave Perdios singled.

Wollaston, which lost its first seven games, several by close scores, suddenly came alive and Sunday upset Quincy, 5-3, for its second win in a row. Quincy, which also had started slowly, had come up with four wins in its previous five games before bowing to Wollaston.

Wollaston scored three times in the fifth to overcome an early 3-2 deficit. Two walks and a hit filled the bases, Jim Ferris walked to force in the tying run and Billy Driscoll's single drove in the two winning runs.

Ferris went the nine-inning distance, allowed six hits, struck out eight and walked only one. Losing pitcher Lou Fishman gave up only four hits but walked seven while striking out nine.

For Quincy Ed Daley and Mark DeLuca had two hits apiece.

In its previous game Morrisette exploded to hand defending champion Braintree its worst defeat of the season, 11-1, with Tim Clifford pitching another outstanding game. He gave up six hits, struck out eight and walked four.

Morrisette clinched the win with a six-run third inning. Mike DePolo had a triple, John Lawlor a double and Paul Messina and Steve McKinnon singles in the big inning.

Morrisette added four runs in the fourth and one in the sixth, while Clifford lost his shutout in the last inning.

Lawlor had a double and two singles, Jim Roberts and McKinnon two singles each.

Earlier Morrisette nipped Hingham, 2-1, with Clifford turning in a fine relief effort to save the win for Lawlor.

Lawlor, author of an earlier no-hitter, pitched five strong innings but gave way to Clifford with runners on first and second and no outs as a result of an error and a bunt single in the sixth.

The big right-hander, voted the top pitcher in the Suburban League this spring, Another bunt single filled the bases but John Whorf lined to McGuire in right field and McGuire's great throw kept the man on third base. Then Clifford turned on the heat and struck out the final two batters.

It was an excellent pitching duel between Lawlor and Hingham's Jim Hirsch. Lawlor gave up four hits while he was in there and Hirsch, who went all the way, yielded only five.

Morrisette scored in the first when Glynn's bases loaded single drove Jack Rabel across. Morrisette made it 2-0 in the top of the fourth without a hit when Dwyer reached on an error, stole second and scored on another error.

Quincy, kept rolling when it scored six times in the final inning to overcome a 7-2 deficit and shock Braintree, 8-7.

Paul Southerland had three hits and Ed McAleney and Paul Vespaziani two apiece to spark the 10-hit attack. John Earl led of three pitchers, got the win. Steve Infascelli had pitched three strong innings in relief of Vespaziani.

Quincy bombed Hingham, 9-4, as Earl went all the way for the win and Preston Carroll led the offense with two hits, three runs batted in and three runs scored. Southerland and Mark DeLuca had two hits apiece.

Quincy bowed to Weymouth, 10-4, with Weymouth scoring five runs in the last inning. Quincy was held to three hits, singles by Ed Daley, Carroll and Fishman.

Wollaston finally entered the win column with a 4-0 win over Cohasset.

Firemen, Police League Pacers

The Quincy Babe Ruth League races continue red hot with the Firemen holding a one-game lead in the American League with a 10-4 record and the Police having a half game edge over Morrisette in the National League with a 9-5 mark.

In Sunday's games the Police edged Houghs Neck, 2-1, with Rich Boyle winning a tight pitchers' duel. John Andrews had two hits and Boyle and Larry Baker one each for Police, while Fred Kussman had two and Greg Zola, Mark Giordani and Art Davis one apiece for Houghs Neck.

Morrisette nipped VFW, 3-2, with Chris Segalla pitching a three-hitter. Rick Gibbody had two triples, Jim Hanrahan was two for four and John Sylva had a triple. Jack Condon scored the winning run.

Gino's defeated Sons of Italy, 10-6, with Peter Plant the winning pitcher, giving up only three hits. Joe Deane and Bob Cuervels had two hits each, Pete Plant a triple, Bob Lindenfeltzer a double and Steve Cook, Shatzel and Paul O'Toole a single each.

Saturday Barry's Deli walloped Granite City Electric, 9-1, behind Bill Deutsch's three hitter. Deutsch also had a triple and single, Mike Bondarick a triple and Bill French a single.

Last Friday Bersani Brothers edged Firemen, 7-6, with Mark Buchanan the winning pitcher. Steve Hale had three hits and Lenny P.cot and Buchanan two each for Bersani. For firemen Dave Austin and Bob Roberts had two hits apiece and Greg Oriola, Sal Coscia and Ray Coscia also had hits.

Hancock Bank blanked Elks, 8-0, with Dave King pitching the shutout. Mark Flaherty and Mike McCormack had two hits each for Hancock and Fred Graham two for Elks.

Earlier VFW topped Houghs Neck, 7-4, with Tom LaBleau the winning pitcher. Harry Donahue had two hits for VFW.

Quincy Police Boys Club Guests At Pool Party

The members of the Quincy Police Boys Club, which won the Youth Hockey Association's Midget House League championship, were recently guests of Coach John Estano at a pool party.

The boys dined on steaks and all the trimmings supplied by the Police Betterment Association, which sponsors the team.

The Police Club won the title with a 3-2 win over Cox Rambler in the final game of the playoffs. Paul Smith scored twice and Ed Laracy scored the winner with two minutes to play.

The team finished the season with only 13 players including a goalie, due to injuries and other circumstances.

Tony Reilly was outstanding throughout the season in goal with many game-saving saves. Jim Consta and Paul O'Brien led the scorers, followed closely by Laracy and Ed DiRamio.

Rounding out the squad were Smith, Dave Gendreau, Pat Cummings, Paul Palmer, Tim Sprague, Paul Lindenfeltzer, Mike and Kevin McGroarty. Don Hammel was the assistant coach.

City Boating, Sailing Registration

The Quincy Recreation Department's boating and sailing program is holding registration Wednesday and Thursday [today], from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Black's Creek Boathouse.

The boathouse is located just off Southern Artery in Merymount Park. The program is open to all city residents.

Recreation Director William F. Ryan said instructional classes for youths, ages 8 to 16 who have passed a qualifying swim test, will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, beginning Monday July 7.

Classes on rowing and sailing, from beginner to advanced levels will continue for a seven-week period during July and August. Ryan said that interested applicants may take the qualifying swim test at any of the 13 swim stations located throughout the city.

The program emphasis continues to be on the importance of safe boating and the need of people of all ages to acquire and refine basic skills. The Red Cross approved courses deals with boat nomenclature, knot tying, rowing, launching and docking.

Upon successful mastery of basic seamanship skills, participants progress to sailing and receive Red Cross certificates after successfully completing each course.

In addition, adults may take advantage of their leisure time and sail or take individualized instruction from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. week-nights or take the entire family sailing Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Adults desiring instruction may make individual appointments by contacting Michael Morrissey, Director of the Boating and Sailing Program at the boathouse.

Bob Hennessey Columbus Head Coach

Bob Hennessey of Quincy has been appointed head football coach at Christopher Columbus High School, Boston.

He replaces Mike Mezzochi, who has been appointed principal and head football coach at Lebanon High School in New Hampshire.

198 Color TV Sets Installed At Hospital

By DEIRDRE SULLIVAN

Installation of 198 color television sets gives Quincy City Hospital the first such TV system of its kind on the South Shore.

Sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital and conducted by the Hospital Services Division of GTE Sylvania, the sets are part of a specialized rental plan now in operation at the hospital. Nineteen inch color consoles with bedside controls are now in most patient's rooms throughout the hospital. They are available on a daily rental basis.

Currently available to all patients for viewing, the program requires no involvement on the part of the hospital financially. Contracted by the Women's Auxiliary, the entire cost of equipment, installation, and service were borne by the Sylvania Company. Daily operation is maintained by two Sylvania representatives at the hospital. All profits from the rental of the sets will go to the Women's Auxiliary and will be used to purchase equipment for the hospital. Hospital charges will remain unaffected.

The sets are the most modern in hospital television systems. Televising four channels, UHF stations, and a radio station, they have passed stringent safety controls and have been approved for use in a hospital setting, officials said. Permanently installed on walls above the patients, the sets are operated by bedside controls. According to safety regulations, they will be the only sets allowed in the hospital.

A multi-purpose system, the sets can be used for educational and security purposes as well as entertainment. With the proper adjustments, the system has been designed by the Sylvania Company to broadcast closed circuit programs.

Hospital officials see these as some of the future uses of the systems. Eventually they would like to accommodate the sets for teaching purposes as well as for use as a security device.

$835,000 Construction Planned For Wollaston Recreational Facility

By TOM SULLIVAN

The old Wollaston Golf Club on West Squantum St., is no more.

The Norfolk County Commissioners officially took over the operation of the club Monday and it became the Wollaston Recreational Facility.

The present 18-hole course will remain in operation until the end of the month but on or about Aug. 1 construction will start on a new course and recre. n area and a temporary nine-hole course will be used during construction.

The county purchased the club about a year ago but took out a lease with the club, whose personnel remained and operated the public course until Monday.

The Wollaston Golf Club has moved to Milton and the Wollaston Recreational Facility has taken over on West Squantum Street.

John J. Sullivan Jr., executive assistant to the commissioners, announced it will cost about $350,000 for construction of a recreation area including 10 tennis courts, picnic area and juvenile area, and another $500,000 for construction of a new 18-hole golf course.

"But the federal government will reimburse 50 percent of the cost," Sullivan said. "All money made by the new facility will be turned over to the county to lower the county assessment. This year's assessment, incidentally, will probably be lower than last year's, something few government agencies can claim."

The county commissioners, Chairman James J. Collins of Milton, George McDonald of Quincy and Thomas McManus of Norwood, will be in charge of the new facility and Jim Fitzroy of Pittsfield will be the superintendent.

While construction is going on, the temporary nine-hole course will include the third hole to the existing sixth hole, picking up at the 14th tee to the 18th green.

QCA Board To Elect

4 Southwest Representatives

Four community representatives from the southwest Quincy area will be elected to the Quincy Community Action Board, Tuesday July 29 and Wednesday July 30 at the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., South Quincy.

The community center will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday.

$78,895 Grant

The Quincy School Committee has been awarded a $78,895 federal grant from the department of Health, Education and Welfare for maintenance and operation of the Quincy schools.

Congressman James A. Burke said $59,171 will be paid immediately with the balance paid at a later date in the fiscal year.

The existing first and second holes will be turned into a recreation area and the facility is working with the Milton Conservation Commission to build up the swamp area on holes 11 and 12.

The existing pond will be increased eight-fold, according to Fitzroy, and will be the irrigation source for the course.

"This area will be recharged from wells and there will be ice skating in the winter," he said.

He explained that the new course will have new greens, tees and the fairways will be shortened somewhat. The hills will be graded and made easier to walk.

The entire construction work will be started by Labor Day.

"The recreation area will include 10 tennis courts, a bang wall to practice on and play handball, shuffleboard, horseshoes, and a juvenile area with swing sets, teeterboards and other attractions for children," Fitzroy continued.

"The area will be developed like a park with trees, flowers, shrubs and a large picnic area. The present clubhouse will be torn down and a new one built more central to the course and recreational areas. There will be additional parking where the clubhouse now stands."

"I am really excited about this and am eagerly looking forward to working here with the commissioners."

"We are fortunate to have Jim Fitzroy, he is exactly the type of person we need for such a facility," Collins said. "He was groundskeeper at Sutton and at other courses. We interviewed 20 persons for the job and narrowed it down to three. We felt he was the best for the job."

"We will keep the number of employees and other expenses down to a minimum because we want the money which comes in to go back to the taxpayers."

The construction is expected to be completed by next spring and the facility should be in full operation by the fall of 1976, according to Sullivan.

Summer Enrollment Up 40% At QJC

A total of 1,005 students are enrolled in Quincy Junior College's 1975 summer session, an increase of 40 per cent over last summer.

The per centage represents an increased enrollment of 385 students over last summer's 620.

Richard Mula, dean of continuing education, attributes the rise in enrollment to the variety of courses and program offered at the college.

He also noted many people are taking courses to improve skills and change professions to be better prepared to compete in today's job market.

Mula said many veterans are currently enrolled at the college under the new G.I. rates, working towards associate degrees.

Seating guests at theater comfortable on the aisle or an infirm person needs the seat closest to the aisle.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I received a letter from a friend in which she mentioned her brother-in-law. Would this man be her sister's husband or her husband's brother?

Bewildered

Dear Bewildered:

He could be either. If you know the family well and the news of this man would have been of special interest to you the writer should have said, "Ann's husband," or "Frank's brother, Tom."

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

When we invite another couple to attend the theater as our guests, in what order should we sit?

Mrs. Randy P.

Dear Mrs. P.:

The woman guest enters the row first, then her husband followed by you, then your husband last. However, there would be nothing wrong in the two women sitting side by side. Long-time friends often prefer this arrangement so they can chat more easily before curtain time and during the intermission.

If this order is the hostess' preference she should say to her man guest, "Let me go in first and sit by Grace so you and George can have a visit."

The host always enters the row last unless there is some reason to do otherwise. Perhaps an especially long-legged person would be more

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

This letter is regarding your recent answer to "Irate in New Orleans" concerning telephone etiquette of secretaries. While I agree with you about the manner of phrasing regarding the name of the caller I disagree about the nature of the call. As you stated in your reply, an executive may want to know the name of the caller in order to gather together his thoughts and papers before the start of the conversation.

The same explanation is also applicable in requesting the nature of the call. Furthermore, a busy executive may request his secretary to handle certain aspects of his business in order to free himself for more pressing matters.

Martha J. Carriere

Dear Mrs. Carriere:

Of course, you have a point but I still feel no caller should be put through the paces by a secretary. I can't believe there is an executive who doesn't have the tact to turn away a salesman or a solicitor. It has been my experience that the higher the office the more approachable the man.

If the executive does request his secretary to screen his calls I think she should tell the caller. It gets her off the hook and offers some explanation to what might appear nosiness on her part.

Ideas offered on studio living

By BARBARA HARTUNG

Q. I am planning to move into my own apartment in two months. It is a studio with a large square room for the living, dining and bedroom and a small kitchen is enclosed off the hall. The room is not large enough to divide in any way, but I hate to have the twin bed dominate everything. I want to buy some chests and a desk to go with my bed, a lounge chair and a table and two director's chairs. Would you give me some suggestions for my first home away from home? — T. W.

A. If you do not wish to create a room divider in your studio, you might consider dividing the room into general areas by the way in which you arrange your furniture. You might arrange your bed to fit into an L created by placing a short and a long chest at right angles to one another. Cover the bed in a tailored throw spread or attractive quilt and pile plenty of interesting pillows around the edge.

Arrange your lounge chair and your directors' chairs and table in the sitting area. You might use your dining table as a double duty desk and use the space you would use for a desk to house some books and collectibles in an eglomise. Or a desk would fit into either the sleeping area or living area. Furniture such as this would be flexible enough to go into a larger apartment if you later desire to move.

Another attractive trick is to select a color scheme and lean more heavily on one color in one area of your room and choose to emphasize another color in the scheme in another area.

Q. Would you please help me with my choice of colors. My walls and drapes are antique white, the couch and loveseat are of a green and white floral pattern and my rug is a two-color pale rust and gold loop. I am thinking of another chair in a solid rust. Am I on the right track? — S. M. G.

A. Probably a pale rust would be a possible choice. However, rather than a solid rust, I think you might find you would have a more coordinated look if you chose a soft, pale stripe of green, white, rust and gold or even green and rust. I think this would tie your rug and your couch and loveseat together. I believe a great deal depends on the colors you choose and how they blend with one another.

Getting settled made simple.

How to cover snap sections

One thing I learned through all my trials and tribulations of a few weeks ago is a super way to cover snaps — and I covered plenty!

Cut two squares of covering fabric (lining) slightly larger than you will need. Place the two squares right sides together. Close snap sections together THROUGH the fabric.

Leaving snaps fastened to the fabric, trim the squares to the right size circles. (Fabric extending beyond snaps should equal half the diameter of snap, plus a "smidge.")

Working with one layer at a time, run a row of hand basting near edge of circle. Draw up thread to pull fabric snug over back of snap section. Hand tack firmly.

You now have two covered snap sections and nothing run away from you or got lost in the shag rug. Leave snaps fastened until you are ready to attach them to your garment.

TV ads sway 6-year-old

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Q. Our 6-year-old watches television more than I'd like him to, but the main thing that bothers me is the fact that he's so influenced by the commercials.

He takes them as absolute fact, and often pressures me to buy the products that are advertised. Then he's disappointed because the games on the boxes and the prizes in them don't compare with the TV ads.

I'd appreciate your ideas for handling this situation.

A. Providing other activities that cut in on his TV watching and looking at programs with him may be helpful. If you watch programs together, you might point out the ways in which some commercials stretch the truth.

You have a lot of company with this problem. Because the average child sees about 22,000 commercials a year (and many of them affect health and safety), a new organization has started to battle their influence. It's called the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising. I'm sure they'd like to hear from you at 1346 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Q. My wife's handwriting is a mess, and so is my son's. I'll have to admit that others seem to have no trouble reading what both of them write, but it bothers me just the same. I was brought up with the idea that we write to communicate, and if we do so in a sloppy manner, that's wrong. Do you agree?

A. You said that they seem to communicate well even though their writing is "a mess," so what's the problem? If there is one, it may be with your own compulsiveness rather than their lack of it.

You apparently write neatly, and their personality and skills are perhaps in different directions.

In the field of education we talk about nurturing "individual differences." It's not a bad idea to do it within our families too.

Q. It's nag, nag, nag! My husband won't let our boys alone, to enjoy sports if they like them and not necessarily to always be competing aggressively. With our oldest son it was football. With our youngest it's tennis because he's not so husky. If you don't win, you're no good, my husband feels, and that's what he tells them all the time.

I'm surprised they haven't been completely turned off toward these sports, and hopefully they won't be. But his pressure is almost too much for them to bear, I'm afraid.

What do you suggest I do? A. When they do a good job, at sports or anything else, try to compliment them so they get the idea that all of their efforts aren't worthless. Everyone needs support, and the knowledge that what we do is worthwhile. So, to compensate for his running them down, you might try building them up.

It'd be great if you could control his own aggressive tendencies but you probably can't. He no doubt shows them in his own work and just doesn't realize that personalities, even within the same family, differ a great deal.

You and your sons can "win" too, but in ways that are more satisfying to you, not necessarily based on the defeats of others.

OFF TARGET SPRAY

Any foreign substance entering your eyes can result in horrible consequences, ranging all the way from simple irritation to permanent blindness. Spray cans present problems because of the large number of potentially dangerous products that are now available in that form. The use of potent cleaning solvents in many garages, and oven cleaners in the kitchen can present real hazards. An inadvertent squirt of such a chemical in the eye will cause damage to the tissue, especially if not immediately flooded with water. This situation is aggravated by the fact that many spray cans have inadequate marking for the direction that the spray will be ejected.

Try to purchase cans that are designed so that it is difficult, if not impossible, to depress the valve when the nozzle is facing backwards. With an spray cans always check — and double check — to see that the arrow or other indication is pointing away from you.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Elects New Board Of Officers

Quincy Symphony Orchestra elected a new Board of Officers at their recent annual meeting.

The officers are:
Andrew Walsh, president;
Richard Thayer, first vice president; Mary Vallier, second vice president; Joseph Doran, treasurer; Margaret Phelan, deputy treasurer; Robert Williamson, recording secretary; and Norman Taylor, corresponding secretary.

Newly installed members are Karen Rydowski, Donald Johnson and Jack Savits.

All new officers and members are from Quincy, with the exception of new trustee, Dick Ambrosia of Weymouth.

It was reported that the Symphony ended its season in financial success, with a profit of close to $1,000—a first in the more than 25 year history of the symphony.

Credit for the success was attributed to the active leadership of Andrew Walsh, Rick Thayer and Richard Koch of the symphony, and the sponsorship of the Quincy Savings Bank.

Historical Society Annual Tea At Adams Birthplace Sunday

The Quincy Historical Society will hold its Annual Tea at the Adams Birthplaces Sunday, July 13, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. The event will be held rain or shine. The tea annually scheduled on the Sunday nearest the birthday of John Quincy Adams, is open to the public.

"Invited guests include members of the city government whose presence emphasizes the cooperative effort of the City of Quincy and the Society in the maintenance and operation of the site," noted Society

President, H. Hobart Holly. Also invited will be the presidents of neighboring historical societies.

Miss Vera Call, hostess for the event, will be assisted by the members of the Board of Curators and their wives.

The event provides an opportunity for area residents to visit the simple farm houses, birthplaces of two presidents. The Quincy Historical Society has operated the John Quincy Adams birthplaces since 1897 when the Adams family restored the site and it was opened to the public. The John Adams birthplace was operated by the Abigail Phillips Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution until the chapter disbanded in 1950 at which time the Society assumed responsibility for both sites.

The city has owned and maintained the properties since they were deeded to Quincy by the Adams family some 200 years ago. The Quincy Historical Society owns the contents of both houses which represent authentic furnishings of the Colonial period.

We've taken the Nonsense out of Personal Loans.

At Quincy Bank we've gotten back to the basics by simplifying our services to make things easier... faster... and more convenient for everyone.

So there's nothing complicated about our personal loans; whether you need money for a vacation, home improvement, automobile, unexpected expenses... you name it:

- You can usually get your loan approved in a matter of hours and it's easy to apply for.
- You pay simple interest only—a real advantage which can save you money by giving you a greater control over the amount of interest you'll pay.
- You get a clear, easily understood statement every month.
- You receive life insurance on the unpaid balance at no additional charge up to age 65.

And, we don't try to sell you a lot of other services because we've taken the nonsense out of personal loans—that's the Spirit of '75.

Buyer's Strike Planned

Shoppers in Quincy Square gathered outside local food stores to discuss plans for a "buyers' strike".

As the first few shipments of meat came into the city, shoppers began lining at meat counters, but boycotted the meat when prices were posted.

With steaks selling at $1.20 per pound and roasts at 89 cents per pound, the average family was expected to be back eating fish again this week.

NURSES TO REQUEST PAY INCREASE

Request for a pay increase for hospital nurses was scheduled to be presented before a special meeting of the City Council this week.

According to Helen Potter, director of the Nursing School, wages at Quincy City Hospital were about $10 a month lower than the schedule recommended by the state nurses' association.

The present scale began at $100 a month and increased to $110 at the end of a year.

QUINCY'S NUMBER ONE POLICEMAN RETIRES

Patrolman Henry Thorne, Quincy's oldest police officer in both years and point of service retired this week, on his 70th birthday. He had served the city for 44 years.

Thorne had been stationed in City Hall for the past 11 years and was one of the best known police officers on the South Shore.

He joined the force in 1904 as a special officer. He was made a reserve officer and finally in 1906 was made permanent.

His biggest night came when he arrested 14 "drunks" in Quincy Point.

Mayor Charles Ross passed up a box seat at the All-Star game at Fenway Park so he could pay tribute to Thorne at City Hall ceremonies.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST RAT POPULATION

Mayor Ross announced plans for an all-out campaign to eliminate thousands of rats in the area of the city dump in West Quincy.

A recent survey showed the rat population at 1,800 with a steady increase daily.

Powerful doses of DDT would be spread over the dump by means of a special method developed by City Forestry Supt. Warren Stewart.

Health Commissioner Richard Ash declared that the growing rat population was endangering the health of the city and causing thousands of dollars damage to merchandise in stores.

Preservation Work At Historic First Railway Incline Starts

A special preservation involving the incline area of the Granite railway in West Quincy is announced by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

The project, which will take place on the city-owned site, was conceived by Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets. Both Hannon and Sheets have long felt that the site deserves serious attention by the city.

"The first railroad in America is recognized nationally and we must make the necessary improvements on the incline if it is going to be preserved for future generations," said Mayor Hannon.

The Mayor referred to a recent article in "Trains" magazine, a national publication, which described the historic significance of the Granite railway which began operations in 1826 under the direction of Gridley Bryant.

The railway was used to haul Quincy granite for the construction of the Bunker Hill Monument.

"Now is the time to do this work," said the Mayor, "since 1976 will mark the 150th anniversary of railroad's founding."

Councillor Sheets pointed out that some $10,000 was set aside by the City Council several years ago for improvements on the railroad. "We've been waiting for a way to accomplish the work," he said.

The funds are being held for the work by the Quincy Park Department.

In making the announcement, Hannon said he is asking Quincy Heritage, the city's agency for the Bicentennial and the 350th anniversary, to undertake the management of the project.

Sheets indicated that the Quincy Heritage program of restoration and beautification at the Hancock Cemetery will be involved in the railway project.

The work in West Quincy will include an extensive cleanup of the area, fencing the city-owned property for identification and preservation, proper signing of the site, and the restoration of the plaques on the granite pillars. Plans also call for the collection of archeological data.

John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage, who will supervise the project along with Richard Riley of the Hancock Cemetery program, said the project in West Quincy started Tuesday, and will continue for two months. "In this length of time, we should be able to make a significant and lasting contribution to the improvement of the railroad site," he said.

In authorizing the project, Mayor Hannon said he hoped this will be the first phase of a total program in the quarry area. He noted that Senator Arthur H. Tobin has been working with the MDC for over a year on the acquisition of property surrounding the site.

James Myette of 178 Taffrail Rd., Germantown, has been selected as project director. Myette, a founder of the Germantown Heritage Society, has had experience with archeological explorations in Quincy. He has lived in Quincy all his life and is a 1972 graduate of Quincy High School.

Four college-age students will assist Myette in the program. The students will begin work July 15. Neighborhood Youth Corps students will also be involved through the Hancock Cemetery program.

In addition to work at the incline, the project will also include extensive research.

"We hope to publish materials which will be of interest to the public since there are a growing number of requests for information on the railroad," said Mr. Graham.

The incline has received national recognition through the National Register of Historic Places.

Dedication Of USS Quincy's Bell To Highlight John Quincy Adams Tribute

Dedication of the USS Quincy ship's bell will highlight presidential wreath laying ceremonies July 11 marking the 208th birthday of President John Quincy Adams.

The ceremonies, to be held at 11:30 a.m. on the steps of United First Parish Church, will have a distinct Navy flavor.

The traditional presentation of the wreath from President Gerald Ford will be made to Mayor Walter J. Hannon by Quincy native, Capt. Henry Cassani, USN, commanding officer of the Naval Air Station, Weymouth.

Capt. Cassani will join city officials and former crewmembers of the USS Quincy in brief ceremonies dedicating the ship's bell, which will be permanently displayed at a site adjoining city hall.

The 1,600-pound bell will be mounted on an oak frame constructed by General Dynamics and presented by them to the city. The frame is similar in design to that of the historic Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

Ceremonies honoring the sixth president will open with patriotic music and the singing of the National Anthem by the Quincy Heritage staff member, Kerry Mahoney.

Welcome to the event will be given by John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage, the city's agency for celebrating its 350th birthday and the nation's bicentennial. Senator Arthur H. Tobin will deliver the keynote address.

A special reading of John Quincy Adams' speech of July 4, 1831 will be presented by H. Winslow Bettinson of WJDA.

The speech, delivered by Adams 144 years ago in the First Parish Church, extols the excellence of the Declaration of Independence calling it the first example of a self-constituted nation proclaiming to the rest of mankind the principles upon which it was associated, and deriving those principles from the laws of nature.

A special parchment copy of thoughts of John Quincy Adams has been prepared by Quincy Heritage and will be available to those attending the ceremonies.

Accepting the presidential wreath on behalf of the city will be Mayor Walter Hannon. Accepting for the "Church of the Presidents" will be Dr. Walter Wrigley.

The wreath will be taken to the crypt of the late president in the basement of the church, where it will remain throughout the year in honor of his memory.

Following the wreath laying ceremonies an invitational luncheon will be held for city officials, businessmen, and community leaders in the dining hall of the church. The civic luncheon is sponsored by the South Shore National Bank and will be hosted by Councillor Warren Powers, chairman of the city council Committee on Historical Places.

Is The Crew-Cut Coming Back?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Don't look now, but is the crewcut coming back? South Quincy barber Vincent Contrino who gives one of the best, thinks the popular style of the 50's and early 60's may be making a comeback.

"I cut 20 of them just the other day," he reports. "Some were young boys and others were of high school age."

One slight difference though: the kids don't care for the old brushed-back look. They just let the front lay as it falls.

After looking at some of the shoulder-length hair-dos worn by some males, Contrino's report should come as good news to most people who like the old fashioned way of women looking like women and men like men.

Frankly, I've been wondering when some of these extreme shoulder-length hair-dos boys might start carrying handbags and wearing padded bras.

Of course, I'm prejudiced, having sported a crewcut for many years until just recently. But if I had my choice I would always prefer to see my son with a crew cut instead of a hair-do like his sisters.

And speaking of crew-cuts do you remember this alumni: City Clerk John Gillis, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Assessor John Comer [newly elected state American Legion commander], Councillor Joseph LaRaia, former Councillor Richard Barry?

Ah, life was simpler then.

SPEAKING OF PERSONAL prejudices, another one of mine is rock 'n' roll. I just ; can't dig it. My kids think I'm a square snake, which is even worse then being a plain old four cornered square.

It bothers me that most of the kids today grow up listening only to loud electric guitars and noisy singers and lyrics that contain four or five words repeated over and over.

I often wonder if they could have heard the likes of Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Jimmy Dorsey, Harry James, etc., would they really be so sold on rock 'n' roll.

So it kind of shattered me the other day when I asked one of the girls [19] in our production department if she ever heard of Glenn Miller and she replied:

"Did he sing any famous songs?"

IF YOU'RE PUSHING-- or passed--40, this will make you feel good. Atty. David Raftery, special assistant attorney in Frank Bellotti's office, was challenged by his son, David, Jr., 16, to enter the Merrymount Association's 2½ mile road race. The latter is a pitching ace for Quincy High School and Quincy Legion Post.

"I accepted in behalf of the Attorney General's office and for everyone over 39," said the elder Raftery, after his son agreed to give him a five-minute handicap.

Well, Dave, Jr. won the race, setting a new record of 14:12. But Dave, Sr. won the 39-and-over division in 18:12--with one minute to spare on the five-minute handicap. So Dave, Sr. really won it for us old guys.

SOME OF THE so-called political experts figured on Paul Harold to run for School Committee instead of City Councillor at-large. The way they figured it, the School Committee race was easier with two open seats. The Council at-large field has one open seat and a tough-to-beat lineup. So why didn't Harold take advantage of the school committee situation?

Because some time ago he said he would never run for the school committee just because it might be an easier race. He wants to be a city councillor. He says by running, he offers the voter a distinct choice. The kid's got class.

PATRICIA TOLAND, one of the candidates for School Committee had four of her children in the Squantum and Merrymount Fourth of July parades campaigning for Mama. Dressed in green and white jerseys with the name "Toland" across them. Those are her campaign colors.

OBSERVATION via Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist: "People carried away by their own importance seldom have far to walk back."

Thumbnail Thoughts

By K.A. SMITH

New York City may be broke but that's small consolation to individuals in the same condition.

Duck, Mike! State employees who failed to get pay checks for the July 4th weekend want to borrow the governor's meat cleaver.

Governor Dukakis has troubles with the Legislature, but it all evens out. He has troubles within his secretariat, too.

It's a "no-win" situation on Beacon Hill. Either the taxpayers or beneficiaries of "human needs" programs, or both, will get hurt when the budget is resolved.

Legislators voting for two tax hikes in one year will be as highly regarded as a guy with two wives.

Building A Regional Economy

Swanee, How I Love You

By ERIC M. SWIDER

ATHENS, Ga.—"Where are the best pickings for industrial prospects, class?" asked the instructor. "New England," the group recited in unison. My ears perked up at that one. "Why?", he asked. And then the litany of reasons you've heard and read so many times before came pouring out, this time, all as superlatives - high taxes, high land costs, union problems, apathy and lack of organization on the part of state governments to keep their industry, etc., etc.

I'm down here at the University of Georgia this week teaching a class in Public Relations at the U.S. Chamber's Institute for Organization Management for Chamber of Commerce Executives from the Southeast. My counterparts from Georgia, Louisiana, Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida and the Carolinas are the students; and my teaching schedule has allowed me to observe a couple of other sessions.

The Economic Development class that I refer to above is being taught by Lamar Clifton, a very aggressive industrial raider out of Albany, Georgia. Over the last twenty years, Lamar baby has personally ripped us, in the golden triangle, off about 45 times; so he is a well qualified instructor when it comes to briefing new people in our business in how to continue the effort.

The Southerners' golden triangle starts in Boston, extends to Detroit, and goes down to Washington D.C.; and they love it, love it, love it. But more than any part of that turf, New England, and specifically Massachusetts, is their favorite.

I sense an enthusiasm down here for doing us in that is more than disturbing - it's downright embarrassing.

The emphasis for about one hour of their session was on how to use the resources of the 'State Development office' and the technique for qualifying prospects with the "State". Sounds like a very intermeshed team effort on the part of government and business that doesn't exist in Massachusetts for sure.

The time, money and effort that goes into bringing a new industry to town is phenomenal. They estimate that 600 firms must be contacted to bring 20 prospects to town and that will result in one industrial relocation.

Everybody has industrial revenue bond financing authorities available - a sore point here - and uses them quite effectively as a way of providing 'low cost' financing. Hal Davis, the South Shore Chamber's Economic Development Manager, pointed out to me recently that one county in South Carolina last year put together twice the amount of IR bonds as did the whole Commonwealth.

They were also frank to admit their shortcomings, too; but they felt that the balance of their Chamber program, aimed at quality of life improvements, would eventually put them in better position in that arena.

'How to Handle MAMA' took about twenty minutes' worth of time; and, while it was a little transparent, I learned that the MAMA's play a bigger role in industrial decisions than one might imagine. For the uninitiated, the MAMA's are the wives and families of executives who are making location decisions; and so teams of wives have been recruited and trained to point out the shopping center, schools, and cultural and recreational opportunities to MAMA while she's around.

"When is the best time to see the Governor?", was another segment. I got the distinct impression that maybe Southern governors spend about 25% of their waking hours calling and contacting Northerners. Well, I guess I can understand that. When you have full employment, low welfare loads, and coffers full of cash, you have to have something to occupy your time; so talkin' and visitin' with Yankees might be a pleasant diversion and very reassuring.

During a coffee break, I talked with one Loosonian who was complaining to his friend that it just set him back 47 grand to build a five-bedroom, four-bathroom, etc., house on two and a half acres. "Prices are sky-rocketing," he said; and he topped it off with the further problem of having to pay a full $99 a year in property tax. Yes sir, I could really identify with this guy.

I'm looking forward to my flight out of here tonight, to my return to the real world where $700 million deficits are offered as balanced budgets and where our slogan - Massachusetts, a beautiful state of mind - inspires me to think bigger and better thoughts.

[Eric M. Swider is the Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

STATE HOUSE BOX SCORE

State Financing Pool For Campaigns Ok'd

By RON IACOBUCCI

STATE HOUSE - Last week, the Massachusetts House approved 205-26 a bill that would create a government-run financing pool for state wide political campaigns but amended 151-75 the original proposal to eliminate any commitment of public funds.

As approved by the House, the bill would require contributors to add $1.00 to the amount owed the State or subtract $1.00 from the refund due, using the tax return checkoff only as a convenient way of donating their own money.

The original bill without amendments provided for a public financing bill that is similar to the Federal Tax checkoff plan, in which a taxpayer can allot $1.00 of his tax bill toward a fund for all presidential candidates, without affecting the amount of his tax or refund.

The original plan was amended to delete the use of public funds at a time when the State's fiscal condition is critical.

The Quincy delegation voted 3-1 against the amendment with Rep. Joseph Brett voting in favor and Reps. Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and William Delahunt voting against.

On the vote to order the bill as amended to a third reading Brett, Brownell, Cerasoli and Delahunt voted in favor.

When asked why he voted against the amendment Cerasoli replied:

"As a member of the election laws committee I have been supportive of the concept of public financing and believed that the amendment would seriously affect the positive impact the bill would have in our campaign process."

Delahunt also a member of the election laws committee voted against the amendment because, he said: "I endorsed the concept of public financing and believe that the lack of public funding would make the implementation of the program more difficult."

School.

A gift was presented to Fr. Downey by Gladys DiPietro, chairman of the Parish Activities Commission of the Parish Council, on behalf of those present.

Fr. Downey was ordained in 1945 at Holy Cross Cathedral by the late Bishop Richard Cushing, and has served in parishes in Salem, Medford, Jamaica Plain, Hyde Park and Hingham, before his appointment as pastor of St. Joseph's in 1970.

Fr. Downey is Spiritual Director for the Norfolk Holy Name Society.

Meta Ash, Lindsay Tait

Honored By Point Congregational

Meta Ash and Lindsay Tait of Quincy recently received the Churchmanship Awards given by Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Rev. Bedros Baharian presented the award to Mrs. Ash, a Deaconess, member and officer of the Women's Union, and church member 46 years. Her plaque read in part:

"Throughout her years as a member, she has faithfully followed in the footsteps of the Master through her active concern for others. She has brought comfort to the sick and shut-in within the parish and to those in our state hospitals. Her devotion and hard work have inspired others to acts of Christian charity."

Douglas Cunningham made the award presentation to his son-in-law, Lindsay Tait. A Church trustee, member of the religious education and executive committees, and Church moderator. Tait is the second in his family to be honored by the award. His father Samuel earned it in 1962.

Tait's plaque read in part: "Throughout his membership [31 years], he has exemplified the qualities of leadership and commitment essential to the life of the church and the well-being of the community...As a trustee of 1000 Southern Artery, his concern for the Church's ministry to senior citizens has resulted in many hours of service...In his business and community life, he has exhibited the qualities of integrity, concern and citizenship that contribute to the common good."

The awards were presented at the recent annual Church meeting.

2 Old Colony DeMolay Members

Awarded Chevalier Degree

Two Quincy members of the Old Colony DeMolay Chapter have been awarded the Degree of Chevalier.

The International Supreme Council of the Order of DeMolay announced degree awards will soon be formally conferred upon Wesley T. Woodward of 10 Mt. Vernon St., West Quincy and Frank M. Moody of 36 Taylor St., Wollaston.

The chevalier degree is the highest honor conferred on an active or senior member of the DeMolay for unusual and meritorious service on behalf of the Order. The two young men will receive their degrees in a public ceremony to be announced at a later date.

Woodward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Woodward, served as Master Councilor of the Old Colony Chapter in 1970-1971. Holder of several merit bar awards, Woodward is now serving as secretary of the Advisory Council of Old Colony Chapter.

Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon J. Moody, served as Master Councilor of the Chapter in 1971-1972. He has received several merit bars from the Supreme Council and currently serves as a member of the chapter's Advisory Council.

The Order of DeMolay is an international organization for young men 13 to 21 and is dedicated to the principles of building better citizens.

Churchman's League Holds Annual Meeting

The Churchman's League for Civic Welfare held its annual meeting recently in the Bethany Congregational Church Social Hall.

Approximately 170 people from the Boston area attended, including Mrs. A. Paul Gossard, Miss Muriel Jean Goudey, and Rev. John D. Banks, all from Bethany.

Mrs. Jessie Sargent, wife of the former governor, was one of the speakers. She told of the state's developing services to children, now threatened with curtailment because of a shortage of funds in the Commonwealth.

Rev. Eugene Langevin, minister of the "The Way", received one of three awards for outstanding Christian leadership in mission work.

Fellowship Breakfast July 20 At Union Congregational

Members of Union Congregational Church will hold a Fellowship Breakfast Sunday, July 20 with parishioners from Atlantic Memorial Church.

Scrambled eggs, bacon, orange juice, rolls and coffee will be served beginning at 8:45 a.m.

Reservations must be made by Wednesday, July 16.

Throughout July and August, members of both congregations will participate in joint worship services.

Irvin B. Gifford Honored

Right Worshipful Irvin B. Gifford was recently the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner sponsored by past masters of Rural Lodge of the Quincy 26th Masonic District, of which he has been a member for 40 years.

Gifford became a Mason in 1935 and was elected as Worshipful Master of Rural Lodge in 1943-44. Some of the many offices he has held over the years are: District Deputy Grand Master for the 26th Masonic District [1961-62], Advisor to the Old Colony Chapter, Order of DeMolay [1940-70], secretary of Rural Lodge since 1944, and Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Qualification [1953-63]. ALONG THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Marilyn Hanabury To Seek Ward 5 Seat

Mrs. Marilyn D. Hanabury of 2 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, announces her candidacy for the Ward 5 City Council seat.

A delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1972 and a Ward 5 delegate to the Democratic Caucus in 1974, Mrs. Hanabury recently received an award for involvement in politics from the South Shore Women's Political Caucus.

Mrs. Hanabury said she would like to see the development of "better communication" between the City Council and School Committee, adding she is "still concerned about the resolution of North Quincy High School."

Favoring a five-year plan for Quincy City Hospital, Mrs. Hanabury said she wants to see "speedy relief of critical conditions," specifically in the hospital's S-I wing.

She also noted her concern for added protection for cars parked in the Wollaston MBTA station. She said, too, dredging at Black's Creek "seems to be left in an unsatisfactory condition and not completed."

Involved in Citizens for Participation in Political Action, Mrs. Hanabury said:

"I feel the political process should not be left strictly in the hands of the politicians, that every one should be an informed voter, perhaps an active supporter of a candidate, or even a candidate."

Experienced 12 years in business, Mrs. Hanabury is on the Board of Directors of the Churchman's League for Civic Welfare and is a member of Morality in Media.

Paul Operach Seeks School Committee

Paul Operach of 25 Trask Ave., West Quincy, has announced his candidacy for Quincy School Committee.

A speech, hearing and language therapist in the New Bedford Public Schools, Operach said he will stress a "responsive and reasonable approach" to the needs of students and community. His prime objectives, he said, include:

- A "quality education" at a reasonable cost.

- Community control of schools and programs.

- Preference to local candidates for all non-professional and professional positions in the Quincy School Department.

A graduate of Emerson College, Operach holds a master's degree from Boston State College. He has taught on the secondary level and has served on accreditation committees.

Most recently he has served on curriculum development teams on the elementary level.

A member of the National Education Association and the Massachusetts Teachers Association, Operach is also an active member of the Massachusetts Speech and Hearing Association.

He is married to the former Beverly Uvanitte of Quincy. They have four children, three of whom attend Quincy schools.

Patricia Toland Recommends City-Wide Parent - Teacher Council

Reactivation of a city-wide Parent-Teacher Council is recommended by Mrs. Patricia Toland, candidate for School Committee.

Addressing a group of 100 supporters recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carey, 95 Reservoir Rd., Wollaston, Mrs. Toland began her campaign by stressing the need for active parental involvement in the schools.

Recently Mrs. Toland helped to organize a Parents Advisory Council at the Furnace Brook School which her children attend.

"I firmly believe that this type of council can make teachers and administrators more aware of parental concerns," she said. "In return, it gives the school personnel the opportunity to share their views with the parents. This exchange of ideas can greatly benefit the children of this city."

In addition to establishing councils at each school, Mrs. Toland believes a city-wide council is a necessity. "Not only could the individual school councils share areas of concern, they could also benefit from each other's experiences," she said. "Since parents and teachers share the responsibility of educating children, a city-wide Parent-Teacher Council would be a positive way for both groups to improve the learning experiences of the students in the Quincy Public Schools."

John Isaac To Seek Ward 2 Seat

John S. Isaac of 22 Shaw St., Quincy Point announces his candidacy for Ward 2 City Council seat.

Isaac said he feels that as a life long resident and home-owner from Ward 2, he is well aware of the problems confronting the residents of his area. "Ward 2 for too long has been one of the most neglected areas in the city," he said.

If elected, he proposes to maintain better communication between the citizens of Ward 2 and City Hall.

Isaac said he plans to run his campaign without soliciting any funds from the people of Ward 2. By not soliciting funds he will be obligated to all the people of Ward 2 - not just a few, he said.

Saphir Calls S. Quincy MBTA Station 'Political Nonsense'

Mayorally candidate Mrs. Grace Saphir has categorized efforts to build a South Quincy MBTA Station as "political nonsense."

In remarks delivered at a luncheon meeting of the Quincy Taxpayers Association board of directors, Mrs. Saphir attacked Mayor Walter J. Hannon's support of the station, claiming a discrepancy between the Mayor's words and actions.

She said Hannon had called Quincy's neighborhoods "one of our two greatest assets" when he announced his candidacy for re-election but followed this statement with an endorsement of the proposed South Quincy MBTA Station. Mrs. Saphir said:

"If plumbing for a South Quincy MBTA Station, despite opposition of most of the residents of that neighborhood, is the Mayor's idea of protecting one of our two greatest assets, then he must be talking some new kind of language that the rest of us do not understand."

Echoing her already-established campaign theme of politicking and cronyism in "that cozy City Hall coterie," Mrs. Saphir said:

"One reason I am seeking the office of Mayor is so that I can get rid of the political nonsense that goes on in Quincy. In that category I put the efforts of those who would saddle our city with an unwanted, unneeded MBTA facility."

Mrs. Saphir maintains the objectives of the proposed South Quincy facility could be accomplished by building a station in Braintree where she says the town, the MBTA - "all concerned" - have approved a station.

Commending the Quincy Taxpayers Association for its watchdog role in the community, Mrs. Saphir told the group:

"You deserve to be congratulated for your continuing interest in our city - and for the sometimes thankless task of pointing out to our elected officials things you know to be wrong. With people like you and other concerned citizens, it is a little harder for cronyism to have its way."

If elected, Mrs. Saphir pledged to continue a "people-oriented administration" intent on listening.

Davis Calls For Probe Of State Tax Payment 'Delays'

School Committeeman Harold Davis has requested a "full and impartial investigation" of alleged delays in processing state tax payments.

A candidate for city councilor at-large, Davis noted the state received over $500 million from personal income tax in 1974. He expressed fear of loss of "hundred or even millions of dollars in interest" caused by such delays.

In a letter to Nicholas Metaxas, commissioner of the state Department of Corporations and Taxation, Davis said seven weeks passed before the department cashed his 1974 income tax payment which he mailed April 14. Davis said his bank statement records the cashing of his check June 5. Calling this delay

"inexcusable...an example of financial irresponsibility," Davis told the Commissioner:

"While I am sure much paper work is involved in recording payments and investing the proceeds in certificates of deposits and other approved securities, I really believe seven weeks is an inexcusable delay...During that period, neither myself, the taxpayer nor the Commonwealth benefited from the use of those funds."

In seeking a solution to the problem of delays in check cashing, David advised the Commissioner:

"If the state is to convince its citizens that it is truly economizing and that huge tax increases are a necessity, then you must move to eliminate those delays in processing tax payments."

Tobin, Quinn Take Out Papers

Five more candidates, including Councilors-at-large Arthur Tobin and John Quinn, have taken out nomination papers for the city elections this fall.

It brings the total number of candidates now circulating nomination petitions to 33.

The other three new candidates are Marie E. MacIntyre of 118 Standish Rd., North Quincy, 11th to join the race for the School Committee.

Marilyn D. Hanabury of 2 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, third to seek the Ward 5 Council seat.

Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore, one of nine running for one of the three Councilor-at-large seats.

Ordinance Hearings To Be Set Special City Council Meeting Tonight

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin has called a special meeting of the City Council tonight [Thursday] at 5 p.m. in City Council Chambers.

A special session must be called since the Council is adjourned during July and August.

During the meeting, a date will be set for a City Council hearing on three proposed ordinance changes introduced by Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington. The ordinances involve:

- Elimination of a special privilege allowing one parking space per dwelling unit on apartment-zoned land within 1,500 feet of an MBTA station.
- Creation of a new zone Planned Unit Development-1 on which building height would be limited to eight stories.
- Re-zoning of a portion of the former Squantum Naval Air Station - land now without a height limit - to PUD-1.

The Planning Board has already held a public hearing on these and other proposed amendments to the city's zoning ordinance.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets has drafted a proposed revision of the city's tow law, expanding and clarifying the present ordinance to include specification of fees, liability for damage during removal or storage, police authorization and delineation of areas where a vehicle would be in violation of the towing ordinance. He plans to introduce the proposal at tonight's meeting.

Sheets will also introduce an order to control the placement of dumpsters on commercial property. Sheets said some of these waste receptacles containing garbage and trash now sit within 15 feet of property zoned Residence A and

B. He said he plans to set a reasonable limit requiring these dumpsters be placed a certain distance from residential property. No footage limit is in existence now, he said.

Sheets also plans to recommend that Unda's Bus Service, Inc., of Stoughton be allowed to pick up and discharge passengers on the Newport Ave. side of the Quincy Center MBTA Station.

This bus service will be provided for some 15 Quincy residents who work in Stoughton factories. Similar stops will be made in other neighboring communities.

The Ward 4 councillor said he will introduce a resolve commending the Morrisette Legion Post for its fourth of July festivities at O'Rourke Playground, West Quincy and for its band concert held that evening.

Quincy Excluded As Site For County Waste Disposal Plant

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has signed an amended bill which ensures Quincy residents a proposed regional waste-processing plant will not be built in West Quincy.

The waste facility plan - developed by the Norfolk County Commissioners - suggested locating a processing plant in West Quincy as part of an overall county-wide system.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets had urged Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin to amend a bill regulating the study of such a county system. The amendment excluded Quincy within any such study or regional district.

Sheets noted Quincy could later join a county waste system - if instituted - after city officials and residents have had the chance to observe the operation of such a system.

Sheets said he plans to send West Quincy area residents copies of a letter from Tobin telling Sheets of the signing of the amended waste study bill and ensuring that a processing plant will not be built in West Quincy.

Sheets will also enclose a letter of his own which says in part:

"Please be assured that a processing plant will not be built in West Quincy as long as I represent this area."

31 In Orientation Session For Hancock Cemetery Project

Thirty-one Neighborhood Youth Corps students took part in a three-hour orientation session held in City Hall Monday for all those participating in the Hancock Cemetery Restoration Project.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and John R. Graham, Executive Director of Quincy Heritage officially welcomed the students to the six-week project, which will involve a complete archeological excavation of the cemetery in addition to the restoration of the weathered and vandalized stones. The students will also complete old cemetery records and conduct tours.

A series of slides taken of last year's efforts was shown by Richard J. Riley, Director of the Hancock Cemetery Restoration Project. Aiding him this summer will be six college work-study students, each one specializing in a different aspect of the project.

They are Debbie Frank-archeology, Steve Hoffmann-business, Jean Cummins-Art, Bob Luciani-Art, Gerry Swainick-Education and Karen Pillar-Photography.

Hannon To Attend Conference With President Ford

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has accepted an invitation from President Gerald R. Ford to attend a conference Thursday [today] on revenue sharing.

Hannon will fly to Washington, D.C. this morning and return tonight.

The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. in the East Room of the White House.

Hannon said he was not informed how many other mayors will be attending.

"I don't know if it will be a conference of 300 mayors or a small meeting of 50."

Hoping to speak privately with Ford, Hannon said the federal government should use "priorities" in awarding funds to cities throughout the nation. He said:

"One priority is age... Quincy must be one of the oldest cities in the country. Another priority is unemployment but a third, and probably the most important, is a city's track record. What have you done with the federal funds given to you? If federal funds are used wisely, a city should be rewarded."

Hannon said, too, the federal government should give "a long and hard look" at public works projects including water, sewage and drainage systems.

"These are the kind of things I'd like to talk to President Ford about," Hannon said.

Ten-Year Ride With The Dow-Jones - To Nowhere!

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

And Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

We were struck recently by a chart graphing the rise and fall of the Dow-Jones industrial common stocks over the past ten years. It looked like a silhouette of the Alps.

The Mont Blanc of this stock chart, the peak of a ten-year profile, is the 1067 registered by the Dow-Jones in January 1973. The Brenner Pass is represented in the low 573 Dow-Jones recorded in October 1974. The most precipitous slope is reflected in the 21 months between these two dates.

The little investor, advised to "buy and hold", on the theory of a long-term rise in the gross national product, gets baffled when he looks at a chart like this. [He is even more baffled when he adopts a "buy and sell" strategy. Why is the market so sensitive to every item in the daily news? What stocks to buy? Which to sell?]

Suppose our investor purchased a group of blue-chip Dow-Jones stocks at 832 in July 1965. He watched them rise to 1001 in February 1966, decline to 736 in October 1966, hit 952 in September 1967, slide to 818 in March 1968, climb to 995 in December 1968, catapult to 627 in May 1970, struggle up to 958 in April 1971, skid to 791 in November 1971, conquer Mont Blanc at 1067 in January 1973, and then tumble into the Brenner Pass at 573 in October 1974. Some ride!

At least 20 times in the decade from 1965 through 1974 he picked up the morning paper to discover he was exactly where he started—at 832. Now he's wondering how long it will take to get him back up there, so he can get off!

The prognosis is not good. Total industrial production has been declining, with the index in January 9.5 per cent below September 1974. Retail volume in 1974 was down by 5 per cent, reflecting the consumer's diminished buying capacity; employment was down for the first time since 1970; the real gross national product [adjusted for price changes] declined at an annual rate of 9.1 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1974; unit labor costs rose; capital spending declined.

The American economy seems to be in a different ball game than it was in the past. How can we have rising prices in a period of recession? The "buy and hold" strategy for common stocks recommended to the small investor has failed over the past ten years, and there is no indication that it will be valid in the foreseeable future.

That's why we like the "safe, sure and available" investment in Federally-insured savings accounts.

Charles Schuetz Named 'Outstanding Educator'

Charles A. Schuetz of 107 Phillips St., Wollaston, has been named an "Outstanding Secondary Educator of America" for 1975.

Schuetz, assistant principal at Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston, teaches a senior physiology class.

Men and women chosen for the honor have "explored new paths, developed new insights and effectively communicated their knowledge to their students and colleagues."

Guidelines for selection include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service and professional recognition.

Educators chosen for the 1975 awards are now in competition for one of five national Outstanding Secondary Educators of the Year Awards. Each national winner will receive a $500 unrestricted grant and a award certificate commemorating their selection.

Elm Ave., Wollaston, is working towards a doctorate degree in philosophy at the University of Pittsburgh.

A 1972 graduate of Wellesley College, Miss Delp earned her master's degree in philosophy from the University of Pittsburgh in December.

PROFESSIONAL PROMISE AWARD - Susan M. Driscoll of 130 Elmwood Ave., Wollaston, was recently awarded the Alumni Association Award for Professional Promise at Northeastern University. Presenting the award are W. Roy Collins (left), of the Alumni Association and Christopher Kennedy of North Quincy, dean of students at Northeastern. The award is given annually to a graduating senior who has demonstrated outstanding professional promise through his or her character traits, scholastic ability, and cooperative work assignments. Miss Driscoll received a bachelor of arts degree in education from Northeastern on June 22.

In Just 12 Weeks

Conway Wollaston Office

Breaks $1 Million Sale Mark

Jack Conway's 15th office opened its Beale St. doors the first week of April. Now, just 12 weeks later, they have already broken a million dollars in sales. This phenomenal growth came as no surprise to manager Dick Cahill.

"When you've got a group of dedicated brokers like the ones I'm working with there is no way we could not succeed," he said. "These people really work. They are out there gathering listings, following up on leads and most of all servicing their customers".

Cahill said that most of Conway's customers come to the firm "because of its fine reputation throughout the area. Most of our customers are from the greater Boston area. They are looking for homes in every price range and we have them.

"Boston residents like the South Shore because of it's convenience. We are close to Boston for the commuter, offer excellent shopping and school facilities and are close to public transportation," he continued.

"Plus there's a pride of ownership here. The homes we sell are beautifully maintained. Whether it's a $30,000 in Quincy or an $80,000 home in Milton they are all kept up."

Cahill, though pleased with the million dollars in sales in less than three months, is now trying to break $2 million in under six months.

The Jack Conway Real Estate firm has 14 other offices from Quincy to Hyannis with over 150 sales associates.

Ensign Joseph Ahern Cited By Coast Guard

Coast Guard Ensign Joseph F. Ahern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ahern of 93 Schem St., Wollaston, has been awarded a Letter of Appreciation while serving aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Diligence, homeported at Key West, Fla.

He was cited for outstanding performance of duty, in September 1974, while helping fight a fire aboard a passenger ship in the Gulf of Mexico.

Ahern and his shipmates received the Coast Guard Unit Commendation for preventing the loss of lives and saving the burning vessel from possible destruction.

Domenic DeAngelo Accepted At West Point

Domenic DeAngelo, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. DeAngelo of 279 Newport Ave., Wollaston, has been accepted to West Point Academy, and is on the waiting list.

DeAngelo, a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree, will attend Worcester Polytechnic Institute if there is not an opening for him at West Point by September.

On Wentworth President's List

Two Wollaston residents have been named to the President's Honor Roll for outstanding scholastic achievement during the second semester at Wentworth Institute Evening Division.

They are Lee S. Batchelder of 247 Farrington St., and David J. McDonough of 36 Freeman St.

THE EARTH IS YOUR SPACESHIP

I am an astronaut in orbit around the earth. I am weightless. It is tin for lunch. I am having a beef sandwich. As I stated to eat my lunch I heard someone banging on the rocket's window. I went over to the window and looked. There was an alien trying to get in. I put on my spacesuit and went out. I beat it up and it fell all the way down to earth. It landed in the Blue Hills Cemetery where some grave diggers were digging a hole. When they saw him in the hole, they filled it in as fast as they could. Then they threw flowers on it and ran away.

Atlantic Neighborhood Assn. Awaits Action On Wollaston Beach Lifeguards

The Atlantic Neighborhood Association, concerned over lifeguard protection at Wollaston Beach, is taking a "wait-and-see attitude" toward the MDC's pledge to provide "adequate" police and lifeguard coverage along MDC territory this summer.

During a recent meeting with legislators including Rep. Joseph Brett, MDC Commissioner William J. Byrne promised to request added funds to ensure "adequate" lifeguard and police protection at MDC swimming areas.

Responding to reported cuts in lifeguard staff at Wollaston Beach this summer, the Atlantic Neighborhood Association launched a petition drive recently, seeking added lifeguard protection. Some 55 area residents signed the petition which was forwarded to Byrne by Brett.

Last year 26 lifeguards were stationed at Wollaston Beach but certain MDC "budgetary constraints" forced the MDC to consider chopping that figure to 12 for this summer.

Although Nantasket Beach, Hull will receive the same number of lifeguards as last year - 18 - Byrne said he is unsure Wollaston Beach will receive last year's number of guards.

Beverly Reinhardt, association secretary, told The Quincy Sun she felt Wollaston Beach needed "at least 26 lifeguards". She said even with the former compliment of 26 lifeguards, protection is lacking along certain sections of the beach.

Specifically she cited the beach area from South Bayfield Rd, to Squantum as unattended by lifeguards and noted the Black's Creek area carries a sign reading, "Swim At Your Own Risk".

"A sign like that doesn't mean a thing to kids," she said. She urged parents to inform their children not to swim in unguarded areas.

Rep. Brett said he feels "assured" protection at Wollaston Beach will be "sufficient" - perhaps even close to last year's number if MDC budgetary increases are granted by the legislature.

Fred Lynn Example

All-Star Balloting Needs To Be Revamped

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

With the annual major league all-star game coming up next Tuesday in Milwaukee, there is the usual guessing game as to who will make the starting club via the fans' votes, who will be selected by the managers to round out the squad and who the pitchers will be.

We feel the Red Sox player who most deserves to make the team is centerfielder Fred Lynn, who will be leading contender for the Rookie of the Year award.

However, Lynn, like several other worthy players, is not on the all-star ballot, which is made out much too soon and takes much of the luster out of the game.

Fred, who we rate right now as probably the best all-around centerfielder in the league, has been receiving a large number of write-in votes but it doesn't appear he will receive enough.

The managers usually pick the runnersup in the voting to round out their squads but there have been exceptions. If Alvin Dark, manager of the American League team, doesn't make an exception and select Lynn, if he isn't a runnerup, it will be a rank injustice.

In the early part of the season Carl Yastrzemski didn't look like an all-star but the way he has been hitting of late, he deserved another all-star berth. If he doesn't get the votes to start, it appears likely Dark will select him.

If the all-star game employed a designated hitter, Jim Rice would be a good bet but he has played so little in the outfield, he doesn't appear to have much chance of making the squad.

The Sox don't seem to have another player worthy of the all-star team, although Luis Tiant, again the ace of the pitching staff, would be a good selection and we think Dark may pick him.

The fallacy of having the all-star ballots printed so early is shown by the fact some players are on the ballot and receiving a lot of votes despite the fact they have been out much of the season with injuries and some have played hardly any games. Dick Green of the A's who retired, is on the ballot, as an example of how confusing the situation has become.

We were glad to see Manager Darrell Johnson finally move Yaz back to left field, where he belongs. He is not a first baseman but is still a good outfielder and we think the team is stronger with him in left field and Cecil Cooper at first base.

When Johnson took over as manager last year, he insisted Cooper was a big league first baseman and, now that he is playing regularly, he is proving it. He has been hitting well and playing a good game at first.

When Johnson does use Yaz at first, Cooper should be the designated hitter. The Sox need his bat.

We also hope Johnson gives Rico Petrocelli more time on the bench and uses Bob Heise or Denny Doyle at third. Rico has been of little help and has been struggling. Both Heise and Doyle, incidentally, are the John Kennedy-type players who can help out at any infield spot. The acquisition of Doyle was a master stroke and he is proving invaluable both at bat and in the field.

Data Defeats Weymouth For 9th

The Quincy Senior Babe Ruth League team, Data Services, extended its win streak to nine games with a 9-2 victory over Weymouth Elks, to hike its record to 9-3.

Bill Pitts led the Quincy attack with two singles and two runs scored. John Collins and pitcher Mike Holleran had a hit apiece and each scored two runs, while Holleran pitched four-hit ball.

In an exhibition game during a Jimmy Fund series, Quincy nipped Jordan, Minnesota, 1-0, in the final inning as Paul Barry and John Papile combined to pitch a three-hitter. Kai Hammer, the Minnesota pitcher, held Quincy to one hit until the final inning when Pitts singled to left, and, following a fielders choice, Rich Lucier and Paul McGuiggan singled but the runner on second was thrown out at the plate. Paul Barry then lined a single to center to drive in Lucier with the only run of the game.

Tonight [Thursday] Quincy hosts league leading Randolph at 8:15 at Adams Field.

The South Shore Senior all-stars, defending state champions, will play Saturday at Hanover's Sylvester Field. Representing Quincy will be Mark Jaehning, batting over .400; Eric Carrera, second baseman; Spike Cooney, pitcher-outfielder, and Dan O'Leary, shortstop.

If the South Shore team wins Saturday, it will play Sunday on the North Shore. The double elimination state championship playoffs will be played the following weekend at Dennis.

Recreation Roundup

By JOE MOSESSO

The Quincy Recreation Department officially opened its summer program Monday, July 7 with a wide variety of activities.

These activities include:

The traditional playground program. The City has 32 playgrounds, all staffed with specially trained instructors, and offering a vast assortment of activities and events, including baseball, basketball and softball leagues for both boys and girls.

Specialists programs include - music, tennis, archery, golf, nature, arts and crafts, ceramics, track and field, and drama. Each week well-qualified specialist staff travels throughout the city visiting every playground. For the exact time and date of each specialist visit, children should check the bulletin board at their local playground.

Aquatic programs include instructional swimming at 13 city beach locations - Avalon, Baker, Rock Island, Perry, Adams Shore, Treasure Island, Fenno, Elm, Bayfield, Nickerson, Mount St., Orchard and Edgewater. Red Cross trained instructors hold classes daily, dependent on the tide for non-swimmers and advanced swimmers. Registration is still being held at all 13 swim stations. Registration schedule for the rest of the swim week is Wednesday 9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.; Thursday, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.; Friday 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

Boating and Sailing program. Instructional classes are now being offered at Blacks Creek Boathouse for children between 8 and 16 years old who have passed a qualifying swimmers test at one of the 13 swim stations. Registration is still being conducted daily Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Blacks Creek Boathouse.

In addition adults may take advantage of their leisure time and sail from 4 to 8 p.m. each weeknight. Adult and family sailing is also offered on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Sundays from noon to 6 p.m. Adults desiring individual instruction may make appointments by contacting Boathouse Director Mike Morrissey at Blacks Creek Boathouse.

Water Ski program is open to any child 12 years or older who has passed a qualifying swim test and who has a Red Cross junior or senior life saving certificate. Registration for water skiing is being held daily at the 13 swim stations. This year because of the high cost of equipment a $2. registration fee will be charged. This fee entitles the participants to eight weeks of skiing.

Brian Buckley, has come up with two new summer programs. [1] instructional clinics at various sites throughout the city, offering youngsters the chance to learn fundamentals and rules of basketball, soccer, baseball and track and field. Trained specialists will conduct the clinics. [2] A Superstars Competition for boys and girls ages 8-12. Events will include foul shooting, golf chipping and the 50-yard dash. The youngsters will advance from playground competition to the city finals in late August.

One of the most successful recreation programs is run by Earl Vermillion at Happy Acres Day Camp for exceptional children. Vermillion again has many events planned for the summer such as Parents Night, field trips and a special track and field meet.

• Junior League Baseball

Foley Takes 9th Straight VFW Racks Up 3 Wins

Foley Chrysler-Plymouth is the hottest team in the Quincy Junior Baseball League and Sunday won its ninth game in a row, 5-1, over Kiwanis.

"Back on June 1, our team looked like it was going nowhere but the players then began to pull together and realized that to win a game team effort was necessary," Manager Bob Foley said. "It took a concerted effort on everybody's part to achieve this win streak and no one player kept the streak going. No matter how the season ends, these boys have learned the value of everyone pitching in together and being part of the team."

In its previous game Foley had nipped Rotary, 1-0, in seven innings. After Foley's Billy Foley and Rotary's Gary DiNardo pitched scoreless ball for the regulation six innings, Tom Canavan singled Foley home with the only run in the seventh. Tommy Heffernan's clutch pitching in the bottom of the inning preserved the win and streak.

Earlier Foley breezed to a 11-2 win over Boston Gear and walloped Elks, 9-1. It nipped Colonial Federal, 4-3, when Joey Conti, the youngest player in the league, singled cleanly to drive in the winning run off Mike Millane, one of the best pitchers in the league.

Foley also topped VFW, 9-0; Burgin Platner, 8-1, Rotary, 6-1, and Kiwanis 2-0.

Bryan VFW won four games, topping Houghs Neck in the latest game, 10-1.

Bruce Tobin was the winning pitcher and was aided by batterymate Jim Sullivan, who collected two doubles and two singles. Gus Gonzales had two singles and Dave Nigro a key hit. Tom McFarlane, Greg Oriola and Danny Marsters pitched for HN.

Girls Invited To Compete In CYO Golf Tourney

The 36th annual CYO golf tournament, which opens July 21 at Ponkapog Golf Club in Canton, will differ from all its predecessors for the first time, girls are being invited to compete.

The event is expected to attract more than 500 entries. Rt. Rev. Robert W. McNeill, Archdiocesan CYO director, based in Wollaston, announced.

VFW topped Elks, 5-2, with Danny Boyle the winning pitcher. Brian Tobin and Danny Boyle had doubles and Boyle also had a single. VFW scored five runs in the sixth on two hits, and three Elks errors. Jim Towhig was the losing pitcher.

VFW also defeated Rotary, 8-2, with Bruce Tobin pitching a two-hitter. Ten-year old John Purland had a home run and single, Brian Tobin and Sullivan two singles, John a double and Joe Gonzales and Bruce Tobin singles. John Costigan was the losing pitcher. Jim Pettinelli had two singles for Rotary.

In a 9-4 extra inning win over Remick's, Boyle was the winning pitcher. Sullivan made an outstanding play, blocking the plate to stop a Remick's run from scoring. Brian Tobin and Sullivan had doubles and Bruce Tobin, Boyle, Sullivan, Purland and Ted Shaw singles. Mark Boussy had a home run in the seventh inning. Robbie Craig was outstanding in defeat for Remick's.

Remick's nipped Sears, 2-1, with Mike Stranberg of Remick's and Kenny Mann of Sears hooking up in a tight pitching duel. Stranberg allowed two hits and a walk while striking out 11. Mann fanned 12 and gave up only one hit, a single by John Barrett. Five walks hurt him. Craig and Glenn Segalla stood out defensively for Remick's and Bobby Flynn for Sears.

Keohane's defeated Kiwanis, 6-4. Tommy Mullen was the winning pitcher and Jimmy Walsh the loser. John Balzano pitched to the last batter and struck him out to preserve Mullen's win. Brian Reale had a two-run double, Tommy Corliss an RBI single and Danny Walsh an RBI single for Keohane's and Steve Healy also singled.

Competition will be held in four divisions—Senior [under 26 last Jan. 1]; intermediate [under 19]; junior [under 16] and cadet [under 14].

Medal play for seniors and juniors will be Monday, July 21, and for intermediates and cadets Tuesday, July 22. There will be match play on Wednesday and Thursday with semifinals and finals July 25.

Clifford Fires One-Hitter For Morrisette

Tim Clifford, North Quincy High's ace pitcher, who was named the top hurler in the Suburban League this spring, is carrying on where he left off.

He's a major reason Morrisette Legion is tied for first place in Zone 6.

The big right-hander, headed for Harvard in the fall, ran his record to 5-1 Monday night when he pitched a one-hitter in topping Quincy, 6-2, at Adams Field.

The win left Morrisette tied with Weymouth for first place in Zone 6. Each team has a 10-1 record.

Morrisette, which hosts the Northeast Regional Tournament in August at Adams Field, tonight [Thursday] plays at Baintree at 6 p.m. Friday Morrisette hosts Hingham at 8 under the lights at Adams Field, Monday plays at Baintree at 6 and Tuesday will meet Cohasset at 8 under the Adams Field lights.

Meanwhile, Wollaston plays at Canton tonight at 6, Quincy goes to Weymouth Friday at 6, Wollaston is home to Cohasset Sunday at 8 at Adams, Monday Quincy entertains Hingham at 8 at Adams, Tuesday Quincy is at Canton at 6, Wednesday it will be Wollaston and Quincy at 8 at Adams and next Thursday Wollaston is at Baintree at 6.

Morrisette started off with three runs in the first inning against Quincy on walks to Paul Messina and Jack Rabel, run scoring singles by Mike DePolio and John Lawlor and a sacrifice fly by Jim Roberts. It added three in the fifth. DePolio beat out an infield hit, went to second on an error, Roberts reached on an error which scored DePolio, Dennis McGuire also reached on an error as Roberts scored and Steve McKinnon singled McGuire, who had reached second on a wild pitch, home.

Quincy scored unearned runs off Clifford in the first and fifth innings.

DePolio had a triple and two singles and Messina two singles.

Ed Daley had the only Quincy hit. Young Dave Raftery pitched well for Quincy but poor support ruined him.

Sunday Wollaston made a great comeback but, after trailing Hingham, 9-0, lost a 9-6 decision.

Jim Ferris and Jack Hatfield had two hits apiece to spark the Wollaston attack.

Quincy squeezed by Cohasset's hard-luck first year team, 2-1, to make its record 5-5, with Quincy's John Earle and Raftery combined for a three-hitter, Raftery earning the win.

Cohasset, which had also dropped a 2-1 heartbreaker to Morrisette in its previous game, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning but Quincy tied it in the third when Lou Fishman singled, went all the way to third on a wild pickoff throw and scored on John Gilmartin's balk.

Quincy won it in the seventh. Preston Carroll walked, stole second and scored the clincher on Mike Devine's single.

• Babe Ruth

HN Edges SOI, 4-3 Morrisette Wins

Houghs Neck edged Sons of Italy, 4-3, in the Quincy Babe Ruth League with Fred Kussman the winning pitcher.

Josh Alberti pitched well in a losing cause. Greg Zoia drove in the winning run, while John Kiley excelled on defense.

Morrisette nipped Gino's, 6-5, with Andy Carrera pitching three innings and earning the win. Rick Gilbody had three hits and Bob McCabe, John Sulva and Andy Carrera one each for Morrisette.

Bersani Brothers topped

Morrisette, 11-9, with Mark Buchanan getting the win. For Bersani Steve Hale had two hits and John Govoni, Len Picot, Steve Picot, Buchanan, Steve Jahenig and Dan Sandomato one each. For Morrisette—Gilbody, Brian Harding, Ron Prezioso and Jim Hanaran had the only hits.

VFW squeezed by Police, 2-1.

Babe Ruth All-Stars Play Tonight For Title

Quincy's Babe Ruth League American League all-stars will play for the district championship tonight [Thursday] against either Framingham or South Boston, who played Tuesday in a semifinal game.

Quincy moved into the finals by walloping Norwood all-stars, 9-3, Sunday at Adams Field.

Norwood opened with a run in the first and Mark Buchanan probably prevented a big inning with a great catch and a throw to Gary Oriola for a key double play. Norwood added two runs in the third.

The big hit of the day for Quincy was Buchanan's line drive double driving in three runs. Harry Donaghue, Kurt O'Sullivan, Greg Zoia and Fred Kussman sparked defensively and John Wilkinson, getting stronger as the game progressed, pitched fine ball, giving up only one earned run, five hits, struck out eight and walked only two.

'Bicentennial Musical' Friday At Veterans Stadium

The Renegades Drum and Bugle Corps, in cooperation with Quincy Heritage, will host a special bicentennial program and competition, "Bicentennial Musical" Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Sam Pellicane, president of the Renegades said 18 corps will be in competition for trophies and a total of $1,000 in prize money.

The Renegades, acting as the host corps, will not compete, but will give exhibition performances. Numbering near 180 and ranging in age from 10 to 21, Quincy's famous corps is sponsored by the Quincy Auxiliary Police, St. John's Church, and Quincy Legion Post.

Eighteen corps entered in the competition are:

Debonnettes, Norwood; Golden Rays, Stoughton; Chuting Stars, Danvers; Connecticut Crusaders, Stafford Springs, Conn.; Wilmington Crusaders, Wilmington, Citations, Burlington; Imperial Juniors, Pembroke; 21st Lancers, Norwood; Springfield Ambassadors, Springfield, Md.; Regal Crownsmen, Cranston, R.I.; St. Joseph Dantes, Hyde Park; St. John's Cambridge; Brigades, Walpole; Rangerettes, Franklin; Imperials, Pembroke; Debonnaires, Norwood; Blue Angels, Danvers and the St. Thomas Moore Cadettes, Braintree.

3 Days Of Fun, Good Music, Good Buys

IT'S SIDEWALK BAZAAR TIME AGAIN

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Hancock St. will once again become a three-day pedestrian mall Thursday with tables, booths and racks stocked with bargain-wild merchandise for the city's sixth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

The crowning of a new Miss Quincy Bay Friday evening will highlight the bazaar, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association [QCBPA].

Over 40 striped and canopied booths representing downtown merchants, civic groups and fraternal organizations will dot Hancock St. during the three days of fun, entertainment and festivity.

Adding to the gala mood, Disney characters will greet shoppers, store owners will don brimmed and banded straw hats, and youngsters will wear tall Indian headdresses provided by the QCBPA.

Beginning today [Thursday] at 10 a.m., Hancock St. will be closed to traffic. Police Lt. Jack Flaherty said the street will be blocked off through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. from Granite St. to School St. Cars can by-pass Hancock St. by using Chestnut St. on the easterly side and the Ross Parking Way on the westerly side.

New bazaar attractions this year include one-woman puppet shows, a sing-along by senior citizens, an art exhibit as well as a moonwalk and space ladder for youngsters.

Other events planned during the three-day carnival include:

- Square dancing.
- Banjo Band.
- Band concert.
- A zoomobile.
- The world-famed Clydesdales.

• Dance and gymnastic exhibitions.

- Karate demonstrations.
- Fire engine rides.
- Rescue demonstrations.

Multi-colored pennants will flutter high above Hancock St. while down below shoppers will crowd the sidewalks and street, hunting for bargains and sampling tasty treats of popcorn and peanuts, tonic and steamed hot dogs.

The festivities will continue through the evenings too, with square dancing and concerts by the Milton Band and Buddy Burke's Banjo Band among the many planned events.

The three days will prove educational as well as entertaining with karate demonstrations, automobile rescue simulations and a children's zoo housing a monkey, skunk, boa constrictor and alligator.

On Friday evening, Janice Lamparelli, reigning Miss Quincy Bay, will crown her successor from a field of 16 contestants ranging in age from 16 to 25. The new queen will reign during Quincy Bay Race Week, Aug.

6-10 and will attend various QCBPA activities during the year.

As another first in this year's bazaar, the Quincy Art Association will have an exhibit in front of the old Hancock Bank.

Everyone will find something of interest at the sixth annual Sidewalk Bazaar, be it a bargain, a black-belt karate expert, a puppet show or beauty pageant. And it all starts today [Thursday].

Rain date for the pageant is Saturday at 5 p.m.

School Committee Adopts

3 Rule Changes Affecting QJC

The Quincy School Committee has unanimously adopted three rule changes affecting Quincy Junior College.

Sponsored by School Committeeman Francis X. McCauley, the rules will more clearly define the income and expense budget of the Junior College and will provide the school committee an annual report of Junior College operations.

The first change states the College's budget of estimated receipts for a fiscal year will include only the amount of state and federal funds actually allocated to the college.

The second change states the College's expenses for a fiscal year must include all items directly attributable to the operation and maintenance of the college.

According to the third rule change, the annual report to the School Committee on College operations will include but not be limited to a comparison of budgetary versus actual receipts and expenditures, enrollment at the College, number of degrees and certificates awarded and amount of federal and state aid received by students.

McCauley said these adopted changes in School Committee rules will provide "a better and more intelligent picture of where income and expenses at the Junior College are and where they are going."

Blood Supply Low, Donors Needed

The Quincy City Hospital Blood Bank issued an urgent appeal for more blood donors.

Supplies have been depleted to a dangerously low level and will not be enough to fill the demand this summer. The bank is greatly in need of donors of all types to replenish dwindling supplies.

According to a spokesman for the Blood Bank, the supplies all over Massachusetts are at an unusually low level at the start of the vacation season. The incident of accidents occurring in this area during this season is very high, the spokesman noted. Thus the demand is increased.

The Quincy City Hospital Blood Bank, which is a member of the American Association of Blood Banks Northeast Clearing House Program, allows for family coverage in any other participating hospital anywhere in Northeast if donated at Quincy.

Appointments for donations may be made by calling 773-6100, ext. 438 or 439. The donor hours run Monday thru Thursday, 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. All donors and all types are needed.

Don't whistle back at boys

By PAT AND MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I know boys whistle girls, but what is a girl suppose to do when a boy whistles?

Jayne

Dear Jayne:

Boys like trains — whistle. And I feel this is a compliment. Just don't whistle back.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My son is 18. His grades leave much to be desired and he doesn't want to attend junior college. He has shown no interest in trade school. A friend of mine owns a filling station and I arranged for him to work this summer but he refused. He said he wasn't about to pump gas and that he intended to relax all summer swimming and surfing. Bob isn't a bad boy, but I don't want him to become a first-rate bum. What comes next?

Dad

Dear Dad:

Where will he get money for gas if he refuses to pump it? How did he get the car? Perhaps you have been too permissive. Tell Bob he's a big boy now and a new deal is in order. Simply explain that from now on you expect him to earn his spending money. Use firmness and reason. I'm sure you'll see an improvement if your son is forced to earn money in order to function in the style to which he has become accustomed.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My teen-age daughter has the age-old argument at the tip of her tongue — "But, Mom, everyone is doing it." How do I answer that?

Mom

Dear Mom:

Explain that you are not responsible for "everyone" but that you are responsible for her. A parent must make fair rules and then stick to them. If parents set the proper example, children generally find it easier to accept the rules.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

The other night I went to a party. Sandy, the girl who gave the party, passed out marijuana cigarettes. I know that her parents did not know about this. They were in another room but never came into the room where the party was being held. Should I have told her mother what was happening? Or should I have gone home?

Confused 14-Year-Old

Dear Confused:

If you ever find yourself in this situation again, go home. Tell your parents and let them decide whether or not to tell your friend's parents.

COOKING CORNER

Fruits, ice cream keep summer cool

By KAY JARVIS
Copley News Service

If Hawaii isn't in your vacation plans, it can certainly play a part in refreshment plans for the warmer summer days.

Take papaya, that smooth, sweet fruit and mix and match it with other fruits of the season. Juicy red strawberries, golden pineapple, rich bananas all combine beautifully with ice cream, yogurt, or other dairy products for healthy, handsome summer coolers.

Served as is with just a fresh squeeze of lime or lemon, papayas taste like a cross between a Crenshaw melon and a peach, and for only about 80 calories per each seven ounce half.

Recipes using the sun-drenched fruits of summer follow.

WIKI-WIKI ICE CREAM

2 papayas, halved and seeded

¼ cup sugar

4 egg yolks, lightly beaten

¼ cup lemon juice

1 cup whipping cream

Scoop out papaya pulp; whirl in blender until smooth. (There should be about 2 cups.) In top of double boiler, mix papaya puree with sugar and egg yolks. Cook over barely simmering water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats metal spoon (10 to 15 minutes). Remove from heat.

Set pan in bowl of ice cubes to cool quickly. Then add lemon juice and cream. Pour into freezer trays. Freeze. When edges are frozen, transfer to mixer bowl; beat fluffy. Return to freezer pan, cover and freeze firm. Makes 1 quart.

Variations: Before refreezing beaten ice cream, add any of the following to 1 cup of papaya ice cream:

REFRESHING — Fruits such as papayas, oranges and bananas combine with ice cream to make refreshing dishes for summer days.

1 cup sliced bananas, whirled in blender
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries, whirled in blender
1 cup chopped cantaloupe, whirled in blender
1 teaspoon instant coffee granules, dissolved in 1 teaspoon water

HAWAIIAN BERRY SODAS

2 cups Papaya Berry Sauce (recipe follows)
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 bottle (16 ounces) club soda
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Alternate layers of sauce and ice cream in six soda long spoons and straws. Makes 6 sodas.

PAPAYA BERRY SAUCE

1 papaya, peeled and seeded
1 cup boysenberries, fresh or frozen
½ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Chop papaya coarsely in bowl. Mix with berries, corn syrup and lemon juice. Chill. Makes 2 cups.

If frozen, presweetened boysenberries are used, add corn syrup to taste.

SUPER LULU

2 papayas, peeled, seeded and sliced
2 bananas, peeled and sliced
2 cups strawberries, halved
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 quart lemon-lime carbonated beverage

Put prepared fruit into chilled 2 or 3 quart glass bowl. Drop scoops of ice cream on top of fruit. Pour carbonated beverage, until froth reaches top of bowl. Serve at once, offering straws and long spoons. Makes 8 servings.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Also Aries Ascendant) — Resist the tendency toward "getting even" with one who makes you angry. Spiteful actions can boomerang and hurt you. Be mature and concentrate on being charming, pleasant and attractive.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Not a good time to lend money or allow others to use your credit. Keep creative career ideas to yourself. Keep your imagination under control, get the facts before jumping to conclusions.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20) — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Concentrate on service to others and being dutiful. Pay debts and meet all obligations on time. Be very open and honest with one you love. Career opportunities open up now, with possibility of a promotion.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22) — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Try to rid yourself of inner hostility. Overly serious attitudes can rob you of your "joy of life." Try to adopt a more optimistic attitude or you may feel tired and list-

Telephone talk gets on nerves

By DR. WILLARD
ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

ing cards with your friends. Controls on them and involvements for you may cut down on your frustration.

Q. We have a serious case of "telephitis" in our house. My wife, son and daughter seem to spend most of their lives on the telephone, and appear to enjoy every minute of it. My work requires that I be on the telephone quite a bit during the day, so when I get home I'm glad to skip the whole thing. But not them. The evening is filled with telephone conversations. Even that wouldn't be so bad if there weren't a lot of loud arguments about whose turn it is (my wife is right in there yelling with them).

It's getting on my nerves so much that I need help. How about it?

A. If you can afford it, a possible partial solution is to install another telephone that the youngsters can use. It may not avoid all arguments between the two children, but at least your wife will be out of them. (Being a "depression product," I don't really like this idea, but it's helped at our house and in a lot of other homes too.)

Another approach that might be helpful is to try working out a schedule. After all, you deserve some of their time too after being away all day. So just as television, movies and other entertainment should be put on a schedule, so can telephone conversations.

A third suggestion that might help your mental health is to fill your own evenings with activities you enjoy, whether it's reading, television, or bowling or play-

Q. Do all teen-agers really have to have cars the minute they get driver's licenses? Our daughter just received hers, and the nagging has begun. It's based on the old argument that "all my friends have cars."

We just can't afford to buy her one, as well as keep up on all the insurance and other expenses associated with it. And yet I don't feel comfortable in having her be the only one in her group without a car.

Your suggestions would be so welcome.

A. It's apparently time to sit down with your daughter and discuss the economic facts of life. A teen-ager should be old enough to understand family budgeting. Food, housing and clothing have to come first, and there are a number of other family expenses that should go ahead of a teen-ager's automobile.

You might also discuss with her the financial contribution she will have to make toward a car of her own. It's a little late for her to get a basic understanding of personal responsibility, but because it'll never be any earlier, you'd better start giving it to her now. A part-time job of her own wouldn't be a bad idea.

All of this may seem tough to her. Perhaps her friends have been sheltered from family economics and don't have to work toward meeting their own expenses. That could all add up to their misfortune in the long run.

STOUT IS OUT

Excess pounds can take not only years off your life but dollars off your salary. A study to determine employer preferences which was conducted by a major executive employment firm, indicated that there is a direct correlation between weight and wages.

According to the findings of the study, the poundage penalty may run as high as $1,000 an excess pound. Only nine per cent of the people placed by the major employment firm who earn between $20,000 and $50,000 annually were more than ten pounds overweight. Among executives earning $10,000 to $20,000, however, 39% were 10 or more pounds overweight.

During the past 25 years, this major executive placement agency has filled thousands of positions for employers who wanted employees "on the thinner side". Only once did the agency receive a request for an overweight executive. That request came from a manufacturer of clothes for "big men".

We've taken the Nonsense out of Personal Loans.

At Quincy Bank we've gotten back to the basics by simplifying our services to make things easier... faster... and more convenient for everyone.

So there's nothing complicated about our personal loans; whether you need money for a vacation, home improvement, automobile, unexpected expenses... you name it:

- You can usually get your loan approved in a matter of hours and it's easy to apply for.
- You pay simple interest only—a real advantage which can save you money by giving you a greater control over the amount of interest you'll pay.
- You get a clear, easily understood statement every month.
- You receive life insurance on the unpaid balance at no additional charge up to age 65.

And, we don't try to sell you a lot of other services because we've taken the nonsense out of personal loans—that's the Spirit of '75.

The First Railway: Remembered At Last

William C. Edwards, late Quincy city historian, used to shudder when tourists asked him to take them to the site of the First Railway.

They had seen postcards of what the site once looked like and thought it was still that way. But Edwards knew the area had sadly deteriorated and was disgusted.

"It's a mess," he said. "It's Quincy's disgrace."

Others agreed. And campaigns and efforts were launched to correct the situation. But nothing really came of it.

Now, at long last, something tangible is being done.

A special preservation project is underway by Quincy Heritage at the incline area in West Quincy. It was given the green-light by Mayor Walter J. Hannon at the urging of Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets.

The old railway—the first commercial railroad in the U.S.—began operations in 1826 hauling famed Quincy granite for construction of the Bunker Hill Monument.

"Now is the time to do the work," noted Mayor Hannon, "since 1976 will mark the 150th anniversary of the railroad's founding."

There is $10,000 set aside by the City Council several years ago for improvements at the site. The $10,000 won't completely restore the incline area. But the project is a big beginning.

The work will include an extensive cleanup of the area which in itself will be a milestone. There will also be fencing erected, signs posted, and restoration of the plaques on the granite pillars at the foot of the incline. Archaeological data will also be collected.

Mayor Hannon said he hoped this will be only the first phase of a total program in the quarry area. He noted that Senator Arthur H. Tobin has been working with the MDC for sometime to acquire property surrounding the site.

It's definitely a big beginning.

Later, perhaps, more funds can be obtained to complete the restoration including the tracks of the old railway.

Perhaps, too, a rest-picnic area could be developed there.

And, construction of a proper entrance off the Southeast Expressway would make the site a natural tourists "catcher".

Thousands of tourists each year zoom along the expressway right through Quincy on their way from Boston to Plymouth and the Cape not even realizing they are in the hometown of two Presidents and just minutes from their birthplaces.

This site would be the perfect point to begin Quincy's Historic Trail.

We commend Mayor Hannon, Councillor Sheets and Quincy Heritage for undertaking this project of significance in this 350th anniversary year of Quincy.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

What Is The Question?

By ERIC SWIDER

The New England Regional Commission is doing another study on what ails the New England Economy - this time with concentration on capital and labor.

The committees they've assembled are impressive enough, and the imprimatur of the six Governors will be on their work, so I'm sure that the final solution - in the form of another report - is near at hand.

Despite the up and coming solution, I'm still a little bit concerned. Concerned, first of all, that when they find the answer, they might not communicate it to us, and secondly, that it could be the wrong answer.

For longer than I've been around certainly, high powered panels of experts have been assembling to analyze and discuss this problem and develop statistics which assure us all that we in fact have a problem. We've all heard enough impressive but depressing statistics to make us feel bewildered, beleaguered, frustrated and helpless.

I predict that one of the conclusions the report will draw is that our educational system is mismatched to long term job opportunities in the region and it must become more technically oriented to satisfy the skill requirements of current and future employers. Why such a prediction? Well, their prospectus hints at such a conclusion and that's what we hear everyday in the week when talking with employers.

I predict that another conclusion will be that existing locally based enterprises are our greatest resource but that its management is not adequately versed in opportunities to expand their markets nor in securing the financing to achieve their growth potential. Why? Same as above.

What I'm suggesting is that what New England does not need at this time is another study, another report, another high powered panel, another stall.

The answers are apparent. What we need now is a coordinated grassroots effort to bring about the right questions. While I have the greatest respect in the world for high powered panels, they, in my book, will never replace lots of well motivated people at the local level working on understanding and identifying their problems.

A worthwhile conclusion of the study could be that local elected officials, labor unions and chambers of commerce around New England are already organized and can provide the grassroots network that is necessary to identify localized solutions to the labor and capital problems, and that a coordinated effort through these groups should start.

Both labor and business should be invited to provide career counseling within the schools and curriculum recommendations to school administrations.

A continuing effort at identifying growth companies should take place at the local level, and "Resource teams" of local bankers, educators, and elected officials should be assembled that work with firms to help them obtain their money, manpower and facilities requirements.

The grassroots teams could feed up to a clearinghouse the obstacles they are encountering and solutions could be fed down or legislative proposals generated that eliminate growth obstacles.

It is my belief that one way government can effectively serve us is to try to eliminate itself by tapping the great voluntary resource pool available at the local level.

The costs of government could be dramatically reduced and more permanent solutions found to our social and economic ailments if more citizens were organized to help.

The problem as I see it is not the answer, it is one of communicating that answer to a level where it can be effectively dealt with and solutions can be generated. Until the time that high powered panels recognize the need for more effective grassroots solutions, we all will continue to go around in never ending circles asking each other, "What is the question?"

[Eric M. Swider is Executive Vice President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

LIVING TODAY

'Physical Symptoms Of Emotional Distress'

DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

"I'm just tired all the time" ... said Jacqueline ... even when I get up in the morning. I go to bed early ... often I waken in the night ... then I can't get back to sleep. I just feel awful."

Jacqueline was describing not only her own fatigue, but the condition of millions of people who are "tired of life" as they are living it. Chronic fatigue is a sign that something is wrong with the way one is functioning. It is not normal ... one can know that either there's a physical disfunction ... or an emotional energy sapping condition which is resulting in fatigue. Jacqueline's doctors had ruled out the physical. Our task was to identify her emotional sickness ... remove it if possible and get her going again.

As the counseling proceeded it became clear that Jacqueline's problem as the frustrations and tensions of her marriage to Eric. Eric was a strong minded man ... engineering training ... right was right, wrong was wrong ... and he thought he was always right. He treated Jacqueline as though she was his "property". He would speak of "my wife" as he did his dog, instead of calling her by her name. He gave orders of chores he wanted done ... he forbade her to join a bowling league or take a ceramics course ... because "I don't want you going out at night alone."

Of course, Eric hadn't just started to act chauvinistic with Jacqueline. This had been their pattern of relationship throughout the 14 year marriage ... indeed even in their courtship he called all the shots. During the entire relationship Jacqueline had gone along with this. You see ... she had come from a home where her mother was submissive to her father ... though her father was strong and protective. He always looked out for the welfare of his family ... never acted selfishly. But little Jacqueline got the idea that male strength would always be fair. In Eric she found this was not so ... he acted according to his own selfish interests. So she felt oppressed ... depressed ... put down ... a prisoner. The happy spirit of her childhood was being choked. No wonder she was fatigued all the time. No wonder she couldn't sleep ... no wonder she was depressed ... no wonder she just felt awful.

When a person is faced with such an inward struggle there are three ways to deal with it. First ... YOU CAN CHANGE THE SITUATION, in this case change Eric. She didn't have this in her power. Eric denied any fault ... and responsibility for the marital conflict. He would do nothing to change the miserable condition. He refused to even go to the counselor. Jacqueline couldn't change the situation.

The second possibility of dealing with her physical-emotional distress was to CHANGE HER ATTITUDE to accept Eric's chauvinist personality. But she had been living with this and found that the more she learned to love herself, the more she realized what was happening to her. She determined that she shouldn't go on with this suppression, even if she could.

The third course of action was to STEP OUT OF THE RELATIONSHIP. Even this would be difficult ... because short of court order Eric wouldn't cooperate. This was what she finally did.

One month after her divorce, Jacqueline began to sleep normally ... her fatigue vanished ... her life began to be vital ... the happiness she had known earlier in life was hers again.

We do well to head the physical symptoms of emotional distress. Usually they can't be treated with pills.

Historic Quincy Street Guide Now Available

A special "Street Guide to Historic Quincy" has been published by Quincy Heritage. "Many residents of the city as well as visitors have asked for a street map," said Quincy Heritage executive director John R. Graham.

The printing costs of the new street map were contributed by the Quincy Savings Bank. "We greatly appreciate the support which we have received from the bank," said Graham.

The maps are available free of charge at the Quincy Heritage Visitors' Center in the Quincy Center MBTA Station, the Mayor's Office in City Hall, and the Quincy Police Station.

The representatives of Welcome Wagon are giving the maps to new residents of the city.

No 'House Cleaning' Plans For LaRaia

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Most political observers figure on a City Hall "house cleaning" if Joseph LaRaia is elected mayor.

But it's not so—according to LaRaia himself.

"I plan on an orderly transition," he says. "Naturally there will be some changes—there always are when a new mayor takes office.

He notes that some appointees of one mayor leave on their own when a new mayor takes office. A few are replaced almost immediately and others as time goes on.

LaRaia also notes that some of his key campaign people will not be appointed to top ranking jobs because they now have much higher-paying jobs in private business.

AT THE LUNCHEON following ceremonies honoring President John Quincy Adams, Mayor Walter Hannon told of his invitation from President Gerald Ford to attend a conference of mayors at the White House earlier last week.

"It was quite impressive," he said.

Following the conference, the President put on a spread for the visiting mayors.

"To give you an idea of what it was like," Hannon said, "first there was the Marine band. And on one side of the room there was the longest buffet table I've ever seen. And on the other side was the longest open bar I've ever seen.

"I was standing in the middle of the room with Ted Mann [Newton mayor] and I told him, 'I've got to go to my cookout in Squantum.'"

"You've got to be kidding," replied Mann.

"No," said Hannon, "they're waiting for me at the cookout."

"So I left," said Hannon. "And do you know what? I spent the next two and a half hours sitting at the airport trying to get out of Washington."

He finally made it to Squantum for part of the cookout.

SPEAKING OF HANNON, ever notice he never wears a hat and shys away from photographers who ask him to put on one for a picture. Like a straw hat while signing the proclamation for the Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar Days.

His predecessor, James McIntyre seldom wore a hat but he posed for one famous picture wearing a three-cornered Paul Revere hat.

HERE'S ONE: Richard Morin, in his 20's, and Brad Sullivan, 12, were collecting nomination signatures for Harold Davis, South Quincy, candidate for city councillor-at-large, when they encountered an open door and a man - in mid 70's - lying on floor, collapsed. He had been trying to attract the attention of upstairs' neighbors for three hours by banging on the ceiling with a broom. The pair revived the man who said he then felt fine...He declined hospitalization.

A CHAMPAGNE-BIRTHDAY party will be held for Rep. William Delahunt, candidate for councillor-at-large Friday night at 7 p.m. at the Blue Hill Tennis Club, Wood Rd, Braintree. For ticket information contact Richard Ward [471-2657]. Incidentally Delahunt will be 33.

FRANCIS BELLOTTI, JR., son of the Attorney General, candidate for Quincy School Committee, has opened campaign headquarters at 1601 Hancock St. in the downtown area.

REP. JOSEPH BRETT is attending the eight-day Elks National Convention in Dallas, Tex. With him is Roswell Clarke of Bicknell St., Germantown. Brett is past president Massachusetts Elks Association, past exalted ruler Quincy Lodge of Elks and past district deputy Southeast Massachusetts.

THE SHOW MUST go on note: Baron Hugo, the popular orchestra leader will furnish the music again for Friday night's Miss Quincy Bay Pageant. And he'll be there in person despite the fact he's scheduled to enter Milton Hospital for a little surgery Sunday. In fact he scheduled the surgery so it would not interfere with the pageant.

FASHION NOTE: Ann Gaffey, "Miss Democrat" who is a young 80-ish turned up at Paul Harold's campaign social the other night wearing her first-ever pants suit. It was picked out for her by Sabina Stenberg, who, like Harold, is seeking one of the three city council at-large races. [Ann looked pretty sexy in it too.]

AND THAT REMINDS ME: John Quinn, "dean" of the City Council, seems to have hit the campaign trail earlier than usual this year. He frankly acknowledges that there are some good challengers in the race this year.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, says the IRS certainly knows what to give to the man who has everything. An audit.

8-Ward Plan Approved For Quincy

Under a plan approved by the Superior Court, the city's six wards would be re-districted to eight. The new wards would be ready for the municipal elections in the fall.

Judge James Donnelly dismissed a taxpayers' petition that sought to have the eight-ward plan declared invalid. Mrs. Edna Austin was the attorney for the petitioners.

The petitioners cited four objections to the ward line changes:

- * The City Council had no authority to increase the number of wards.

- * The re-districting was an ordinance and should have been advertised before passage.

- * The new wards were unreasonably unequal.

- * No publication of the new ward and precinct lines had ever been made.

Leading local Democrats hailed the court decision with glee. They were the moving force behind the re-districting. And it was a Democrat, Councillor Daniel Dennehy who sponsored the act before the council.

Nearly all of the opposition came from Republicans. Democrats favored the measure because it was believed that the new ward lines would require a change in state representative districts as well.

USS PHELPS LAUNCHED

The USS Phelps was launched at Fore River Shipyard this week. The ship was christened by Phelps' granddaughter, Mrs. Richard Kearney of Washington. Phelps was a naval hero, who served with distinction in the Mexican and Civil Wars. The Phelps was another unit in the U.S. Navy's expansion program. It was one of eight sister ships, three of which were under construction at Fore River.

NEW CITY HALL PLANS SCRAPPED

Plans to erect a new city hall were delayed indefinitely, as a result of a legal difficulty.

A stipulation was discovered in the old city charter that no new city hall could be erected until voted by the people. In the new Plan A charter which became effective in 1916, there was no such stipulation. However, it had been held on many occasions, that provisions in the old charter were effective unless they were definitely changed by the new charter.

MUNICIPAL GARAGE PLANS ALSO DELAYED

Plans to erect a municipal garage with ERA labor were delayed when ERA Administrator George Pfaffmann informed Mayor Thomas Burgin that the project could not be built as part of ERA.

The reason was because the cost of the garage was over the new $25,000 ERA limit.

Mayor Burgin said he would try instead to include the garage under the municipal building project carried on with PWA funds.

New buildings to be built in Quincy under PWA were the new administration building for the city hospital and the new central fire station.

HOLLYWOOD CONTEST AT WOLLASTON THEATRE

The New England "Hollywood Stardom Opportunity Contest" was scheduled for the Wollaston Theater next week. The contest was open to women between the ages of 18-25. The two winners would be given the opportunity to go to Hollywood, where they would meet with leading motion picture stars and receive a screen test by Paramount Pictures. Judges would be Rudy Vallee and Earl Carroll.

Quincy Proudly Remembers A Famous Native Son

PRESIDENTIAL WREATH to be placed on crypt of President John Quincy Adams is presented to city by Quincy native Capt. Henry Cassani, USN, commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station, representing President Gerald Ford. Mayor Walter J. Hannon accepts traditional wreath on behalf of the city while Dr. Walter Wrigley accepts for the "Church of Presidents".

HISTORIC MOMENT RECAPTURED - As a special highlight of Friday's wreath-laying ceremonies, Win Bettinson of WJDA delivered speech made 144 years ago by John Quincy Adams at United First Parish Church. The speech extols the excellence of the Declaration of Independence.

Mayor Proclaims July 17-18-19 Sidewalk Bazaar Days

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has proclaimed today [Thursday], Friday and Saturday "Sidewalk Bazaar Days" in Quincy, urging all residents and public organizations to participate and support the three-day festivities.

Following is the text of the proclamation:

WHEREAS, The American standard of living is recognized as the highest in the world and is due, in great part, to the abundance and high quality of the products of our competitive enterprise system and their forthright identification by trademarks submitted for the free choice of the consuming public, and

WHEREAS, American tradition of independent enterprise is as old as our society itself and from humble beginnings small business has grown into one of the principal economic forces in this, the world's greatest industrial nation, and

WHEREAS, If downtown Quincy retailers are to realize their full potential in the years ahead, they need and deserve wholehearted support from the citizens in the business community as a whole as well as the strong encouragement it already receives from national organizations and the local government, and retailers are joining this week with various civic and business groups in providing the citizens of Quincy and The South Shore unsurpassed retailing opportunities.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Walter J. Hannon, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby proclaim July 17, 18 and 19, 1975, as SIDEWALK BAZAAR DAYS and encourage all citizens and public organizations to join with me during this week in paying tribute to the accomplishments of small business in helping it toward continued strength and success.

Walter J. Hannon, Mayor

Sidewalk Bazaar Committee Members

George White of The Patriot Leger is again the coordinator for this year's Sidewalk Bazaar.

The committee includes:

Henry Bosworth, The Quincy Sun; Mark Bertman, Rogers Jewelry; Leslie Brierley, Hancock Bank; Sumner Cohen, Kincaide's; Burt Cook, Tags Sleep and Lounge Shop; Jack Cosseboom, Milton's; Philip Chase, Cummings; Raymond Cunningham, representing Quincy Bay Race Week Association; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., WJDA; Lt. Jack Flaherty, Quincy Police Department; Tom Mannery, Sears Roebuck; Ted Johnson, Granite City Hardware; Allen Kelly, Sir Speedy; Florence Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Cecile Letourney, Bottom's Up; Roberta Meade, Roberta's Fashion Shoppe and Jerry Morreale, Child World.

Assisting the committee are QCBPA executive Director Jack Kerrigan, Joseph Flaherty, promotions coordinator and Sandy Colman of the QCBPA staff, serving as assistant coordinator for the bazaar.

In addition, the committee is being aided by Richard J. Koch, Quincy Natural Resources Commissioner and Civil Defense Director Thomas Lyons.

Over 2,000 Indian Headbands

During Sidewalk Bazaar Days, today [Thursday] Friday and Saturday, youngsters will be wearing colorful Indian headbands presented by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association [QCBPA].

The Association will distribute over 2,000 headbands from their booth located in front of the QCBPA office, 1416 Hancock St.

Hancock Street Closed Off For Bazaar

Hancock St. will be closed to all vehicular traffic Thursday through Saturday during Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar Days.

The street will be blocked off with wooden barriers placed near Granite and School Sts., from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., making Hancock St. a pedestrian mall for the three-day annual bazaar.

Police Lt. Jack Flaherty said cars can circumvent Hancock St. via Chestnut St. on the easterly side and via the Ross Parking Way on the westerly side.

1974 Winner Recalls

'Pageant A Fun Experience' Says Janice

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

As pageant night approaches, the 16 contestants vying for the title of Miss Quincy Bay 1975 are probably beginning to quake.

But Janice Lamparelli, the reigning queen soon to relinquish her crown, assures the girls their nervousness will vanish.

Recalling her own pre-pageant, weak-kneed nervousness of last year, Janice, second oldest in a family of five, said:

"I was jittery before the pageant, but that night the audience made you feel secure. The response of the crowd gives you the confidence you need...I'd advise the girls to enjoy themselves and the pageant and to have a good time. It's a fun experience."

Nineteen-year-old Janice, a 5'5" willowy brunette, will begin in September her sophomore year at Gordon College where she is majoring in elementary education.

Selected as queen last year from a field of 28 contestants, Janice, a graduate of Quincy High School, reigned during Quincy Bay Race Week, attending dinners and dances at Quincy's yacht clubs and speaking at a Quincy Rotary Club meeting. Janice and her entire family rode on a yacht during the Marine parade traditionally closing Quincy Bay Race Week.

"I had never been on a yacht before," said Janice. "It was really exciting to be up front. The whole family had a ball."

As winner of the pageant contest, Janice won a host of prizes: a modeling scholarship, a set of diamond earrings, a beauty make-up kit, a dress ensemble, a swimsuit, three gift certificates, an ice cream birthday cake, and tickets to a performance at the South Shore Music Circus.

Speaking of her successor,

JANICE LAMPARELLI
Miss Quincy Bay of 1974

soon to be crowned, Janice said:

"I wish her much luck and hope she enjoys her reign as Miss Quincy Bay as much as I enjoyed mine."

5 Judges To Select Miss Quincy Bay

Five judges will select Miss Quincy Bay of 1975 at Friday night's pageant. They are:

- Dr. Edward Pierce, president of Quincy Junior College.

- Miss Carol Nashe, head of the Carol Nashe School and Model Agency, Boston.

- Miss Patricia Kelley, Miss Quincy Bay of 1973.

- David Leitch, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

- Kenneth Lavers, president of the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

Civil Defense To Light Beauty Pageant Scene

Hancock St. will be brightly lighted Friday night for the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant, thanks to Director Thomas Lyons and members of his Civil Defense unit.

There will be 6,500 watts of lighting hooked up to three CD generators. The lighting will have the same luminosity as during last year's pageant.

Included will be a 2,000-watt spotlight, a 1,500-watt spotlight and six flood lights with 3,000 watts.

Assisting Lyons on the scene will be Jordan Cohen, rescue chief; Thomas Joyce, Joseph Zdanowski and Robert Peters.

Disappointment For One Contestant

This year's Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant is a disappointment for a Hull girl.

Ann Marie Lopez, 20, of 38 Bates St., entered as a contestant but will not compete.

She was admitted to Brighton Marine Hospital last week with blood clots in her leg and will remain hospitalized at least until Sunday.

She hopes to enter next year.

6 Puppet Shows During Bazaar Days

Puppeteer Jerrie Adelberg of 479 Furnace Brook Parkway, Quincy, will entertain audiences throughout Sidewalk Bazaar Days, staging a total of six puppet shows in three days.

A senior at Rhode Island School of Design in Providence, Miss Adelberg will use in her one-woman shows, nine puppets, two of them marionettes and all of them designed and hand-made by her.

Thursday's two half-hour performances will take place at the platform near the QCBPA office beginning at 2:30 p.m. and at the platform near Colman's at 3:15 p.m.

Friday's show schedule is 2:15 p.m. at the platform near the QCBPA office and 3:15 p.m. at the platform near Colman's.

Saturday's performances will begin at 10:45 a.m. at the QCBPA platform and at 11:30 a.m. at the Colman's platform.

The 20-year-old Miss Adelberg will recount stories as she brings her puppets alive on stage. Recorded music will accompany her performances.

Involved in puppeteering two years, Miss Adelberg has been performing shows one year. She offers her talents to schools and at children's parties. In Providence, Miss Adelberg creates puppet shows for the deaf and conducts puppet workshops for adults.

A native of New London, Conn., Miss Adelberg has lived in Quincy 10 years.

Famed Clydesdales In Downtown Quincy Friday

Once again the world-famous Budweiser Clydesdales will tour Quincy Friday as an attraction in the city's sixth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

The team of eight horses, driven by two uniformed men, draws a large wagon. They will assemble in the Quincy Junior College Parking area at 10:30 a.m. The public is welcome to watch the hitching and "dressing" of the horses. From the college parking lot, the team, drivers and wagon will tour the following route, making 15-minute stops at each point. Youngsters and adults can then get a close up view of these famous horses.

• Right onto Coddington St., proceed to City Hall.

• Proceed down Hancock St. to Granite St.

• Right on Granite St. to Turnstyle area.

• Back to Granite and Hancock Sts. to Remick's area.

• Proceed up Hancock St. to W. T. Grant and Colman's.

• Circle to Hancock parking area then proceed to South Shore National Bank.

• Circle historic United First Parish Church, stopping at Bargain Center.

• Proceed to McIntyre Mall area, then back to college parking lot.

Young World Performers In Dance, Gym Shows

Young World Performers of Quincy and Weymouth, a group of young dancers and gymnasts, will perform an hour's show Thursday and Friday during Sidewalk Bazaar Days.

Thursday's show will begin at 7 p.m. at the platform near the QCBPA office and Friday's exhibition will take place at the same time but at the platform near Colman's.

On both days, the Young World Dancers will launch the shows, performing solo and group tap dancing, modern jazz and ballet.

At 7:30 p.m. the Young World Gymnasts will take the stage to perform an acrobatic show.

Some members of the Young World Performers are as young as three.

Karate Exhibition Thursday, Friday

Karate students from Bay State School of Karate will perform two half-hour exhibitions during Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar.

The first demonstration will begin Thursday at 8 p.m. at the platform near Colman's. The second is scheduled for Friday at the same time, same place.

Bay State School of Karate is a division of Young World of Quincy and Weymouth.

Baron Hugo To Play At Pageant, Give Concert

Quincy native and long-time favorite, Baron Hugo will once again provide the music for Friday's Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant.

As a first-time special treat, Hugo will perform a two-hour pre-pageant concert beginning at 7 p.m. The bandstand will be set up near South Shore National Bank.

The concert will blend old-time band favorites and current tunes. Hugo will also field all-time favorites requests from the audience.

Now a Milton resident, Hugo grew up near Brewer's Corner, West Quincy. He got his start in 1923, playing at Malmati Hall in South Quincy. He also performed at the old Wisteria Bungalow - now the Hancock Parking area - at Electra Hall, now the downtown Quincy Savings Bank branch - and at Taylor's Ballroom, Houghs Neck - now a roller skating rink.

During the heyday of the big band sound, Hugo's orchestra was the house band at the Totem Pole Ballroom at Noremega Park.

Hugo, sharing the Totem Pole stage with Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey, later performed at RKO Keith Theatre in Boston and at the Boston Belle boat between Boston and Provincetown.

Playing in Hugo band were Vahey Tackvorian of Dorsey's band and Russell Stanger, now conductor of Norfolk Virginia Orchestra.

Following the pre-pageant concert, Hugo and his orchestra will have a half-hour break before beginning anew at 9:30 p.m. - the start of the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant in front of the Hancock Bank.

70 Gingham Swingers In Square Dancing Exhibition

Caller Arnie Kanash of Holbrook will lead some 70 Gingham Swingers in a square dancing exhibition tonight [Thursday] in front of City Hall.

Following the exhibition, dancers in the audience will be able to join in the fun.

The Gingham Swingers will begin their performance at 8 p.m. and dancing will continue until 12 midnight.

Kanash, caller for the Swingers 11 years, is a past president of the New England Calling Association. He is well-known throughout the New England area.

Based in Kramer's Hayloft, South Weymouth, the Gingham Swingers has an active membership of over 200.

Zoomobile Among Friday, Saturday Bazaar Activities

An educational show-on-wheels presented by the Boston Zoological Society will number among the attractions of the sixth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

Experienced staff members will present two shows during bazaar days, explaining the life and habits of animals and reptiles such as the monkey, skunk, alligator and boa constrictor.

The first demonstration will take place Friday on a platform near Colman's from 1-3 p.m. A Saturday show will begin at the same time in the Cliveden St. area.

The "stars" of the show will be taken from their cages and youngsters and adults will be allowed to touch and pet many of the creatures.

Staff members will also field questions from the audience.

Shriner Fire Engine Rides

A fire engine sponsored by the South Shore Shriners Club will provide rides for youngsters during all of Quincy's three Sidewalk Bazaar Days.

The Shriner Fire Engine will cover Hancock St., Chestnut St.,

Cottage Ave., Revere Rd., Elm St., the Parkway and the Grossman's area.

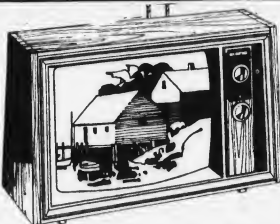

Rides will be given Thursday and Friday from 6:30-9 p.m., and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Senior Citizens In Sing-along

Some 40 residents of 1000 Southern Artery will lead an hour's sing-along Thursday as part of the sixth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

The residents, regular patrons of Tuesday night sing-alongs at 1000 Southern Artery, will perform old-fashioned tunes, encouraging the audience to join in.

Master of ceremonies for the event will be Joseph Walter Sr., of 1000 Southern Artery.

The fun will begin at 2 p.m. on a platform near Colman's.

Moonwalk, Space Ladder New Sidewalk Bazaar Features

As a new Sidewalk Bazaar attraction, Fun Services of Duxbury will bring a moonwalk and space ladder to Hancock St. on opening day of the three-day extravaganza.

The moonwalk, as described by Grant Wilbur of Fun Services, resembles "a huge featherbed".

Youngsters can bounce, tumble and dive on an air-inflated bubble, creating a sensation comparable to weightlessness in space.

Space ladder poses a challenge to climb to the ladder's top and ring a siren without tumbling down onto an air pillow located below.

Both the moonwalk and space ladder will be day-long attractions at the Bazaar today [Thursday]. The moonwalk will take place in front of Granite City Hardware and the space ladder in front of Singer Sewing.

For the fourth consecutive year, the Animal Protection and Welfare, Inc. [APAW] of Quincy will have a booth at Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar.

APAW members manning the booth - to be located in front of Thom McAn Shoe Store - will distribute literature on the organization and its goals and will gladly chat with citizens interested in learning about the organization.

Baked goods and handicrafts will also be on sale at the booth and drawing tickets for a multi-colored hand-made afghan will also be available.

Jack Kerrigan, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, will pick the winning ticket Saturday afternoon.

Tickets Available For 'American Primitive' Performances

Tickets are now available to Quincy Heritage productions of "American Primitive" in July and August at historic First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

Quincy Heritage will salute John and Abigail Adams this summer by presenting the Curtain Call Players in this play by William Gibson every Friday night at 8 p.m. from July 4 - Aug. 29. There will also be two matinee performances at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 19 and Aug. 26.

The two-hour drama of the American Revolution is "seen not just as facts and dates, but as a very real struggle, demanding immense energy, dedication and sacrifice from its people," according to Quincy Heritage.

Gibson, best known as the author of "The Miracle Worker" and "Two for the Seesaw" has drawn from the letters and diaries of John and Abigail Adams for all the dialogue spoken by these two main characters, who will be played by Larry Fitzhugh and Cathryn Vendi. A supporting cast of Margery Pell, Merrilyn McNarry, Linda Lund, Robert Harding, Bob Fitzsimmons and Sue Stephens play key people involved in the lives of the Adams' and their comments on the events take the form of poetry written by Gibson.

For tickets or any further information, call Kerry Mahoney of Quincy Heritage at city hall.

Hannon: 'Government Leaders Must Begin To Say "No"'

National, state and local leaders must begin to "say no", risking possible loss of votes, in an effort to run this country and its cities "more like a business," says Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

In remarks delivered at a luncheon following Friday's wreath-laying ceremonies honoring the 208th birthday of President John Quincy Adams, Hannon referred to his recent Washington, D.C. meeting with President Gerald Ford and 100 other U.S. Mayors.

The message of the meeting, Hannon said, was the country, including Massachusetts, has offered more services than it can afford. Hannon said:

"Our nature is to be generous. Politicians like to please people. They seldom, if ever, want to say "no". But the hard, cold facts are that they have said "yes" too often.

unpopular stand and said "no", not because of any great wisdom or foresight but because of training and a knowledge of history."

Recalling John Quincy Adams' integrity and commitment to the Quincy community, Hannon said our sixth president "worked to make Quincy a good place in which to live.

"We carry on that responsibility today," Hannon added.

Hannon reiterated to the group of some 100 state and city officials, community leaders and businessmen attending the luncheon that he considers revenue sharing "an essential part" of effective city government.

But he emphasized, "At the same time, cities have to be run more like businesses than ever before. The type of hard decisions made 200 years ago which made this country as great as it is are going to have to be made in the next 10 years if we are to maintain the quality of life we are accustomed to."

Hannon also told the group: "There is a big difference between what is expedient and what is morally right and good for the people...Perhaps our country needs political leaders like John Quincy Adams who are more interested in the welfare of their communities and country than they are in their political popularity."

Historic West Quincy Blast Furnace Being Restored

A major restoration is now underway by the City at the John Winthrop Jr. blast furnace in West Quincy, birthplace of the nation's iron and steel industry.

Refurbishing of the historic area, which marks the site of the country's first productive iron furnace, is being completed in several phases, according to John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage.

Excavated in 1956, the remains of the iron furnace were in need of both conservation and interpretive work, he said.

In order for visitors to understand its importance and operation, a detailed graphic drawing of the original furnace, laminated and mounted on a viewing board, was restored to the site by personnel of the city's public buildings department, Mr. Graham stated.

The 2' x 4' ink sketch, reproduced and enlarged through the courtesy of Miller Blueprint Co., depicts the operation of the furnace in 1644 when it was producing the first commercial iron in the United States.

Also, to make certain that the appearance of the historic area is preserved, a major cleanup of the grounds will begin this week by the park department, Graham said.

Included in this second phase of restoration, he added, will be the repair of a wrought iron fence surrounding the site by personnel of the Highway department.

The blast furnace is located on Crescent St., West Quincy, and is one of 14 historical sites located on Quincy's Historic Trail.

Quincy CAP Wins 4th Spot In Regional Competition

The 21-man Massachusetts State CAP champion drill team from Quincy Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, finished fourth overall in a three and a half day CAP Regional Drill Competition in Nashua, N.H.

The event was held at the New England Aeronautical Institute in Nashua. The Quincy team competed against state teams from throughout New England, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania for the Region title.

Early last month in the Massachusetts State competition at Hanscom Air Force Base, the Quincy team won the state meet by sweeping first place in all four areas of judging: inspection, standard drill performance, innovative routine (trick drill) and best drill team leader.

Cadet Major James A. McCusker of Quincy, drill team commander, accepted the CAP state trophy for his teammates and was also presented with a special "Certificate of Accomplishment" for being selected as the "best drill commander" on the field.

At Nashua, the team competed in several areas not included in the state meet. In addition to the four areas of drill, there was a physical fitness endurance test, a written exam and a "Cadet Bowl" panel quiz, similar to the old "College Bowl" in three rounds of eliminations.

The Quincy team placed third in the "Cadet Bowl" and the written exam dealing with aerospace knowledge.

Team members include:

Cadet Technical Sgt. Thomas W. Burke and Cadet Peter J. Fontana Jr. of Weymouth; Cadet Staff Sgt. William J. Nolan and Cadet Daniel R. Nolan of Braintree; Cadet Staff Sgt. Robert J. Thompson and Cadet Sgt. Peter Gatsoulis of Hyde Park; Cadet Warrent Officer Paul J. McManus Jr., Cadet First Class James B. Morrissey Jr. and Cadet Robert K. Medeiros of Brockton; Cadet Staff Sgt. John J. Carty Jr. and Cadet Warrant Officer Richard T. Torpey of Boston; and Cadet 1st Lt. Steven F. Levesque of Duxbury.

The team is being accompanied by Major Laura Lee I. Gottor of Brockton, formerly of Quincy, Squadron Commander; Capt. Sandra L. Minski, Major Anthony F. Grogan, Major Ruth E. Grogan, 1st Lt. Robert A. Peters, Capt. Christopher Camuso and Warrant Officer Denise M. Scannell.

Camp Fire Girls Aid Koch Club

'Christmas In Spring' Appeal

Nine Camp Fire Girls from South Weymouth have collected over 400 dolls, games, puzzles and toys in the Koch Club's recent "Christmas In Spring" appeal.

All articles gathered will be donated to families in Quincy, the South Shore and Greater Boston at Christmas time.

The girls, under the leadership of Mrs. Francis Gunville and Mrs. Carl DiTullio, made "Operation Christmas" a special group project. Collecting items week by week, the girls - known as "Ko-Kis" or "Little Women" - gathered many cartons of toys and games.

Richard Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, recently accepted the girls' donation, personally thanking them for their efforts.

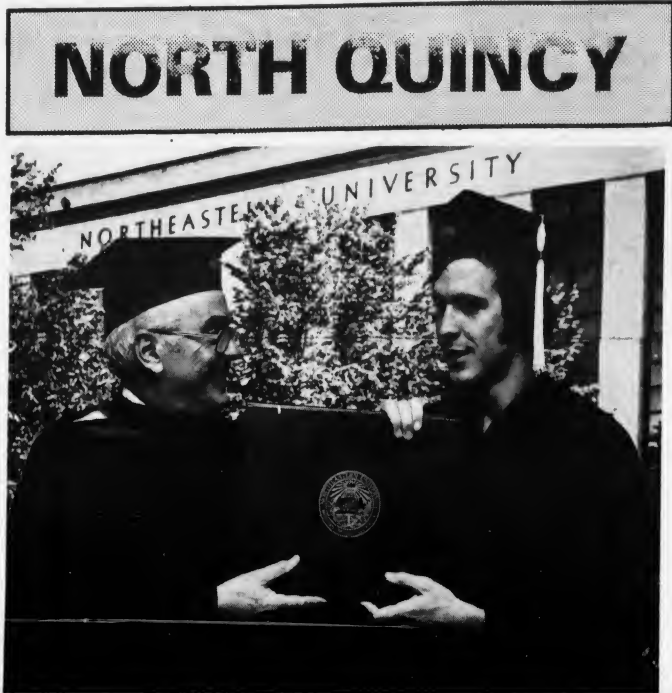

The girls involved were Debra Church, Susan DiTullio, Sandra DiTullio, Jeannine Gunville, Joanna Hayes, Kathy Johnson, Laura Pagliuca, Anne Marie O'Connor and Ann Sullivan.

City's Tax Rate Should Be Stabilized, Says LaRaia

Mayoral candidate Joseph J. LaRaia told Pagnano Towers residents Tuesday night the city's tax rate during the past few years should have been stabilized or even lowered because of revenue sharing.

"Since we first received revenue sharing funds in 1972, the money has been used to offset abnormally high rate increases," LaRaia said. "And we've still been stuck with an average of nearly $6 in increases."

"The money should be used to offset moderate tax increases so we would have no increase and possibly even a decrease as we saw during the 1973-74 18 month budget," LaRaia said.

"The mayor has used these federal funds to disguise his mis-management of the city's financial affairs," he said. "Revenue sharing funds should be a luxury for the city's taxpayers, not a life saving mechanism."

Earlier LaRaia said the mayor has needed the federal government to bail him out of financial difficulty during his administration.

Revenue sharing and the federally funded CETA [Comprehensive Employment Training Act] program have played important parts in keeping the city above water, LaRaia told neighborhood residents at the home of Pat DiStefano, 38 Payne St., South Quincy.

"Otherwise, the city would be saddled with $10 to $12 tax increases each year," he said.

"During the past two and one-half years, the city has received about $7 million in revenue sharing funds," LaRaia said. "This is a major reason why our tax rate has averaged $5.80 in increases."

"Prior to the enactment of the revenue sharing legislation, the tax rate increased almost $13," the city councillor said. "This was during the mayor's first year in office."

"And the federal government through the CETA program has provided the city with about 240 jobs accounting for about $2 million," he said. "This has been vital to the economic stability of our city."

Quincy Fortunate In Having Vo-Tech School Says Patricia Toland

Mrs. Patricia Toland, candidate for school committee, recently told a group of supporters Quincy is fortunate in having a Vocational Technical School.

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Ford of 156 Connell St., West Quincy, Mrs. Toland said:

"We are fortunate in having the Quincy Vocational Technical School because the high cost of a college education has made the development of a marketable skill almost mandatory. Skilled blue collar workers are the most sought after in the job market and this trend will continue."

Mrs. Toland then asked the group whether regular high school students should receive vocational training, thus expanding the "collaborative effort" already in practice in Quincy whereby vocational students study academic subjects in regular high school.

"This has been done in other places," said Mrs. Toland, "and it includes both boys and girls."

She added, "We must encourage girls to follow their own aspirations within the vocational technical area and to pursue them industriously."

Mrs. Toland cited figures showing nearly 50 per cent of the secondary school population needs "a merging of college preparatory and occupational vocational education."

Grace Saphir Opens Campaign Headquarters

Mayoralty candidate Mrs. Grace Saphir recently greeted Quincy voters at the official opening of her campaign headquarters at 680 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Stressing her theme of "more horse sense and less nonsense at City Hall," Mrs. Saphir told one visitor:

"We must bring business and the people together to solve the city's problems. As it is now, the present mayor plays footsy with a small clique of favored businesses to the detriment of the people and all other businesses."

Mrs. Saphir said if elected, her administration would try "to clamp the lid of real estate taxes" to prevent property owners from being "pushed to the wall as they are now under the policy of a tax rate that goes only one way - up."

Dance July 18 For Jan Rich

A dance for School Committee candidate Jan Rich's campaign will be held Friday, July 18 from 8 to 12 p.m. at the Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Tickets will be sold at the door or may be obtained in advance from John Doherty, 773-6944 or Tom Cavanaugh, 479-7130.

Leo Kelly To Seek Ward 1 Second Term

Ward 1 City Councillor Leo J. Kelly announces he is a candidate for re-election.

Kelly, who is serving his first term, said his campaign for re-election will stress the importance of the continued effort to focus attention on the problems of Ward 1.

"The past 18 months have been a challenge, a great learning experience, and with the help of many good friends and associates in government, a time of accomplishment, he said.

"Among the projects I am most pleased to be involved with are the resurfacing of Sea St. through Chapter 90 funds from Palmer St. to Rockland St. I anticipate also that Sea St. will be upgraded between Quincy Shore Drive and Southern Artery as part of the overall traffic safety improvements funded by the state through the $1.3 million TOPICS Program.

"I am very pleased to have worked with the parents of Merrymount over the past two years for the addition to the Merrymount School. Now that this project is approved and preliminary plans are prepared, we can look forward to the construction of a fine elementary school addition.

"The designation of Houghs Neck for Quincy's next Neighborhood Improvement Program is also an important step for our ward. This commitment of a million dollars the first year for program activities mean needed street and public works improvements as well as home rehabilitation assistance for Houghs Neck residents. The program will bring priority attention to Houghs Neck over the next three years to help keep that neighborhood a strong residential community."

Kelly also noted that a great deal of his time has been devoted to the water quality of Quincy Bay.

"If we allow Nut Island to malfunction and pollute the Bay, or if we allow the filling of Quincy Bay for secondary sewerage treatment, all Quincy residents will suffer," he said. "I will continue to focus attention on this issue and I welcome the support and concern which local and state officials are beginning to give to the matter."

"This has been a busy and active time. Our ward improvements such as Chapter 90 TOPICS Program, the Houghs Neck Improvement Program, the dredging of Black's Creek and the Germantown Park have meant over $4 million brought into Ward 1.

"I am proud to have worked with the city administration and my fellow councillors and I hope to be able to continue to do so during the next two years."

William Delahunt Opens Campaign Headquarters

The Committee to elect William D. Delahunt Councillor-at-large announces the opening of its main campaign headquarters at 587

Washington St., Quincy Point. The headquarters is adjacent to the Lincoln Theatre and it will be open from noon to 11 p.m. daily. Telephone numbers are 472-2946 and 472-2947.

Elected Officials Should Emulate John Q. Adams Says Tobin

Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin has challenged Quincy officials and citizens to renew their dedication "to the principles of integrity and responsibility" - principles guiding the life of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of our nation.

Delivering the keynote address at Friday's wreath-laying ceremonies honoring the 208th birthday of Quincy's native son, Tobin extolled Adams as a man devoted to his country and community, a man all elected officials can emulate.

"John Quincy Adams loved the nation because he had first learned to love his community," Tobin said. "Absolutely nothing was more important to him than community service. More than anything else he believed his primary duty was to serve the people faithfully. His primary obligations were his constituents. The quality of his leadership continues to stand as a model for elected officials."

Calling Adams the nation's first environmentalist, the first to urge protection of the country's waterways and forests, Tobin said Adams was a man "always ahead of his time." "His eyes were constantly looking down the road," said Tobin, "And in his mind, he created a new country...a country which would someday span an entire continent." Adams' love of family, staunch adherence to moral principles and devotion to community service stand "as a magnificent monument" to him, said Tobin. Commitment to similar ideals and rededication to principles of integrity and responsibility will "bring honor to our families, our city and our nation," Tobin concluded.

Shoppers Questionnaire During Sidewalk Bazaar

The Downtown Development Office, Quincy Heritage, the Mayor's office and the city's Cultural Arts Association are combining efforts for a celebration in conjunction with the Sidewalk Bazaar.

Models of the past, exhibits of the future, music, art shows and craft demonstrations will all take place in the former Hancock Bank building at Cottage and Hancock Sts., Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Downtown Development Office will occupy a booth outside the former bank building. The booth will be staffed with people who will answer questions on the aspects of the downtown revitalization program. Some of the aspects of this program include beautification, physical improvements, public improvements, development and efficient use of retail space.

A questionnaire will also be provided for shoppers at the Downtown Development Office's booth.

"We would like to give people the opportunity to make suggestions as to how Quincy Center can be made a more interesting place to work and shop," said Harvey Towmim, Director of the Downtown Development Office.

A feature attraction from Quincy Heritage will be the display of scale-model replicas of the John Adams and the John Quincy Adams birthplaces, and the Abigail Adams Cairn. The models were hand made by students at Broad Meadows Junior High School under the direction of John Hemphill, their teacher.

In addition to displays of the past, the Downtown Development Office will show displays of the future. Architectural renderings of five different alternatives for Quincy Center and proposals made by the Quincy Center Development Report will also be displayed.

Quincy Heritage's new slide show, "Quincy: For the Love of Living" will be played continuously for visitors, and historical site information will be available. Brochures of Quincy and surrounding towns, street guide maps and a special calendar highlighting coming events for the city's 350th anniversary and the nation's bicentennial, will be given away. In addition, a lighted 10-foot display will depict Quincy Heritage activities. Staffers Elaine Shea, Ann Keefe, Audrey Cutler and Gail Makowitz will be on hand to provide other information to the public.

The Cultural Arts Association is planning an art show and craft demonstrations for the occasion.

HN, Remick's Tied For First Place

Houghs Neck and Remick's are tied for first place in the Quincy Junior Baseball League's American League with Foley-Chrysler Plymouth a half game behind. In the National League Colonial Federal leads Bryan VFW Post by a half game.

Kiwanis nipped Boston Gear, 3-2, with Jamie Walsh pitching a three-hitter, striking out 12 and driving in the winning run with a double. Mike Avitable had two doubles and Sean Martin a single for Kiwanis. Gear's Kevin McDonald and Jim Hensley had singles and Tom Donovan a double. Paul Dwyer pitched fine ball in defeat with a four-hitter and only two walks. Both teams played excellent ball on defense.

Burgin Platner won two games to tie Boston Gear in the standings. Burgin topped Colonial Federal, 4-1, with Mike Monahan the winning pitcher. He had nine strikeouts. Joe Duggan and Danny Malloy sparked the attack.

Burgin also nipped Rotary, 6-5, with John Sweet and William Dudley pitching for the winners. Monahan, the winners' catcher, made a fine throw to second base following a strikeout to complete a double play.

Colonial edged Keohane's, 7-5, with Mark Millane the winning pitcher. He also hit a two-run homer. John Balzano, losing pitcher, hurled a 5-0, going the route and striking out six. His record dropped to 5-3. Danny Walsh played a fine game behind the plate and had three hits. Steve Healy, Mike Jaehnig and Balzano had other hits.

Keohane's topped Boston Gear, 8-4, with Walsh the winning pitcher and Healy getting a save. Brian Reale played fine ball at second base and made a diving catch, the best play of the game. Reale also had a run scoring double. Jaehnig, Tommy Mullen, Pat King, Scott Thompson and Balzano also had hits. Dave Dwyer was the losing pitcher.

Remick's wallpiped Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, 10-2, ending a 10-game win streak by Foley's. John Todd was the winning pitcher, hiking his record to 8-1. Remick's attack was led by Glenn Segalla with a tremendous home run over the right field fence and he had two runs batted in. Mike Stranberg had two hits and three RBIs, John Barrett two hits and Steve Hogan, Todd, Bill DeMattio and Robbie Craig a hit each. For Foley Bill Foley, John Kavanaugh and Tom Canavan stood out.

Rotary defeated Sears, 4-1, with Johnny Costigan pitching four-hit ball and striking out seven. Gary DeNardo had a

Palmer Pub, Hofbrau Win

Two Quincy Softball League teams are still alive in the District 4 Amateur Softball Association tournament being played in Weymouth. Each won tournament games last week.

The Palmer Pub Hotshots scored the winning run in the top of the seventh inning and held on for a 10-9 win over the Cellar of Abington, while the Hofbrau breezed over the Boston Coast Guard, 9-2.

Heroes for the Palmer Hotshots were Rocky Connolly, with three hits, three runs scored and two batted in, and Roger Homan, who had two hits and an RBI and earned the pitching win as he blanked the Cellar team over the last three innings.

For Hofbrau it was a combination of its speed and superlative defense and pitching. John Moriarty in left field took several hits away from the Coast Guard with brilliant catches. Dave Drew was outstanding at

Recreation Roundup

By JOE MOSESSO

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program is off to a good start with attendance figures up from last year. No doubt the implementation of some new programs and the added improvement of the old ones are the main factors in the rise of attendance.

Sports action in all the Recreation Department leagues begins this week. All division races look to be close. A few of these early season games will be reported in next week's column.

Creations with popsicle sticks were the craze in last week's arts and crafts program. A wide assortment of different and inventive things were done with the popsicle sticks. For instance, at Kincaide the children made jewelry boxes and napkin holders, and at Myles Standish, money boxes and plaques. Some of the finer creations were done by Eric DiBona, Nancy Ruta and Lisa Allen of Kincaide and Myles Standish's Cheryl Anderson.

Richie Adams and Paula Anderson.

In the past few years, tennis has grown into one of the most popular sports in the area. A few players showing promise for a future visit to Wimbledon are Fore River's Betty Hart, Mary Travers and Margie McBride and Mark Stewart, Gary Durante and John Dinaro of Pond St.

One of the newest specialist programs, which is growing in popularity, is track and field. Headed by North Quincy track star Paul Doherty, the program is an excellent instructional outlet for youngsters expressing any interest and desire in track. Some of the potential Olympians on the playgrounds are Wollaston's Julie Green, Deirdre Simmons and Neal Hatfield.

The Recreation Dept.'s Robin Hood, Tim Flynn is back again at the playgrounds. As usual the response around the city to the archery program has been overwhelming. Some of the best marksmen reports Flynn are LaBrecque's John Baylis and Mike Monahan and Bill O'Connell, Dean Zoia and Billy Anden of Bishop.

"Practice makes perfect", is what golf specialist Ken Furfan

John Franceschini 'Specialist Of Week'
John Franceschini, tennis specialist for the Quincy Recreation Department has been named Specialist of the Week by Recreation Director William F.

is stressing to all his aspiring young golfers. A few young future Johnny Millers, who have heeded Ken's words are O'Rourke's Winnie Bertrand, Glen Oriola and Theresa Colletta and Russell Park's Mike Pope.

Music specialist Karen Walsh and drama specialist Theresa Iacovino hope to bring out inbred talent in many youngsters. Thus far both programs have succeeded in doing just that. Some of the virtuosos around the city include Joe Johnson, Mike Pound and Mike Pimetel of Squantum and Welcome Young's Jennifer Gallagher, Sheila Egan and Ellen DiLuca.

With food prices the way they are today, many people are finding it cheaper to raise their own vegetables in a backyard garden. With this thought in mind, nature specialists Mike Parros and Debbie Coose spent the week helping children plant gardens on the playgrounds. Some of the youngsters possessing green thumbs are Wollaston's Ann Feeney, Dave Foley and Maria and Angelo Galluzzo.

Next week, we'll take a look at the aquatic programs and at some of the sports action in the playground leagues.

Bank-Retail Softball

Remick's Remains Undefeated

Remick's continues undefeated in the Bank and Retail Softball League and has a one-game lead over South Shore National.

Remick's outslugged Quincy Savings Bank, 16-13, on John Duggan's pitching and hitting. Remick's broke open a tight game with seven runs in the sixth inning as Duggan led off with a home run. Bruce Mattio and Bill Corbin followed with a double and triple to account for five runs.

A barrage by Quincy's Paul

Cunniff, Corky Wells, Phil Greenspan and Kevin Dunn drove in seven runs in the seventh as Quincy Savings pulled to within three before losing its second game in a row.

South Shore National scored four runs in the first inning on the hitting of Doug Catalano and Paul Baharian and coasted the rest of the way to wallop Quincy Bank, 12-0, on Kevin Schwede's pitching.

Hancock Bank and Trust won its second straight, 16-15, over South Weymouth Savings, as

Quincy Softball League

Rouillard's, Wells Hold Division Leads

Rouillard's and Wells Grille continue to hold safe leads in their respective divisions as the Quincy Softball League heads towards the playoffs.

Rouillard's has a four-game lead over Mr. Kelly's in the American League, while Wells has a 4½-game bulge over Sabina's in the National League.

The three top teams in each division will qualify for the playoffs, which will get under way on July 30. Palmer Pub Hotshots and Beau's Place are tied for third place in the American League with the Hancock right behind. In the National League any one of four teams could make the third playoff spot with Walsh's having a slight lead over Spring Plumbing and County Line and Jonathan's also right in the running.

Tonight Tom English Pub will play Hofbrau and Spring will meet Wells, at Welcome Young Playground, while Bocce Club will take on Rouillard's, Bill's Texaco will face Jonathan's and K. of C. will meet Howard Johnson's at Rotary Field. Monday it will be Spring vs. Jonathan's and Palmer vs. Rouillard's at Welcome Young and Alumni vs. Wells, Mr. Kelly's vs. Beau's and Walsh's vs. Sabina's at Rotary.

Surgical Day Care

Program At Quincy Hospital

A new Surgical Day Care Program at Quincy City Hospital is now in effect.

The program, operating on an out-patient basis, allows for minor surgery to be performed in one day at the hospital without an overnight stay.

Hospital Director Harlan Paine, said the program should alleviate much cost to the patient and free some of the much needed beds at the hospital.

Handling many orthopedic and dental cases, physicians under this program will be able to perform many surgical procedures they can not do in their office, yet do not require an overnight stay.

The necessary laboratory and x-ray tests are performed 48 hours previous to the surgery. Once completed, the patient is sent to the Recovery, observed closely, then discharged to his or her family in the afternoon.

Quincy 'Wins' $243,748

Quincy received $243,748.59 in the Massachusetts State Lottery during the first five months of 1975, boosting its grand total of earnings to $1,670,130 since the lottery began in 1972.

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, chairman of the Lottery Commission, released checks to the state's 351 cities and towns Saturday.

During the same five-month period, the Lottery earned $16,180,000 for the state's cities and towns, bringing the grand total of funds earned for the municipalities to $111,426,186 since March 1972 when the Lottery began.

Since 1972, Lottery money has been distributed at the end of each year. But funds will now be distributed every six months.

Crane said more than 2 million players of The Game have won over $132.6 million in prize money since the Lottery's beginning.

March Of Dimes Documentary

Dramatic Birth Re-enacted At Quincy Hospital For Film

By DEIRDRE SULLIVAN

"Now That April Is Here", an upcoming film on the dramatic birth of April Murphy, was filmed recently at the scene where it all originally took place.

Members of the Quincy City Hospital Obstetrical Department participated in a re-enactment of the birth of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Murphy of Marshfield for a short documentary film produced by the National Foundation of the March of Dimes.

The film, to be distributed nationally by the March of Dimes Foundation, traces the life and unusual circumstances surrounding the birth of April Murphy and the cooperative efforts by Quincy City Hospital and the Tufts-New England Medical Center to save her life.

April's condition, a vitamin-metabolism defect called methylmalonic acidemia, is an extremely rare disease which prohibits her from digesting proteins. The disease is so rare that fewer than two dozen cases have been reported in medical history. Ironically, this same disease took the life of the Murphy's first child at three months.

A medical breakthrough was scored by Tufts-New England Medical Center and Quincy City Hospital by diagnosing and treating the deadly defect before the baby was born. This was one of the first instances in medical history of treating a pregnant mother for an inherent metabolic defect in her unborn child. Mrs. Murphy was given massive doses of B12 during her pregnancy to help control her child's condition.

A highlight of the film is April's delivery at Quincy City Nov. 26, 1973 by Dr. Alan Bello, a member of the Obstetrical staff. Extreme precautions were taken by the department in conjunction with the New England Medical Center in preparation for the birth. Three nurses, Dr. Bello, and two doctors from the Floating Hospital were on hand in the delivery room.

The film crew from the March of Dimes arranged for all of the original people at the actual birth to be in the re-enactment. Mrs. Murphy and her husband, Dr. Bello, the nursing staff on duty that day, and a resident from Floating all re-played their roles.

A spokesman from the March of Dimes said that the film will be ready in the fall. He noted that it will be distributed nationally and locally to medical organizations, community groups, and television stations.

The spokesman also noted that the film is not a promotional one. It is, he stressed, a study of a rare disease and the cooperative effort made by a community hospital and a larger metropolitan one to control it.

Mission Accomplished In Quincy Point

$8.8 Million Revitalization Project Comes To Close

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The Quincy Point Improvement Project will close its Washington St. office this week, ending a four-year program which pumped over $8.8 million into home, business and neighborhood revitalization.

Funded by the federal government, the city of Quincy as well as private homeowners and businesses, the project began in October 1971 as a Financially Assisted Code Enforcement (FACE) Project under the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Although federal funds were sometimes "erratic" during the project's four-year span, Project Director George Fleming said in a report submitted to Mayor Walter Hannon and the City Council, Quincy Point homeowners received a total of $1,182,850 in low interest home improvement loans and outright grants to improve their property.

In addition, the city of Quincy and HUD together injected another $1,425,841 into the program, forming a "general fund account" for street, curb, traffic and other improvements as well as administrative and technical assistance. Quincy contributed one-third of that figure, or $475,280.

Fleming estimated over 900 Quincy Point homeowners spent some $2.5 million in personal funds to upgrade their property, in fact matching the combined federal and city revenue sources, which totaled over $2.6 million.

Apartment construction by private firms added an estimated $3.1 million to the sum total of the Quincy Point Improvement Project and private business contributed $625,000 in new construction and rehabilitation. Improvements during the four-year program included:

- Replacement of 31 fire alarm boxes.
- Construction of 44,815 feet of concrete curbing.

- Installation of over 700 street and traffic signs, posts, no parking and safety signs.
- Planting of 397 trees.

- Installation of three traffic signal systems.

- Removal and replacement of 82,500 feet of cable and equipment. That is 15.6 miles.

Fleming said 27 city departments participated in the project, helping to co-ordinate all city services towards common goal. The HUD-administered FACE program seeks to halt a neighborhood's "deterioration and decline" within a limited amount of time, Fleming noted. He said:

"The program hopefully injects a new life expectancy of 25 to 30 years to the neighborhood...It is not the answer to neighborhood decline but it is the beginning of a new life."

Private renovation of Quincy Point's business section increased the number of occupied buildings, living units and business in the area, though the actual number of buildings, living units and businesses decreased.

For example, Fleming said only 47 of Quincy Point's 72 stores were actually occupied in 1971. Following the Improvement Project, Quincy Point has a total of 63 stores - nine less than four years ago - but 61 of them are occupied - 14 more than four years ago.

Three major construction projects totalling $375,000 were launched during the project: a Quincy Point branch of the Quincy Savings Bank, McCloskey Market and Atlantic Fence. In addition, $250,000 was expended on rehabilitation in the business area extending from Fore River Circle to Southern Artery.

Fleming also noted all 46 living units in Quincy Point are occupied compared to 34 out of 51 units occupied in 1971.

A total of 36 family units were demolished between July 1972 and February 1974. Forty-five garages and sheds, nine businesses and one gas station were also destroyed, all at the expense of the individual property owner, Fleming said.

Eight individuals and families re-located as a result of building demolition or condemnation. Those involved received a total of $7,611 approved and funded by HUD.

Project figures indicate 122 individuals received three per cent HUD-financed interest loans totalling $673,850 and averaging $5,532 each. The average loan recipient was 42 years old.

A total of 191 people received grants amounting to $509,000 and averaging $2,665 per grant. Average age of a grant recipient was 66.

With the project's office doors to close soon, Fleming seems pleased with the overall operation of Quincy Point Improvement Project. He said:

"The success of these projects cannot be evaluated entirely by statistics in the number of properties and amount of dollars spent. Proper evaluation can only be made by walking through these streets and this neighborhood, talking with the recipients of financial aid and sensing the new pride people are taking in their neighborhood."

Smoke Signal Season Brings On Burgers

Next time you're picnicking at the park or in your yard, cook up a tasty variation on the burger theme - Barbecued Cheeseburgers. Just brush patties generously with bottled barbecue sauce, top with cheese and a barbecued onion slice. Delicious! It's an idea from The Kraft Kitchens developed for use with their unique barbecue sauce which penetrates its flavor deep into the meat.

For additional flavor, add barbecue sauce to the ground beef before shaping into patties. You can choose your sauce to suit the tastes of family and friends. There are a variety of flavors available in bottled barbecue sauce today; besides regular, there's hot, garlic, onion bits and hickory smoke flavored, to name a few.

So that your burgers are perfect at serving time, start the fire 20 to 40 minutes before you plan to begin cooking. Barbecued Cheeseburgers are best cooked over medium coals. A simple formula for determining the charcoal temperature is by appearance. Flames are occasionally visible around hot coals, which are always glowing. Medium coals have a slight glow, and low coals are ash gray in color.

If the weather doesn't permit barbecuing outdoors, or if you're just not an outdoor cooking buff, try Barbecued Cheeseburgers cooked indoors under the broiler. Inside or out, you'll find them a welcome change of taste. For more all-season barbecuing recipes, write Kraft Barbecue Sauce Recipes, P. O. Box 6768, Chicago, Illinois 60680.

Barbecued Cheeseburgers

- 2 lbs. ground beef
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Onion slices, cut 1/4-inch thick
- Kraft barbecue sauce
- Kraft pasteurized process American cheese slices

Combine meat and salt; shape into 6 to 8 patties, 3/4-inch thick. Place patties and onions on greased grill or on rack of broiler pan. Grill or broil on both sides to desired doneness, brushing frequently with barbecue sauce. For each serving, place cheese slice on patty; top with onion. Grill or broil until cheese begins to melt. 6 to 8 servings

Jean cutoffs make bags

By BETTY W. KINSEY
Copley News Service

He's only 10 years old, so what does he know? Our youngest made cutoffs out of a couple of pair of his good jeans. All it took was a pair of scissors, a not-so-straight chalk line, and mother's absence for about 20 minutes. Not being one for waste, he felt he should make use of the parts he cut off, so he asked me to sew up the cut end, leaving the hemmed end open. What for? "To make little bags to keep stuff in!" It's amazing what a 10-year-old can find to put in bags-to-keep-stuff-in. I stitched strips of hook-and-loop fasteners to the open end for easy closing. (I think grownups could find a lot of uses for such little "bags-to-keep-stuff-in.")

What's the coolest fabric for the hottest months? Cotton. Man-made fabrics are very nice about not wrinkling, but they do prevent your skin from "breathing" and, therefore, are hotter. A 50-50 blend of polyester and cotton gives you the best of both.

QUICK STITCH: After you have adjusted your basic muslin garment for a proper fit, take it apart at all the seams and press each piece flat. Makes it so much easier to transfer alterations that way.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Also Aries Ascendant) — You can make wise decisions now. Resist any selfish attitudes. Consider carefully before impulsively shirking responsibilities and neglecting the needs and desires of your mate or partner.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Pleasant relationships with coworkers are indicated. Give advice when asked, but don't feel hurt if it is not heeded. Give your major attention to work responsibility. Limit your social life just now.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20) — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Put your very best foot forward, since you could meet someone now who will be influential to your future. Guard against letting your pride interfere in a meaningful romantic relationship. Be charitable.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22) — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Not a good time to lend money — guard your finances. Follow your own feelings instead of the advice of others. Be content with a lesser position in an organization. Possibility of a trip with a friend.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22) — Also Leo Ascendant) — Gossiping neighbors may be troublesome. Rise above feeling personal slight and go about your life in your usual magnanimous way. Guard against feelings of jealousy or trying to rekindle a dying romance.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Take an optimistic, matter-of-fact attitude toward what you discover regarding health matters. You can achieve a personal goal now. Enjoy leisurely evenings after a hard day's work.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Also Libra Ascendant) — Good fortune in career comes through others just now. You may have to change personal plans to take a business trip. You're indecisive about redecorating plans now — better wait until later to start the project.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov.

21) — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — An unexpected change may involve a journey and will work out to your benefit. There is a possibility of a job change. Some of you may be changing residence — it could be temporary.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Energy is high and you can get a lot accomplished. Others are cooperative. Be considerate of mate and complimentary. Work on career plans, but keep your ideas to yourself for now.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You can be expecting too much from others. Curb tendency to grouse and complain. Good news comes later in the week. Be patient and resist being a "worry wart." Small investments are favored.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your life may be changing now. Be optimistic, attend to duties, and you will find you are in control. If others are not dealing fairly, don't be tempted to "play their game." Maintain integrity.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You may fall behind on your work schedule and need to put in some overtime. Keep up appearances with attractive wardrobe, and appear at your best at all times. Enjoy activities with children.

RIGHTS 'N' WRONGS How does mate refuse bid?

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
I am the girls' adviser in a large high school. When some of my former students marry they send an invitation to my husband and me. I know that this is the correct thing to do but my husband doesn't know the bride-to-be and is bored at the wedding and reception. He is perfectly willing to have me go and I really want to attend these functions. How do I word my RSVP to let the mother of the bride know I will be there but my husband will not? — Margaret G.
Dear Margaret G.:
The following is the correct form to use,

Mrs. John Phillip Jones accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Brown to the wedding and reception of their daughter on Wednesday the eighth of June at four o'clock St. Peter's Church but regrets that Mr. Jones will be unable to attend

I would like to emphasize your point that the bride was correct to invite both you and your husband although she only knew you. The same would hold true for a business friend of your husband. You would be invited to the wedding too.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
Our 9-year-old daughter's language would stop the devil in his tracks. Punishing her doesn't make a bit of difference. We are often embarrassed by her mouth. Any suggestions — Amy's Parents

Dear Parents:
Amy is acquiring her vocabulary somewhere! From you? School? Play-mates? Check around and I suggest you begin in your own home. Blasphemy and vulgarity are habit forming and perhaps such words slip from your own lips unconsciously.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
We called friends last Monday night and invited them for dessert and bridge. They turned us down because of the stupid baseball game. We think they were rude. Do you? — No Fan

Dear No Fan:
You think the Monday night baseball game is stupid. They think the same about Monday night dessert and bridge. Pick one of the six remaining nights in the week to get together.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
The doctors just told me my husband has a terminal illness. While we don't expect a miracle we haven't given up, or am I ready to tell our friends just how ill he is. What should I say when friends bore in for an answer? I'm sure they mean well. — Claire D.

Dear Claire D.:
Say, "The doctors are treating him and we all hope for a steady improvement." Then ask about THEM!

THE ACHING BACK

"One out of three adults in this country have experienced at least one episode of severe and prolonged back pain in their lives. It is estimated that close to two million Americans will suffer from chronic backache this year alone, and most of these victims will be middle-aged and physically inactive.

According to the U.S. Public Health Service, the problem is increasing. By 1977, more people will suffer from chronic and recurring back ailments than from any other single medical problem. Why the continued rise? Most experts believe it is a further sign that the nation is not in the physical condition it should be in. In most instances, they say, bad backs are the result of being overweight, middle-aged or older, and out of condition — allowing for weak muscle tone and poor back support. One of the main methods now being used to help the average back victim is to gently get him back into condition — through exercise, diet, sometimes both.

Heritage Spotlight On American Women Starting July 25

A dramatization of famous American women portrayed by Joanne Hamlin will be the first in a series of Quincy Heritage "mini-happenings" to be presented Fridays at 12:30 p.m. beginning July 25 in McIntyre Mall, located in front of the Quincy MBTA station.

This program, entitled "No Borrowed Stream", includes a kaleidoscope of some of the remarkable women of the nation who have made unique contributions to the quality and character of American life. Each of these women has in some way found how to be what Susan B. Anthony had envisioned for women when she said: "I think a woman should be the thing God made her, channel for no borrowed stream."

This program includes some 13 women from the early 17th century through the 19th who are recreated as much as possible through their own words.

Special invitations have been extended to the Mayor's Committee on the Status of Women and the Daughters of the American Revolution. The performance is free to the general public.

Women's Political Caucus Plans Summer Social July 29

The South Shore Women's Political Caucus will hold its second annual summer social Tuesday, July 29, from 7 to 10 p.m. at 162 Warren Ave., Wollaston.

The event will be a beer and pretzel old time movie night. Ticket chairmen are Joyce Baker and Kathy O'Donnell.

The South Shore Women's Political Caucus is a multipartisan organization formed in Quincy in 1972, "to awaken, organize, and assert the vast political power represented by women".

The group is a member of the Massachusetts and National Women's Political Caucus and has been cited by both groups as one of the most active groups in Massachusetts and on the national level.

The SSWPC will be actively involved in this year's city election working to elect women and men who are committed to women's concerns; raising women's issues throughout the campaign time; and educating women through a series of political action workshops.

We've taken the Nonsense out of Personal Loans.

At Quincy Bank we've gotten back to the basics by simplifying our services to make things easier . . . faster . . . and more convenient for everyone.

So there's nothing complicated about our personal loans; whether you need money for a vacation, home improvement, automobile, unexpected expenses . . . you name it:

- You can usually get your loan approved in a matter of hours and it's easy to apply for.
- You pay simple interest only—a real advantage which can save you money by giving you a greater control over the amount of interest you'll pay.
- You get a clear, easily understood statement every month.
- You receive life insurance on the unpaid balance at no additional charge up to age 65.

And, we don't try to sell you a lot of other services because we've taken the nonsense out of personal loans—that's the Spirit of '75.

Shipyard Layoffs To Be Investigated

Congressman Richard Wigglesworth notified David Clauret, acting head of Local 5, that he would investigate charges that workers were being laid off while the Fore River Shipyard had millions of dollars to keep men employed.

The union claimed that on the $23,000,000 conversion job for the Navy on the Springfield, there was little work being done.

RE-ZONING OF GERMANTOWN PROPOSED

A controversy was expected at the Quincy Planning Board public hearing on the proposed re-zoning of 90 acres in Germantown.

The proposal called for re-zoning the tract from Industrial A to Residence B. The re-zoning was sought in a petition signed by 190 residents.

The land in question was located south of Shedd St. and west of Palmer St. The area included the Snug Harbor housing project.

LEWIS ANNOUNCES RECONSTRUCTION OF SOUTHERN ARTERY

City Manager Edward Lewis announced that the reconstruction of the Southern Artery would begin after Labor Day.

Bids for two-thirds of a million dollar project would be called for Aug. 24 and the contract let the first week of September. The state would pay for the project, which was authorized by Public Works Commissioner John A. Volpe.

Original state plans called for a center strip and land takings for widening. The plans were dropped because of stiff opposition from business interests along the Artery.

BILL AUTHORIZES SALE OF BROAD MEADOWS

A bill authorizing the city of Quincy to sell the 90 acre Broad Meadows site passed the House and Senate this week and awaited approval by Gov. Foster Furcolo.

Under the bill, the city would sell the property to the Quincy Electric Company for $75,000. The company planned to build a 30-55 million dollar power generator.

'Vietnam Could Have Been Won In 3 Years'

Quincy's State Legion Commander Strongly Opposes Limited-Scope Wars

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy Assessor John P. Comer, newly-elected commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion, said the war in Vietnam could have been over in three years if conducted properly.

The 43-year-old Comer, elected to the commander's post unanimously at the recent 57th annual state convention, said he "adamantly favors" a resolution - passed by the convention's 2,000 delegates - voicing opposition to limited-scope wars. Such wars, like the war in Vietnam, hinder the ability of U.S. forces "to pursue, engage and destroy forces designated as hostile," the resolution stated.

Speaking of soldiers' frustration in such limited-scope wars, Comer told The Quincy Sun:

"It is discouraging to take a helmet one day and find it back in the hands of the enemy three days later. There were too many games played in how that war [the Vietnam war] was handled. U.S. forces should never again get involved in skirmishes of that type. Forces should go in, go ahead and get it over with. There is no reason why that war couldn't have been over in three years if conducted properly."

Comer, stationed in Germany three years during the Korean war, emphasized the American Legion never opposed the Vietnam War itself but objected to the conduct of prolonged, limited-scope battle.

"We are still the greatest power on earth and we are still willing to help our allies. We were never against the war in Vietnam per se."

The passage of that resolution represented an overall change in Legion thinking and attitude, Comer said.

"That resolution would not have passed five years ago."

But Legion thinking on the subject of unconditional amnesty has not wavered over the years. Reiterating the Legion's long-time stance on the issue, Comer said the organization "unalterably opposes any full, unconditional or general amnesty" for deserters or draft evaders and also vehemently opposes any re-opening or liberalization of President Gerald Ford's clemency program which ended March 31 after 197 days of operation.

Comer, commander of the state's 75,000-strong Legion organization, said blanket amnesty would set an unwanted and dangerous precedent which might serve to thwart conscription in times of national emergency. Comer said:

"If there ever were another Pearl Harbor, another holocaust where American soldiers were needed, who would enlist? They'd all leave the country, knowing they'd get amnesty when it was all over."

The Legion feels each and every case should be tried on its own merits by judicial authority.

"Sometimes full amnesty is deserved," said Comer. "But other times it is not. Sometimes a deserter or draft dodger carries a charge of murder or arson against him."

Contrary to popular belief, Comer said the Vietnam veteran is fast joining Legion organizations. But he said other-war veterans divide with Vietnam-era members on the issue of amnesty.

"There are those from the Vietnam era who can quickly forgive and forget a person who went 'over the hill' or flew away to Canada. But I can't," Comer said.

"A conscientious objector doesn't have to take off," Comer continued. "He can sit at a desk and fulfill his military time in that way. This country has given us so much, we owe it that."

Comer noted the American Legion was not invited to testify orally during Congressional subcommittee hearings on blanket amnesty held in April. Objecting to the exclusion of the Legion from the list of invited witnesses, Legion National Commander James M. Wagoner was then invited to provide the committee written testimony on the Legion's stance. Wagoner later told the subcommittee its list of witnesses represented a "marked imbalance" towards the "liberalized approach to amnesty" and he urged the subcommittee to withhold final recommendations on unconditional amnesty until opponents had the chance to voice their views in person.

In recent years, Comer said the American Legion has been instrumental in changing a dishonorable discharge to an honorable one in drug-related cases having no connection with a criminal offense. An honorable discharge is a prerequisite for joining the American Legion, Comer said.

During his term as state commander, Comer, past commander of the Thomas J. Roberts Post in West Roxbury, wants to underline to citizens the Legion's philosophy of community service.

"My whole theme is the community-past, present and future," he said. "If we don't help one another in the community, it's all for none."

By emphasizing the Legion's long-standing tradition of service, Comer hopes to erase from people's minds a stereotypic image of the Legion.

"Too many people think of the American Legion as war," Comer said. "We're not a war organization, we're a service organization... Too often people think of us as men in yellow-striped pants, marching in parades and carrying a bottle of beer in our hands... We're a service organization and give all our money back to the community."

Service geared toward the veteran includes a federal employment service aimed at job training, employment counseling and job placement, Comer explained. Underscoring their commitment to employment services, delegates at the recent state convention passed a resolution urging Congress to provide sufficient funds to maintain "a strong and efficient Veterans Employment Service." Passage of this resolution came at a time when some 537,000 Vietnam-era veterans are unemployed.

Annual community-oriented programs sponsored by the American Legion includes Boys' State, American Legion Baseball, American Legion scholarships totalling thousands of dollars, law and order awards to police and firemen, foreign-born citizen honors and Americanism awards to deserving college students.

Unanimously elected as state commander, Comer described his job as "an awesome one."

"I never really realized the tremendous responsibility of the commander of this department. It's an awesome, full-time job."

2 Red Sox Stars Living In Quincy

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Two attractive young ladies were shopping in Bottoms Up recently and co-owner Cecile Letorney stepped over to them to ask: "May I help you?"

Cecile, a member of the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty-Pageant committee, also thought the two would be knock-outs in the pageant, and pulled out a couple of registration forms.

"Well, I don't think we would qualify," smiled one of them. "We're both married," explained the other.

They confided their husbands were "out of town on business" and they had decided to come down town "to spend some of their money." And they laughed.

"I'll bet your husbands are baseball players," Cecile, a baseball nut, guessed.

"Yes," said one, "I'm Mrs. Fied Lynn and she's Mrs. Cecil Cooper."

And guess what? The Lynns and Coopers are new Quincy residents. Living on Furnace Ave.

SPEAKING OF THE Miss Quincy Bay Pageant, this year's winner-17-year-old Jeanne Ann Rathgeb of North Quincy—upheld what seems to be becoming a pageant tradition. She wore a white one-piece high-neck swimsuit. Similar to the ones worn by Patty Kelley, 1973 winner and Janice Lamparelli, 1974 queen.

AND, SPEAKING OF the Red Sox, if you were at the pageant you may have noticed in the crowd a pretty blonde who looks like Barbara Eden, the Jeannie of TV. In case you were wondering, it was not Barbara but Lois Stuart, wife of former Red Sox first baseman Dick Stuart. Lois is a former model and close friend of Carol Nash, model agency owner who was one of the judges at the pageant.

Stuart, incidentally, is now in the insurance business in Greenwich, Conn. but itching to get back into baseball perhaps as a radio or TV announcer.

ONE OF THE highlights of the champagne-birthday party for Rep. William Delahunt at the Blue Hill Tennis Club the other night was a doubles tennis match: Gov. Michael Dukakis and Delahunt vs. William Kelley and William O'Malley, president and vice-president respectively of the Hancock Bank.

The Kelley/O'Malley team won, in two sets, 6-2, 6-2. But Delahunt says he and Dukakis want a re-match, quipping, "They [Kelley and O'Malley] had more time to practice because of banker's hours."

ONE OF THE best laughs of the political season came during the party, too. Delahunt was thanking the crowd who at $25 a head contributed an estimated $6,000-to-$7,000 to his campaign fund when he looked over and noticed that Mayor Walter Hannon had slipped and fallen on the tennis court behind the crowd.

Delahunt then quickly ad-libbed: "I want you all to know I've changed my mind. Instead of running for councillor at-large I've decided to run for mayor. And look over there... [pointing toward Hannon] — you can see Walter has already given up."

THAT AUTO WITH vanity plate XXV seen around Quincy belongs to Ward 5 councillor Warren Powers. It stands for "25" as in July 25, 1941—his birthdate.

OBSERVATION: Jan Rich, school committee candidate, drew a small turnout at the campaign dance party for him at Fore River Clubhouse. Probably three reasons: he was competing with the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant, and the William Delahunt champagne birthday party. And the name of the musical combo advertised on the tickets might have had something to do with it: Juicy Swill.

There are courses for everything nowadays and one wonders where politicians go to learn how to straddle the fence.

Governor Dukakis pushed optimism to a new longevity record. He waited five months before admitting the need for new taxes.

To reassure those worried already about next winter's storms, there won't be more than several days of really intolerable weather.

If you're wondering what ever became of the five percent surtax, you'll find it in the same place as Governor Dukakis' no-new-taxes pledge and Mayor White's promise of a scandal-free administration.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Shoplifters Are THIEVES

By ERIC SWIDER

The other night I was lying there twitching and turning in bed and Claudie asked me, "What's the matter?"

I explained to her that I've been trying to think of something to write about for this column all week and the creative urge hadn't hit me yet.

She said, "What about shoplifting?"

"Yeah, what about shoplifting," I said. Shoplifting is stealing and stealing is a crime and people who do it are THIEVES.

Do you realize that shoplifting increases the cost of what we buy by five percent or more and the most serious problems exist among teenagers of middle and upper income families.

They jeopardize their futures and when caught, say they did it just for kicks, it was just a prank, I did it on a dare, or it was on impulse. What they're saying is shoplifting to them is a sport, not a crime. Many young people don't realize that when you boost a $2 pen it's just like stealing $2 out of someone's pocket. Unfortunately, they think feigning ignorance of the law will get them off lightly but ignorance of the law is no excuse and no defense against prosecution and conviction.

"You know," I said, "Claudie — fortunately, some of the business-people I talk to are fed up with shoplifters and they're starting to prosecute them to the full extent of the law and it's about time. Why should we have to pay more for clothes, food and sports equipment because these rotten little thieves are ripping off merchants."

A big merchant member told me the other day that this year end inventory revealed that $50,000 worth of goods has been boosted from his operation over the last twelve months. That's sinful.

I'd like to see the courts start passing out stiffer penalties for shoplifting. In some places first offenders are liable for $2,000 in fines and up to 5 years in jail and if we could impose that type of penalty and hang up a few of these birds from the yardarms, it might help save us money as consumers. Let's face it — they aren't stealing from the merchants alone — they're doing it to you and me.

The thing that frustrates me, I explained, is that these kids, in many cases, think they are striking back at big corporations by shoplifting, that nobody will ever miss it, and that society owes them a living. Bull...I exclaimed...The real responsibility to make sure that our kids don't boost belongs to us as parents.

We have to realize that shoplifting can be just the beginning of bigger troubles for our kids. We have to impress them with the fact that shoplifting is stealing, even if it's just a pack of gum, and stealing is a criminal act. If we catch our kids at it, we should bring them to the store and have them return it to the manager in our presence and let them face the consequences. It would be embarrassing sure, but it would also make a lasting impression on them.

They've got to know that a police record can seriously affect their chances for a job, college entrance, and professional training. We should know how much money our kids have to spend and how they spend it, and if they start showing up with expensive little gadgets, we have to quiz them on where they got them. And not accept pat answers. We should know why, when and where our kids are going shopping.

Shoplifting is the type of thing we as parents should get involved with by finding out what's going on in the community, schools, and courts to encourage deterrence. We should teach our kids that it is more chicken to go along with the crowd than to refuse to do it.

We should be alert to our kids taking along an extra large shopping bag on shopping trips. That is the most common tool of the shoplifter. We should be sure to supervise any clothes swapping, and probably most importantly, we must set the right example.

I wish there was a more effective way to impress upon kids, and parents, the seriousness of this problem and the implications of these acts. We see so little about the problem in the newspapers, I guess because it's so common. But at the same time, it's the advertisers and readers who are paying the price.

"Well, that's the way I feel about shoplifting, Claudie, now what do you think I should write about in my column this week?"

"Eric, you are so romantic...go to sleep, dear."

"Goodnight Claudie."

"Goodnight Eric."

LIVING TODAY

'Someone Who Needs Me'

By DR. WILLIAM KNOX

"For once in my life I got someone who needs me." Sammy Davis, Jr. really gives out when he sings it. At first, sentiment is very moving. Being needed makes some people feel important ... worthwhile ... giving meaning to life.

But upon deeper examination, I wonder if a relationship based upon need is really a healthy one for adults. I understand a child needing a mother for survival ... the senile upon assistance. But for adults to base their relationship upon need may indicate weakness on both parts.

If our relationship is based on: "I AM NEEDED BY YOU", then I'm acceptable and liked by you ... serve your purpose as long as I meet your need. If I'm unable to meet your need then I'm unacceptable and you have no reason to like me. I may feel used ... a tool ... an instrument that you use when you have need. In a personal relationship this is self-defeating. I may need my auto mechanic to fix my car ... my dentist to fix my teeth ... the undertaker to bury me when I die. These are functionaries in my life. They have a utilitarian value in my living.

In a personal relationship ... which is what marriage is supposed to be ... each person must be WANTED by the other, rather than needed. That makes you equals. If one is needed ... and the other in need, this makes one inferior to the other and sooner or later resentment is probable ... because no adult person likes to feel dependent. This kind of relationship is a parent to child relationship which doesn't usually work well in marriage. There is always the fear in the mind of the needing one that he/she may withdraw himself/herself from me ... then what happens to me?" When a person is dependent upon another person it can be frightening.

The attraction of opposites isn't necessarily a good thing. I know that the weak often find the strong ... the strong the weak. But ... the person in need says in essence ... "I'm weak ... take care of me." The person who likes to feel needed says in essence ... "I'm strong ... I'll take care of you. This is neurotic ... not mutual equality ... it's dependency ... both using each other. The weak one uses the strong one for survival ... or for sex ... or for financial support ... or for emotional security. If the strong one falters, then his/her purpose ceases. If the weak one gets strong the one who needs to be needed is threatened.

The basis of a good adult relationship must not be based on need ... instead upon WANT. "I want you" is a very different thing than "I need you." It's a compliment to be wanted. It's a putdown to be needed. When two people want each other they feel equal ... they make joint decisions ... not unilateral decisions by the strong one. They show affection because they want to ... not because of compulsive need. They share the heavy burdens of life mutually. They enjoy the fun of life ... the happy situations independently, yet together.

Your child starts out dependent and in need. Maturity has as its goal a growth which does not keep one in need ... nor cause one to have to be needed to feel mature.

I hope you're wanted by someone ... not just needed.

Over '850,000 Work Planned

Construction Started At Wollaston Recreation Facility

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Tuesday afternoon for the new 95-acre, county-operated Wollaston Recreational Facility located at the former Wollaston Golf Course site off West Squantum St.

Sixty site acres lie in Milton and 35 in Quincy. The facility will include 10 lighted tennis courts, picnic sites, and a juvenile recreation area, all to cost some $350,000.

Commissioner of Natural Resources Richard Koch said construction of a new golf course at the site will begin at the end of August in order to complete the total site renovations within one year. Cost of the courses is estimated at $500,000.

Koch, chairman of the Wollaston Recreational Facility Advisory Board which makes recommendations to the county commissioners, said development and renovation on this land will provide a permanent public recreational area for future generations.

Koch noted the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Department of Natural Resources, has approved federal reimbursement of 50 per cent of the total acquisition and development costs at the site. The remaining 50 per cent will be raised on a bond issue, he said.

The new facility will be self-supporting, Koch noted, and will provide an annual return to the county treasury.

Koch noted the recreation departments and conservation commissions in Quincy and Milton have been seeking preservation of this Wollaston site since 1969 when then-mayor James McIntyre sought land acquisition by the Metropolitan District Commission.

When action failed in the 1970-1971 legislature, the city requested the county commissioners to seek purchase and development of the site as open space, he continued.

In 1972, Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin filed legislation authorizing the expenditure of $3.5 million for acquisition and purchase of the site. The bill was later signed into law by then-Governor Francis X. Sargent.

Other members of the Wollaston Recreational Facility Advisory Board are Gerard Coletta Jr. of Quincy, Philip Chase and John Shields of Milton, Henry Hersey of Needham, William Kendrick of Norwood and Paul Feeney of Braintree.

The Norfolk County Commissioners - Chairman James J. Collins of Milton, George McDonald of Quincy and Thomas McManus of Norwood - will be in charge of the facility and James Fitzroy of Pittsfield will be the superintendent.

The former Wollaston Golf Club is now located in Milton.

Jeanne Rathgeb - Most Nervous In Pageant

New Miss Quincy Bay May Go On To Career In Law

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Dozens and dozens of fragrant red roses adorn the home of Jeanne Anne Rathgeb, 17-year-old winner of the 1975 Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant.

The 5-6½ long-haired beauty not only received two dozen red roses Friday as newly-crowned queen, she also received a bouquet of morning-picked garden roses when she arrived Monday at Baker Beach, Germantown to begin a day's work as a swim instructor there.

Her elated and proud students - many of them the same who lined the boardwalk Friday cheering for their teacher during pageant competition - applauded Jeanne once again, re-creating in miniature her winning moment of glory.

Jeanne, who will be a senior at Archbishop Williams High School this fall, was crowned Miss Quincy Bay before a crowd estimated at over 4,000 during last Friday night's pageant held in front of Hancock Bank.

"I was the most nervous girl in the pageant," Jeanne confessed.

"In fact, I was a nervous wreck."

Encouraged to enter the pageant by people at Bottom's Up, Jeanne said she later felt "very doubtful" she would win:

"Most of the girls at the pageant had modeling experience. I didn't. I had never walked out in front of an oldest in a family of three audience like that before!" children, has silky, long brown hair sun-lit with strands of gold.

She is toying with the idea of studying law but wants first to pursue a liberal arts education somewhere near her home.

"I don't want to go away," she said. "I want to stay close to home and to my family."

Selected from a field of 14 contestants, Jeanne vied for the title of Miss Quincy Bay dressed in a floor-length, light blue gown: Spaghetti straps met a flounce which flowed to the waistline. During swimsuit competition Jeanne wore a one-piece, high-neck suit in white.

An important part of the judging came when all five finalists were asked a different question by Master of Ceremonies Kenneth Fallon of WJDA. Jeanne was asked, "What have you most appreciated about your parents?" She replied:

"What I've most appreciated about my parents is that they are behind me in everything I do and they have given me a lot of freedom. They're fantastic. I love them a real lot."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rathgeb of 225 Quincy Shore Drive, North Quincy, Jeanne is an honor student at Archbishop Williams where she is a member of the Glee Club and the Blue and Gold Club.

Jeanne is also an athletic young woman, being a former member of the Girls' Hockey Team of Quincy Youth Hockey. She also plays second base on her school's softball team. Unfortunately, Jeanne confesses the girls now have "a lousy record".

For winning the pageant, Jeanne received over $500 of the more than $1,000 in prizes awarded to the winner and the four runners-up.

Runners-up were [1] Carole Ann McCole, 16, of 372 Union St., South Weymouth; [2] Mercie Cotoulas, 19, of 8 Maple

Lane, Hull; [3] Anne Jolicœur, 18, of 32 Hillside Rd, Holbrook; and [4] Joanne Cirino, 17, of 95 Assabet Rd., Merrymount.

Other semi-finalists in the pageant were: Doris Aiken, 17, of 16 Division St., North Quincy; Nancy Coolen, 18, of 44 Farrington St., North Quincy; Nancy Lou Curren, 20, of 56 Mt. Vernon St., Braintree; Diane Adele Deshon, 24, of 14 Carruth St., Wollaston; Patricia Marie Ford, 20, of 47 Fottler Rd., Hingham; Helen Anita Johnson, 18, of 36 Garfield St., West Quincy; Jeanette D. Lorina, 22, of 86 Townhill St., West Quincy; Marcia R. Mattes, 18, of 328 Centre St., West Quincy; and Lillie Spaine, 16, of 12 Midway St., Hough Neck.

Judges for the pageant were: Dr. Edward Pierce, president of Quincy Junior College; Miss Carol Nashe, head of the Carol Nashe School and Model Agency, Boston; Miss Patricia Kelley, Miss Quincy Bay of 1973; David Leitch, president of the Quincy Business and Professional Association; and Kenneth Lavers, president of the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun was pageant chairman and Kenneth Fallon of WJDA was co-chairman and pageant emcee. Others on the committee were:

Leslie Brierley, Hancock Bank; Raymond Cunningham representing the Quincy Bay Race Week Association; Philip Chase, Cummings; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Paul Hurley Jr., Hurley Insurance; Allen Kelly, Sir Speedy; Florence Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Cecile Letomey, Bottom's Up; Roberta Meade, Roberta's Fashion Shoppe and Jerry Morreale, Child World.

And on the top there is a diamond mind,

And he was so kind...
To let me in his diamond mind.

In there are diamonds and gems.

And on the girls dresses are diamond hems.

The biggest diamond and the biggest gem did shine all over them.

I climbed on the diamond and on the gem,

And although I hate dresses I would love that hem.

Diamonds are needles and diamonds are threads.

Gems are hard ... a hard, hard bed.

And on the way down, I would always frown,

Till I go up again.

4 Quincy Vo-Tech OJT Students Win Jobs At Pneumatic Scale

Four Quincy Vocational Technical School students who completed a five-month on-the-job training program at Pneumatic Scale Corp. have become permanent employees at the North Quincy plant.

Steve Giggey, Steve Gould, John Hanratty and Kevin O'Malley, all June graduates of the School's Metals and Machine Division, have become part of the Corporation's working staff of nearly 600.

These boys and two others - William Fitzgerald and Mike Salverio - began this co-operative educational program Jan. 27, launching the first such program planned between the School's Metals and Machine Division and private industry.

The students alternated between 40 and 25-hour work weeks during their five-month exchange, devoting the extra half-day to related instruction at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Details of the program were planned with the cooperation of R. J. Mantica, vice-president of manufacturing; D. L. MacDougall, Pneumatic personnel director; Laurence Babin, director of Quincy Vocational Technical School; Bernard A. Dodd, coordinator of the school's Metals and Machine Division; and Gerald Panarelli, consulting instructor.

Pneumatic Scale Corp., founded by Quincy-born William H. Doble, has earned a world-wide reputation for sound design and manufacture of automatic machines for the packaging and bottling industries.

Speaking of the possibility of planning similar programs, Mantica said:

"This co-operative educational program, intended to help develop individuals as self-reliant workers and citizens, will serve as a model for any and all future ventures affecting Vocational students."

MONEY TALKS

A Better Plan For Your Social Security Checks

By Philip J. Lawrence President

Colonial Federal Savings

And Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The flood of Social Security checks each month provides thieves with grand opportunities to pursue their trade:

- A 72-year-old widow is hit over the head and robbed of her entire month's Social Security money just minutes after she has cashed her check.

- Mail boxes are regularly rifled and would-be recipients suffer delays before Social Security can replace the checks.

- Checks get lost in the mail. The consequent red tape and delay are at best irritating, at worst, distressing.

Considering the mounting forays upon retired persons, one wonders why it took so long for this idea to be put into practice: Now you can instruct Social Security to send your checks directly to your savings account at our association.

Begun as an experiment in Georgia, the idea has worked so well, that it is being extended. The direct-deposit option is now being offered as a convenience to Social Security beneficiaries in forms mailed to Florida residents. During 1975 all Social Security beneficiaries will be getting the option form.

Any retiree can have Social Security and pension checks deposited automatically with us by getting a power of attorney form which we can provide. Checks will then be mailed directly to us and deposited immediately in your passbook account.

Aside from increased safety, there are other advantages to this procedure. You do not face the monthly obligation of processing your check. There are no delays that may be occasioned by inclement weather or illness. If you wish to travel for an extended period, you do not have to make arrangements for disposition of mailed checks.

A particular advantage is that by placing your check in your savings account here, your money begins earning interest the minute we receive it. This is better than putting it in a checking account which does not pay interest. Moreover, since Social Security checks are usually received in the first several days of the month, your check begins to earn interest for the entire month on the basis of our policy that savings in by the 10th of the month earn from the 1st, if left on deposit till the end of the quarter.

It makes good sense to drop in and take steps to have your retirement checks handled in this manner.

Protestant Social Service To Open Thrift, Gift Shop

The Bureau Drawer, a thrift and Gift Shop of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, will open Sept. 8, in the remodeled basement of Donner House, the Bureau Office at 776 Hancock St., Wollaston.

The shop will sell materials on consignment and will receive donations of women's and children's clothing in good condition and in season, crafts, sports equipment, jewelry, bric-a-brac, housewares and antiques. The materials will be accepted each Tuesday in August and on Sept. 2, from 1-7:30 p.m.

The new shop will be open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Tuesday from 1-8 p.m.

Volunteer workers will be used for the project.

This new fund raising effort has become necessary due to the removal of the agency from the United Way.

The Protestant Social Service Bureau provides family counseling and adoption services to nine south shore communities.

10 From Quincy Accepted At Wentworth

Ten Quincy residents have been accepted for admission to Wentworth Institute, Boston for the 1975-76 academic year.

Wentworth has two-year programs in industrial and engineering technology leading to an Associate in Engineering Technology or in Applied Science as well as a certificate program.

Requests From 20 States For Quincy's Anniversary Medal

Orders requesting Quincy's 350th Anniversary Medal have come in from 20 states and one foreign country, according to Quincy Heritage officials.

The medal depicts a replica of the first railroad car in America which operated on the Granite Railway 150 years ago. On the opposite side, the first Maypole in America is shown.

So far, 40 bronze medals and 12 sterling medals have been shipped to places diverse as: Sacramento, Calif.; Junction City, Kans.; Cleveland, Ohio;

Biloxi, Miss.; Farmington, Mich.; Chicago, Ill.; Mobile, Ala.; Philadelphia, Pa.; and Ontario, Canada.

They are available locally at the Quincy Heritage Visitors Center, Hancock Bank, Colonial Federal, Granite Cooperative, Quincy Savings and South Shore National, as well as Delano's in Wollaston, and Barker's in Quincy Center. The price is $3.50 for the bronze medal, and $17.75 for the silver. Only 500 numbered silver medals have been minted.

William Julian Aids Vietnamese Refugees

Airman First Class William A. Julian, son of Mrs. Sally M. Julian of 406 Granite St., Quincy, was among hundreds of Air Force personnel who assisted Vietnamese refugees temporarily settled at Eglin AFB, Fla.

Airman Julian is a plumbing specialist with the 834th Civil Engineering Squadron at Hurlburt Field, Fla. He helped in transporting, processing, housing, feeding and caring for the more than 2,500 Vietnamese who were evacuated from their embattled country under Operation New Life. The refugees were initially processed on Guam and the West Coast before proceeding to Eglin, one of the relocation centers designated by the U.S. government.

ALONG THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

LaRaia Criticizes 'Budget Gimmickry'

Mayorality candidate Joseph J. LaRaia told North Quincy residents recently his record on the city council has demonstrated his concern for fiscal responsibility.

"I'm sure if you compare my record with the mayor's record, you will notice the difference," LaRaia said. "The mayor has failed to show any concern for the taxpayer. He has used budget gimmickry during his administration."

LaRaia spoke to neighborhood residents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J.

Coughlin, 54 Clement Terrace.

"The mayor wanted to build a new North Quincy High School during these very difficult economic times," LaRaia said. "I supported the addition to the existing school."

"The mayor also supported the $2 million bond issue for public improvements. I opposed this type of irresponsible borrowing."

"The city will be receiving $3 million from the federal government for this same purpose. I didn't think you taxpayers could afford an additional $2 million."

LaRaia also criticized the mayor's support for a $1.5 million bond issue for Quincy City Hospital.

"About $600,000 of that bond issue will be used to pay for the operating expense of the hospital for this new fiscal year," he said. "The mayor has just postponed the cost of the hospital over the next five years."

"This is just another example of budget manipulation."

Mullaney Praises Efforts Of City-Wide Parent Groups

J. Thomas Mullaney, candidate for School Committee, has praised the efforts of city-wide parent organizations working for change and improvement in Quincy schools.

During an organizational meeting held at the home of Arthur Davis, 101 Cedar St., Wollaston, Mullaney told a group of supporters:

"In the last few years, active parent organizations in Quincy have been successful in effecting change in their schools when they felt it was necessary."

"The Concerned Parents of North Quincy worked with the school administration to help get North Quincy High back on the right track after some difficult years in the early 1970's. They were instrumental in getting the Teel and Little buildings to help alleviate overcrowding. They insisted that school authorities be responsible for knowing where the students were at all times."

"The Merrymount School parents group, upset with overcrowding and inadequate facilities at their school, successfully waged a four-year fight to get an addition approved."

"In South Quincy parents of children attending the Adams School were unhappy with the "permissive atmosphere" at the school. The parents brought their complaints to school officials and action was taken to correct the situation."

Mullaney also noted parent groups from Sterling Junior High, Atherton Hough and Great Hill have come before the School Committee in recent weeks to discuss issues relating to their schools.

Davis Invited To Address North Adams Group

Harold Davis, Economic Development Manager for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has been invited by the North Adams Industrial Development Commission to speak to their membership.

Gordon Lane, Executive Director of the Industrial Development Commission, said Davis was recommended by the Small Business Administration because of his work in establishing and operating the South Shore Economic Development Corporation.

According to Lane the North Adams Industrial Commission is anxious to learn the reasons why the South Shore Economic Development Corporation is currently "the most successful local development corporation in New England."

Davis said the Quincy based corporation has put together $1,500,000 worth of financing for six area companies. Over 150 local jobs have been created.

Joyce Baker Withdraws From Council At-Large

Joyce I. Baker announces she has decided to withdraw from this fall's City Council at-large race.

Mrs. Baker, speaking at a meeting of her workers, said that, "after a great deal of thought and consideration," she had decided to withdraw due to personal and business reasons.

She expressed her thanks to all those who signed her nomination papers and had encouraged her to run and worked so hard in her behalf.

"This does not mean that it is my intention to become any less active in the concerns of our City government," she said. "As stated before, I have the utmost faith in the future of Quincy and in the people of Quincy. My plans are to continue to be involved in working to help Quincy remain the type of city its citizens can be proud of and to meet the challenges of today's economic conditions."

"Because of personal reasons, it is not feasible for me to enter this year's race. However, through my memberships in many various organizations, I will continue to devote my time and efforts toward contributing in all possible ways toward the goals of our city."

Paul Harold Committee Files At City Clerk's Office

The Committee to Elect Paul Harold Councillor-at-large filed its organizational papers recently with City Clerk John Gillis.

The committee, organized under Chapter 55 of the Massachusetts General Laws, will receive and expand monies to promote the candidacy of Paul Harold. Committee monies will be kept separate from the candidate's personal funds.

The committee will be required to file reports eight days before the primary and eight days before the general election.

Chairman of the committee is the candidate's father Joseph R. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave. Treasurer is Paul Bregoli of 100 Grandview Ave.

Also on the committee is Kathleen O'Donnell of Massachusetts Ave., John Slomkowski of Lincoln Ave. and David Kerman of Lowe St.

The committee will maintain an account at the Hancock Bank.

Kelly Requests Foot Patrolman In Houghs Neck

Ward 2 Councillor Leo J. Kelly has requested the return of a foot patrolman to Houghs Neck.

Responding to "numerous calls" from area residents, Kelly requested Police Chief Francis X. Finn to assign a foot patrolman to the area. In a letter to Finn, Kelly wrote:

"I feel a foot patrolman would not only create a greater feeling of security within the community but would also create a greater rapport with the police, enabling them to get to know their community on a more personal basis."

Francis McCauley Files Nomination Papers

School Committee man, Francis X. McCauley, has filed nomination papers for re-election.

McCauley, a former City Councillor, is completing his first term on the School Committee.

Morrisette In N.L. Top Spot, Fire Dept. Holds A.L. Lead

Morrisette moved into first place in the Quincy Babe Ruth League's National League, overtaking the Police Club, while the Fire Dept. holds a slim lead over Bryan VFW in the American League.

Morrisette defeated Granite City, 12-7, with Chris Segalla the winning pitcher. John Sylva had a home run and double and Jim Hanrahan two hits to spark Morrisette. A highlight of the game was a triple play by Granite City.

Morrisette also defeated Bersani Brothers, 7-3, in extra innings, with Andy Carrera the winning pitcher. Hanrahan had two triples and a double, Tom Nee a double and Sylva drove in the winning runs. For Bersani Mark Buchanan had two hits and Len Picot and Lou Avitable were other hitters.

Police Club edged Hancock Bank, 5-4, in an extra inning game with Fran Donovan the winning pitcher. John Andrews and Tom Brennan had two hits each, Rich Boyle a two-run homer and Mike Boyle, Fran Donovan and Ron Donovan one hit apiece for the winners. Mike McCormick had a home run and Bob Biagini three hits for Hancock.

Barry's Deli walloped Gino's, 14-4, with John DiNardo the winning pitcher. DiNardo also had three hits, Jim Deitsch and Jim Fitzpatrick two each and Hancock outslugged Gino's, 9-8, with Mike McCarthy the winning pitcher. Mark Flaherty led Hancock with three hits.

Firemen Local 792 and Morrisette, the two division leaders, played to a scoreless tie in what could be called the "game of the year". It was a heartbreaker for Firemen pitcher

Sa. Coscia, who pitched a no-hitter in the eight-inning game and didn't fire up a walk. Rick Gibbody gave up five hits but walked 10 as the Firemen left an unbelievable 16 men on base.

Firemen walloped VFW, 16-4, with John Wilkinson hiking his pitching record to 5-0 with a four-hitter, striking out 10 and walking three. Firemen excelled defensively with Mark LaFleur and Jimmy Trubiano making fine running catches and shortstop Artie Roberts and second baseman Gary Oriola sparking.

The Firemen also walloped Police, 13-5, in the first game of a doubleheader last Saturday.

Dave Austin was the winning pitcher with a three-hitter and losing pitcher Ron Donovan struck out 12 but walked 10 and gave up nine hits.

Wilkinson, Austin and Sal Coscia continued their heavy hitting with four singles, two doubles and a triple between them.

In the second game of the doubleheader Firemen topped Hancock, 9-7, with Ray Coscia the winning pitcher. John Sullivan and Artie Roberts sparked in the field. Flaherty had a double and single for Hancock.

● Legion Baseball

Morrisette Bounces Back, Quincy Takes Wollaston

Morrisette Legion's baseball team was knocked out of first place by Weymouth last week but moved back into a top tie in Zone 6 Monday night when it defeated Canton, 5-0, behind Tim Clifford's two-hit pitching, while Weymouth was upset by Braintree.

Following the Monday games Morrisette and Weymouth were 15-2 and a playoff for the zone title now looms as a distinct possibility.

If a playoff is necessary, it probably will be played next Wednesday night. The last regularly scheduled zone games are Friday but several makeup games remain including two for Morrisette with Canton and Quincy.

Morrisette played Quincy Tuesday night and Friday met Wollaston at 8 under the lights at Adams Field.

Also on Friday Quincy plays at Braintree.

Clifford ran his record to 9-1 Monday night as he struck out 13 Canton batters. Clifford had been shelled by Weymouth last Friday but reliever Mark Dwyer was the losing pitcher in a 7-6 loss.

The game with Canton was scoreless for four innings but Morrisette scored twice in the fifth and added three in the sixth for the win.

Frank Miceli had a home run and two singles to spark Morrisette's attack and had two runs batted in. Losing pitcher Brian McDonough pitched well but was hurt by poor support.

Last Friday Weymouth spurred to a 6-1 lead but Morrisette scored five runs in the fifth inning to tie it at 6-6. The umpires had said the game would be called after six innings because of darkness and Weymouth's Ray Bresnahan settled the issue with a home run as first man up in the sixth.

Miceli had a home run and single and Jim Roberts two singles to pace Morrisette.

In its previous game Morrisette had bombed Cohasset, 16-0, as Dwyer pitched a three-hitter to run his record to 5-0. He also drove in two runs with a single.

Miceli continued his outstanding hitting with a triple and double, John Lawlor had a double and single, Jack Rabel and Roberts two singles each.

In other Zone 6 games during the week Quincy defeated Wollaston, 5-3, but lost to Canton, 6-4 and 13-3, and to Hingham, 6-4, and Wollaston was defeated by Canton, 7-5.

Rouillards, Hofbrau In Tourney Action Saturday

One of the big games of the District 4 ASA Softball Tournament being played in Weymouth takes place Saturday at 9 a.m. at Lovell Field when Rouillards and Hofbrau of the Quincy Softball League play.

Rouillards is rated by many as the tourney favorite but has lost twice in league play to Hofbrau, its only losses.

In another Saturday game, Wells Grille of the Quincy League plays Roslindale Pub at 10:15 at Lovell.

Palmer Pub of Quincy defeated Celler of Abington, 10-9, lost to Rouillards, 17-4, bounced back in the losers' bracket to bomb BAD, 18-4, but was eliminated Sunday by Three Sons of Waltham, 13-11.

Beau's of Quincy was eliminated in two straight games, bowing to Purity Supreme and Cloverleaf Cafe of Weymouth.

Jonathan's, the other Quincy League entry, was also ousted in two straight games, losing to Roslindale and the Sponsors.

Adult Swimmers Hours At Lincoln-Hancock Pool Listed

The Quincy Recreation Department announces adult recreational swims at the Lincoln-Hancock Community Pool will be held Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays at 4 p.m. Adults must be over 19 years and must have a pool participation card issued by the Recreation Department. Cards are available to Quincy residents during recreation swim programs at the pool. Limited enrollments are also open for adult non-swimmers in the evening.

● Bank-Retail Softball

S.S. National Moves Into Top Spot Tie On Baharian's Hit

Paul Baharian's game-winning hit moved South Shore National into a top tie with Remick's in the Bank and Retail Softball League by handing Remick's its first loss, 9-8.

Remick's spurred into an 8-2 lead only to see it evaporate in the seventh inning as Doug Catalno, Bill Payne and Phil Peak drove in the tying runs and Baharian then came up with his game-winning hit, driving in Kevin Blake.

Quincy Savings Bank got back into the win column as Bill Parker returned from injuries and pitched a 21-6 win over Hancock Bank.

The standings:

	W	L
Remick's	5	1
South Shore Nat'l	5	1
Quincy Savings	4	2
Hancock Bank	2	4
South Weymouth	2	4
Quincy Bank	0	6

Parker received plenty of hitting help from Pat McAuley, Bill Lomanno and Les Bazley, along with outstanding defensive play from Bob Leadbetter, John Pecoraro and Paul Cunniff.

Cunniff came up with a running over-the-shoulder catch of a 300-foot blast by Frank Fiske to end a rally in the fifth. Quincy Coach Maurice Hughes calls Cunniff one of the best players in the league.

In other action South Weymouth Savings ended its skid with a 19-5 romp over Quincy Bank.

International All-Star Circus Here

The Quincy Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will sponsor the International All-Star Circus Wednesday, July 23 at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy Vocational-Technical School gymnasium.

The CAP cadets, under the direction of Laura Gottron, will assist the circus personnel with ushering and managing ticket sales.

The Florida troupe performed in North Quincy High School's gym last year for the Quincy cadets, and were so well liked, the cadets decided to have them return this summer for another fund-raising performance.

Highly recommended for youngsters, the show offers Targa the leopard, Raisin and Siri, the youngest performing chimpanzees, Popcorn and Butter the clowns, the "Canine All-Star Review" dog show, and more.

Tickets will be sold in advance and at the door.

Professor Jovanovic Takes Out Papers

New Mayoralty Candidate Would Give Half His Salary To 'Unemployment Fund'

Professor Michael Jovanovic of 62 Town Hill St., West Quincy, has taken out nomination papers for the office of mayor.

The 54-year-old, Yugoslavian-born Jovanovic has pledged to donate 50 percent of his would-be salary to an "unemployment fund", if elected mayor of Quincy. At the present time, that guess would be $12,500.

Citing the city's high unemployment rate as a major factor influencing his decision to enter the mayoralty race, Jovanovic told The Quincy Sun: "I feel that in this time of economic crisis, this time of unemployment crisis, we must have a plan to wipe out unemployment...I believe unemployment is related to the job market. We have to plan in advance what professions are needed and avoid a surplus of certain professions and a shortage in others."

A Quincy resident four years, Jovanovic, a bachelor, outlined a more immediate solution to the unemployment problem, saying each business in Quincy should hire one unemployed person.

Jovanovic said, too, the city must "straighten out its priorities."

"We must stress human problems first and then the financial ones...We have been trying to save money, not save the people."

A member of the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council, Jovanovic said a mayor should "closely

'We Must Work Together'

Court, Merchants Team To Reduce Shoplifting, Thefts

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy District Court and the downtown Quincy Business community are teaming in a cooperative effort to cut shoplifting, passing of bad checks and other thefts.

- Suggested methods for the joint effort between Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court, and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, include:
- Formation of a "100 Club" to help offenders earn money to reimburse businesses for stolen merchandise.
 - Launching of court-sponsored employee training sessions to prevent the cashing of bad checks.
 - Implementation of a more strict time schedule in court for the convenience of business men and managers who must testify during a case.
 - Holding of regular, monthly meetings between special QCBPA committees and Judge Kramer.

"We must come together," Kramer told QCBPA businessmen attending a general membership meeting Wednesday at the Neighborhood Club.

The presiding justice said the court and business community could together provide viable, rehabilitation programs for offenders. He also invited QCBPA members to attend district court sessions to see first-hand and to evaluate court procedure, attaining, perhaps, what Kramer called "a different point of view."

Kramer made his statements and outlined joint-effort programs in an interview with The Quincy Sun prior to Wednesday's meeting.

Several of Kramer's suggestions came as a result of a meeting last Friday with six members of the QCBPA in an effort to pinpoint areas of the business community's concern.

Attending this preliminary meeting held at Peter's Landing were QCBPA Executive Director Jack Kerrigan, QCBPA President David Leitch of Burgin, Platter; Pierre Boulanger, manager of Quincy's Sears and Roebuck Store; Charles Ryder, manager of W. T. Grant; Joseph Angelo of Remick's and Paul Hurley of Hurley Insurance Co.

Responding to criticism of conducting a "too liberal court," a court hesitant to convict, Kramer said he weighs the option of recommending a rehabilitative program versus the possible risk in allowing that particular individual back into the community. He said:

"The attitude and policy of this court is to protect the community...You can't let them all off and you can't send them all away. I like to emphasize rehabilitation in the early stages. You can't mow them all down and send them to jail. Jail tends to congregate people and kids learn habits from the real pros. They learn crime in prison. If you send them all away, you'll graduate criminals."

"You begin to talk jail," Kramer continues. "When you have tried to implement programs but you can't communicate with the individual. He shows no respect for the court. Then, if you give them a taste of jail for three months, they find they don't like it. It's a shock-treatment approach."

Kramer estimated a full 90 percent of those who appear in

E. G. Marshall Here For TV Film

'John Adams Would Be Dissatisfied With U.S. Today'

Tiny beads of sweat were beginning to streak his on-camera matte make-up but E. G. Marshall didn't seem to mind.

Despite the day's humidity and muggy air, Marshall neither loosened his tie nor unbuttoned his heat-absorbing jet-black suit jacket.

But his words soon belied his seeming impermeability to the heat as he said, "Let's go out where it's cool."

Marshall, interviewed on the steps of "The Church of Presidents" in Quincy Sq., had spent the morning filming scenes of the 18th segment of a documentary series called "American Life Style."

This particular half-hour segment will be devoted to the life of John Adams, second president of the United States, and will be aired over WSBK-TV Channel 38 in spring 1976.

Sponsored by U.S. Fidelity and Guarantee and filmed by Comco Productions of New York City, "American Life Style" focuses on famous men in U.S. history by taking the viewer on a tour of his home - be it a cabin, a mansion, or, in the case of the first home of Quincy-born John Adams, a simple New England salibox in red.

Drawing deeply on a cigarette he smoked down to the filter, Marshall, former star of the long-running series "The Defenders", talked about John Adams:

"He's a difficult man to put on paper... He was a querulous man, a man of passion and strong beliefs - a complicated man."

Warning against over-idolization of national figures, Marshall continued: "It's important to remember John Adams was human...He is not a bust, not a statue made of marble, but a human being. We can't make gods of them. Adams was a man with a family, with feelings; he could be hurt and he could hurt, too...He lived apart from his wife for years...It's wrong, I feel, to portray our national heroes as gods."

Trying to divine the mentality of a present-day John Adams, Marshall said our second president would be dissatisfied with our nation in 1975:

"Adams was never satisfied," Marshall commented. "He could be called a perfectionist, I suppose. He was a difficult man to get along with - very exacting and unrelenting."

Marshall and his production crew spent five days in the City of Presidents, filming at United First Parish Church, the Adams Birthplaces and the Adams Mansion which served as the "summer white house" for the second president and his son John Quincy Adams, the nation's sixth chief executive.

A star in the TV program "The Bold Ones", Marshall confesses a series demands

RSVP Launches Telephone Information Service For Seniors

South Shore Retired Senior Volunteer Program [RSVP] has launched a telephone information and referral service for senior citizens.

Loretta Ardini and Trixie Phelan of RSVP will man the telephones, hoping to provide assistance on a wide range of senior services and programs, including social security, transportation, legal services, housing and other issues.

The two have been compiling data files on senior programs and although their research is incomplete, they will begin to answer calls.

$42,137 In Plumbing, Gas Fittings

Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting James A. Erwin Jr., reports 140 plumbing and gas fitting applications for an estimated $42,137 in plumbing and gas fitting were filed during the month of July.

Of the estimated $42,137,

RSVP Director Winfred L. Pulsifer said if a question cannot be answered immediately, the staff member will obtain the information and report back to the caller.

The service will encompass Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton, Hingham, Hull, Holbrook, Randolph, Cohasset, Scituate and Norwell.

Pulsifer said collection of program an service data is expected to be complete by mid-August.

Any senior citizen with a question can call 471-3601 and ask for Loretta or Trixie.

$37,035 was for plumbing and $5,102 was for gas.

A total of $583 was received for permits - $394 for plumbing and $189 for gas. One hundred thirty-one plumbing inspections and 52 gas inspections were made.

Helping Local Businesses

$1,476,000 In Loans

Helps Businesses Expand

The South Shore Economic Development Corporation reports it has completed in the last year six loans totaling $1,476,000 to aid South Shore businesses expand their physical facilities. Announcement was made by Harold Davis, executive director.

The Corporation was established in 1974 to produce new job opportunities on the South Shore. Thomas Curtis of Curtis Enterprises is President of the Corporation. The Corporation has put together six loans which have produced 150 additional jobs to help the local economy. Among the companies aided by the loan program were:

Premco of Hingham, Peterson & Nash of Rockland, Gurtin

Brothers of Hyannis, High Vacuum Equipment Corporation of Hingham, Nickerson Machine, Inc., of Quincy, and the Buckley Corporation of Rockland.

The loans were made under the Small Business Administration's 502 Development Program. Under this program, Small Business Administration makes available 30 percent of the cost of a new facility or the purchase price of an existing facility to the South Shore Economic Development Corporation at six and three-quarter percent. Sixty percent of the total financing comes from a local bank which receives a first mortgage on the entire facility. The last 10 percent comes from funds generated by the South Shore Economic Development Corporation.

Last spring Davis traveled to Washington to impress upon members of Congress the urgency of restoring funds to the SBA's 502 program. In fiscal 1975 some $48 million was allocated for this program.

However, in fiscal 1976 only $24 million is programmed.

This lack of funds, according to Davis, will seriously hamper the ability of local development corporations such as the South Shore Economic Development Corporation to finance expansion of physical facilities which lead to additional job opportunities.

Davis said that this move is particularly short-sighted in a time when employment opportunities are extremely scarce. He cited a 15 percent unemployment rate which exists on the South Shore today. Despite this fact, Davis said, there are many companies which wish to add to their physical facilities and hire additional people. However, because of a shortage of funds they are unable to complete their expansion plans.

Davis called for an immediate appropriation of additional funds by Congress so that the South Shore Economic Development Corporation can continue its work.

$44,318 In New Wiring During June

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts reports 106 wiring permits for an estimated $44,318 in wiring were issued during the month of June.

A total of $887.75 was collected in fees. Forty certificates of approval were awarded during the month.

A total of 166 inspections were made and 16 defects were noted.

There were 13 re-inspections in June.

Major wiring project-for the month was a new building for the First Federal Savings Bank, 243 Quincy Ave.

Davis Survey Indicates:

Property Taxes No. 1 Concern Of Quincy Residents

A city-wide voter survey conducted by Harold Davis, a candidate for city councillor-at-large, indicates that property taxes are the number one concern of Quincy residents.

Second-ranking issue is unemployment.

Davis said some 2,500 voter questionnaires were distributed throughout the city at supermarkets and door-to-door, May through July. A total of 265 people returned the questionnaires, either in person or through the mail, he said.

The survey consisted of four categories. The first read:

● As a citizen of Quincy, rank the following issues in the order of their importance to you: unemployment, property taxes, inflation, quality of public education, crime in the city and quality of municipal services.

Tabulation of responses showed property taxes at the top of the voters' list of priorities with municipal services at the bottom, Davis said:

"This seems to show that the voter does not feel you should expand municipal services at the expense of property taxes."

Breakdown of the total 265 responses follows:

- Property taxes, 79.
- Unemployment, 49.
- Inflation, 34.
- Crime, 33.
- Quality of public education, 19.
- Municipal services, 11.

To ascertain the depth of sentiment on a particular issue, Davis also prepared a second figure for each issue. Looking at each voter response, he assigned a point value, 1-6, to each issue depending on its rank. The issue ranked No. 1 received a point value of six, continuing to the issue ranked No. 6 which received a point value of one. He then tabulated total point values for each issue. Results were:

- Property taxes, 1,000 points.
- Unemployment, 856 points.
- Inflation, 846 points.
- Crime, 842 points.
- Quality of public education, 719 points.
- Municipal services, 507 points.

The second survey question asked "Should the city of Quincy take a more active role in attracting new jobs to the city for its residents?" Only 23 of the total 265 surveyed answered "No." The remaining 242 (91 per cent) said "Yes."

Question No. 3: "Overall, do you think Quincy is a good place to live?" A total of 15 people replied "No" with the remaining 250 (94 per cent) replying "Yes."

The last question asked the voter to imagine her or she as a member of the City Council and asked "...what would you do to improve life in Quincy?"

Recurrent comments included continuation of beautification in Quincy, stoppage of high-rise construction, crackdown on traffic and speeding violators, increase of police patrols in specific neighborhoods and crackdown on teenage drinking in the city.

Sample comments were:

"It is imperative that property taxes should not be allowed to increase even at the expense of municipal services."

"I think most people find it very important to work. It brings about personal dignity and a feeling of well-being. If we don't start a program for unemployment, people will keep moving out!"

"Stabilize property tax, come up with a fair assessment plan..."

"Encourage much stricter law enforcement. I have seen traffic, noise, litter violations flagrantly committed."

"Give some sort of tax abatement for fixing and cleaning up his area."

"Bring a more select retail business to Quincy Center. I resent having to go to Braintree or Boston for variety in shopping. I want to spend my money in Quincy where it is earned."

"Try to keep our tax money in the city; hire school teachers from the city if qualified; freeze all wages; try to balance the budget by stopping unnecessary spending."

"I would try to get more jobs for the people of Quincy, I would also like to get crime stopped or put under control. I would try to clean up the city and make the citizens of Quincy proud of our history as the bicentennial approaches."

"Bring government closer to Quincy residents. Conduct City Council and School Committee meetings in various areas of the city. Form advisory committees in various areas of the city so councillors can take the city's pulse on various issues."

Davis said he felt a survey of voter opinion conducted before the start of a campaign would be a welcome change. He said:

"Too many candidates assume they know the pulse of the city simply because of their involvement. But I wanted to have the chance to sample voter opinion in a scientific sort of way to find out which issues were on their minds."

'Operation Speed Watch' Underway In Ward 4

"Operation Speed Watch", a project designed to curb speeding and reckless driving on Ward 4 residential streets was launched Monday.

Initiated by Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, the program will seek to identify when and where speed violations occur and also identify habitual speeders and reckless drivers. The problem areas to be covered are:

Ballou St., Cliff St., Connell St., Filbert St., Hall Pl., Robertson St., Shirley St., Stedman St., Sunnyside Rd., White St., Campbell St., Kimball St., Wallace Rd., Ellis St., Seymour St., Rodman St., Independence Ave., and Federal Ave.

The project will rely on Ward 4 residents who will pass information on speeders to Councillor Sheets' office. According to the project plan, Sheets will then contact the individual asking simply that they drive more slowly and more carefully in order to protect the lives and safety of the people in the area.

In addition, this program will identify the times and places when severe speeding and reckless driving occurs, and the police will then be able to monitor and set speed traps in these areas.

Hospital To Continue Extra Coverage

The Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers has voted unanimously to continue its extra-hour medical and surgical coverage to provide better patient care during critical hours.

The extra-hour program covers nighttime, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. This service is under the direction of Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt, chief of medicine, and Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, chief of surgery.

The decision to continue the program came at a recent special meeting of the Board.

The Board also voted unanimously to thank Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the City Council for passing the bond issue for future expansion at the Hospital.

Rainy Day Fish Fry—Southern Style

What do you do on a rainy day when the family's spirits match the weather, and you've already played nine games of Monopoly? Well, if you're a taste for Southern tradition, you just might have a fish fry in spite of the situation.

Almost a way of life in the South, fish fry's usually mean a mess of catfish—or any finny creature fresh out of the nearest water hole—french fries, hush puppies and cole slaw.

Since visiting a local lake is out of the question on such a wet day, do your fishing in the grocery and pick up a couple dozen fat, juicy shrimp.

Cooks at the Holiday Inn in downtown Tulsa, Okla., fancy up their rainy day fish fry with a beer-batter shrimp they claim will lift the lowest spirits. Up in the Ozark town of Harrison, Ark., the Holiday Inn has a recipe for crispy home-made hush puppies that the cook says never misses. Top off the meal with some deep-fried potatoes and chilled cole slaw and you may find yourself looking forward to the next rainy day.

Beer-Batter Shrimp

- 2 dozen extra-large or jumbo green, headless shrimp
- 1 cup sifted flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 1 can beer

To prepare shrimp, peel to last ring of tail. Using small paring knife, split shrimp lengthwise about halfway through. Sift salt and pepper with flour and stir into beaten eggs. Slowly add beer, stirring to prevent lumping. Batter should be consistency of thin pancake batter. If more flour is needed, add 1 tablespoon at a time.

RAINY DAY FISH FRY—Don't wait for perfect weather... have a fish fry right now. There's just something about a platter piled high with golden-brown shrimp and a basketful of hot hush puppies that few people are able to resist.

Holding each shrimp by tail, dip into batter and fry in deep, hot fat (365 degrees) until golden brown.

Hush Puppies

- 2 cups white corn meal
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons garlic salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1½ cups buttermilk
- ¾ cup onion, grated or finely chopped
- ¼ cup oil or fat, melted

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine eggs, buttermilk, onion and fat. Add to dry ingredients and stir until blended. Drop by tablespoons into deep, hot fat (350 degrees) for 3 to 4 minutes or until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Dipping the spoon into the hot fat each time will help to prevent the next hush puppy from sticking to spoon. Makes enough dough for 2 to 2½ dozen, depending upon size.

Dough may also be formed into balls and frozen for future use. Before freezing, put in fat until hush puppy just begins to brown (very slightly). After freezing, thaw almost completely before dipping in fat to complete cooking and browning.

Ballpoint needle for knits

By BETTY W. KINSEY
Copley News Service

For your knits try a Yellow Band Ballpoint Needle. Barbara Stancoff, K. C., Mo., has tried one and reports very good results.

She goes on to suggest:

"Because these needles are more expensive than others, why not reserve them for knits only? When you finish sewing with one, remove it from your machine and tape it to a card until you need it again."

Not a bad idea! Be sure to jot down on the card what type needle it is and how often it has been used. You don't want to OVER use it.

QUICK STITCH: "Dear Betty: I had a dress form that wasn't 'me' through the bust, so a friend suggested I buy a padded bra in my size for the dress form. It's terrific!" — Sharon Moon, Missoula, Mont.

Sharon, you have made my day!

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Also Aries Ascendant) — Pay close attention to duties at home and work. Keep a watchful eye on small children. Discharge all responsibility promptly. Guard jewelry and valuables. Be your most unselfish self.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) — Also Taurus Ascendant) — A relaxing time when meditation brings pleasure. Accept a position with a charitable or community organization if asked. Be reserved in manner at social occasions. Guard domestic relations.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20) — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Seek association with people from whom you can learn. Entertain at home impressively. A friend who needs assistance will remain loyal a long time. Romance resulting in an engagement is possible.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22) — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Take a position "behind the scenes" now. Lend support to work efforts without having to lead the show. Guard your health — don't overindulge in food or drink. Curb unrealistic, self-centeredness.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22) — Also Leo Ascendant) — Be especially charming and easy to get along with now or you can alienate someone very important to you. Watch your diet — avoid gaining weight. A long held hope or wish could start to materialize.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Routine could be boring now and you wish you were on vacation. Friends can raise your spirits making it easier to meet your duty commitments. Good news about the future relieves the tedium.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Also Libra Ascendant) — A chance to combine business and pleasure may make a vacation possible now. Analyze with logic and reality any schemes that come to you. Don't jeopardize past efforts for future promises.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Conflict between personal interests and career goals requires careful evaluation. Recognize foundations must be laid — accept more responsibility. Guard your resources. A time to save and earn.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Don't openly disagree or argue with superiors, especially females. Wait for new information. Increased prestige resulting from your creative efforts should come now. Finances improve.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You could receive money or a gift quite unexpectedly. Your spirits are high and you can enjoy socializing. You are popular and feel free from worry. A short trip could bring you much approval.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Health is good and your work efficiency is high. Think twice before rekindling a former romantic "flame." The mail can bring you pleasant answers to communications you've sent out. Curb laziness.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Also Pisces Ascendant) — A time for trips and good times. Extra money should come in also. Get out socially and enjoy. Be careful if working around machinery. Avoid "dictating" to a teen-ager. Respect their choices.

THE VISIBLE WOMAN Courage may repel rapist

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

Recently my daughter and I watched an old movie on television. It was a Viking drama of the type popular in the fifties, and in one episode, the lovely young wife of a tribal chieftain was kidnapped and held hostage by his enemies.

They demanded ransom, but during the negotiation she was raped by the entire army then tossed over the castle walls to her husband's waiting emissaries. There she lay, broken and dying, and in her final moments, piteously begged her husband's forgiveness. And he, in his good-heartedness, granted it.

This scene came to mind again recently when I read a letter written by a young woman who had been raped. Carolyn (not her real name) described the incident. After finishing her 4-to-midnight shift as a bank bookkeeper, she drove toward her apartment, where her husband and children waited.

At an intersection, a man called out that she had a flat tire. When Carolyn jumped out to check, he pulled a knife. She told of living for several hours in terror of being slashed or murdered — the humiliation, the pain, the fear, the confusion.

She made her way home somehow, and her husband took the hysterical woman to the hospital, where Carolyn underwent the usual questioning and examination. That alone was frightening, but it didn't compare to the agony that followed — the nightmares that he would return, the feeling of being filthy, the endless mental tortures. "I finally convinced myself that it wasn't my fault," Why did she have to convince herself? It wasn't her fault.

She felt a compulsion to tell everyone. "My mother was pretty upset, but my sister really took it hard," she said. Carolyn had survived with her life, was deeply disturbed yet safe, and rather than show sympathy and concern, the sister went to pieces.

In the months that followed, Carolyn couldn't eat, sleep nor bear to be alone. "My husband was good enough to try to pick me up from work when he could manage it, so I wouldn't have to drive alone," she said. Somehow she even doubted her right to protection, rather considered it an enormous favor. Why didn't she quit her night job and work only in the daylight hours when she could feel more secure?

The mental vulnerability which caused so much anguish for Carolyn later was probably the trait that made her a prime choice for brutalization.

Recent studies on rape and rapist show that the attacker usually selects victims who can be easily intimidated. Strong, confident women are seldom attacked. In some way, the rapist tests the subject, either by an aggressive movement or an obscene statement. If the potential victim shows fear, he proceeds. If she does not, he seeks another victim. Obviously not all rape cases fit this format, but many do.

If the rapist has selected an emotionally vulnerable woman, he also makes the work of policemen, attorneys and judges easier if they choose to turn the plaintiff into a defendant.

One of the ways we can fight rape is by giving ourselves enough courage and strength so as not to be intimidated in the first place. Self-defense classes, rape crisis centers, and consciousness-raising groups can help women avoid and deter threatening situations. Certainly by rethinking old attitudes we can prevent the self-doubt and guilt which tortured Carolyn.

And once we've got our own minds straightened out, we can go to work on movie and television producers. The very least we can hope for is discontinuation of Viking movies on television at 3:30 on Saturday afternoons, prime time for impressionable youngsters.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS

Jabbed 'i' dots tell irritation

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master Graphoanalyst
Dear Dorothy:

I'm a middle-aged mother and wife, I've been told that I'm witty and that people enjoy being around me. Even though I'm witty, I resent the "Polack" jokes that are going around. My parents and I came from Poland and I'm proud of my nationality. I try never to insult others, and often wonder what people get out of insulting a person's nationality. P. F.

Dear P. F.:
Sometimes a "wish bone"

I'm proud of nationality

tickles a "funny bone," and out of it grows a nationality joke. A pretty morbid way to cut a nation's ego. Downing one makes another feel up.

You love your Polish land, and your narrowly spaced writing keeps you adhering to tradition and to the disciplines of your country. Your narrow upper loops reject the far-out ideas of others. Smart-offs and jokesters irritate you, seen in your jabbed 'i' dots. Their jokes and fun-making, to you, are an insult and you resist the off-color remarks about a country you love.

But, as seen in the tapering of your m's and n's, you handle it smoothly and they hardly know. Yet, inside, you are fitfully frustrated, seen in the t's crossed to the right.

Try hard to keep cool, take it in your stride, and know that it won't last forever. Your country has simply taken over where Italy and Ireland left off.

CANCER DIFFERS ON TWO COASTS

According to an article in Medical World News, the rate of cancer differs greatly depending on which coast you live on. Quite by accident, the medical director of research at American Telephone & Telegraph noticed that the cancer rate for AT&T employees was lower in California than it was in New York. Both company subsidiaries have about 100,000 employees who match in sex ratio, age, socioeconomic class and type of work.

Employees in the East developed lung cancer seven times as often as the Westerners. Breast cancer is three times more frequent in New York. In 1973, 172 New York employees were absent from work with cancer, while in California, only 51 were off work for that reason. There is no explanation for the differences in cancer rates, but the findings are supported by a 1968 study that found a greater death rate from malignant tumors in New York City than in the entire West Coast.

Asthma Programs

Planned At Quincy YMCA

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association is planning a Recreational and Physical Conditioning Program for Asthmatic Children in Quincy. Children, ages six to 13 can participate in the program, to be held at the Quincy YMCA for 18 consecutive weeks.

Classes will be held Wednesday afternoons from 3:30 until 4:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 17. They will be taught by the co-directors of Physical Education of the 'Y' and supervised by a pediatric allergist and chest physiotherapist.

The program, which is the second of its kind for area residents, will give the asthmatic child the opportunity to participate in supervised physical and recreational activities in order to improve physical fitness and develop the child's full physical potential. This will be done through special breathing exercises to increase respiratory capacity; by teaching the child how to respond to asthmatic attacks in order to minimize their severity; by teaching the child self-management of his asthma, in order to increase self-confidence.

There will be a registration fee, and parents will be required to participate in approximately five evening meetings of an educational nature.

The program is designed to augment the child's medical treatment, and approval by the child's physician will be required.

Parents interested in having their children participate in the program should contact the Lung Association at 745 High St., Westwood, or call 326-4081.

Karen LaHive Awarded McGill Scholarship

Karen C. LaHive, daughter of Police Capt. and Mrs. Paul LaHive of 66 Whitwell St., Quincy, has been awarded a scholarship at McGill University in Montreal.

Cited for her "outstanding academic achievement during her freshman year", Miss LaHive was second in her freshman class.

A 1974 graduate of Quincy High School, Miss LaHive will begin in September her second year of pre-medical studies at McGill.

Mayor Ross To Seek U.S. Funds For Post-war Projects

The war in Europe was not yet over, but Mayor Charles Ross announced his plans to seek federal financial aid for post war construction projects for the city.

Ross said that planning for the anticipated post war construction boom should begin now. He also noted that public works projects would be necessary to employ men during the post war readjustment.

NORTH QUINCY QUARRY TO BE FILLED

The city began work this week filling the old slate quarry on Aphor St. in North Quincy.

The 250 year old quarry was the center of the Quincy slate business 50 years ago. Records showed that slate was first taken from the quarry as early as 1687 for use as tombstones. In recent years, the quarry was filled with 20 feet of water and served as a hazard for neighborhood children.

The filling was being done by the city's Public Works Department, under the supervision of Commissioner James Donovan. When completed, the quarry area would be used as a city playground.

GAS VIOLATORS' CASES HEARD

The gasoline panel of the Quincy Rationing Board heard five cases of alleged violation of the OPA "pleasure driving" ban. All five cases were dismissed without penalties. Various excuses were given by the violators. One said he was going to a wake, another claimed he was installing plumbing on his day off.

JENNESS RAPS WAITING ROOM PLAN

William Jenness, president of the City Council, predicted the proposed waiting room in Quincy Sq. would be inadequate to handle the thousands of Eastern Mass. Street Railway patrons. He suggested that instead of just a waiting room, the company erect a terminal, similar to the one in Salem. Jenness said the terminal should be located at the junction of Washington and Coddington Streets.

CIO CLAIMS LABOR VIOLATIONS

Officials of the Industrial Workers Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers charged that the management of the George Lawley shipyard was trying to prevent the submission of contract negotiations to the war labor board. The union was seeking a readjustment of wages from 70 to 90 cents an hour. There were 2,600 men employed at the Lawley yard.

FORE RIVER TEAM WINS FIRST IN SERIES

The Fore River baseball team won its first game in the series of the New England War Workers League.

Its next home game will be at Adams Field where it would face Fort Devens' team. The Devens team already has victories over the Boston Red Sox and Boston Braves.

The job of keeping Fore River on top is expected to fall on pitcher Joe Mulligan, although, there was a chance Buddy Freberg might be called.

'Highest Praise' For Treatment At Quincy City Hospital

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I am a Senior Citizen, over 75 years of age, and recently discharged [the last of June, 1975] from the Quincy City Hospital after having been a patient there for a week, following an operation.

I had previously been a patient for a week in March of 1962, for four days in December of 1974 and again for five days in March of 1975. Three of these times I had a private room on the third floor of the M & S building and the other time on the first floor of the Hunting building.

My reason for writing this letter is because criticism of conditions at the Quincy City Hospital voiced by callers on a local radio program, which I heard, during a broadcast between March and June of 1975.

During my stay as a patient on these four occasions, I have nothing but the highest praise for the treatment given to me by all hospital personnel I came in contact with, whether they had been specifically assigned to my care or not. The student nurses couldn't do enough for me. This is also true of the Registered Nurses and the nurses aide's.

The menus were varied and the food appetizing, the floors wet mopped daily [rooms and corridors] and I experienced no shortage of bed linens, towels, or toilet paper.

At no time did I even hear a complaint from any other patient, some of whom I had known prior to meeting as patients.

I asked for no special care nor did I expect any, and as I was perfectly satisfied with my treatment, feel that the criticism here referred to was entirely unjustified.

A Satisfied Patient.

Information On Newton School Collaborative 'Misleading'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

This letter is in response to an action taken by the Quincy School Committee regarding two "profoundly hard of hearing" students to a Newton School Collaborative.

The information presented, I hope, should make the community aware of misleading information presented to the School Committee and the other implications of that action.

First, this is a private collaborative with its own goals which differ, in part, from those of the community. For example, this collaborative states as one of its goals "to sponsor a collaborative effort to meet the educational needs and problems of the metropolitan Boston area." Does this mean metropolitanization?... well they are involved with the Metropolitan Annex Program which supports that philosophy.

Then is busing of students not far behind? Third, the cost given the School Committee as $4,800 is grossly misleading. The adjusted cost is in the area of $7,200 per student which includes per pupil cost, and busing. Fourth, the contract signed by the School Committee is not a limited one year contract but a self-extending contract if the collaborative is not notified by February 1st. The legal questions of this contract, student rights and the best interest of the community and students involved should be reviewed by the city's attorney.

The final irony occurs when you hear that the School Committee will support a local collaborative. But this collaborative would be a part of the collaborative of Newton. Thus, why get involved with the same situation? I only hope that the community becomes aware of this action and that the broader picture would lessen the local authority of the School Board in providing services to Quincy residents at a reasonable cost in money and in social terms.

Cast Pretty Much Set For Sept. Election

By HENRY BOSWORTH

With only 14 days remaining for candidates to take out nomination papers, it would appear that the "cast" is pretty much set for the Sept. 23 city preliminary election.

Deadline for filing papers is Aug. 19—just 19 days away. Political observers doubt there are any big surprise candidates waiting in the wings to make an 11th hour dramatic entrance.

And if no one else does get in, it will mean that two of the ward councillors will get a "free ride" to re-election. They are Ward 3's John Lydon and Ward 6's Dennis Harrington. Both are unchallenged at this writing.

They could of course, possibly have a challenger appear before Aug. 14 but it does seem unlikely.

INCIDENTALLY, if you are wondering, Quincy's final election has been set for Nov. 4. And that's not so far away either.

WELL, Quincy apparently has another Red Sox star living here. We've been informed that Jim Rice is also living in Furnace Ave., West Quincy along with Fred Lynn and Cecil Cooper as reported here last week.

SPEAKING OF Quincy and the Red Sox: If you watched the Sox-Yankees double-header on TV Sunday [who didn't] did you notice that church belfry in the outfield background? Looked like Quincy's historic First Parish Church.

VOTER NOTE: Candidates shouldn't overlook the voting power of women—not in Quincy anyway. The South Shore Women's Political Caucus estimates that 51 per cent of the voting population in Quincy is female.

OBSERVATION: From looking around town, it would seem that Councillor Joseph LaRaia has more campaign bumper stickers floating around than any other candidate.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: Francis X. Bellotti, Jr. is doing one thing politically that his father, the Attorney General, never did. Young Bellotti is running for office at the city level as a candidate for School Committee. His father, Francis X. Sr. never ran at the city level. His first bid for office was for Norfolk County district attorney against Myron Lane and his second for lieutenant governor.

A fund-raising dance, incidentally, is being held for young Bellotti Aug. 14 from 8 p.m. to midnight at Montello's. Advance tickets available by calling 479-2236.

DID YOU KNOW that Bobby Kay Davis, wife of School Committeeman Harold Davis, is the niece of Atty. John Flavin? And that Flavin holds what may be an unmatched political office record: Ward 2 City Councillor, School Committeeman, City Solicitor and State Representative.

FORE AND FIRST: Joe Ouellette of the Montclair Men's Club invited his North Bayfield Rd neighbor, Cliff Jacobson, 62, to a twilight round of golf recently at the Wollaston Recreational Facility, the former Wollaston Golf Course.

They were playing together for the first time and making their first tour of the Wollaston course. And there were two more "firsts": Ouellette witnessed his first hole-in-one, scored by Jacobson—his first. Happened on the 174-yard third.

BY THE WAY, the Montclair Men's Club annual fishing party is set for Sunday aboard Capt. Dick Sutherland's "Irene". Chairman Web Ellis asks all the club's Isaac Waltons to be dockside at the old Hingham Shipyard by 9 a.m.

SMILE DEPT: From the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Wisdom, if it comes, usually comes with age—too late to do much good."

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

This Year Avis, Next Year Hertz

By ERIC SWIDER

Dissatisfied with our dismal ranking as the fourth highest taxed state in the Nation, the Dukakis Administration is making a valiant effort through aggressive refinancing proposals to make Massachusetts like Ohio State in football, UCLA in basketball and Hertz in the car rental business...Number one, one, one.

Latest reports from the locker room indicate that we stand a good chance this year of coming close but because of inexperience on the part of the newly assembled team, we might have to settle for a place showing when all the standings are in.

"We're hoping, however," according to one reliable source, "that even if we don't win the tax race on paper, the media business people, and public will give us credit for trying harder, and that we can at least create a public sentiment that is similar to that surrounding the 1967 Impossible Dream Red Sox. We're underdogs in this race, but give us another 12 months and we'll show you what we can do."

The source also reported that vicious lies were being circulated that if Sargent had been re-elected, he could have led us into first place without any of the confusion that seemingly surrounds this effort, but that simply was not true.

These impeccable statistics were offered as an indication that being numero uno, while not easy to secure, could be within reach by fiscal 1977:

- * Each and every Bay Stater accounts for $1,899 in Federal, state and local taxes; 18.7% above the national average, giving us a ranking of fifth in the nation.

- * Our state and local burden per person was $714; 23.7% above the national average with a ranking of fourth nationally.

- * For every $100 in personal income, $13.60 goes in taxes; 18.8% above the national average; ranking us sixth.

- * 68.9% of our total tax burden [federal, state, and local] is secured from income tax [that breaks down to 37.3% from individual income tax; 17.9% social insurance; 13.7% corporation income tax.]

- * 18.5% of our total tax burden comes from local property; 10% from sales and excise tax and 2.5% from miscellaneous taxes.

- * In comparing Massachusetts percentages with the United States; 17 State average; and a 10 Industrial State average, we find that Massachusetts disproportionately relies on three sources:

	Mass.	U. S.	17 State Ave.	10 Industrial Ave.
Personal Income	18.3	12	12.7	13.5
Property	43.4	30	32.7	33.5
Corporate Income	5.4	3.6	3.9	4.2

and considerably less on the following:

General Sales	4.8	15.2	14.6	14.6
Selected Sales	14.7	19.4	18.2	17.8
Non-Tax Revenue	13.4	19.8	17.9	16.4

From 1962 to 1966 our gross state product increased by 24.5% while state and local government spending increased by 29.5%.

From 1967 to 1973, the gross state product increased by 52.6% but state and local spending increased by a whopping 111.5%.

During the 1969 to 1975 period, state expenditures increased by $1.4 billion or 122% above 1969.

This amount defrays increases in the following categories: Welfare - $500 million [37.1%]; Personnel - $400 million [29.6%]; Local Aid - $400 million [29.6%]; and all others - $50 million [3.7%].

These net expenditure increases were financed by increasing tax collections [fiscal year 1975 above fiscal year 1969] as follows: Personal Income tax - $55- million [39.3%]; Sales Tax - $112 million [8%]; Corporate Excise - $60 million [4.3%]; Insurance - $40 million [2.9%]; Bond Issue - $450 million [32.1%]; and all others - $188 million [13.4%].

Massachusetts' existing tax structure imposes a relatively heavy tax burden on resident businesses. The private sector contributes [1974]:

- * $4,244 million or 33.6% of total tax burden [federal, state, local]

- * $1,391 million or 31.1% of state and local tax burden

- * $1,733 million in corporate excise taxes
- * $370 million to the state
- * $800 million in property taxes
- * $1,290 million in social insurance [FICA, UC]

- * $80 million in general sales and use tax
- * Significant portions of other taxes.

In addition, business bears the main burden in tying over the unemployed population contributing at present some $350 million per year in unemployment compensation payments with the prospect of having to repay up to $500 million in accumulated debts for 1975 and 1976 after this recession ends. This will increase the total business tax burden by approximately 10%.

If the Governor's current tax proposal becomes law, Massachusetts would move up in the rankings overall. We would go from 16th to 11th nationally in sales tax burden; second to first in income tax; second to first in corporation tax; remain first in local property tax; and move from fourth to second in total state and local tax burden.

"Close, but no cigar...but maybe next year."

[Eric Swider is the Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

LIVING TODAY

'The Will To Love'

By DR. WILLIAM KNOX

Basic in the make-up of every normal healthy person is the will to live ... the need for survival. From very early life this seems to be a basic make-up of human beings. When a person loses the will to live, this person is moving out of reality. You see this phenomenon very often among older people. When I was a pastor I seemed to have more funerals in January and February than in the spring and summer months of the year, among older people. The phenomenon seemed to happen this way year after year. Funeral directors and I have talked about it. Seemingly older people have held out in their state of weakness during the fall and early winter until the dark and dreary days arrive, when they lose the will to hold out for spring.

As a counselor I see this frequently with the loss of love. A girl comes to realize that she cannot have a good marriage with this young man and though she is realistic enough to know that she should not marry, that it means certain difficulties and trouble she is still not ready to give him up because she can't tolerate the loss of love. The nature of love means different things to different people. To her it means life itself, so when she faces this loss of love she feels that life is not worth living, and may even lose the will to live.

position worsening ... some even losing their will to fight on against odds which seem to be insurmountable. History points out that in the 1929 economic crash that many wealthy business men committed suicide, having lost the will to live and fight through the economic turmoil. Yet, others in similar circumstances, did fight through and came back to win new fortunes. What was the difference? THE WILL TO LIVE was stronger in those than in their brothers.

In order to have a healthy outlook on life it is desirable that we not put all our eggs in the same basket. If a man's whole meaning in life is his fortune ... to lose it which is his whole life may mean that he may lose his will to live. For a woman to say all I live for is my husband ... or my children ... which is a very common attitude on the part of women, renders them weak and almost unable to cope with life. If she loses her husband through divorce or death, and when the children are grown and gone, her meaning in life is gone. It is best that we not put all our eggs in one basket.

The will to live must rest not upon any one pillar but upon several worthwhile objectives.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Warren Powers To Seek Ward 5 Second Term

City Councillor Warren A. Powers will seek re-election as Quincy's Ward 5 Councillor.

Outlining several goals to achieve within a second term, the 33-year old incumbent said he wants to work to:

- Acquire the Kimberley's property on Quincy Shore Drive to develop into a multi-purpose service facility.
- Institute new accounting procedures at Quincy City Hospital to ensure existence of a capital equipment replacement fund.
- Correct "deficiencies" at the MDC-operated Nut Island Sewerage Plant.
- Implement zero-base budgeting in all city departments.

As chairman of the City Council's ordinance committee, Powers noted he has worked throughout his first term to re-zone sections of Wollaston. He said:

"Many re-zonings to Residence A prevented the construction of high-rise projects in the middle of residential areas. This helped to preserve and to protect the natural character of the neighborhoods."

Powers noted he helped to close last year a pornographic bookstore in Wollaston, legally ousting the owner from Quincy.

He also fought to equalize what he called "an outmoded" county tax assessment formula, urging the city administration to withhold an alleged $700,000 over-assessment.

"Quincy was paying more than its fair share," Powers said. "I argued that Quincy pay its fair share and not a penny more."

The city decided to pay the full tax assessment but Powers has pledged to seek reimbursement of the overpaid taxes of or a yearly $25,000 tax credit until Quincy receives back payment for the over-assessment.

Earlier this year, Powers came out in support of retention of tax abatements for both the elderly and disabled veterans.

A life-long Ward 5 resident, Powers attended Quincy schools and received a bachelor of science degree in management from Suffolk University in Boston. A trial attorney with an office in North Quincy, Powers earned his juris doctorate degree from Suffolk University Law School and became a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association in 1971.

To spur an increased awareness of city government and to foster better communication between councilors and Quincy citizens, Powers recalled he last year requested the city clerk to post Council agendas in public places prior to a meeting.

"In this way, a voter can check the agenda to spot an up-coming issue of importance to him," Powers said. "The individual can then plan ahead to attend that meeting."

Emphasizing autonomy of the City Council, Powers said the councilors "have never acted as a rubber stamp" for the city's executive branch.

"We were never afraid to oppose any plan or proposal which we believed would be either too costly or non-beneficial to Quincy taxpayers," he said. "We have acted independently - even to the point of going to court."

A member of the Mottlair Men's Club, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, the Knights of Columbus and the Wollaston Park Association, Powers, founded the Massachusetts Drug Advisory Council.

He is married to the former Holly Grazioso. They live at 3 Grandview Terrace, Wollaston.

Powers said a hallmark of the present City Council is its "youth and energy."

"We still have that youth and energy which we brought to office 18 months ago," he said. "I hope that same youth and energy, coupled with a year and one-half's experience, will help me provide fresh and responsive leadership to the citizens of Quincy."

Professor Jovanovic 4th Mayoralty Contender

Fluent in five languages - English, German, Russian, French and Serbo-Croatian, his native tongue - Jovanovic has taught languages and theology at the University of Pittsburgh, Wittenberg University in Ohio and Stanford University in California. He attended Belgrade University and Dorchester College in England. He holds bachelor of science degree in theology from Columbia University and earned a combined master's degree in theology from Columbia and Union Theological Seminary. Holder of a bachelor of divinity from St. Vladimir's Theological Seminary, Jovanovic is a PhD candidate in Russian language and literature at Stanford University. He also taught on the high school level in Allison Park, Pa.

Agreeing with last year's

decision to equip certain Quincy police officers with machine guns, Jovanovic said:

"We need a police organization which can meet any emergency that could arise."

Asked if he felt qualified to make budgetary decisions, Jovanovic, making his first bid for public office, said:

"In making a budgetary decision, a mayor consults with budget experts and with the City Council. The final decision is a result of those consultations. I feel fully qualified to discuss any city problem that could arise."

Asked if he would support or oppose an eighty-story height limit in Quincy, Jovanovic said:

"Again, I feel a decision on building would be an end result of consultations. A mayor has to be a leader but he also has to feel for his constituents. He must hear the pros and the cons of a situation and then take a stand."

Jovanovic wants to organize his campaign on as small a budget as possible. He said:

"I'm not a professional politician. I plan to spend as little money as possible because I believe it to be a sin to spend money on campaigns whether it is your own or a donation by supporters. We need the money badly to spend differently."

'Erroneous Allegation' On

HN Property Taking Says Grace Saphir

Mayorality candidate Mrs. Grace E. Saphir claims park and recreation department officials have made "improper and erroneous allegations" concerning eminent domain property-taking in Houghs Neck.

Mrs. Saphir labelled as "unnecessary" the department's proposal to take by eminent domain a "recently-renovated home" on Babcock and Sea St. The property is owned by Mrs. Lee Alexander.

Quoting park and recreation department officials, Mrs. Saphir said the property was called "a detriment to the area" and the property owner "an absentee landlord." Refuting those statements, Mrs. Saphir said:

"This is far from the truth. The person owning the property has never left it and has spent a considerable amount of savings on updating the outside of her home due to damage to her property because of nearness of a bus stop."

Speaking at her headquarters at 680 Hancock St., Mrs. Saphir said:

"I will continue to make public the improper allegations made by the administration in the name of progress. Houghs Neck is the Beacon Hill of Quincy and though planners would like to update many areas, perhaps it would be wiser to invite the residents to express their personal feelings which should be heeded by those who wish to impose their plans on honest taxpayers."

LaRaia Criticizes Tapping Reserve Fund

Mayorality candidate Joseph J. LaRaia has criticized the city administration's decision to withdraw money from the city's reserve fund in light of the recent court-ordered reduction of the assessment on the Jordan Marsh warehouse.

"The mayor is juggling with his budget," LaRaia said. "This is an election year...it was an error in judgement."

"And this deficit will have to be passed on to the taxpayer," he said.

The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court upheld a state Appellate Tax Board decision reducing the warehouse's assessment from more than $8.1 million to $7 million in 1971 and 1972.

The decision means Jordan Marsh is entitled to some $338,525 in abatements for these years.

The city has maintained a reserve fund of $233,000 for this type of emergency, LaRaia said, but last month the money was withdrawn for another purpose.

"I opposed taking the money out of the reserve account," he said. "Now the city has to find some way to get the money up." LaRaia spoke to neighborhood residents at the home of Maddie Seibert, 88 Huntress St., Houghs Neck.

He also told the residents the "tax rate will not accurately reflect the cost of government this year."

The interest on the excessive borrowing through the several bond issues will not be felt this year, he said, but next year, the taxpayer will feel its effect.

"I believe government spending should stay in pace with the economy," LaRaia said. "If the economy is stagnant, that doesn't mean we should go out and borrow, borrow, borrow..."

Classmates Co-Pastors

City's First Official Catholic Team Ministry At St. Boniface

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy's first officially-designated team ministry has begun in St. Boniface Church, Germantown.

Bishop Joseph Maguire recently installed Rev. Gerald Osterman and Rev. George Carlson as co-pastors of the Germantown parish.

Rev. John Dacey, who resigned as pastor of St. Boniface, will remain in the parish until he receives a re-assignment.

The co-pastors met recently with some 60 parishioners to talk about goals of the team ministry and to field suggestions from parish members.

In March, members of the personnel board of the Boston Diocese met with parishioners, explaining the concept of a team ministry and gathering reactions to it.

The positive reaction prompted the board to designate St. Boniface as a team ministry parish.

Fr. Osterman, curate at St. Boniface three years, and Fr. Carlson, formerly assigned to St. Theresa's in Waltham, were classmates at St. John's Seminary and applied for a team ministry assignment at St. Boniface's.

Calling team ministry "a difference in approach," Rev. Osterman said:

"The advantage of a team ministry is the knowledge beforehand that the people serving the parish have compatibility in outlook and ideas in terms of the team ministry. There's a basic agreement in approach."

Emphasizing the importance of the recent meeting with parishioners, Fr. Osterman said:

"The people in the parish are very much a part of the team."

Discussion at the meeting focused on parish organization, religious education and youth programs. Fr. Carlson said a report of the meeting will be sent to all parishioners and said smaller home meetings will begin in September to enlarge upon suggestions made.

Epitaphs On Stones Carry Special Messages

By SAM GRAVINA

care. And free me from my pain.

This article is about epitaphs. I became interested in epitaphs because of this on the skull and cross bones.

Stop here my friends as you pass by As you are now so once was I. As I am now so must you be. Prepare for death and follow me.

This epitaph is very common in the Hancock Cemetery. I have seen at least five stones with it.

Many of the stones have poems like the previous one on them. Most of them are designed to teach the reader something [like the previous one] or tell a little about the deceased. The following poem explains how the deceased felt about Christ.

Draw near my friends and take a thought. How soon the grave may be your lot. Make sure of Christ while life remains and death will bring eternal gain.

The following poem is about a woman who was ill most of her life.

Affliction sore long time I bore. Physicians still was vain, Till God did please to give me

Oldest Headstone Over 309 Years Old

By SUE CASSERLY

As Dr. William Pattee stated, we do not exactly know what time the Hancock cemetery was established.

However, by the epitaphs on the grave stones we know that it was probably as early as the first settlement of the town. Early in those years the many people had a custom to bury their families on their own farms or lands. So all the dead were not buried at The Old Burial.

In these early years, the people did not beautify graves with flowers. They preferred a more rural area with wild flowers, weeds, and overgrown

In the back of the cemetery is a stone with a broken column and this epitaph.

Be ye therefore also prepared for ye know not when the son of man cometh.

The broken column means this mans life was cut short and the epitaph expresses this same thought. The man under this stone died at the age of 34 of a heart attack in the middle of a promising career.

Another stone on the south end of the cemetery near the bass plot has the above similar epitaph. He died while a gun powder charge out of a well and he and some other man were blown into very tiny pieces.

I tried to find out who wrote most of their poems but I couldn't find anything. Owen Della Lucca thinks that there might have been a list of epitaphs the stone cutters had and when a relative died, you would pick the appropriate one.

On July 13 a Boston University student was studying epitaphs, written between 1775-1825 to find out how people felt about death at that time.

grasses. They considered this a more appropriate resting place for departed and loved friends.

The oldest head stone, that we know of, is the grave of the first minister, Mr. William Tompson, date December 10, 1666.

It is a wonder that any of the old grave stones were left, as the cemetery was used as a pasture for cattle until about 1809. For nearly two centuries the cattle roamed about this depository of the dead, destroying grave stones.

John Adams bought this land in 1809. He forced the cattle to leave by putting a fence around the cemetery.

'Lost And Found' At Wollaston Nazarene Church Aug. 3

"Lost and Found," a musical ministry of 12 young people, will perform a festival of religious music and drama Sunday, Aug. 3 and Monday, Aug. 4 at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

The group tours the entire East Coast for the Department of Youth of the Church of the Nazarene. Young and old alike from Quincy and the entire Boston-South Shore area will be able to participate in two days of Christian proclamation and sharing.

Events scheduled for Sunday include an 11 a.m. sacred concert by the group, a 12:15 p.m. potluck dinner, a 3 p.m. meeting with Wollaston youth, a 6 p.m. festival of music and drama and a 7:15 p.m. celebration party for South Shore youth.

Monday morning "Lost and Found" will tape a segment for WBZ-TV's "Show of Faith" program.

During the day the group will perform concerts at the South Shore Shopping Center, Wollaston Beach and in Quincy Center. Contact the Church for specific information on concert times.

The two-day religious festival will close with a 7:30 p.m. concert at the church.

3 From Quincy Attend Naval Academy Seminar

David M. Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Ray of Quincy, and Peter R. Maloney and Philip R. Maloney, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Maloney of Wollaston, attended the second annual Naval Academy Engineering/Science Seminar and Workshop at Annapolis, Md.

The young men had an opportunity to receive professional instruction from Academy faculty members in the fields of engineering, computer science, physics, chemistry, mathematics and environmental science.

Laboratory facilities were available, and participants had the opportunity to work with and use the Academy's Honeywell 635 computer from a remote terminal.

Main purpose of the seminar, according to Captain Ronald A. Campbell, Director of Candidate Guidance, was to encourage students who demonstrated the ability and aptitude for a career in an engineering or science area.

Daniel Saunders Joins Conway Wollaston Office

Daniel R. Saunders of Quincy, is a new associate of Jack Conway Realtors Wollaston office, announces Dick Cahill, office manager.

Saunders, a life long resident of Quincy, has lived on Avon Way for the past 34 years. His vast knowledge of the area will help both the Conway Company and its customers, said Cahill.

Jack Conway and Company has 15 offices from Quincy to Hyannis with two more offices in the planning stages.

2 On Dean's List At Wentworth Institute

Two Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List for outstanding scholastic achievement during the second semester at Wentworth Institute.

Wentworth, situated in the educational-cultural center of Boston Museum of Fine Arts and other colleges, graduates industrial and engineering technicians in a program leading to an Associate degree in Engineering Technology or Applied Science. Ranked as the largest accredited and endowed technical institute in the United States, the school also conducts a Curriculum Center for development of programs and techniques for other technical schools under a $500,000 Ford Foundation Grant.

They are Donald F. Martucci, 146 Brook St., Wollaston and Charles E. Todd, 155 Dorchester St., Squantum.

Brownell Files Bill To Probe Water Pollution

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] announces he has filed in the House Clerk's office an order for a special legislative investigation to obtain short range solutions to the causes of pollution in South Shore waters with special emphasis on Quincy Bay.

Brownell said: "Chloriform bacterial counts have been steadily rising in the last few years. This year I have seen counts that have alarming proportions in terms of public health and safety. There are multi-million dollar long range proposed solutions to the problem, but no ideas or corrective actions proposed to meet current and short term needs. It is my intention that this special legislative committee will help fill the gap."

Brownell further indicated that pollution in off shore waters is a regional problem that cannot be combated by any one community alone and as a result he has asked a number of legislators, city councillors and other public officials to join with him in co-sponsoring the legislation including Senator Arthur H. Tobin, Rep. Joseph Brett, Rep. William Delahunt, Rep. Robert Cerasoli, all of Quincy. Rep. Robert Phelan of Lynn and Quincy City Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Dennis Harrington.

South Shore area legislators and public officials met in Attorney General Francis Bellotti's office to explore legal alternatives that may be available.

Lost Bikes May Be Reclaimed At Wollaston Fire Station

Residents who have lost or had bicycles stolen in the past year are urged by Quincy police to check the property storage area at the Wollaston Fire Station on Beale St. Saturdays, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., for possible recovery of their bicycles.

Bicycles recovered by police are stored at the station, and if not claimed by owners, sold each year at auction.

According to city Purchasing Agent Richard Buckley, this year's auction is scheduled for Aug. 23, 9 a.m., at the Wollaston Fire Station.

He reports that as a result of the police bicycle identification program a number of bicycles have been recovered and returned to owners, but stated there are still approximately 50 bicycles to be claimed.

He encourages residents to take advantage of the time before the auction to check and see if their bicycles have been recovered.

No claims will be considered on the day of the auction.

Yankee Doodle Program At Crane Library

Summer celebrations are underway at the Thomas Crane Public Library as the children's department holds a summer-long birthday party for Yankee Doodle.

American folklore is highlighted in the Library's story hours and reading program. Both the main library and the branch libraries are offering picture book hours, story hours, film programs, craft activities, record programs and art lessons.

Participants in the summer program receive an activities folder in which to enter the titles of books read, the story hours attended, or special activities like a tour of Quincy's freedom trail or a trip to Boston. The children earn a feather to tuck in Yankee Doodle's hat for every five activities entered in their folders and receive a certificate of achievement at summer's end. Titles on the summer reading list are written on feathers, too, to be plucked from a bright red, white and blue top hat.

Harrington, Kelly To Discuss Bay Pollution At QCA Meeting

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington and Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly will discuss pollution in Quincy Bay at the Wednesday, Aug. 6 meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association.

Harrington, chairman of the City Council's environmental control committee, and Kelly, committee vice-chairman, will speak about the Nut Island Sewerage Plant and its relation to pollution in Quincy Bay.

Also participating in the discussion will be John Flynn, Harvard University graduate student of water sciences.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd. All Association members are urged to attend. The public is welcome also.

A regular business meeting will follow the guest speakers. Main item on the agenda is the Association's already-launched petition drive to collect signatures for a 10-story height limit initiative petition. The Association wants to put the matter before the voters on the Nov. ballot.

Buffet Benefit For Wollaston Family Aug. 6

A group of Wollaston neighbors have joined together to help raise funds for Mrs. Dolores Davis of 32 Berlin St., who recently lost her husband Joseph to cancer.

The women, headed by Mrs. Linda Keating of 33 Berlin St., have planned a buffet supper for Wednesday, Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Wollaston Legion Post.

Marshall is now working on a serial comedy for the stage entitled "The Sponsor". Costar with him will be Eli Wallach.

A seemingly simple question - "What does E. G. stand for?" - Marshall would not answer.

"E. G. That's my name," he said.

"But doesn't it stand for something - like Elston Gerard or Elijah Grindle?"

"You want me to tell you, don't you, so you can print it all over in your newspaper."

"Don't you like your name? It can't be that bad."

"E. G. That's my first name," he repeated.

"Okay 'E.G.'"

Norfolk County Development Council Launches 'Market Outreach' Program

The Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council has launched "Market Outreach", a program designed to expand the county's economic base.

Managed by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, "Market Outreach" will focus on helping businesses to obtain government contracts and to export to foreign markets.

A workshop planned for August will instruct manufacturers on the "how to" of bidding on and obtaining government contracts.

A September workshop will help manufacturers access their market potential, guiding them to state and federal experts who can define their most productive market areas.

Letters describing the newly-launched program have been mailed to some 1,000 Norfolk County manufacturers. Any manufacturer interested in participating in "Market Outreach" can contact Carolyn Sammon-Jennings, program director, at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 479-1111.

'MARKET OUTREACH' - William Kelley (left), South Shore Chamber of Commerce president, Carolyn Sammon-Jennings, "Market Outreach" director, and John Nourse, Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council director, discuss global market possibilities for Norfolk County manufacturers through newly-launched "Market Outreach" program.

To Modernize Hayward St. Facility

Boston Gear Works To Relocate North Quincy Office

Boston Gear Works of North Quincy plans to re-locate its office on the south side of Hayward St. as soon as the present 84,929 square-foot complex on the north side of the street is sold.

Plant manager William Johnson said a two-floor former manufacturing building - owned by "Boston Gear" - will be modernized for new office headquarters. Plans call for completely new interiors and a new facade facing expanded parking facilities.

Johnson said square-footage of the plant will "remain about the same" and the number of employees is expected to stay at the present level. He estimated current plant employment at between 400 and 500.

Speaking of the move, Johnson said:

"This change will help us to better utilize the available floor space we have. We don't need that building we are in now. We will reduce the cost of heating and maintenance."

Tofias Real Estate of Brockton has been appointed to take charge of the selling of the Boston Gear complex. In addition to the plant area, the site offers a 30,000 square-foot parking facility with room for 125 cars.

Christine won the intermediate girls singles by defeating Susan Coleman, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1; the women's singles by defeating Miss Coleman, 6-4, 6-1, and combined with Coleman to win the intermediate girls doubles, 6-0, 6-0, over Theresa Flynn and Margaret Rugg.

Men singles winner Edward Riley defeated James Hooley 6-2, 6-0, and then teamed up with William Connolly to defeat Arthur Boyle and Paul Hussey 6-0, 6-2, in the doubles.

Susan Coleman and Dorothy Iorio defeated Hildegard Gillis and Cecelia Loughman 6-2, 6-0, in the women's doubles. And in the 35 and over division, Arthur Boyle defeated Paul Hussey 6-3, 6-0; and Hildegard Gillis defeated Pauline Connolly 6-2, 7-6 tiebreaker.

Other division winners:

Mixed doubles - James Hooley and Susan Coleman defeated Christine Cunniff and Paul Brame, 6-2, 6-3.

Junior boy and girl singles - Daniel Boyle defeated Michael Hussey, 6-1, 6-4, and Marcia Cunniff defeated Deborah McManus, 7-5, 6-1.

Boyle and Hussey combined in the junior doubles to defeat Daniel Molloy and Paul McConville, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3; and Cunniff teamed up with Nancy Tolson in the girls to defeat McManus and Lisa Coady, 6-2, 6-2.

Intermediate boy singles - Paul Brame defeated James McConville, 6-4, 6-4, and then teamed with Michael Hussey to defeat McConville and Kevin McCarthy, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Rotary Defeats Bryan, Colonial, Keohane's, Remick's Win

The Junior Baseball League completed its regular season during the past week and the playoffs are now in progress.

In games during the week Rotary defeated Bryan VFW, 7-2, as Gary DiNardo gained his 20th career pitching win and aided his own cause with two long doubles and a single and drove in two runs. Johnny Costigan played an outstanding game at shortstop. Steve Pecavich had two singles and Tom McHugh and Tommy Hennessey a single apiece. Scotty Mathews played his usual strong game behind the plate. For VFW Danny Boyle pitched well in defeat.

Rotary finished up with a 2-1 win over league leading Colonial Federal as Costigan pitched a two-hitter with eight strikeouts. Buddy Cappolla and DiNardo turned in fine defensive plays. Mathews had a double and DiNardo, Ron Pettinelli and Hennessey a single apiece. Mark Millane pitched outstanding ball for Colonial. Eddie Carroll had a home run and Billy Mullaney a double for the only hits off Costigan.

DiNardo, who has been a starting pitcher for Rotary since he was 10 years old, is also an all-star shortstop for Rotary.

Gary led his team in batting, finishing with a fantastic .753 average and had two home runs, two triples and 24 doubles included among his 49 hits.

DiNardo was co-captain this year and his mates picked him for the all-star team.

Manager Jack Donovan rates Gary as the best player in the Junior League system. "His outstanding hitting, pitching and play at shortstop were evident in every game we played this year," Donovan said.

"His unselfish nature was typified when he was awarded the game ball and would indicate his desire for another player, who had played well in that particular game, to be awarded the ball. His ability and sportsman-like attitude earned him the respect and admiration of his teammates and opponents alike."

Keohane's defeated the Elks, 4-0, behind the three-hit, nine strikeout pitching of John Balzano. It was his second shutout of the season against the Elks and his record is 6-3.

Tommy Cowless played fine ball defensively and doubled to set up the first run. Danny Walsh had three hits and two RBIs, while Steve Healy and Tommy Mullen had a hit each. Losing pitcher was Michael Skirby.

Remick's came from behind to edge Elks, 4-3, behind the strong pitching of Mike Stranberg and the clutch hitting of Glenn Segalla and Scott Lowell. Stranberg gave up only four hits and two walks while striking out nine.

The Elks had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the third on key hits by Kevin Howlett, Bob Scurti and Paul Reinhardt.

In the bottom of the fifth with two outs and the bases empty, John Barrett reached on an error and Segalla blasted a tremendous triple over the centerfielder's head to drive in the tying run and Lowell brought in the clincher on a perfectly placed bunt.

Anthony Twohig was the tough luck loser for Elks.

Remick's also topped Boston Gear, 5-1, to finish 16-6 and tied for first in the American League. Remick's was the Cinderella team, as it finished last the past two years.

The victory was led by the one-hit pitching of John Todd who was 9-1 for the season including a no-hitter and two one-hitters. The batting stars were Robbie Craig, Lowell and Todd.

Remick's was led all season by the offense provided by 12-year olders Segalla, Craig, Lowell, Todd, Stranberg and Barrett. The pitching of Todd, Stranberg and Jim Ferrara, excellent defense and all-around heads up play. Other members of the team are Bill DiMatteo, Mike Sullivan, Brian Egan, Scott Richardson, Kevin Craig, Danny Dunn and nine-year olders Jim Grassi and Steve Hogan, who won a starting job mid-way through the season and played an important role in Remick's rise to the top.

Houghs Neck finished up by defeating Colonial Federal, 2-1, and Sears, 6-4, to clinch a tie for first in the American League.

Houghs Neck, in first all season, faltered down the stretch but bounced back on a near-perfect game pitched by Greg Oriola against Colonial Federal. He allowed one hit, struck out nine and didn't issue a base on balls. The hit was a line drive single by Millane, that just ticked the glove of leaping Tommy O'Connor at shortstop.

Mike McCormick pitched well for Colonial and both teams played errorless ball. The score was 1-1 going into the final inning when Matt Kenny led off with a single and scored the winning run. Other key hits were contributed by Glenn and Gary Oriola.

In the Sears game, Houghs Neck trailed, 3-0, but bounced on the pitching of Tom McFarlane, who also had a double. HN won the game on a double by Joe Phelan, which drove in McFarlane with the winning run.

Key hits for HN were provided by Bob Conti, Joe Scavuzzo and Phelan. Kenny Mann pitched well for Sears and the hits were collected by Ken Zoia, Steve Austin, Mann, Bob Beniers and Tom Morrison.

Data Bounces Back To Stay In Contention

After dropping two games to South Boston K. of C. 3-1 and 13-6, Quincy's Senior Babe Ruth League team, Data Services, scrambled in the last inning against Milton for a 4-3 win to stay in contention for the league playoffs.

John Papile went the route for Quincy and had seven strikeouts. Mark Jaehning's bases loaded blast over the centerfielder's head drove in the winning runs.

Quincy's record after the games was 14-7, trailing Randolph, 17-4, and Hanover, 13-6-2. If Quincy won over South Boston Carmen Post Tuesday and Hanover lost its final game, the teams will meet to decide a playoff spot.

Mass. Fields Undefeated In Kickers Soccer League

The North Quincy Kickers Soccer League recently completed its first season with one team boasting an undefeated record.

Under the direction of Richard O'Brien, the league consisted of 150 boys divided into seven teams according to school. Mass Fields School - coached by Tom White and John Andrews, members of the North Quincy High School Soccer Team - compiled a perfect 6-0 record

Team members are:

The Montclair and Quincy Schools tied for second place with 4-2 records.

Wollaston School finished third with a 3-3 record while both Parker and Beechwood Knoll Schools ended with a 2-4 tally. Finishing last was Squantum School.

All seven teams were coached by members of the North Quincy High School Soccer Team.

3 Track Club Members In Texas Competition

Three members of the Quincy Track Club have qualified to compete in the annual Youth Games in Fort Worth, Tex. Aug. 7-10.

The qualifiers are Laurie Clark, who long-jumped 14-6, who won the 12-13 year old class; Mike Cullen, whose longjump of 13-4 won the 9-11 class, and Janice Kelly, who took second in the 22-30 in the 14-15 year old class.

Help Wanted: Swim, Field Hockey Coaches

Carl Leone, coordinator of athletics for the Quincy schools, announced that, after advertising within the school system, he and the screening committee could not fill some coaching vacancies.

The school system is seeking a swim coach for Quincy High at a salary of $1,500. The girls' season will start Sept. 1 and run through November and the boys' season will start Dec. 1 and run through February. These are new sports in the high school.

5 Records Set At Quincy Track Club Meet

The Quincy Track Club staged its first relay carnival last week as the highlight of the weekly meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium in which 250 club members took part.

There were 15 relays ranging from a distance medley to a 440 and a mixed men and women race, a favorite among the members.

Five club records were set, Mike Cullen winning the elementary boys long jump with a leap of 13-8½. Loretta Garrigan winning the girls elementary girls high jump at 4-2; Rich McCarthy taking the boys elementary high jump at 4-7; Tim O'Neill winning the boys junior high jump at 5-3, and Wayne Widdison the elementary boys discus with a toss of 66 feet.

Lee Watkins, former North Quincy standout and now in the armed forces, won the invitational 100-yard dash in 10.3.

Other winners were Nancy DiCristofaro, elementary girls long jump; Steve Doherty, senior boys high jump; Joe McCormick, junior high shot put; Joe Piazza, senior boys shot put; Joanne Troy, senior girls shot; Ted Koberski, junior high boys discus; Phil Robinson, senior boys discus; Maryann Sylvester, senior girls discus, and Steve Burns, elementary boys javelin.

The relay results:

Senior Boys distance medley - Kevin O'Brien, Ed Colletta, Jake Mahoney and Bet Petracca.

Junior High boys Spring Medley - Charlie Cahill, O'Neill, Ed Cahill and Dan McIntyre.

440 - Elementary girls, Denise Santo, Joanne O'Leary, Nancy DiCristofaro and Loretta Garrigan; elementary boys, Brian Donovan, John Masley, Rich Lawyer and Shawn Burns; junior high girls, Garrigan, O'Leary, Maureen Walsh and Laurie Clarke; junior high boys, Andy Levitsky, Dan Flannery, Joe Irvine and Carroll Colletti; senior girls, Michele Seltzer, Judy Malloy, Dotty Irvine and Paula Constan; senior boys, Wayne Lumpkin, Phil Robinson, Johnny Johnson and Paul Doherty.

Male - Senior boys, Kevin O'Brien, John Saville, Jeff Hennessey and Petracca; elementary girls, Garrigan, Florence Larenzano, Walsh and O'Leary; elementary boys, Lawyer, Brian Donovan, Masley and Burns; junior high girls, Susie Seamans, Patty Irvine, Jenny Seamans and Eileen Cleary.

880 - Senior girls, Joanne Troy, Laurie Clarke, Kathy O'Brien, and Janice Kelly; elementary boys, Burns, Tony Quintiliani, Masley and Lawyer. Mixed relay - Pat Watkins, Joanne Troy, Lee Watkins and Janice Kelly.

Loretta Garrigan, a 12-year-old, set her high jump record in her first time in the event. She also ran with three winning relay teams.

In the previous week's meet, in which nine records were broken, Mark Canavan, former North Quincy ace, turned in the most exciting performances. The New England schoolboy half mile champion not only broke the half-mile record but his 6-1½ in the high jump shocked the whole stadium and probably surprised himself as much as anyone, as he has been bothered by foot injuries since his junior year at North.

coach and Dan Sandanato and Buster Niosi assistants.

National League players will be Don Perdios, Brian Jolley, Brian Condron, Jack Dunn and Paul McDermott of Sons of Italy; Steve Cook, Bob Shatzel, Steve Buckley, Paul O'Toole, Bob Lindenfeltzer and Steve Currier of Gino's; Dave King and Mike McCormack of Hancock Bank, and Bob McCabe of Morrisette. Hugh Salvatore is coach with Dave Perdios and Vin Cook assistants.

Fire Dept., Morrisette Win Division Crowns

Firemen won the American League title and Morrisette the National League crown in the Babe Ruth League as Firemen [17-5], Barry's Deli [16-6] and Bryan Post VFW [14-8] of the American League and Morrisette [15-8], Police [14-9] and Sons of Italy [12-11] of the National qualified for the league playoffs.

The championships of both divisions went down to the wire with Firemen needing a doubleheader sweep last Saturday to win the American League title. Firemen Local 792 started off the crucial final week by bombing Granite City, 22-4. Winning pitcher Sal Coscia again showed good control with only two walks, struck out three and allowed seven hits.

Firemen, in the first game of the vital doubleheader, outslugged Morrisette, 15-10, with Dave Austin the winning pitcher despite poor defense as his mates committed eight errors.

Firemen then moved to Merrymount Park and clinched the division title with a 9-1 breeze over Gino's. Ray Coscia was the winner on a four-hitter, not walking a batter. Gary Oriola had an inside-the-park home run and Sal Coscia and Bob Roberts had two doubles apiece.

Barry's defeated VFW, 11-5, with Bill Deitsch the winning pitcher. Bill and Jim Deitsch, John DiNardo, Jim Fitzpatrick and Bill French had two hits each and Peter Niosi, Gary Earle and Jim Travers one each. For VFW Bud Anastas had two hits and Leo Doyle, Harry Donahue, Brian Watts and Pat Ennis one each.

Barry's nipped Houghs Neck, 6-4, with John DiNardo going all 10 innings to gain the win. Niosi and Jim Deitsch had two hits each and DiNardo and Fitzpatrick one apiece. Travers had a triple in the 10th inning and Rich Travers also tripled to drive in the winning run. Greg Zoia had three hits in a losing cause.

Barry's, which had a big week, also topped Morrisette, 4-2, with Niosi the winning pitcher. Earle and Bill Deitsch had doubles and Niosi and Jim Deitsch other hits.

Morrisette nipped Houghs Neck, 5-4, in seven innings with Bob McCabe the winning hurler. Jim Hanrahan had a game-winning home run and a triple, Brian Harding a triple and single and McCabe two hits.

Police walloped Granite City, 13-7, with winning pitcher Rich Boyle striking out nine and allowing only four hits. John Andrews had four hits, Ron Donovan three including a two-run homer, Ed Laracy two and Larry Baker, Billy Oakes and Rich Boyle one each. Dave Flaherty had two for Granite City.

Sons of Italy defeated Hancock Bank, 5-2, with Paul McDermott the winning pitcher with a fine five innings and Josh Alberti pitching well in relief. Morrisette toppled Police, 6-4, behind the pitching of Rich Gilbody.

Barry's outlasted VFW, 12-11, in the first game of the American League playoffs. The teams played again Tuesday and, if necessary, will play the deciding game tonight [Thursday] for the right to meet Firemen in the division finals.

Barry's was down, 9-2, but came back to win on Rich Travers' seventh inning single driving in Earle, who had singled. Bill Deitsch had three hits, Niosi, Earle and French two each, Rich Travers, Jim Deitsch and DiNardo one apiece. For VFW Mike Trubiano, Harry Donahue and Brian Watts had two hits each in one of the most exciting games of the entire season.

The league's first all-star game will be played next Thursday at 8 p.m. under the lights at Adams Field.

Recreation Roundup

By JOE MOSESSO

Swimming Supervisor George Alcott reports this years enrollment at the Quincy Recreation Departments 13 beaches has even topped last summers record breaking attendance figures.

The youngsters are advancing rapidly too, from one class to a higher one. Non-swimmers moving up to beginners were Adams Shore's Stacy Kelley and Amy Rothoan, Mary Keely and Chris Murphy of Rock Island, and Perry's John Mann, Maureen Kelley and Peter Mellyn. Passing beginners were Nickerson's Kathy Erickson, John Spring and Kim Mellor, Edgewater's Donna McMillan, Kathy Ryan and Laura Coronity and Elm Ave's Melissa Murphy.

Nature specialists's Mike Paros and Debbie Coose took youngsters on field trips to Stoneham Zoo and Trailside Museum. Among those enjoying the trips were Faxon Park's Paul Gilbody and Chris Sullivan and Lisa and Monica Mulken, Linda Cleary and Sally Scheele of Stoney Brae.

Golf specialist Ken Furfari, reports some of the best swingers around the city include - Merry-mount's John Phelan, Fore River's Gordon Spencer, Bill Burt of Snug Harbor and Jim Jacobson and Steve Blazer of O'Rourke.

Showing promise on the courts reports tennis specialist Kevin McGinley are Gary Durante of Pond St., Squantum's Kelly Burke, Forbes Hill's Kathy Tweedy, Susan Gallery of Shea Rink, LaBrecque's Janet Sines and Kincaide's Sandy Doyle.

Tim Flynn, our "Robin Hood" continues to increase the numbers of his band of merry-men. Joining Tim in "Sherwood Forest" are Whitwell's Tony Quintilian, Tony Lupo and Brenda Morrison of Snug Harbor, Welcome Young's Lili Lindberg and the Anderson's of Myles Standish - Jimmy, Johnny, Timmy and Rhonda.

Music specialist Karen Walsh has discovered many fine voices. Among them are Pond St. Ann Marie and John Cicerone, Terry Clements and Gloria Battistone, Kim Aluisi, Jim Sinclair and Jackie Fuller of Kincaide and Squantum's Joe Johnson, Bob Hickey and Dave Allen.

Track specialists Paul and Brian Doherty report that some of the best overall performances last week were given by Beechwood Knoll's Lou DiPietro, Fore River's Margaret McBride, Joyce Kennedy of Snug Harbor and Julie Green and Billy DeCarli of Wollaston.

The making of "Leather" bottles with masking tape has been the main project in the arts and crafts program. Some of the best creations, reports supervisor Joanne Coughlin, were done by Poanne McCloskey of Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll's John and Mike Conlon, Wollaston's Karen Boustiere and Grasso's Michelle Mastriopetro.

In senior boys basketball, Bishop hung on to defeat Squantum squad 31-25. Bishop's Colin McEachern led all scorers with 12 points. Kevin Pappas aided the cause with nine. On the other side, Arthur Pappas pumped in 10 points with Mike McCormick adding 8. Defensive standouts were Bishop's John Wilkenson and Billy Andon, as well as Steve Bell and Mike Nee of Squantum.

Morrisette, Weymouth In Title Showdown

The Morrisette Legion baseball team played Weymouth at Braintree Tuesday in a playoff game to decide the Zone 6 championship and a berth in the state tournament.

The teams wound up in a tie with 19-2 records Monday when Morrisette topped Canton, 6-3, and Weymouth defeated Hingham.

Morrisette knew it had to win the game, played under lights at Adams Field, because Weymouth had defeated Hingham in a twilight game and its players and coaches were at Adams hoping for a Canton upset.

Tim Clifford, who finished a sensational regular season with a 12-1 record, was turned in the heroes again as he turned in a brilliant relief performance, striking out seven and giving up one hit over three innings to gain the win.

Hingham had a 3-2 lead after four innings but Morrisette scored the winning runs in the fifth on a double by Frank Miceli and singles by Dennis McGuire and Steve McKinnon.

Morrisette added two insurance runs in the sixth on a single by Mike DePolo, an error and a single by Joe Glynn.

McGuire had three hits for Morrisette and Dwyer, McKinnon and Miceli two each. Morrisette had 12 hits but stranded 15 base runners.

Sunday in another makeup game [the Canton game was a replay of a tie game], Morrisette edged Quincy, 5-4, with Clifford again the winner in relief of Dwyer.

Morrisette scored the winning run in the seventh after Quincy had scored three in the sixth to tie it, 3-3. John Lawlor singled but was out trying to stretch it, Glynn singled as did Jim Roberts and Miceli walked to fill the bases. Glynn scored the winner on an error.

Dwyer struck out eight and Clifford added three strikeouts. Glynn had three hits and DePolo and Roberts two apiece for Morrisette, while Preston Carroll had three for Quincy.

Court, Businessmen Unite To Cut Shoplifting

Quincy District Court do not come before the court a second time. Of the 10 per cent of repeaters, Kramer said 3-4 per cent actually serve time in jail. "I have no hard statistics to back these figures," Kramer said. "This is a feeling based on cases I see."

Kramer noted the apparent rise in crime is a national not a local phenomenon. He said: "There isn't anywhere where crime isn't in the upturn."

Zeroing in on the problem of shoplifting, Kramer cited statistics showing shoplifting has increased in a way "directly proportional to inflation." He also said societal alienation contributes to the problem. He explained:

"Middle-aged women - women who do have some money in their pockets - steal.

Why? It's not a neighbor they are stealing from, it's not the man in the corner store. Who pays any attention to them in the store. They think, 'Who cares if I take this blouse?' They know no one in the store. Self-inhibition and morality disappear."

Kramer himself has brainstormed the "100 Club", a program to help shoplifters earn dismissal of their cases through the co-operation of the business community. Kramer said:

"I'm asking the business community to give me hours, 100 hours from 100 businesses."

According to the program, businesses and stores would employ a person found guilty of shoplifting, allowing him to earn the money needed to reimburse a store for stolen merchandise. The individual would not necessarily be employed at the store where the shoplifting took place, Kramer noted.

Kramer said the individual would be allowed to keep one-third of the money earned, putting the remaining two-thirds towards payment of the stolen goods. Reports on the individual would be submitted to a review board, Kramer continued.

"Hopefully the store or business would want to keep the individual on after completion of the 100 hours," Judge Kramer said. "If you give a person dignity and give him a chance to earn his dismissal, chances are he will turn around."

Businessmen, plagued by the passing of bad checks, urged Kramer to try to crack down on offenders. Kramer emphasized the court must differentiate between the intentional passing of a bad check and the inadvertent writing of a check when a bank account holds insufficient funds.

Kramer said the court will sponsor free training sessions to business employees, explaining proper identification procedures and precautions to help curtail acceptance of improper checks.

In September, Kramer said the court will implement a specific time schedule for cases and will try to adhere to it closely to eliminate the inconvenience of waiting on the part of businessmen and store managers who come to court to testify on a particular case.

Though warning the proposed programs do not represent a "cure-all" for the problems in the business community, Kramer praised the initiative and involvement of the local merchants. He said:

"I must say I have never seen such responsiveness and co-operation in a community of businessmen. We're opening the lines of communication."

LET US KNOW IF YOU NEED SOME MONEY.

Money for any good reason. Vacation. Home repairs. School. Taxes. Money to take advantage of the rebates offered these days. We'll be glad to help you out with a Customer Option Loan.

A Customer Option Loan is the best way to borrow - for a number of different reasons.

For one thing, the Customer Option Loan is based on simple interest, which can save you money when you borrow. You're charged interest only on your actual daily outstanding balance. You only pay for the actual amount of money you borrow - for the time you use it.

Moreover, you can receive a Preferred Rate by arranging to have your payments automatically deducted from your Norfolk Checking Account.

A Norfolk County Trust Customer Option Loan lets you take a Payment/Debit and skip a payment from time to time. There is no charge for using the payment holiday other than the interest which continues to accrue on the outstanding principal balance.

The monthly payments in your Option Loan can be made on whatever day of the month you choose - and you can switch it from month to month to suit your own convenience.

So, if you need some money for any reason, just let us know. Stop in and visit any of Norfolk's 33 offices or simply fill out and mail the coupon.

Yes, I'd like to borrow some money. Please send me complete information on your CUSTOMER OPTION LOAN.

Petition Drive In West Quincy For MDC Improvements

The St. Moritz Society of West Quincy has launched a petition drive to muster area support on a series of MDC improvements scheduled to begin before September.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, working to secure improvement projects there over the past year, met Saturday with new MDC Commissioner John F. Snedecker to tour the St. Moritz area. Sheets said Snedecker requested a petition from area residents, indicating their endorsement of planned renovations.

St. Moritz Society President Robert Meenan will coordinate the petition drive which will continue throughout the week.

Signing of the petition - drafted by Sheets - will indicate support of the following projects:

• Dredging of St. Moritz Pond to be stocked with fish.

• Renovation and landscaping of Curry Ballfield.

• Grading and blacktopping of the roadway from Willard St. to the ballfield.

• Blacktopping of Bunker Hill Lane from Chickatobot Rd to the horseshoe courts.

• General study of the area used by boy and girl scouts for possible improvements.

Sheets said the petition drive will be completed by the middle of next week and Commissioner Snedecker will have the petitions in his hands by next week's end.

Bids Sought On Sea St. Phase 2 Reconstruction

The Phase 2 Sea St. reconstruction project will be advertised for bids Saturday, Aug. 9 for a 21-day period.

The project calls for reconstruction of 4,500 feet of roadway and sidewalks from Palmer St. to Winthrop St.

Announcement of the advertising was made through the office of Acting Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, city council president, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell and Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

Tobin said work on the project could begin by early September.

'A Cheap Shot'

Hannon Fires Salvo At White For Quincy Criticism

By TOM HENSHAW
Mayor Walter J. Hannon received a "Dear Walter" letter from his old friend, Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, last week.

It was a cordial invitation to attend a luncheon in the Boston mayor's office Tuesday to discuss the potential impact of 100 percent property valuation on his community.

"I look forward to seeing you," said Mayor White.

Tuesday morning, however, Mayor Hannon awoke to find that he was not "Dear Walter" anymore, that cordiality had evaporated, that he was looking forward to seeing Mayor White for more than revaluation discussions.

"Cheap shot," snarled Mayor Hannon over his breakfast coffee.

The reason for the sudden about face was a Boston Globe story in which Mayor White was quoted as saying:

"All the guys I grew up with moved to the suburbs because they wanted greener grass, less taxes and less crime.

"Well, look at them now. Quincy hasn't built a new school in years and their taxes are sky-high, but we're building new schools all over the city."

"Mayor White does not know what he is talking about," replied the erstwhile Dear Walter, "because in the last 10 years Quincy will have built $27 million in new school buildings."

He listed the schools as Quincy Vo-Tech, $5 million; Squantum, $1 million; Merrymount, $1 million; Lincoln-Hancock, $5 million; and North Quincy High School, $15 million.

"As far as taxes are concerned," Mayor Hannon said, "Quincy property taxes have risen only 2.9 percent since 1972."

"Evidently Mayor White is trying to save his political life by taking cheap shots at places like Quincy."

And, with that, Mayor Hannon left for Boston to join his old friend Mayor White at a cordial luncheon.

In a statement prepared for delivery at the luncheon, Mayor Hannon assailed 100 percent valuation as a move that "could very well lead to the end of the family home for thousands upon thousands of our citizens."

"One hundred percent revaluation means that the average Quincy taxpayer will have property taxes increased from between $250 to $500 a year.

One hundred percent valuation could disqualify a large segment of elderly citizens who are now benefiting from a $4,000 valuation exemption. This could result in lost abatements amounting to $639.60.

In all probability, widows who now receive a $2,000 valuation exemption would be disqualified. This would mean that widows would have to pay some $319.80 more taxes each year.

"It seems clear that veterans and blind persons would be adversely affected too."

Taking Of 'Almost Joey's'

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and City Councillor Leo J. Kelly have recommended the taking by eminent domain of a plot of land at 1205 Sea St., Houghs Neck, currently occupied by the controversial bar, Almost Joey's.

In a letter to L. Norman Lundin, project director of the Houghs Neck Community Development Program, Hannon and Kelly called Almost Joey's "a blight and a menace on the surrounding area."

"The initiation of the Houghs Neck Community Development Program represents a tremendous opportunity for this neighborhood," they said.

"The public works improvements and home rehabilitation assistance available for the next three years will go a long way towards preserving the residential character of one of Quincy's strongest neighborhoods.

"A serious blight, however, such as Almost Joey's, threatens the success of neighborhood improvement."

"No amount of property assistance and public improvements will upgrade an area dominated by the harassment of a barroom crowd."

Almost Joey's and its predecessor, Curran's, have "a long history of rowdiness, excessive noise, serving liquor to minors, and off premises sales," Hannon and Kelly said.

They pointed out that the bar's license had been suspended for 90 days last year and "similar activities threaten the community and have brought the matter back to the license board" this year.

They recommended that Lundin and the recently appointed Houghs Neck Policy Committee "examine the possibility of an eminent domain land taking at 1205 Sea St."

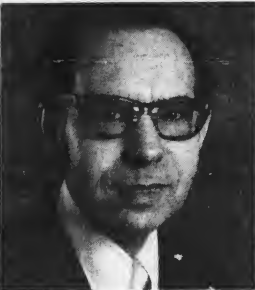

"We suggest," they added, "that this site may serve several potential municipal uses."

"The Houghs Neck area, for example, needs additional open space facilities to upgrade and beautify the area. This site could also be an appropriate location for other municipal services such as health or library services."

Try Painting Your Hair

It's balayage in Paris, hairpainting in England and America. No matter what you call it, the trend is sweeping the nation, according to fashion magazines from Vogue to Seventeen.

Hairpainting is the process of painting delicate ribbons of a special hairlights mixture onto the top layer of your hair with a small brush wherever you want natural-looking highlights to appear. And since looking great these days means looking natural, playing it low key, particularly when it comes to your hair's color, is essential.

You can add sparkle to mousy brown hair and zest to "dirty" blonde by painting it. Hairpainting is simple and quick—in 15 minutes you get natural looking flickers of light wherever you want them.

There's no need to feel locked into hairpainting either — no roots, no re-touching every few weeks.

You paint your hair if and when the mood strikes, whenever you want your hair to gleam with light. It's a bet that unless you try, no one will ever guess why your hair is such a sensational shimmer of natural looking highlights.

Getting settled made simple.

New-town dilemmas fade after a WELCOME WAGON call. As your Hostess, it's my job to help you make the most of your new neighborhood. Our shopping areas. Community opportunities. Special attractions. Lots of facts to save you time and money. Plus a basket of gifts for your family. I'll be listening for your call.

Today's Women

A Look At The Fashion Forecast

SUIT YOURSELF

The "real" suit returns to fashion this year in a most important way. This trimly-tailored outfit by Patty O'Neil is a dress-and-jacket ensemble with the look of three-piece. The floral, bow-tied blouse is seamed and belted to a flippy, four-gore skirt and covered by a matching jacket with definite Forties' overtones.

SHORT AND SWEET

Called The Skimp, it's a high-style dress, made to fit the modern, active young woman's lifestyle, and just a bit more than knee high, to help you put your best legs forward. Longsighted fashion experts suggest you wear it with flat heels, long bells and a cardigan in a contrasting color cleverly tied at your waist or around your shoulders.

SAFARI SWEATERING

The safari look inspires this dashing sweaterjacket by Duet. Knit in a block-patterned design, it buttons long and lean with shoulder epaulets and a self-aash looping through cuffed pockets. It's made in shape-retaining yarns of "Wintuk" acrylic to machine-wash beautifully and live the sportin' life for months to come.

CHILDREN

4-year-old an early riser

By WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. I'm a divorced working mother of a very active 4-year-old. My problem is not an easy one to solve, and it's making me a nervous wreck!

He insists on getting up before 6 a.m. He quietly closes my bedroom door and proceeds to get into everything within reach. I awoke one morning to find eggs, butter, catsup, milk, liquid soap and chocolate smeared all over the coffee table. Yesterday it was water paint used to paint my gold crushed velvet chair and carpet. I have even awakened to find him gone outside in his pajamas.

I have tried everything but locking him in his room: Made him sleep with me; installed a chain lock on the front door; used electrician's tape to tape shut all cupboards and refrigerator; set out cereal and fruit for him; talked, scolded, threatened and spanked. I've even set my alarm for 6 a.m., only to find him up and at it.

I dream of being able to sleep later, but how can I? Please help me.

A. If it's any consolation at all (and I suspect it won't be much!) many 4-year-olds are unpleasantly active, some even to the extremes you listed. That's one reason why a firm company some years ago turned out an educational movie called "The Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives."

One thing you can do — if you haven't already done so — is to enroll him in a good preschool or nursery school. If he's already in one, what do they tell you about his behavior there? Have they given you any suggestions? Counseling recommended by their personnel and your pediatrician's advice may also be helpful.

You may want to consider at least a slightly later time for his going to bed. That might be helpful in encouraging him to sleep a little longer in the morning.

A few mornings you may even have to set your alarm for before 6 a.m., and "monitor the situation." That's not a happy thought, but it's a tough period to live through — as you know very well!

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant)

If you choose to accept a new, heavy, work load it increases your chances for success. Curb your temper with relatives. Accept criticism graciously. Be very fair and considerate with loved ones.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant)

In social situations project charm and poise even though you aren't enjoying yourself. Cooperation from others is indicated. Go out of your way to help younger people. You could be honored by a group.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant)

You have a chance to learn a new skill. Be moderate in your social life — overindulgence reflects on health. You're full of great ideas. Propose them to others who will be impressed.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant)

Resist being childishly determined to have your own way. Curb temper over money problems. Career matters prosper. Extend yourself in kindness to one who has done you a favor.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant)

You solve your problems best by quiet thought and meditation. Use caution in the selection of social groups. Avoid those given to excessive behavior. You could attract people with deceptive motives now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant)

Your high energy keeps you very active with both business and social life. Try to pace yourself or you could encounter health problems. Gear your thoughts and efforts to saving money for important things.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant)

You are highly emotional now and need to call on your strength to refuse "going along" with something you don't want to do. A trip with a friend could prove costly. Work quietly to improve your own performance in career.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

Don't make "snap judgments" now. Be analytical and cautious in your thinking. When in doubt, choose the course of responsibility. Not a good time to have a showdown with anyone. Curb stubbornness.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant)

Use care that you aren't jumping to conclusions without knowing all the facts. Others appear antagonistic — refuse to be drawn in to an argument. Recognize the need to budget your money.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant)

Some long-awaited news arrives and you are reassured. Career life runs smoothly. Be willing to spend some money on pleasure and entertaining. Others may envy you now so curb egotism.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant)

Perhaps you should examine your motives if you are inclined to be fault-finding with others. Stick to routine now, and curb superior attitudes. Pay close attention to personal appearance. Be subtle.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant)

Someone you meet and are attracted to will probably be just a "passing fancy," coming to naught. Concern with children may make you anxious. Take up a new educational course to increase earning capacities.

Errant hubby should shape up

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

what happens to me? Sixteen

Dear Sixteen:
Most 16-year-olds are in favor of rules whether they act like it or not. So, Mom, and Dad, get with it! A firm "no" has never harmed a teenager yet.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I am 25 and my mother still insists on running my life. If I'm interested in someone, she starts to find fault with him. If I stay out past 1 a.m., she questions me the next day. I live at home so am an easy target. What shall I say to Mother?

Allice

Dear Allice:
Don't say anything. MOVE. Your mother does not want to share you with another human being. At 25, you should be making your own decisions.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
My husband stays out until all hours, plans all his spare time with the boys, and seldom takes me anywhere. What can I say to him?

Evelyn

Dear Evelyn:
The bonds of matrimony are not meant to be broken, but your husband certainly believes in stretching them too far. Tell hubby to shape up or ship out.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
My parents must think that if they allow me to do everything I want that I'll be happy and well-adjusted. My mother never says "no." My father never tells me when to be home. Don't they care

TAKE PILLS ALONG

This advice could save your life when you make an emergency [or scheduled] trip to the hospital. You may be taking some medication that counteracts the medicine you'll get at the hospital. Worse, some drugs that have no bad effects taken singly can adversely affect you when taken together. An example of a dangerous combination could be some weight reduction pills and medication for high blood pressure that you might get from an emergency room doctor.

If you arrive at the hospital unconscious, the bottle of pills that your family brings with you may give the physician an important clue as to what is wrong with you.

Before you depart for the hospital, either you or your friends or relatives should scoop up all your pill bottles and put them in a sack. Be sure the doctor who examines you gets them, and above all, don't put them under the mattress and go along taking them in the hospital without letting your physician know.

Third Cookout Planned At 1000 Southern Artery

The third and final summer cookout sponsored by 1000 Southern Artery will be held Monday, Aug. 18 in the patio and pavilion area. Trustees and their wives will be on hand to serve a menu of charcoal broiled hamburgers, potato and tossed salads, watermelon, coffee and tea.

The Lofty Squares, a group of costumed square dancers led by Bill Bean, will entertain at 7 p.m. following the cookout.

There will be two sittings, one at 5 p.m., the other at 6 p.m. Guests of residents are welcome to attend.

A bus trip to Portsmouth, N.H. has been planned for Friday, Aug. 22. Residents will leave 1000 Southern Artery at 10 a.m., stopping at Yoken's Restaurant for luncheon. The rest of the afternoon will be spent on a two and one-half hour tour of the Isles of Shoals on the Viking Queen, a 385-passenger vessel.

Return time to Quincy is 6:30 p.m.

Patricia O'Hare, organist at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, will entertain at the Tuesday, Aug. 12 birthday party. The party will begin at 2 p.m. in the auditorium.

In the evening, Debbie Wellman will demonstrate the art of sand craft in Classroom 3 beginning at 8 p.m. Anyone wishing to create a sand item that night should bring a clear-glass, small-sized container, a paint brush or knitting needle, two or three bags of colored sand and a spoon. The only expense is for the materials purchased.

"The Heart Is A Lonely Hunter" will be the featured film Monday, Aug. 11. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

New Summer Program For Jewish Teenagers

The Teen Department of the South Area Jewish Community Center has launched a new summer program for teenagers in grades 9 through 12.

The group will plan various activities for the Sundays during the summer. The teens have already held a record hop and they spent one Sunday afternoon swimming at Horseneck Beach and riding the roller coaster at Lincoln Park.

Other activities planned for Sundays include a canoe trip, a movie night, Maccabiah and an overnight at Camp Grossman.

'Why Were People Left Stranded?'

Tobin Asks MBTA Communications Probe In Crash

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin has asked for a legislative investigation of failures in the MBTA's communications systems during Friday's three-train rush hour collision near Charles Street station in Boston.

Four agencies, the Massachusetts Public Utilities Department, the Federal Railway Administration, the National Transportation Safety

Board and the MBTA itself, already are probing the crash.

"The federal agencies are concentrating on the safety devices," said Tobin, "and if we let the MBTA investigate alone who knows what management might sweep under the rug."

"I want to know why people were left stranded in stations up ahead after we spent thousands of dollars on a speaker system designed to handle just such emergencies.

"I should think someone would have had the common sense to get on the PA system and warn people in the other stations. Some were stranded for a long time without knowing what was going on."

"There was a mob scene at Charles Street station. People in the station couldn't get upstairs to get out. Yet other people were still putting their quarters in the turnstiles and coming in.

"Was there no one to shut off the turnstile? Didn't anyone think to say, 'Hey, there's an accident up ahead. The trains aren't running?'"

"We have a lot of high salaried guys up there, voting themselves big pensions, cutting out dime time, and they weren't able to tell people what was going on. Someone was not doing his job."

"It leaves a poor taste in the minds of the people in the 79 cities and towns who are footing the bill for the MBTA. It leaves a lot to be desired."

About 150 people received hospital attention following the collision of a Quincy-bound train and two trains headed for Ashmont station. About 1,200 passengers were evacuated from the tunnel.

Seek Possible Millions Of Dollars In Damages

Former Quincy Man Sues Race Tracks On 'Exotic Wagering' Devices

By TOM HENSHAW

Race tracks throughout the United States could possibly be assessed millions of dollars in damages under terms of copyright infringement suits filed on behalf of Lucio P. Salvucci, a former West Quincy grocer.

Salvucci, 62, who now lives in East Weymouth, claims that he invented and holds copyrights to such "exotic wagering" devices as Superfecta, Big Perfecta, Trifecta, Tri-2 and Tri-3-Double, and Big Quinella.

The suits were filed for Salvucci by Quincy Atty. Stephen T. Keefe Jr., in U.S. District Courts in Massachusetts, Vermont, New York and New Hampshire.

The New Hampshire suit is a class action that includes not only the Granite State's tracks and racing association but "all other persons and organizations similarly situated and wherever located within the United States," and using the wagering devices.

"We are seeking a permanent injunction to prevent the tracks from using the copyrighted material and money damages from the profits the tracks have realized," said Keefe.

Keefe said the suit could involve millions of dollars.

Salvucci said that he devised the betting systems based on sequence of finish in a race nearly 15 years ago and obtained copyrights in 1962 and 1963 on five of them.

He said he attempted to sell the systems to the tracks in the early 1960's but was unsuccessful. Later, he said, the tracks adopted the systems on their own.

Co-plaintiff in the class action suit is Salvucci's wife, Linda.

Massachusetts tracks named in the suit include Revere Racing Association (Wonderland), Bay State Harness Horse Racing and Breeding Association (Foxboro), Taunton Greyhound Association (Taunton) and Massachusetts Greyhound Association (Raynham).

Oppose Filling 30 Acres

Delahunt-Brownell Seek

To Stop Second HN Sewage Plant

Reps. William D. Delahunt and Thomas F. Brownell will sponsor special legislation that would prohibit construction by the MDC of a secondary sewage treatment plant in Houghs Neck.

The MDC is considering such a plant to relieve the overloaded Nut Island primary sewage treatment facility also in Houghs Neck.

Delahunt said the proposal to fill about 30 acres off Houghs Neck for the plant would reduce the beach available to residents and would subject them to "noxious odors" from the plant.

"In addition, the entire Quincy Bay and coastline area would be subject to change of currents thereby creating potential environmental damage to the entire area," said Delahunt.

Brownell and Delahunt admitted that dramatic steps are needed to halt pollution in Quincy Bay but they insisted that "such construction not involve Houghs Neck or the city of Quincy."

Delahunt said that he and Brownell formulated their opposition to the plant in Houghs Neck after conferring with City Councillor Leo Kelly, long a vigorous opponent of the facility.

All three said that their relations with the MDC had improved considerably since the appointment of John Snedeker as commissioner.

Delahunt said he feels Snedeker will respect the wishes of the people of Quincy but, he added, "it would be a long term guarantee that no new construction would occur in Houghs Neck if legislation were filed and approved."

Aug. 4 Birthdate

Quincy Family Tradition

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Taylor of Quincy are the parents of a girl, Stacey Beth, born Monday, Aug. 4 at 10:29 a.m. in Quincy City Hospital, under unusual circumstances.

Stacey Beth, following what seems to be a family tradition, was born on her mother's birthday, Aug. 4. Mrs. Taylor was also born on her mother's birthday, Aug. 4.

Delivered by Dr. David Goodman, she is the couple's first child, and the grandparents first granddaughter.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Saul Sherman of Hull.

Mrs. Taylor exclaimed the birth was coincidence, "incredible" and "just one of those things."

Judge Kramer-QCBPA: The Right Approach

Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court, and the downtown Quincy business community got together the other day in a unique if not historic meeting.

The Quincy Center Business and professional Association extended the invitation following criticism from some of its members that Judge Kramer was conducting a "too liberal court"—a court hesitant to convict.

Judge Kramer accepted the invitation with enthusiasm. It gave him the opportunity to meet with his critics—to listen to them, and to have them hear his side. And out of it, maybe, come a better understanding.

A rise in shoplifting, bad checks and other thefts from stores and other businesses is a major concern of the QCBPA members.

And the word along Hancock St. was that when the thieves were caught and brought to Quincy District Court, they usually got a tap on the wrist as their penalty and were free to go out and do it all over again.

But Judge Kramer had some information to refute that. He estimated that 90 percent of those who appear in the Quincy Court do not come back a second time. Of the 10 percent of repeaters, he said 3 to 4 percent actually serve time in jail.

"The attitude and policy of this court is to protect the community," Judge Kramer said. "You can't let them all off and you can't send them all away.

"I like to emphasize rehabilitation in the early stages. You can't mow them all down and send them to jail, jail tends to congregate people and kids learn habits from the real pros. They learn crime in prison. If you send them all away, you'll graduate criminals."

You send them to jail, he noted, when individuals show no interest in rehabilitation or respect for the court. It gives them a taste of jail and they don't like it. He called it a "shock-treatment approach."

But Judge Kramer had more than mere words for the QCBPA members. He offered to work with them in a plan of action.

One, formation of a so-called "100 Club" may get mixed reaction.

He asked 100 businesses to give him 100 hours. Under the program, convicted shoplifters would earn dismissal of their case by "working off" the offense at one of the stores.

The individual would be allowed to keep one-third of the amount of money he earned and two-thirds of it would go to pay for the goods he had stolen.

"Hopefully, the store or business would want to keep the individual on after completion of the 100 hours," Judge Kramer said. "If you give him a chance to earn his dismissal, chances are he will turn around."

Judge Kramer also offered to sponsor a free training seminar for store employees instructing them on proper identification and procedures and precautions to cut down on the number of bad checks being passed locally.

Also, he said, in September the court will implement a specific time schedule for cases so that businessmen who must testify in cases will not have to be tied up a good part of a day.

Judge Kramer also invited businessmen to meet with him and other members of the court on a Monthly basis and for them to attend court sessions and evaluate court procedures.

Judge Kramer frankly conceded that the programs are not a "cure-all" for the problems facing the business community. We agree.

But it is a big step in the right direction.

What he is doing is opening a direct line of communication between the "liberal" court and the "conservative" business community.

Both Judge Kramer and the QCBPA are to be congratulated on this relationship milestone.

Both will gain from it. And maybe a few youthful offenders might get straightened out early enough to be "turned around" instead of "turned off."

Taxpayers Assn. Directors Oppose Height Limitation

The Board of Directors of the Quincy Taxpayers Association has voted against plans to impose building height limitations in areas of the city where there are no limitations now.

It would, the Board concluded, "grossly discourage future development interest in the city of Quincy."

"We appreciate the emotional feelings of concerned citizens that their city may be overpopulated by tall buildings," said the QTA's executive director, Harry E. Roemer.

"However, the association has confidence in the planning department's recommendations and the final decision which remains with the City Council."

The Board's vote was unanimous following a presentation by Geoffrey Davidson, the city's planning director.

"Developers are interested in a profitable venture for themselves and their tenants," the Board said in a statement.

"The city should certainly be interested in the overall plans of the effect and profit to the city and ultimately the taxpayers."

BRAT To Meet

At Chamber

The Fore River Bridge Replacement Action Team will meet today [Thursday] at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at 8 a.m.

The Committee will review recommendations of the Department of Public Works regarding the necessity of an environmental impact statement related to the Fore River Bridge.

Members of the Action Team are:

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Senator Allan McKinnon, co-chairmen, Congressmen James A. Burke and Gerry Studds, Rep. William Connell, and representatives from the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development, Weymouth Conservation Commission, Quincy Conservation Commission, Massachusetts Department of Public Works, Ward 2 Civic Association, Local 5, IWMWSA, AFL-CIO, Massachusetts Department of Natural Resources and General Dynamics.

Sheets To Meet With Ward 4 Residents

City Councillor James A. Sheets will meet Wednesday, Aug. 13, from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in City Hall with Ward 4 residents who have questions about the flood plain zone.

Richard Meade of the Planning Department, a specialist on flood insurance and flood plain zoning, also will be present to field questions.

Letters were sent to individual residents of the Ward 4 flood plain zone informing them of the meeting, which is for Ward 4 residents only.

Guy Faiella Patient At Hospital

Guy S. Faiella, chairman of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars is a patient at New England Medical Center, Boston.

Faiella was readmitted two weeks ago after a week of recuperation from hand surgery.

The 70-year old registrar and his wife, Catherine are still planning a lengthy vacation when Faiella is released from the hospital.

Wollaston Drugstore Becomes Howard Johnson Company

By PAUL HAROLD

Howard D. Johnson who took over the Walker Barlow Drug Company of Wollaston announced this week that the business's name would be change to the Howard D. Johnson Company.

Johnson, a well-known Quincy boy, is the son of the late John H. Johnson, proprietor of the Johnson Company, makers of the Y.D. Johnson's Private Stock and Girard Cigars.

Since taking over the Walker Barlow store and newspaper delivery service, Johnson has done an exceptional job in the delivery of newspapers. He has encouraged good service by his delivery boys by offering a number of prizes throughout the year.

MAYOR BARBOUR PROTESTS PHONE RATES

Mayor Perley Barbour sent a letter to Governor Fuller voicing his protest against the recent increase in rates by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. Barbour called the new rates "unfair, unnecessary and therefore unfair."

Monthly rates increased from $2.25 to $3.25.

LABRECQUE DEFENDS CUTTING SEA ST. TREES

Rep. Alfred LaBrecque in a letter to a local newspaper defended his proposal to cut down the elms along Sea St. LaBrecque said it was necessary to remove the trees from the center of the roadway from Merrymount to Adams Shore because of the dangerous condition the trees presented to the auto traffic.

As an alternative to cutting down the trees, LaBrecque suggested that the hazardous condition could be eliminated if the street railway company would remove its tracks from one side of Sea St. and instead run buses to Houghs Neck.

HOUSING CORPORATION TO SELL POINT LAND

The U.S. Housing Corporation announced that it was ready to put its remaining properties in Quincy Point on the market.

The vacant land was in three separate tracts, the largest known as the Dormitory section, was bounded by Cleverly Ct., Chubbuck St., Sixth and Lawrence Avenues. The other tracts were located near the government school and Baker Basin.

SANDBERG'S "BATH TUB" DEDICATED

The Black's River basin dam at the Black's River bridge was dedicated in ceremonies this week. The basin inside the dam was dubbed Sandberg's Bath Tub because it was Rep. Sandberg who secured the funds for construction of the dam.

The dedication ceremonies were held in connection with the first annual field day of the Scandinavian Sons and Daughters at Pageant Field.

DEATH OF SPARGO NOTED BY CITY COUNCIL

Shortly before the City Council adjourned, President Charles Ross called the attention of the council to the recent death of William Spargo.

Spargo was editor and publisher of the Quincy Telegram. He operated a job printing plant near his home on Roberts St. in South Quincy and 17 years ago started publishing the Telegram. Funeral services for Spargo were conducted at Christ Episcopal Church by the Rev. Mr. Birch of Wollaston.

Voter Registration Down, But Democrats Still Up

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy, a once-upon-a time Republican stronghold, is now a Democratic political fortress, with the Dems getting stronger each year.

Total voter registration in the city as of July 1 was 45,416—down 146 from last year.

But the Democrats are up—26,983—some 1,796 over last year.

Republicans continue to slip in number. From 8,353 last year to 7,846 this year. Down: 507.

Independents have also decreased from 12,022 a year ago to 10,587 this year. A loss of 1,435.

So Democrats now outnumber Republicans by 19,137 and Independents by 16,396.

Female voters have slightly dipped in number from last year despite all women's lib and that kind of stuff but they still have a comfortable numerical margin over male voters. There are now 25,005 female voters registered compared to 25,289 last year. A drop of 284. But leaving 4,594 more women than men voters.

Quincy went Democratic in 1961 and since then each year more and more go into the Democratic camp while Republicans seem on their way to becoming the political vanishing American.

To give you an idea of how Quincy's political picture has changed, the city was still Republican in 1960, but going the other way.

There were 13,665 Republicans that year to 12,160 Democrats and 16,391 Independents. In 1961 the breakdown was Democrats 14,861, Republicans 13,310 and Independents 18,070.

So since then, Democrats have gained 12,122 while Republicans have lost 5,464 and Independents have decrease 7,483.

Incidentally, those figures on female voters will probably encourage the several women who are running for mayor, council and school committee seats this year.

If the gals all banded together actually went to the polls, and voted an all female ticket, Quincy would have a woman mayor, about three women city councillors and a woman school committee member.

But little chance of a female sweep. It's pretty tough trying to get two women to agree on anything never mind 25,000 of them.

ONE POLITICAL OBSERVER challenges our observation last week that mayoralty contender Joseph LaRaia seems to have more campaign bumper stickers in circulation than any other candidate. Claims School Committeeman Harold Davis, candidate for city councillor-at-large tops everyone in that department. And that Mayor Walter Hannon has just as many as LaRaia. [Well, does it really matter? Bumper stickers can't vote].

SHE'S 18 and pretty and you probably have seen her scooping ice cream at Baskin-Robbins in Quincy Sq. Her name is Colleen and she's the daughter of owner Jack Kerrigan and his wife, Florence.

She modeled along with Jeanne Anne Rathgeb and Janice Lamparelli, Miss Quincy Bay of 1975 and 1974 at the mini fashion show during the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association luncheon meeting last week.

And she's in the August issue of Seventeen Magazine modelling fall fashions for Jordan Marsh. She plans to model part-time while attending Bridgewater State College majoring in anthropology. She wants to eventually become an archeologist.

SPEAKING OF Miss Quincy Bay, here's one of those real nice-person stories. Ann Marie Lopez, 20, of Bates St., Hull, had to drop out of this year's pageant because of being suddenly hospitalized.

Lillie Splaine, 16, of Medway St., Houghs Neck, one of the contestants read about Ann Marie's hospitalization in The Sun. And on the night of the pageant sent Ann Marie a beautiful bouquet of summer flowers and a card. Lillie never mentioned it to anyone. But Ann Marie revealed it after returning home: "She was so thoughtful."

IF THAT CAR around town with Japanese plates on it puzzles you, here's the solution: It belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ball who have been working for the U. S. government in Tokyo for the past three years or so. She is the daughter of School Committeeman and Mrs. John Sullivan of Wollaston. The Balls are being transferred to Washington, D.C. and are taking the car with them.

SMILE DEPT: Judge Albert Kramer, new presiding justice of Quincy District Court, has been criticized by some for conducting a "liberal" court with emphasis more on rehabilitation rather than penalty.

Judge Kramer, speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association last week quipped:

"When I was appointed, your mayor [Walter Hannon] responded by issuing machine guns to the police."

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

REFUSED:

This State Department Abolished

By ERIC SWIDER

As part of our on going effort to make the South Shore a more attractive business location, we have been doing some CIA type work recently to determine what other states are doing to attract industrial businesses.

Lots of worthwhile inducements, and some not so worthwhile, will be the subject of another column but an inquiry aimed at the California Department of Commerce & Development came back unopened with a big, red rubber stamp emblazoned on its front... "Returned to Writer...REFUSED...This State Department Abolished."

Now I've been reading some pretty interesting things about California's new Governor Edmund Brown, Jr., but this direct communication from him hit me with both amusement and wonder. First of all, how can anyone - even a reform Governor - go about abolishing departments of government; and secondly, what will happen to commerce and development in California without that operation.

I realize that the same type of traditions don't exist about government there as they do here, so maybe I can understand how his meat "cleaver" can lop away parts of the body of government rather than trimming fat. But eliminating a State Department of government - Inconceivable.

I reviewed the proposed Program of Work of our own Massachusetts Department of Commerce & Development as submitted this year, to rationalize their $2.3 million budget request, to find out what California might be giving up. It was developed before the current Commissioner came into the job and, at best, it is a pitiful exercise in justification and rationalization.

My first discovery was that the request was down about $1 million from the year before, when, as I recall, they consistently talked about lack of adequate resources to do their job. As I delved more deeply into the rational for the Department's continuation, I found, among other things, that in the year just passed, the Department has handled 254,000 individual inquiries. That's 1000 a day. They serviced requests for such things as highway maps, posters, lodging information, camping, skiing and touring brochures. This type of information supposedly reached some 320,000 travelers to Massachusetts. Over 175,000 vacation kits were also mailed. A total of 685,000 pieces of literature were sent to potential travelers.

In addition, the Division assisted the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission in the establishment of its major policy statement on plans for the Bicentennial years. Extensive work was done in establishing data on the capacity for visitors services, contingency plans for information dissemination, on advice and assistance programs to communities seeking help in organizing their local activities. Hmmmm.

We are also told that the Department generated 162 different articles in newspapers and magazines, whose dollar value if purchased as advertising would amount to $234,304.35. Such precision, such accuracy cannot be denied. In addition, the Department serviced some 532 individual requests for photography. These requests range from requests by newspaper editors for 50 different scenic or historical photographs of the State to two or three selected colored photos of transparencies.

The Department reports that on the basis of measured space, the photos used amounted to 150,000 lines at 10 cents per line with a $168,000 total value.

The Department also reports that it provided speakers, films and literature to Lions Clubs, Rotary Clubs, Kiwanis and regional tourist councils and that 20 such speaking engagements took place during fiscal 1974. My goodness, that's six less than the South Shore Chamber did and I can't possibly place the value on our 26 speaking engagements last year but I'm sure that the Department will figure out that.

The real hard figures the Department of Commerce & Development indicated were that they received 21,617 industrial inquiries during the last year. They also said that they coordinated activities of all the industrial development commissions, development corporations and Chambers of Commerce.

As the most active economic development force in this marketplace, as I recall, last year we had one contact from Commerce & Development about an industrial prospect. Who in the world did they refer the other 21,616 to? In fact, who are they? They also take credit for placing 98 business journal ads, distributing 147,000 publications, and securing 771,002 square feet in industrial and business expansion, which created 1,500 new manufacturing jobs with $12.9 million in payroll. They generated $573,625 in property tax. My Goodness.

Furthermore, they conducted 28 public seminars [where] and that without their operation, such important events as the U.S.I. golf tournament and programs such as a Bourne Festival, would not have been successfully publicized.

It all of a sudden struck me as I reviewed their justifications, that their new Commissioner John Marino had problems...real problems. By investing $3.28 in a rubber stamp that read, "REFUSED...This State Department Abolished," we might not be able to save $2.3 million but we could at least give him a halfway decent chance of establishing a new department, with new concepts, that might get Massachusetts back to work.

LIVING TODAY

The Compulsion For Completion

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

There seems to be a built-in human characteristic for COMPLETION. Draw a circle ... leave it slightly open ... hand the pencil to your partner ... he/she will have the urge to complete the circle. I knew a man who worked nine years to get his doctor's degree. He didn't need it ... he had started it ... wanted it ... felt compelled to complete it ... and did. Some housewives are neurotic about housecleaning. They clean and clean ... can't stop ... just keep going ... drawers ... cabinets ... closets ... floors ... and they get a good feeling ... the feeling of completion. [more]

I've seen this compulsion in action when it comes to marriage. Harry had been divorced two years. He had met a woman who was also divorced and the relationship grew. The more it grew the more he began to question the wisdom of marrying Helen. A couple of big problems puzzled him. One was that she was a spender. Her father had given her money freely. Her first husband loved her so much that he too gave her all he could, working two jobs to keep up with the demands. Now as Harry dates Helen he follows this same pattern of taking her to the best places ... costly week-ends ... bringing her expensive gifts. He knew he couldn't keep up this pace. But he also knew that a pattern had been established ...

one that would be difficult to break.

Harry lay awake nights in his modest apartment thinking about how he could keep up with what Helen was used to. Three men had conditioned her to feel that it made them happy to give to her beyond their means. Yet ... he loved Helen. He loved to see her wear the beautiful lingerie he'd given her as they lounged together in the evenings. He loved to see the way she adroitly arranged the roses he had brought ... the way she held the wine glass as she sipped the expensive wine he had supplied ... loved the way she kissed him ... the way she made love ... how could he walk away from this? He was struggling within himself. He couldn't stop. It was as though he was on a toboggan sliding faster and faster down the hill ... unable to stop ... yet knowing he would hit the ravine at the bottom. Harry had to complete this relationship ... he had to marry Helen ... even though disaster resulted.

Harry married Helen. The marriage lasted two years. Harry was financially broken ... emotionally shaken ... no longer loving Helen ... at last she left him.

As much as we respect the person who can complete what he/she starts, the compulsion can have its destructive elements. There's no substitute for reason.

Quinn Asks Traffic Lights Moved To Montclair School

City Councillor-at-large John J. Quinn has requested the re-location of stop lights at an intersection near the Montclair School in North Quincy.

He said the lights, presently located at the intersection of Montclair Ave. and West Squantum St., would better serve the community if located at the intersection of West Squantum St. and Division St., next to the Montclair School.

Quinn noted the Montclair Men's Club has endorsed the proposed light re-location.

'Spirit' Lesson-Sermon At Christian Science

The Christian Science Lesson-Sermon Sunday is on the subject of God as SPIRIT.

Scriptural passages include John 4:23 "But the hour cometh and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship Him."

First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St. holds church services and Sunday School at 10 a.m. during July and August.

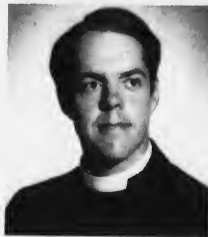

Rev. C. David Burt Named Clinton Church Rector

Rev. C. David Burt, summer assistant at Christ Church, Quincy, and past Seminarian Assistant at St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston, has accepted the rectorship of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd in Clinton, Mass.

Fr. Burt will begin his duties Sunday, Aug. 17 and will be formally installed as rector in September.

He has been a clergyman in the Diocese of Massachusetts for seven years. His new assignment will be his first Rectorship.

During his seminary years at

REV. C. DAVID BURT

Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge Fr. Burt served as Seminarian Assistant at St. Chrysostom's Church in Quincy. He was ordained to the Diaconate by Bishop Stokes in 1968 and to the Priesthood in 1969.

He has served as Assistant Minister at Christ Church, Waltham and at Trinity Church, Concord.

During the month of July he has been filling in on Sundays at Christ Church Quincy while the Rector of that church is on vacation.

Vacation Bible School At Glad Tidings Church Aug. 11-15

Glad Tidings Church of 158 Washington St. will hold its annual Vacation Bible School during the week of Monday, Aug. 11.

Official registration will take place Monday and Tuesday.

This year's theme will be "Clap Your Hands, Jesus Is Alive." Classes will be held for children aged four to 12 from 7-9 p.m. Pastor William McPherson said:

"It is our intent to point children from the ages of four to 12 into a deeper and closer understanding of what Jesus should mean in their young lives - that Jesus' promises of salvation are just as real today as they were nearly 2,000 years ago."

A Bible-centered curriculum will be used in conjunction with handicrafts, music, Bible lessons, games and stories.

Actively participating in the school will be Jane Fountain, director; Mary Fountain, music director; Verna McPherson, pianist; Karen Rydwansky, craft director; Joyce MacNeil, assistant craft director; William McPherson, transportation; Frank Rydwanski, Jr., registration and administration; Frank Souther, assistant registration director; Donald R. 3 Major Appointments At Colony, Inc.

Colony, Inc. (formerly Colony Welding Supply, Inc.) Quincy-based distributor of industrial, medical and specialty gases as well as welding equipment and supplies, recently announced three major appointments within the firm.

William V. Raszka of Duxbury, formerly senior vice-president, has been named executive vice-president and general manager. Raszka, a native of Webster, holds a degree in engineering from W.P.I. and a

M.B.A. from Temple University.

Mrs. Lee Marini of Quincy, assistant treasurer, has been named to the additional position of controller. She will supervise all accounting, data processing and credit functions within the company.

William A. Riley of Norton has been appointed manager of Colony's Propane Gas Division, Colony-Monarch Gas Service. He was formerly a Colony sales representative.

The promotions were announced by Gary Blake, President and John Blake, Treasurers.

Colony, Inc. is one of New England's largest welding supply distributors, representing such prominent manufacturers as Union Carbide, Lincoln Electric Company, Westinghouse and Mallory. In addition to the Quincy headquarters the firm maintains branch operations in Brockton and Walpole and distributes its products throughout New England but primarily in the eastern Massachusetts market.

Norfolk County Trust To Become BayBank Norfolk County Trust Co.

The Norfolk County Trust Company will have a new name before the year is out.

It'll be BayBank Norfolk County Trust Company.

Baystate Corporation of Boston, a bank holding company which owns Norfolk, is changing its name to BayBank, Inc., and adding the prefix BayBank to the names of its 10 affiliated banks in eastern Massachusetts.

The name change needs the approval of Baystate Corporation stockholders and the state and federal governments.

"The proposed changes will identify each of the Baystate banks in the eastern Massachusetts area with the others and with the holding company but in such a way that each bank retains its historical identity," said a spokesman for Baystate.

Merrymount Church Rectory Sold For $52,000

Construction will begin this week on a new $84,500 rectory for Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount.

Designed by Joseph Cicco, the rectory will be built by L. E.

Vito Barrasi, president of President Real Estate, 44 Billings Rd., North Quincy, has been named a dean for the Fall 1975 Realtors' Institute of Massachusetts.

Barrasi will serve as Dean of Eckblom Builder, Inc. of North Quincy on vacant land near the church. Completion date is scheduled for late in the year.

Flavin & Flavin Realtors of Quincy sold the present rectory

Course I at the Institute program to be held at the Lantana in Randolph October 6-10. A graduate course will be held at the Framingham Motor Inn, October 14-16.

Courses are open to all to Arthur and Mary Lou Sutliff for $52,000.

Under the agreement the parish priests and housekeeper will live in the rectory until the new one is completed.

realtors and realtor-associates. Real estate brokers and salesmen may attend Course I only.

The Institute is part of the continuing professional education programs presented by the Association.

Hancock Group Reports 5 Per Cent Deposit Increase

Hancock Group, Inc., and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Hancock Bank, report a five per cent increase in deposits for the first six months of this year compared with total deposits on June 30, 1974.

William E. Kelley said that deposits increased from $75,142,732.00 on June 30, 1974, to $78,929,833.00 on June 30 this year. He said that an increase of 6.3 per cent in assets was recorded. Assets on June 30, 1975, totaled $89,852,833.00, up $5,035,109.00 over the same period a year ago.

Consolidated net income was slightly lower at $400,979.00 or $1.43 per share for the first six months this year compared to $433,037.00 or $1.55 a share for the same six months last year.

Hancock Bank, headquartered in Quincy, has 15 offices throughout Norfolk County.

MONEY TALKS Sales Were Up In '74 But Something Was Wrong

By Philip J. Lawrence President
Colonial Federal Savings
And Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Retail sales in 1974 increased 7 per cent. Nondurable goods dollar receipts increased by almost 12 per cent. Sales in supermarkets in 1974 totaled about 13 per cent more than a year ago. The restaurant business was about 10 per cent stronger in 1974.

Sounds good, doesn't it? The trouble in 1974 is contained in a single word—inflation. While retail sales were up 7 per cent, prices for goods purchased over retail counters rose by an average 13 per cent. Thus, retail volume was actually down.

Same thing for the other figures. Nondurable goods prices were up so that the 12 per cent receipts represented a loss of 1.5 per cent in real volume. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, an increase of almost 12 per cent in retail food prices practically erased the gain of 13 per cent in supermarket sales. And while the restaurant business increased 10 per cent in dollar volume, price increases estimated at almost 12 per cent cut down real volume.

1974 was a disappointing year in the apparel trade, according to the National Consumer Finance Association.

Dollar sales went up 5 per cent, but prices increased by approximately 8.5 per cent. Home furnishings retailers also were disappointed when prices rose 11 per cent but dollar sales volume increased by only 7 per cent.

Price tags on appliances were running some 6 per cent above 1973 levels, but retail dollar sales volume was up only 3 per cent.

Approximately 7.5 million domestically made cars were bought by consumers last year, a decrease of more than 20 per cent compared to a year ago. The dollar volume of automotive dealers, which included revenues from sales of both new and used vehicles and repair and servicing operations, was off by more than 8 per cent. This despite the fact that prices were up.

Consumer buying plans for the next six months decreased sharply in a November-December 1974 survey by The Conference Board. Plans to buy automobiles fell 14.8 per cent. Consumer interest in appliances also declined, the largest losses concentrating in refrigerators, washing machines, and color TVs. Vacation plans were off more than 10 per cent.

WOLLASTON

NUMBER ONE -- The Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome raised $800 - the largest amount in the state - for the Muscular Dystrophy Association [MDA], in the recent "Match The Stars" contest coordinated by the Mass. Bowling Association. Standing, from left, Joel Southworth, manager of the Bowladrome; Andelo DelGreco of Quincy executive committee member and co-chairman of the Patient Service Committee at the Southern Mass. MDA Chapter; and Dave Dackers, staff member at the Bowladrome. Seated is Mike Godfrey of Quincy, member of the Southern Mass. Chapter of the MDA and a regular bowler at the bowladrome.

Dorothy Quincy Home Now Open To Visitors

The Quincy Homestead, childhood home of Dorothy Quincy who married John Hancock in 1775, is now open for public visiting seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Homestead, located on Butler Rd, Quincy Center [but listed officially as being at 1010 Hancock St.] was initially constructed in the 1680's by Colonel Edmund Quincy, with major additions being made in the early 18th century.

It is owned by the MDC and maintained, furnished and administered by the National Society of Colonial Dames of America.

Guided tours of the Quincy Homestead are available daily.

Guides are unpaid volunteers living in or around Quincy, and including housewives, retired persons, and high school students.

The MDC conducted an extensive program of structural repairs last year and, with the Colonial Dames, added extensive landscaping improvements this spring.

A tour of the Quincy Homestead offers Bicentennial visitors an opportunity to view the handsome furnishings of two centuries and a substantial assortment of fascinating architectural features.

The Quincy Homestead will remain open for visitors until Nov. 1.

2 Firefighters Elected To High MDA Posts

Two Quincy firefighters have been named to high posts in the Southern Massachusetts Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

Angelo Del Greco was elected to the executive committee and William Lowry was re-elected second vice president at the group's annual meeting at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

Delahunt Backs Mited Campaign Financing System

Rep. William Delahunt, member of the Election Laws Committee, said he will support a mixed system of public and private campaign financing for six statewide constitutional offices.

Delahunt expressed support for such a system in a recent conversation with Common Cause citizen lobbyist Christine Keegan of North Quincy.

Common Cause strongly supports an upcoming bill affecting campaign financing for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, treasurer and auditor.

The bill, recently reported out favorably from the Election Laws Committee, provides for a public campaign fund through a one dollar check-off on the Mass. state income tax form. A two dollar check-off contribution can be made on a joint return.

To qualify for 50 per cent public financing in both primary and general elections, a candidate must raise from 15-25 per cent of his spending limit in private contributions of $250 or less. Spending limits are delineated in the bill.

This provision discourages abuse of public campaign funding by frivolous, unbacked candidates since users of these public funds must show substantial voter support through collection of private contributions, Delahunt said.

Quinn Suggests Pumping Station At Forbes Hill

City Councillor-at-large John J. Quinn has suggested installation of a water pumping station on city-owned land at the old Forbes Hill Reservoir to solve the problem of low water pressure on Forbes Hill.

Quinn said indications are the present water pressure on Forbes Hill is only eight pounds, well below the safety factor of 28 pounds. He introduced a resolve calling for a study of the water pressure there.

Harold O'Rourke Memorial Art Exhibit At N. Q. Library

A memorial exhibition of paintings by the late Harold O'Rourke of Wollaston, is being held through August at the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Mr. O'Rourke studied painting with Carmen Ungar, Edward Harrigan, Marshall Joyce and Robert Douglas Hunter. He was a member of the Quincy and Braintree Art Associations, and was also a member of the Museum of Fine Arts. He worked in oil specializing in landscapes and florals, and exhibited frequently in the Braintree and Quincy Art Associations.

1,500 Sailors To Compete During Quincy Race Week

QUINCY Sports Section

Thursday, August 7, 1975 Quincy Sun Page 17

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy Bay Race Week, now underway for its 38th year, has become a popular water sports showcase and spectacular.

A year ago more than 400 boats and some 1,500 sailors competed in the daily events and social activities. Race Week Association President, Kenneth Lavers, a past commodore of the Quincy Yacht Club, estimates this year's entries will number at least the same.

Boys, girls, men and women of all ages will be among the competitors.

Racing is being held each day from one of the participating yacht clubs. Racing got underway Wednesday at Town River.

Today [Thursday] Braintree and Squantum will be co-hosts at Squantum, Friday Wollaston will be host, Saturday will be Quincy's day and Metropolitan and Wessagussett will co-host the races at Wessagussett, Sunday.

Friday night the Gala Night will be held at the Quincy club and Rendezvous Night will be held Saturday at Town River.

The colorful Marine Parade will be held Sunday, starting at noon with the boats leaving Town River.

Sailors Of All Ages Compete For Han some Trophies

QUINCY YACHT CLUB officers are Vice Commodore Jerry Maguire, Commodore Phil Goodwin and Rear Commodore John Rounseville.

Sailors of all ages, boys, girls, men and women, will compete for a number of handsome and coveted trophies during Quincy Bay Race Week.

The Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy was presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Alfred W. Finlay in memory of his son.

He did much during his lifetime to advance the sport of yachting on Mass. Bay and the trophy is awarded annually to the yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some signal act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

The Howard Gannett trophy has been presented each year since 1954 in memory of Howard Gannett, who served for more than 50 years as secretary of the Race Committee and was a member of the Race Committee from 1938 until his death in 1953. It is presented to the race week winner in a class to be selected by the committee.

The Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy is a perpetual award presented annually since 1966 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the late yachting editor who served for more than three decades.

The trophy is presented to the skipper who has proven his ability in the Race Week series, has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship, and the willingness to help others in the advancement of yacht racing. It is held one year by the home club of the recipient, who receives a replica for his permanent possession.

The Reynolds Memorial Trophy was presented to the QBRWA in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter of and a skipper in the Day Sailor Class until his death in 1965.

The trophy is awarded annually and is held by the winner for a year until race week of the following year when it is returned to the association. A suitable engraved keeper trophy is being awarded each year to the winner of the previous year for his permanent possession.

Two handsome trophies have been presented by Frank E. Remick to the committee to stimulate interest in cruising type sailboats. The Remick Ocean Race is divided into two fleets, Fleet 1 for boats 26 to 45 feet overall and Fleet 2 for those 17 feet to 26 feet overall.

The City of Boston Bermuda Cup, in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for more than 50 years, was presented by the City of Boston for a yacht race from Boston to Bermuda.

The 1300 Trophy has been presented annually since 1960 to the QBRWA by Radio Station WJDA to demonstrate its great interest in Race Week and to stimulate racing interest among the juniors. This beautiful trophy becomes the permanent possession of the winning skipper in the popular Turnabout Class.

The Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy was presented for the first time last year by the Commonwealth National Bank of Boston. It will be presented annually to a Race Week winner. He will be presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy was presented to the QBRWA and the Town River Yacht Club in 1968 by the Warner Family as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by cruising type trimarans. It is annually engraved and is held by the winner until Race Week the following year when it is returned to the association. A suitable keeper trophy is to be awarded to the winner for his permanent possession.

BEST OF LUCK

Ocean Races Saturday, Sunday

Two successive days of ocean racing sponsored by the Quincy Bay Race Week Association to stimulate continued interest in the cruising type of sailboat are set for this weekend.

The Frank E. Remick ocean race will be held Saturday in two fleets, so popular has this attraction become. Fleet 1 consists of boats from 26 feet overall length to 45 feet overall and Fleet 2 for boats from 17 feet waterline length to under 26 feet overall.

In 1959 the trophy was presented to the QBRWA by Frank E. Remick for competition between ocean racing sailboats. Because of the large number of boats competing it was decided to divide the race into two fleets. Remick again presented the association with a second trophy for the Fleet 2 winner.

Last year Dan Mullane of Cottage Park won the Fleet 1 honors and Ron Gaudet of Savin Hill won the Fleet 2 race.

The Bermuda Cup, a silver punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for more than a half century. It was presented by the City of Boston in 1905 for a Boston to Bermuda race which was never held.

In 1911 the city again placed the cup in competition to become the permanent possession of the winner. That race was won by Hollis Burgess in his sloop, Marie L.

Burgess made the Quincy Y.C. the trustee of the silver bowl to be placed in competition. In 1968 the Quincy Y. C. presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition.

Last year's winner was Jerry Marcus of Lewis Wharf, Boston.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy race will be held Sunday, after the start of the Boston to Bermuda Cup race. Taking part in this contest will be cruising type trimarans. In all the races the trophies will be held by the winners until Race Week of the following year when they will be returned to the association. An engraved keeper trophy will be awarded each winner for his permanent possession.

These rugged, vinyl-covered VHF-FM Marine Radio Telephones are splash-proof, and impact, humidity and fungus resistant. They are the end-products of the same highly skilled engineering that produces precision radio equipment for aviation applications.

The completely self-contained all solid-state units produce maximum reliability and performance, and are pre-tuned for easy, legal, do-it-yourself installation. They can be panel mounted or, with the universal mounting bracket included, placed on or below table top or mounted on a bulkhead. An anti-theft device is included at no extra charge.

The radiotelephones have transmit indicator lights, and harbor switches to cut maximum power to one watt for in-harbor use (as required by law). They provide maximum power with minimum power drain, and operate on standard 12 V DC electrical systems.

All GENAVE instruments are made in the U.S.A., in U.S. Government inspected facilities, to ensure adherence to the highest manufacturing standards, and are FCC Type Accepted.

Colorful Marine Parade Climaxes QBRW Sunday

One of the most colorful marine spectacles and unique in yachting events will be the Marine Parade which will pass near enough to the shoreline to be viewed by many South Shore residents.

It will start Sunday, Aug. 10, at noon at Town River Yacht Club overlooking Town River. Leading the flotilla of boats will be the Quincy Police Boat, Alert, under the command of Leo Luciani.

The parade will proceed past the Quincy Yacht Club and Nut Island, going through the West Gut; along Manet Beach, Post Island, Wollaston Beach, to the Squantum Yacht Club.

Al Shaughnessy is chief marshal and Torey Montesi parade chairman.

As in the past, trophies and prizes will be awarded and presented at a later date to the most attractively decorated power boats. This year the City of Quincy is presenting a Quincy Heritage Cup to the best decorated boat, with the theme "Quincy Bay Yesterday and Today". John Graham is executive director of Quincy Heritage.

Invitations have been extended to all 68 yacht clubs in Massachusetts to participate.

Gala, Rendezvous Nights Social Highlights Of Week

Two outstanding social events are among the traditional highlights of Quincy Bay Race Week.

Gala Night will be held Friday at Quincy Yacht Club, senior yacht racing unit in Boston Bay, featuring a surprise program starting at 9 p.m.

President Ken Lavers of the Quincy Bay Race Week Association, and Commodore Phil Goodwin will extend a cordial welcome to all members of the club and visiting yachtsmen and their guests. A special menu has been arranged to be followed by entertainment and dancing.

Race Week officers in addition to Lavers, include Patrick Conroy, vice president; Edward Simpson, secretary, and David Maloney, treasurer. Aides to Commodore Goodwin will be Rear Commodore John Rounseville and Vice Commodore Jerry Maguire.

The second event will be Rendezvous Night Saturday at 9 p.m. at Town River Yacht Club with dancing for skippers and crews. President Lavers and his staff of officers of the Quincy Bay Race Week Committee will be assisted by Commodore Ray Giagrando and his staff in welcoming guests. Memories of previous Race Weeks will be recalled as plans for another successful season next year are discussed.

QBRW: 38 Years Of Tradition

Yachtmen participating in the 38th annual Quincy Bay Race Week, which opened Wednesday for five days, have a tradition of excellence to live up to.

Established in 1938 by the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum clubs who formed the association, Quincy Bay Race Week has been an outstanding success ever since. In the years that followed, Town River and Wessagusset Yacht Clubs joined up to make the event an area success.

Edward P. Shaw of the Wollaston club was the first president. Other officers included Roy McPherson of Quincy, vice president; George Hey of Squantum, treasurer, and Arthur Leavitt, secretary.

Former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin was named honorary chairman and presided over the year's first activities. He provided a trophy for the Adams Class and his successor as honorary chairman, former Boston Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, set up another in 1939. He became governor of the state and was chief of the judges for the Marine parade in 1946 which had the largest number of entries.

In the following years the Merrymount club dissolved and was succeeded in membership by the Wessagusset club. Two years ago the Braintree and Metropolitan clubs were added to the association.

Among the prizes added to the competition are the Remick Trophies and awards in memory of James B. Findlay, Howard Gannett, John Reynolds and Fred Hunt.

Uhlar In Youth Games

Competition

Fifteen-year old Jack Uhlar, a starter last winter for the Quincy High basketball team although only a sophomore, will play with the Greater Boston team in the annual Youth Games being conducted Friday through Sunday in Fort Worth, Texas.

Uhlar, [6-5½] was one of 10 survivors from an original group of 26 who tried out. A center at Quincy, Jack was shifted to forward for the Youth Games because of the presence of 6-9 Brian Watts of Oliver Ames High, North Easton.

The Greater Boston team will face teams from Baltimore, Philadelphia, Detroit, Fort Worth, New York, Pittsburgh, Washington, Newark, Paterson, N.J., among other cities.

O'Brien Club Ousted By Christy And Flat Tire

The O'Brien Club of Quincy, which had the best record in the league, was eliminated Monday night from the YMCA Open Basketball League playoffs when it dropped a 115-98 decision to the Christy Club of Boston.

The Haynes/Crump Bruins of Boston, winner of Division Two, and the Christy Club, runnerup to the Bruins, met Wednesday with a win for the Bruins clinching the double elimination playoffs. A Christy win would necessitate another game Monday at 7:30 at Eastern Nazarene College.

The O'Brien Club, winner of Division One, was forced to play the first half against Christy with only five men as two of its stars, Gary Bowen and Fred Cabral, had a flat tire en route to the game. When they arrived midway in the third period the O'Briens were 15 points behind.

Eddie Miller had 31 points for the O'Brien Club but Joe Defeto had 40 for Christy.

Earlier the Bruins had nipped the O'Brien Club, 110-106, in one of the best of the many games played between the rivals.

Bowen had 25 points, Gene Walcott 22 and Miller 20, all in the second half, for O'Brien. Ken Boyd, the property of the New York Knicks, had 38 for the Bruins.

Christy Club eliminated the Goodless A.C., 105-102.

• Junior League Baseball

Bryan Defeats Remick's To Win Crown, 4-3

Bryan VFW won the Quincy Junior League championship with a 4-3 win over Remick's in the playoff finals as George Richards, VFW coach, won his sixth championship in 24 years as Quincy League coach.

Bruce Tobin turned in another strong pitching performance for VFW as his mates came from behind to score three runs in the final inning for the win. Mike Stranberg pitched well in a losing cause.

Jim Sullivan, who played an outstanding defensive game, and Paul Schaezel collected the key hits in the winning rally. John Todd and Scott Lowell had doubles and John Barrett and Stranberg singles for Remick's.

Remick's had gained the championship series by eliminating Colonial Federal, Houghs Neck and Foley Chrysler-Plymouth.

Remick's edged Colonial Federal, 5-4, in the opening round with pitching aces Todd of Remick's and Mark Millane hooking up. Todd had 12 strikeouts and three walks and Millane struck out 11 and walked two.

Colonial had taken a 3-0 lead on hits by Ed Carroll, Tom Travers, Bill Mullany and Millane. Remick's came back with two in the fourth with Stranberg having the key hit.

Colonial held a 4-2 lead going into the last inning but Todd walked, Barrett singled and Stranberg belted a long triple to tie the score. He scored the winner on a wild pitch.

Colonial had the tying run on with two outs in the bottom of the inning but Lowell saved the bacon with a circus catch of Millane's drive.

Remick's also edged Houghs Neck, 3-2, taking a 1-0 lead in the second on Glenn Segalla's triple and Lowell's single. There was no more scoring until the fifth when HN scored twice. With two outs Matt Kenny singled, Tom McFarland reached on an error and Joe Phelan singled to fill the bases. A wild pitch tied the game and a walk again loaded the bases. Robbie Craig took over on the mound and rocked in a run with a walk.

Remick's came back in the bottom of the inning when Todd singled, Lowell also singled and Todd scored the tying run on an error. Craig set HN down in order in the top of the sixth and Jim Ferrara led off the bottom of the inning by walking. Brian Egan reached on an error and Barrett singled Ferrara home, Ferrara barely beating the throw home.

Remick's advanced to the finals with its third successive one-run win as it squeezed by Foley, 7-6.

Foley's, trailing, 7-2, scored four runs in the last inning and had the tying run at third when the final out was made. The starting and winning pitcher was Todd while Tommy Heffernan pitched well in defeat.

Remick's was sparked by Stranberg with a home run and single, Craig with three singles, Egan and Segalla with two hits each and Todd, Barrett, Lowell and Mike Sullivan with a single each. Tom Canavan and Heffernan each had two hits for Foley and Mike McNiece, Foley, John Kavanaugh, Joe DePietro and Bill Morrill a hit apiece.

Babe Ruth All-Star Game Tonight

The Quincy Babe Ruth League will hold its first all-star game tonight [Thursday] at 8 under the lights at Adams Field.

The American League team is coached by Ray Dunn of Firemen Local 792, assisted by Bob Dinan of VFW and Joe Wilkinson of Firemen.

The American League roster comprises John Wilkinson, Sal Coscia, Gary Oriola, Robert Roberts and Ray Coscia of Firemen; Greg Zola and Fred Kussman of Houghs Neck, Harry Donaghue and Frank Sayers of VFW, Kurt O'Sullivan and Paul Marini of Elks, Peter Niosi and Mike Bondarick of Barry's Deli and Mark Buchana and John Govoni of Bersani Brothers.

Dick Laracy of Police Club is coach of the National League team, assisted by Jack Kelly of Morrisette and Paul King of Hancock Bank.

The roster comprises Ron Donovan, Fran Donovan, John Andrews, Ed Laracy and Rich

Boyle of Police; Rick Gilbody, John Sylva, Bob McCabe and Brian Harding of Morrisette; Mike McCormack, Mark Flaherty and Jack Cronin of Hancock Bank; Steve Cook and Bob Lindenfeltzer of Gino's, Dave Cramond and John Houton of Granite City Electric and Don Perdios and John Fitzgerald of Sons of Italy.

League officials thank Councillor John Quinn, whose efforts brought about the game.

Junior All Stars Win 2 In Tourney

A Quincy Junior Baseball League all-star team, sponsored by Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, entered the 13th annual Greater New Bedford tournament and won its first two games last weekend.

The team returns this weekend to continue its quest for the championship.

Quincy's team includes Scott Lowell, Bob Craig, John Todd, Glenn Segalla, Mark Millane, John Costigan, Gary DiNardo, Jim Sullivan, Ken Mann, Jim

Hensley, Bill Foley, Tom Canavan, Jamie Walsh, Greg Oriola, and Kevin Howlett. Bob Foley is the manager, Pete Capola, Al Lowell and Joe Conti coaches and Joe Conti Jr., bat boy.

Quincy nipped Acushnet, 1-0, last Saturday in its first game with Bill Foley pitching one-hit ball, striking out 15 and walking only one.

DiNardo drove in Oriola with a sacrifice fly for the only run after Oriola had reached third base with some dazzling base running.

Sunday Quincy edged Lowell, 5-4, after overcoming a 4-0 deficit as Lowell scored its four runs in the top of the third.

Sullivan hit a home run in the bottom of the third to start the ball rolling for Quincy and in the fourth Craig's pinch single drove in Millane.

In the fifth Quincy scored three to win it on hits by Sullivan, Oriola, DiNardo, Mann and Foley.

Octavia Cooper Cautious About Sox Pennant Chances

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

She's not making any pennant predictions nor is she wagering any bets.

But Octavia Cooper, wife of Red Sox first baseman and designated hitter Cecil Cooper, combines just the right amount of confidence and caution as she talks of the Red Sox chances of winning the pennant race. Her head was peeking over the top of a dressing room door in Bottom's Up, Quincy Sq., as she said:

"Their chances of winning the pennant are good so far. But you can't tell too much until around Sept. 15. Still, 8½ games ahead now so everybody just better watch out!"

She stepped out of the dressing room in a cow-neck soft-hued fall dress, standing on her tip-toes to get a better idea of the total look.

"I wish I had higher shoes on," she mused, her voice soft and her words slow, retaining a hint of her hometown Breeham, Texas drawl.

The Coopers are new Quincy residents, living on Furnace Ave. for the baseball season. Their neighbors are the Fred Lynns.

The 22-year-old wife of the Red Sox star confides she worries now and then about injuries to her husband. Cooper, sidelined recently with hamstring pull, returned to the Red Sox lineup and hit a game winning home run.

Dressed in a form-fitting and flattering sweater-skirt outfit, Octavia said with wifely wisdom:

"As soon as things are going good, you know what follows, right? An injury." Octavia and Cecil met over three years ago when Octavia was attending Blinn Junior College in Texas. She was enrolled in a nursing program there and Cecil was taking a course or two. A mutual friend turned matchmaker, introduced the two.

Though husband and wife nearly three years now, that of a new bride, keeping an accurate and loving count of the number of days and months married, still lingers.

"We've been married two years and seven months," Octavia stated without an instant's hesitation, with not even a pensive pause to show a mental calculation of the months married.

Helping Bottom's Up to celebrate its second anniversary sale Octavia helped draw the names of winners, including a first prize, rabbit fur jacket.

Back in the store, Octavia was trying on a two-piece sweater set.

"Sure you wouldn't like to work here?" asked store co-owner Cecile Letomey.

"Sure. I'd love to," Octavia replied.

But she'd really rather be sitting in Fenway Park rooting for the Sox.

Carroll Helps Lead South All-Stars To 43-13 Romp

Preston Carroll, former Quincy High standout who last fall led all Quincy and North Quincy football scorers with 77 points including all the points in the Presidents' 14-13 win over North, was a key man last Friday in the South All-Stars' 43-13 romp over the North in the annual Agganis Scholarship game at Newburyport.

Carroll scored two touchdowns, the first on a 24-yard pass from Notre Dame-bound Joe Restic of Milford, and the second on a 47-yard run, one of the most exciting plays of the game.

By JOE MOSESSO

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program has reached its midway point with tremendous success.

Another favorite aquatic program is the instructional swimming program held at 13 city beach locations. Swimming supervisor George Alcott reports some who have passed non-swimmers and moved into beginners ranks are Susan Stanton, Sue Sullivan and Kim Ferguson of Baker Beach; Mound Street's Rick Crisp, Tina Calabra and Chris Gibb; Avalon's Alex Kerr, Jeff Brown and Joe Brandi and Sue Hefton and John McMillan of Edgewater.

Tennis specialists Kevin McGinley and John Franceschini report quite a few youngsters have the potential to win their divisions in the upcoming playground tournament. Some of the tournament hopefuls are Ken and Dave Southwick of Russell Park; LaBrecque's Tim Lotti and Nancy McQuinn; Kim Roder and Nancy Cleary and Joyce Larson and Laura Dupont of Forbes Hill.

Golf specialist Ken Furfari has many youngsters playing at Furnace Brook Golf Course. Some who have impressed him are Jean Fantucchio of Shea Rink; O'Rourke's Billy Goon, Beechwood Knoll's Nancy Smith and Billy Bart of Snug Harbor.

Arts and crafts specialist Paul Coughlin reports "tissue paper flowers" blooming throughout the city last week. The young florists include: Mass Field's Peter Lincoln, Eileen Cronin and Karen Runge; Aileen Peterson, Ken Corliss, Linda White, Debbie Verney, Debbie Harkins, Mike Aboudd and Dave Donnelly.

The ceramics program last week featured an international array of plaques. Some of the better creations reports specialist Andrea Quinn were done by Aileen Peterson, Ken Corliss, Linda White, Debbie Verney, Debbie Harkins, Mike Aboudd and Dave Donnelly.

Drama specialists Theresa Iacovino reports youngsters making puppets in preparation for their respective playground's puppet shows at the end of the summer. Among them are Donna White, Andrea Noble, Beth Barron and Dave Ayler.

Music specialist Kevin Walsh, has a number singing happy tunes. Among them Grasso's Dave Spargo, Al Dubois, Dave Dubois, Andy Pope, Scott Barba, Tim Tobin, Mark Smith, Dave and Pat Krantzburg of Russell Park.

"Robin Hood" Tim Flynn has more bow and arrow marksmen in Snug Harbor's Tim Burke; Mike and Frankie Lupu, Metty Kenney, Lisa Nolan and Kerri Kiley of Beechwood Knoll; Squantum's Paul Graham, Peter McDonough and Phil Donahey.

Track specialists Brian and Paul Doherty have been traveling throughout the city conducting track clinics. Some of the outstanding performances to date were turned in by Sunile Simmons, Jennie and Joe Livingstone, Tim Brundige and John Foley.

There was a lot of action in midget baseball last week. O'Rourke slipped by Kincaide 4-3, as Doug Smith's bases loaded double drove in three runs to win it. Adams edged Shea Rink 5-4. Wollaston smothered Stoney-Brae 3-1, as Wollaston's Kevin Greene manhandled the opposing hitters striking out 16. Perkins rallied for three runs in the last inning to surprise Heron Rd 6-5 and Elm St. exploded for 10 runs in the fifth inning, as they defeated Pond St. 16-9.

In girls junior softball, Shea Rink shocked Kincaide 15-7. Pond St. blasted Faxon Park 14-9 and Russell Park boosted their record to 5-0 with a win over Forbes Hill 15-2.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Parents Favor Stricter School Discipline, Says Mullaney

School Committee candidate J. Thomas Mullaney feels Quincy parents advocate and will support stricter discipline in Quincy schools.

Speaking at an organizational meeting attended by some 40 supporters, Mullaney said he has knocked on doors throughout the city, trying to find out parents' and taxpayers' views about neighborhood schools. He said:

"Each campaign takes on a flavor of its own and this year parents are telling me they want and will support stricter discipline. Many parents feel that discipline has been de-emphasized and that this hurts the learning environment. I believe a vast majority of Quincy parents will support school principals and teachers who try to tighten the reins on discipline."

Mullaney noted he has attended School Committee meetings on a regular basis over the past five years, keeping a commitment he made in 1970 - when he first became interested in the School Committee - to learn all he could about the activities and role of the Quincy School Committee.

Mullaney also noted he had the opportunity to learn about physical plant deficiencies while serving as chairman of the School Building Needs Committee.

Marie McIntyre Calls For Expanding Vo-Tech Opportunities

Marie E. McIntyre, a candidate for the School Committee, has launched her campaign with a plea for expanded opportunities for more people at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

"It is not enough to teach people to read and write," she said as she filed her nomination papers. "Students need skills - job skills and people skills."

"We must continue with the programs of Quincy Vo-Tech and, if anything, expand the opportunities to a greater number of people.

"The greatest problem that most of us deal with every day is other people; at home, on the streets and at the job."

"We must teach more 'people courses,' human relations, so that we can still recognize ourselves and Quincy as a community in the next 200 years."

Miss McIntyre, a lifelong resident of Quincy, has taught in Quincy and Cohasset schools and currently is an instructor in sociology at Newbury Junior College.

Patricia Toland Defends Political Fund-Raising

Mrs. Patricia Toland, a candidate for School Committee, chose a fund-raising reception Tuesday night to defend vigorously, political fund-raising.

"A contribution to a qualified candidate," she told the poolside reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Loeb, 18 Furnace Brook Parkway, "is an investment in the future."

"It is encouraging that so many people believe in the importance of contributing to the campaign of a candidate they believe in," she said.

"For a candidate to properly present her qualifications to the people she must have sufficient funds as well as dedicated workers."

Mrs. Toland promised to honor commitments to her campaign by "carrying out the responsibilities of a school committee woman conscientiously, intelligently and with integrity."

Operach Conducting Survey

Paul Operach, a candidate for the School Committee, is surveying Quincy residents by telephone to determine what they expect from future members of the School Committee.

Results, said Operach, will be made known early in September.

Property Taxes Show Lowest Increase, Says Hannon

Quincy property taxes show the lowest increase of all household expenditures, Mayor Walter J. Hannon reported to a group of West Quincy residents Tuesday night.

He said local property taxes rose only 2.9 percent during the time he first took office in January, 1972, to the present.

"Compared to food, clothing, fuel oil and gasoline which have gone up 47.5 percent," said Hannon, "we've been able to hold taxes down."

The Mayor indicated that during the same period of 1972 to 1975, inflation has increased the cost of living almost 30 percent, as reported by the research department of the Federal Reserve Bank.

"Only by strong financial management have we been able to keep taxes from rising like all other costs," he said.

Hannon indicated the city has felt the impact of inflation just like the average homeowner, but, he said that by "making certain the city is buying only what is absolutely necessary and getting the lowest possible prices through competitive bidding, we've achieved substantial savings for the taxpayer."

During his remarks, Hannon gave credit to Auditor Charles Shea, Treasurer Robert Foy, Purchasing Agent Richard Buckley, and Budget Director William Grindlay for working together with him to keep the city budget in line.

The Mayor's remarks were made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Carullo, 58 Filbert St.

Earlier Hannon said that crime is a widespread concern among Quincy people and his administration is right on top of it.

"We have made Quincy off limits to the criminal element," he told a campaign reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moody, 22 Conant Rd, North Quincy.

"We have increased car patrols in high crime areas, opened a police sub-station in North Quincy, and instituted foot patrols in the city's neighborhoods."

Mayor Hannon, who is seeking a third term also discussed the problems of keeping a lid on the city budget.

"It isn't politically wise to tell people that we can't add a particular program or service," he said. "But it must be done if we are to keep the tax rate down."

"Politicians like to say yes to everybody. That makes them popular. But as far as I am concerned, it's more important to tell people the truth. And the truth is that we just can't go on spending."

The Mayor also had praise for the city's neighborhood improvement programs, notably the Atlantic Self Help Project which gets underway tomorrow [Aug. 8].

"Our neighborhoods must be kept strong if we are to continue to have a city for families," he said. "By using federal funds for supplies and CETA personnel to do the work, we can help people fix up their homes at a very low cost."

Harold Favors Day-Night Out Patient Clinic At Hospital

Paul D. Harold, candidate for Councillor-at-large, expressed his support for a day and evening outpatient clinic at the Quincy City Hospital, at a coffee hour held at the home of Alice Kowick, 18 Huckins Ave., Squantum.

Harold pointed out that such a facility was needed at the city hospital because presently, the emergency room was being used as an outpatient clinic. He said that many people who do not have a doctor or can not contact one, have been creating a strain on the emergency room facilities, by using for non-emergency cases.

"The hospital has included a clinic in its long-range plans, but I feel some positive step should be taken immediately," he said.

"This problem has been building for a number of years and I feel that there is need for leadership on this issue to insure that the city hospital offers the best quality medical care for the citizens of Quincy."

"From the information I have available, the costs for such a clinic would for the most part be paid by Blue Cross and Medicaid, and would not create an additional tax burden on the homeowner," he said.

Five More Take Out Nomination Papers

Five more candidates have taken out nomination papers for the city's November election, bringing the total number of candidates with papers to 40.

The new candidates are: Robert H. Martinson of 60 Hughes St., South Quincy, third candidate to join the race for the Ward 2 Councillor's seat.

Joseph F. O'Brien of 60 Butler Rd, Quincy, and Helen M. McDonnell of 86 Granger St., Wollaston, for Councillor at-large, bringing the total number of candidates in that race to 11.

James L. McDonough of 115 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, third to take out papers for the Ward 1 Councillor's seat.

Christopher F. Kennedy of 27 Barham Ave., North Quincy, 12th candidate seeking a school committee seat.

Of the 40 candidates who have taken out their nomination papers, only eight have filed, or returned their papers.

Kelly Calls Meeting On Flood Plain Zoning Map

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly announces he will hold a public meeting Aug. 7, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Adams Shore Library on Sea St. to discuss the recently passed Flood Plain Zoning Ordinance and how it will effect the residents of Ward 1 who are in this district.

Residents are invited to attend and make comments as to whether their property should or should not be included in this district. The city will then submit these recommendations for map changes to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"The law now requires a citizen to obtain a Special Permit from the Board of Appeals before you can build in a Flood Plain district, thus regulating development in areas that are subject to periodic flooding," Kelly said. "However, the mapping for this district, which was done by the Army Corps of Engineers, has included areas which have never had a history of flooding, and therefore I feel that these areas should be deleted from the district."

The maps of the Flood Plain District will be on display at the Adams Shore Library today [Tuesday] until Aug. 7, for anyone who wants to find out if they are located in this district prior to this meeting.

Licensing Board Hearing Continues

Testimony To Resume Friday On Charges Against 'Almost Joey's'

Testimony was scheduled to resume Friday before the Quincy Licensing Board on charges which could, if proven, close "Almost Joey's", a controversial bar in Houghs Neck.

Atty. Martin S. Cosgrove, representing "Almost Joey's" owner and manager Raymond Murphy, objected to two of three charges against his client Tuesday, saying one had no bearing on alleged violations of liquor-sale laws, and the other was not specified in the board's list of charges.

Testimony on a third charge - illegal sale of liquor to a minor - was not heard pending the youth's retention of legal counsel.

Tuesday's hearing drew a packed audience in the City Council Chamber, including many Houghs Neck residents.

The proceeding ended after about an hour's questioning and testimony when Atty. Cosgrove objected to the charge which claimed Murphy was "under the influence of an intoxicating beverage June 21" and taken into protective custody.

Atty. Cosgrove said he not only had no notice of that charge but claimed it had no bearing on alleged violations of the sale of liquor at the bar.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, licensing board member, said he felt the conduct of the bar management "is of consequence to the public."

Following a short recess to discuss Cosgrove's objection, Finn reported to the audience the "eminent lawyer" and uncovered legal points which would have to be reviewed.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the licensing board, said Sgt. Donald Riley of the Quincy Police Department would be present at Friday's proceedings to testify on this particular charge.

During the proceeding, Atty. Cosgrove also objected to hearing testimony on the charge of "illegal sale of alcohol beverages on June 15," saying there was no actual sale but an attempted one. Despite his objection, testimony by Officer Peter Flynn was heard.

Flynn testified he attempted to buy a case of beer at "Almost Joey's" on Sunday, June 15 while involved in a special operations unit as a plain-clothes policeman.

Flynn said he was served a beer by Murphy at the bar and later observed seven cases of 12 ounce in a storage area near the men's room. Flynn testified he told Murphy he'd like to buy some beer since it was Father's Day and he had no liquor at home.

Flynn said Murphy, busy at the time, said to him, "I'll get back to you later."

Flynn said the operation was foiled when a fellow officer came into the bar and said to Flynn, "I hope you're not on duty."

Testifying on the same charge of illegal sale of alcoholic beverages on June 15, John Hacunda of Bell St., Houghs Neck, said he observed a person in a Volkswagen convertible drive to the rear door of "Almost Joey's", go in empty-handed and come out with a case of beer. He said he was some 150 yards away at the time.

Asked by Atty. Cosgrove if he were sure the alcoholic beverages came from "Almost Joey's", Hacunda replied:

"There is no doubt in my mind it came from 'Almost Joey's'."

Atty. Cosgrove then asked if Hacunda "had an interest" in having the bar closed. Hacunda replied.

"Yes, I am anxious to see the place closed."

Earlier Rep. Thomas F. Brownell and Rep. William Delahunt had joined Mayor Walter Hannon and City Councillor Leo J. Kelly in their efforts to close Almost Joey's.

In a letter to City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the Quincy Licensing Board, Brownell urged the board to revoke the bar's license, terming the business as a "perennial nuisance and a source of aggravation and blight on the surrounding neighborhood."

"As you know," he said, "the owners of the establishment have been given ample warning and innumerable opportunities to rectify the neighborhood harassment, rowdiness, the unbearable noise, the off premises sales, and the sales of liquor to minors. Instead of conditions improving, they have declined to an all time low."

"I believe the neighborhood has suffered and endured enough. The operation and management of the lounge have proved to be totally irresponsible and callous. They categorically deserve to have their license revoked."

Hannon and Kelly have recommended the taking by eminent domain of the plot of land at 1205 Sea St., Houghs Neck, currently occupied by the bar.

Delahunt, says he favors a permanent license revocation at "Almost Joey's" lounge.

Calling the area a "serious blight in the Houghs Neck area," Delahunt said he has recently observed young men and women "holding bottles and glasses, presumably containing

Powers Seeks 'Immediate Action'

Fire Alarm At Presidents Adams Birthplaces 'Inadequate'

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers has requested the city to take "immediate steps" to protect the Adams' birthplaces from possible fire.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Powers said the fire alarm systems in both historic houses were found to be "inadequate and on occasion inoperative" in an inspection nearly a year ago. Despite this inspection, Powers said no "corrective measures" were taken to install working fire alarm systems. Powers said:

"The Adams' Birthplaces are valuable historic resources and if destroyed by fire, could never be replaced. I request...immediate steps to protect these historical landmarks so that the chance of them being destroyed by fire before installation of adequate alarm systems will be minimized."

Powers said he learned of the fire alarm system deficiencies through a communication from Mrs. Joyce Baker, chairman of the House Committee of the Quincy Historical Society.

Responding to Power's letter, Hannon requested John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage, to submit a report on the fire alarm system in the Adams' Birthplaces.

Graham's report recommends the City Council appropriate funds for a proper fire alarm system estimated to cost some $9,800.

In his report, Graham noted he toured the Adams' Birthplaces nearly two years ago with Quincy Historical Society President H. Hobart Holly. Graham recalled:

"While walking around the houses, I noticed a bell mechanism on the exterior of one house. I asked him what it was and he indicated it was a fire alarm. At that time he did not carry the conversation any further."

"Later I learned the system was not connected to the Fire Station, only a bell would ring if a fire broke out. The bell was connected to the apartment of the hostess who lives in one of the houses. Obviously, if she were not at home, no one would know about the fire or burglary."

As a result of this discovery, Graham said he requested the Quincy Fire Department to examine the present fire alarm system. Graham said Jack Schmock, superintendent of the fire alarm division, "wrote a scathing report" on the fire alarm systems at the Adams' Birthplaces, indicating it "does not operate at all and should be replaced."

Graham indicated his concern that the Quincy Historical Society never brought the matter to the city's attention.

A year ago, Quincy Heritage hired the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities to perform a structural survey of the houses. Graham said the recently completed report, now being reviewed, contains "a strong suggestion" to install an adequate fire alarm system.

$325,000 Grant To Fight Drugs In Quincy-S.S. Area

Massachusetts has received a total of $325,000 to fund a drug enforcement unit to crack down on narcotics traffic in the South Shore area surrounding Quincy.

Congressman James A. Burke said the total award is broken down into three grants all funded by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The first two grants of $125,000 and $100,000 will be used to support more community-based programs, utilize more para-professionals, volunteers and ex-offenders, devise better performance evaluation methods and fund more training in specialized skills.

The remaining $100,000 provides support to the Metropolitan District Police and State Police to combat narcotics violations in 13 communities where police and departments are understaffed. This program will help overcome jurisdictional problems and reduce existing duplication of efforts.

$88,679 In Plumbing

Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting James A. Erwin Jr., reports 123 plumbing and gas fitting applications for an estimated $88,679 in plumbing and gas fittings, were filed during the month of July.

Of the estimated $88,679, $61,524 was for plumbing and $27,155 was for gas.

A total of $682 was received for permits - $534 for plumbing and $148 for gas. One hundred thirteen plumbing inspections and 71 gas inspections were made for a total of 184 inspections.

GOLIATH, the largest capacity crane in the Western Hemisphere, stands poised and ready for shipbuilding action at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard. The final touch, the 2,400-ton, 390-foot beam girder that spans two shipbuilding basins, was lifted into place recently, 265 feet above the ground. Crane will be used in the construction of eight liquefied natural gas tankers, the first of which can be seen in the basin under the crane.

'Junior' and 'II' explained

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

What is the difference between naming a baby John Adams Jr. and John Adams II? I prefer the latter if it is correct. — John Adams

Dear John:

The name junior is given to a baby if his full name is the same as his father's. John Philip Adams II is given to a male, other than the son, who has the same name as an older living relative. This could be the child's grandfather or uncle. Please note that the distinction is made only when all the men with the same names are alive. When the first John Philip Adams dies, his son drops the "junior." And, by the way, "junior" is never used by a woman if she is named after her mother. Mary Smith Adams' daughter is Mary Smith Adams the younger, not "junior."

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Should sympathy letters be acknowledged? My husband died recently and I received many letters from people I have never met. — Betty C.

Dear Betty C.:

Yes, all notes should be answered. To the persons unknown to you, you might write something like the following, "Dear Mr. Friend:

Thank you for your kind expression of sympathy. John often spoke of you and I appreciate your letter a great deal." You would sign the letter Betty Coogan. The length of your letters will reflect your personal feelings and the person to whom you are writing.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Does a doctor or dentist have the right to charge a no-show patient? — Put Out in Del

Dear Put Out:

Yes, provided the patient was notified of the doctor's policy. Time is money for these men. Why didn't you spend a dime and call the doctor?

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I love artichokes but can't afford those cute little plates made especially to serve this vegetable. How else should they be presented? — Carla M.

Dear Carla:

The artichoke should be put in a dish and underlined with a large plate on which to put the rubbish. The melted butter or mayonnaise should be in a separate dish, one for each person. A friend of mine puts the vegetable in individual salad bowls. You could also use the soup bowls of your dinner set.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Should a man have a vasectomy without his wife's consent? — Mother of four Dear Mother:

Most doctors will require the wife to also sign the permit slip. In some states it is the law. To find out what is required in your state call your local medical society.

New England Clambake Gourmet Style

Whether on a sandy New England beach, in your own backyard or right in the family dining room, the aroma of lobsters and steamers is a call to feast. And feast you will with our three very different gourmet sauces. They each add a distinctive flavor treat to your lobster, clams and fresh garden vegetables.

Sauce Jaune (curry)

- 1 cup Cain's Mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh curry powder
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon fresh onion juice (or onion salt)
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- Salt to taste

Blend well. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with watercress.

Sauce Braun (Dijon)

- 1 cup Cain's Mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon prepared dijon-style mustard
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped scallion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped Cain's Gherkins
- 1 finely chopped hard cooked egg

"NEW ENGLAND CORNER" HINT

A special treat for the kids — spread their favorite hamburger or hotdog rolls with one of our special sauces and toast lightly on the grill or broiler. The result is a nice mild flavor that's just right!

Simply stir the above ingredients until well blended and garnish with cress or parsley.

Sauce Bleu (cheese)

- 1 cup Cain's Mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup blue cheese
- 3 tablespoons chopped scallions or red onion
- 1/2 clove garlic, crushed
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- Parsley to taste

Mix in blender at low speed.

As with most cold sauces, flavors are greatly enhanced if prepared at least one hour before serving.

Finish your clambake with a large platter of crisp celery and carrot sticks, cauliflower and scallions, a plentiful supply of Cain's potato chips and pickles, and you have a traditional New England feast with a brand new twist.

Half-slips make girls' nighties

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Dear Betty:

I discovered that half-slips make precious nighties for little girls. Simply cut off waistband, cut out neck and armholes; sew up shoulders. Hem around neck and armholes; zigzag fine elastic to neck edge. Full slips can be converted for bigger girls. The lacier the better! They make darling gifts and help to stretch the budget. — Becky Weitenlamp, Plattsmouth, Neb.

And I'm for that! Thanks for the super idea, Becky.

SHIRT-TAIL HEM: We use it a lot, but it doesn't always turn out the way we planned.

For a smooth, even hem, follow these rules:

Make a row of machine stitching in matching thread on the hem line. Turn hem to one-half inch. Trim under one-quarter inch; press. Turn under one-quarter inch again (which should be right on the row of machine stitching); press. Stitch by machine or by hand. When pressing, do not work iron back and forth. Lower iron; lift; lower; lift to prevent hem from pulling out of shape.

QUICK STITCH: To prevent the under collar from rolling to the outside, trim 1/4 inch from all edges (except the neckline) of the under collar section. When pressing the joined collar, work the seamline slightly to the underneath side.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Pay off as many of your debts as possible by foregoing new purchases. If traveling, pay special attention to servicing your car. Check accident hazards in the home. Don't be touchy to criticism.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You may meet your future spouse, if unmarried. Study something new related to your job. Worry about work can affect health, so try to reduce the pressure. A social function could honor you.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Your work could be put on display and receive great praise. You feel like celebrating and having fun. Overindulgence could lead to health problems. Be considerate of loved ones in public. Be discreet.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Spirits are high and things are coming your way. Accept praise graciously and speak well of everyone. You may have to postpone wedding.

Diet deficiency is hard to spot

Potassium deficiency, hypokalemia, is difficult for physicians to diagnose because the symptoms are subtle, though it may be reliably identified by means of blood tests.

Common early signs of potassium deficiency are muscle weakness, shortness of breath, faintness and flatulence. — CNS plans. Friends are helpful in financial matters. Be well groomed.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Be yourself with a new person you meet who can become meaningful in your life. Avoid impulsive phone calls you could later regret. Attend to work demands diligently. Be patient in romantic relationships.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — You could be working toward a raise in pay if you are cooperative and considerate now. Keep your responsible sense of balance or you will jeopardize your job future. Stick to your duties.

LIBRA: (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Pay attention to your physical well-being. Take exercise and watch your diet. Your senses are active now and artistic expression is favored. Someone you meet stimulates romance for the single Librans.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

DISAGREEABLE DINNER

The Emperor Nero once reportedly killed off a whole guest list at one of his dinner parties by feeding them poisonous mushrooms. —

— Your intuition may not be reliable now. Analyze carefully before you play the peacemaker for friends. Avoid impulsive spending which you will later regret. Possibility of a sudden change of residence.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Take care of obligations promptly — don't procrastinate. Curb the desire to spend money on lavish entertainment. Delay financial decisions if possible. Investigate religious thought.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Plan a trip with much pleasure — your wishes are coming true. A residential change is likely. Love abounds and pleasure with friends is fulfilling. Finances are adequate, but don't be reckless.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — New projects could be blocked or get bogged down. Nervous tension and sleeplessness could cause health problems. Romance could be troublesome and you have a decision you must make.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You feel the need to "redo" your personality. Adopt new styles, but not too extreme. You are ambitious and will make important career decisions. You may be viewing romance with more fantasy than realism.

PILL POPPERS

According to a Roper Report, about half the public swallows some kind of pill every 24 hours, compared with one in three who said they read a magazine during the previous 24 hours or one in 20 who had participated in some active sport. — CNS

CHILDREN

Boy, 12, shouldn't drive

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. Our 12-year-old insists on driving, but I think he's too young. He's certainly big enough (almost 6 feet), knows a lot about cars, and his judgment is generally pretty good. It's hard for me to build up a reasonable argument against it.

A. How about using the most logical one of all — the state law doesn't allow a person to drive until he or she reaches a certain age. As important as all of the other qualifications are, they fade away next to this legal requirement.

Q. Maybe high school students today don't appreciate their teachers any more than we did when we were their age. But they will, in time.

Your vivid remembrance of your own high school English teacher reminded me of mine. You mentioned yours in response to a reader who felt that the straight lecture method, even though it is boring, is the only way to teach an English literature course.

I agree with you — it isn't. The teacher I remember opened doors and took us into another world. The London and Paris of Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities" became real, more than if I had merely read the story. We talked about it, argued, and dramatized.

It all adds up to a beautiful memory that is now more than 60 years old.

A. Another reference I made in that earlier reply was to Dr. Paul Witty's statement that "the days that make us happy make us wise." Children learn best in an environment (whether at school or at home) where they enjoy the process as well as the results of learning. We don't necessarily do a better job of retaining information or attitudes that are instilled in us through drudgery, dreariness, threats or other unpleasanties.

Very young children learn to walk, talk, eat and take care of themselves in the bathroom through success and encouragement. Those factors are equally appropriate for older children — and for adults too.

Q. My little girl can't tell time yet, but she wants a watch more than anything. Should I get one for her?

A. You haven't mentioned her age, but you have three choices anyway: Forget it — or get her a toy watch — or teach her the basics of telling time and buy her an inexpensive real one. If she's in a preschool or the primary grades, her teacher can help you out with learning how to tell time.

BAMBI CAN BE DANGEROUS

Visitors to national parks are warned about the dangers of getting close to wild animals, but they continue to risk life and limb by feeding bears. Now, even the deer, usually thought of as the gentle Bambi of the animal kingdom, can be dangerous.

A man and his wife, driving near Baltimore, saw a deer standing on the highway. Thinking it might get hit by a car, the man got out and tried to shoot it into the woods. The deer, mistaking his intentions, charged and gored him. His wife rushed to his aid. The deer gored her too. A passing motorist attempted to drive his car between the deer and his victims. A more heroic driver grabbed the buck's bloody horns and tried to restrain it and found himself in danger too. The affair ended only when a hunter happened along and killed the deer.

The moral of this "gory" story should be fairly clear. Keep clear of wild animals. They may normally be harmless, but they cannot understand English and especially cannot read human minds.

Rev. Keith Munson Assumes Duties At First Parish

In a recent letter to the congregation of the United First Parish Church, Rev. Keith C. Munson greeted his new congregation.

Rev. Munson officially began his new pastorate Friday, Aug. 1, by performing a wedding.

He asked for the parishioners help in planning the installation service, and in notifying him of the sick or lonely of the parish.

Mr. Munson and his wife, Peggy, thanked the Building and Grounds Committee and the Agape Association for their efforts in cleaning and decorating.

The new minister closed his letter with one of his favorite benedictions: "May peace dwell within our hearts, and understanding in our minds; may courage steel our wills, and love of truth forever guide us."

Hancock Cemetery Restoration Project Gets State Go-Ahead

Quincy Heritage announces the Hancock Cemetery Restoration Project has received official state sanction for the removal and restoration of gravestones in the Hancock Cemetery.

Secretary of State Paul Guzzi said in a letter to the project's director, Richard Riley, "it is a pleasure to be able to assist, in this small way, with the significant work being undertaken by your project."

The letter itself is the final go-ahead for the restoration project, after a series of requests had been sent to various city and state agencies, a process started last March.

The Board of Managers of Public Burial Places deliberated over the work plan, before approving it and sending it to the City Council. The council accepted the board's recommendation and gave the plan home-rule approval. When the home-rule approval was granted, an application for a permit to restore and reproduce gravestones was then filed with the state, for its approval.

The final approval for the project could never have taken place without the cooperation of many people, according to Riley. Among those cited as being especially helpful are: Elizabeth A. Madon, Massachusetts Historical Commission; John Grace, office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth; Heslip Sutherland, chairman of the Quincy Cemetery Board of Managers; City Council President Arthur Tobin; School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon; Joseph Valorz, acting superintendent of the Cemetery Department; Richard Koch, Commissioner of Natural Resources; and City Clerk John Gillis.

Quincy Heritage also expressed thanks to the supervisory staff for helping to organize and direct the program. The members are Debbie Frank, Steve Hoffman, Gerry Swalnick, Karen Pilla, Bob Luciani and Jean Cummiskey.

7 Physicians Appointed To Quincy City Hospital Staff

By DEIRDRE SULLIVAN

Quincy City Hospital has appointed seven new physicians to its medical staff.

Three ophthalmologists, two orthopedic surgeons, a general surgeon, and thoracic and cardiovascular surgeons are among the appointees.

Dr. Anthony Dragone, one of the new appointees, is a graduate of Boston College and Fordham University, and received his medical degree from the University of Rome. His surgical residency was completed at Boston City Hospital, with an affiliated residency at Quincy City Hospital. A general surgeon, he is currently practicing in Quincy.

Dr. Joseph Michon Jr., is Surgeon-in-Chief of Ophthalmology at Carney Hospital and is on the staff at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Children's Hospital Medical Center, and South Shore Hospital.

Graduated from Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, Dr. Michon performed his internship at Thomas Jefferson Medical Hospital in Philadelphia and did his residency in ophthalmology at Mass Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Currently practicing in Quincy, Dr. Michon also holds a teaching position as a clinical assistant in ophthalmology at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. John Carroll, also an ophthalmologist, is a graduate of Johns Hopkins Medical School. He did post graduate work at Harvard in ophthalmology and resident training at Mass Eye and Ear Infirmary. Dr. Carroll has done research for Hoew Laboratory of Ophthalmology and the Retina Foundation. Besides his practice in Quincy, he is an assistant in Ophthalmology at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Frederick Heller, an orthopedic surgeon, is currently on the staffs of Boston City Hospital and Boston University Hospital, as well as Quincy City. He graduated from New York Medical College and completed his internship at Boston City Hospital and University Hospital. Dr. Heller worked for two years as a surgeon in the Air Force, one year at the Lahey Clinic, and one year at Shriners Institute for Crippled Children in Springfield.

Dr. Roland Houle, graduated from Harvard Medical School and completed a rotating internship at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. His residency in internal medicine was completed at Henry Ford Hospital and in ophthalmology at Mass Eye and Ear Infirmary. Currently Dr. Houle is a Clinical Instructor in Ophthalmology at Harvard. He is also affiliated with Mass Eye and Ear Infirmary as assistant surgeon in ophthalmology, visiting surgeon in ophthalmology at Carney Hospital, consulting staff in ophthalmology at Massachusetts General Hospital, and active staff ophthalmologist at South Shore Hospital. Dr. Houle is also on the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Society For The Prevention of Blindness.

Dr. David Heller, an orthopedic surgeon, is on the staffs of Carney and Quincy Hospitals. Graduated from Boston University Medical School, he did his internship at St. Elizabeth's Hospital and general surgical residency in orthopedics at Carney Hospital. Currently practicing in Quincy, Dr. Heller also served as Chief of Orthopedics in the U.S. Army Hospital in Fort Polk, La.

Dr. Augustin Florian, a thoracic and cardiovascular surgeon, received his medical degree from the University of Lima, Peru. He performed his internship and residency in Springfield Hospital Medical Center. His associate residency and chief residency in thoracic and cardiovascular surgery were completed at University of Maryland Hospital.

Dr. Florian was a fellow in cardiovascular surgery at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and Harvard Medical School. He was a junior surgeon at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in West Roxbury. Dr. Florian practices in Norwood and Quincy.

Troop 35 Wins Olympic First Prize In N.H.

Fifteen boy scouts from Troop 35, ranging in age from 11 to 16, attended boy scout camp, Adams Pond, Storrer Reservation, Barnstead, N.H.

For the fourth consecutive year, the boys carried off the first prize in the Olympic competition, highlight of the week. Eleven other troops from Boston, Milton, and Quincy, numbering close to 165 boys, were competing for the prizes.

Soviet Spy Money Buried In Quincy?

The FBI reported this week that a Soviet spy ring may have buried money in Quincy.

The expense money for the spy ring [estimated at between $50,000 and $1 million] was allegedly hidden at five locations in New York State and in Quincy. The money was believed to be part of the funds managed by accused Soviet master spy Rudolph Abel.

FURCOLO NAMES RYAN CHAIRMAN

William Ryan, Quincy director of recreation was appointed chairman of the State Citizenship Participation Committee on Recreation, by Gov. Foster Furcolo.

Ryan was past New England chairman for the National Recreation Association and a member of the national advisory committee of the association.

He received his Bachelor of Science degree in recreation from Springfield College and did graduate work at Springfield and Boston University. Before assuming his post in Quincy two years ago, he was director of recreation in Dedham and Holliston.

CAMP MASSASOIT COMPLETED RECORD YEAR

Camp Massasoit, the Quincy Boy Scout reservation camp in Plymouth, completed what was termed a "record season" this summer.

More than 250 boys attended the camp for a week or more, while the camp had a 100 per cent increase in its independent camping program. Wesley Wright camp director and Scout executive of the Quincy Council, urged those interested in attending Camp Massasoit for the 1958 to make reservations early.

Builders Assn; Now What Do We Do?

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Now what do we do? The Quincy Master Builders Association recognizes that we are in the biggest depression in over 40 years, and our government officials don't seem to realize it.

Let's talk about Weymouth and see what it sounds like. The Thomas J. Flately Company proposed building a 12 million dollar light industrial park in South Weymouth, creating 1,000 jobs and a quarter of a million dollars in taxes. Most communities would love this type of development. Not Selectman B. Joseph Fitzsimmons.

It was reported he said "It's high time we should be saying no to developers." "All too often these developments don't provide half as much a tax buffer as anticipated." He also said the increased services of apartments and industrial developments "outweigh" the additional taxes to the town. Industrial development in general should be curbed in the town, adding "The rate of growth in the post World War II years has definitely been at too quick a pace for the town".

If Attorney Fitzsimmons has any information to substantiate his different opinion the public should be told.

We were of the opinion politicians didn't want equal valuation because the single family home owner would have to pay his share of property taxes. Under the present system business and industry pay a higher per cent of taxes. Now he doesn't want them?

Is this the same Attorney Fitzsimmons representing a client at a public hearing last spring at Quincy City Hall, where he argued the City has a crying need for more elderly housing? That the numerous violations in the city ordinance should be waived to build this subsidized housing even though Quincy had already met its State quota? More than all other towns put together? Is he the same Attorney we listened to? But did he tell us whose money would be used to finance the building of the project? For how many years?

Some of our public officials today are no different than others of an earlier century. During a Chinese dynasty a status symbol was acquired by the heads of certain aristocratic families who would begin by firmly binding the feet of its female babies, so that at maturity their women with the smallest deformed feet were the most admired, though they could never walk.

Our public officials today require exposure also, but in a different way.

Unless private industry produces, it can not prosper. It earns the money it spends. Government doesn't earn, it taxes, borrows and spends.

Our public officials should heed a lesson from the very recent conference of Mayors, held in Boston, "Stop borrowing and run the city as a business."

The Quincy Master Builders Association would like to contribute input to our communities, as we cannot improve if we are not allowed to make changes. Can we help?

Dishonesty In Our Society

Editor, Quincy Sun:

With conforming "cart-before-horse-Piemanish", Eric Swider informed his Quincy Sun readers [7/24/75] that "Shoplifters are THIEVES!" Perhaps with that bomb to clear the rubble, he hopes to build "a regional economy" for his bailiwick. The boasted boundaries of which, extend "from the Wellesley-Weston line to the Cape Cod Canal."

Like Rockefeller on the drug problem, Mr. Swider would try to solve the shoplifting problem with stiffer fines and jail sentences. He feels that it's the consumers, advertisers and readers, who pay the price [for shoplifting]; and that the sinfulness can be measured by the gross amount lost in retail inventories.

It's interesting that, according to the Executive VP of the SS Chamber of Commerce, "the most serious [shoplifting] problems exist among teenagers of middle-and upper-income families." His kids would be bought off by the embarrassment of being made to face the manager of a robbed shop in papa's presence. In typical middle-and upper-income fashion, Mr. Swider would warn kids "that a police record could seriously effect chances for a job, college entrance and professional training."

The confusion evident in Mr. Swider's Chamber of Commerce standards of value, is tragically short-sighted. Each and every citizen member pays for the dishonesty in our society. Our courts and jails are but costly arenas and schools for more and more crime.

When rewards and prizes are easily granted, the pursuit of excellence for its own sake is discouraged. When, after snake-oil enticements, gambling and consumer chance-taking are honored, people are seduced to expect something for nothing. What is being accomplished by all the whoopee, is the conditioning of people to be goats and kids, easily corralled by big shot politicians, who can then fleece us all in the tax structure. Our owners insultingly prove their "generosity" with tax dollars by "giving" miserable handouts, such as food stamps and tax rebates.

Leadership cannot be conferred, nor acquired spontaneously. Like any skill of lasting value, it has to be earned. It can be earned solely by giving and receiving respect for human dignity and worth. Only by expecting honest qualities of mind and spirit to be within the reach of each and any human being, can we build and maintain a decent society.

Surely anyone, who can read the Quincy Sun, knows that honesty is inherent at birth. But honesty grows only by perception of the models set for the child to emulate. The grave problem facing our present society is the crooked priority, which sets money as a goal to be valued more than that of human life. It's madness to muffle the myth of King Midas!

Conservation Commission Takes Action On 9 Violations

The Quincy Conservation Commission said Tuesday it has issued nine cease and desist orders for violations of the State Wetlands Protection Act and the City Flood Plain Zoning Ordinance.

The commission said it is "amazed and appalled" by the violations and expressed concern that "sometime soon someone is going to be badly hurt financially if they are required to remove fill from some illegally altered areas."

Violations of the State Wetlands Protection Act can bring fines of up to $1,000 per day of violation or six months in jail.

The QCC advised any person contemplating changes in areas that border on water or wetlands to get an opinion from the commission before they make a move.

LaRaia Planning In-Depth Poll

By HENRY BOSWORTH

An in-depth voter survey reportedly is planned by the Joseph LaRaia mayoralty campaign camp shortly after Labor Day.

"It will be the most comprehensive poll of them all," says one of LaRaia's top workers.

The poll is being timed so that the results will be fresh as a guideline for down-to-the-wire campaign strategy for the city preliminary election Sept. 23.

An estimated 3,000 or more Quincy voters reportedly will be polled.

WELL, IF YOU'RE still thinking about running for office in this fall's city election, you better move it-now! Today [Thursday] is the deadline for taking out nomination papers. And next Tuesday is the final day for filing the papers. Last chance for 1975.

ONE POLITICAL FIGURE who didn't get into the mayor's race but was thinking of it at one time, kind of wishes he had that decision to make again. He thinks that a strong "third candidate" with the right campaign could win it.

WHO HAS THE most auto bumper stickers in circulation is still a question that will get you an argument. We mentioned here a couple of weeks ago that Joseph LaRaia seemed to have the most but that observation was quickly disputed. Well, if he didn't have the most back then, he may soon have. A source in his camp notes they recently ordered another 3,000 of them.

MAYBE THE NUMBER of bumper stickers will never be settled but Ann Gaffey, Quincy's Miss Democrat certainly must have the biggest collection of them.

She has a jalousie front door at her North Central Ave., Wollaston home. And on the glass slats are the bumper stickers of Francis Bellotti Jr., William Delahunt, Paul Harold, John Quinn, Sabina Stenberg and Patricia Toland. It's got to be the most political door in Quincy.

KATI DELAHUNT, Rep. William Delahunt's pretty wife, is joining him on the campaign trail in his bid for City Council at-large. She should be quite a political asset—a sort of Joan Kennedy touch.

PAUL HAROLD, candidate for Councilor at-large, is now one of the most eligible bachelors in this year's city election. He took time out from the campaign trail the other day to attend the wedding of Lynne Myett and Louis Cipullo in Germantown. Lynne is the daughter of Harold's Ward 1 campaign coordinator, Frank Myett. And, at the reception, Harold caught the bride's garter.

YOU MIGHT SAY someone is having a ball for himself campaigning for the re-election of Mayor Walter Hannon.

In the front yard of a Southern Artery home near River St., Quincy Point, is what appears to be a World War II mine all painted red with a plug to re-elect Hannon. It has to be one of the eye-catching gimmicks of the campaign.

SPEAKING OF GIMMICKS, this year's election has also produced the campaign T-shirt. Joseph LaRaia came up with the first one proclaiming "Tell It To Joe". Now School Committeeman Harold Davis, running for councilor at-large, has one that says: "Give 'Em Hal". An apparent play-on words on Harry Truman's "Give 'Em Hell".

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, is quite a courageous man. Notes he: "A lot of women could add years to their life-by telling the truth about their age." [He's going to get both of us in trouble].

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Let's Hire A Consultant

By ERIC SWIDER

Harry gave me a ride to my meeting the other day with Secretaries Fred Salvucci and Howard Smith on the next phase of studies on the Fore River Bridge, so I invited him to sit in on it.

As we were driving back, Harry was very upset about what was said.

"I can't believe it, Eric, that it will take 12 years from the time you started working on this thing till the time they cut the ribbon. That's insane."

"But Harry, don't you realize that 12 years is the minimum. After all... This is a top drawer project... isn't that what we were told."

"Yeah, but another study. This is the third one, isn't it? Why do we have to do so many studies? The need is apparent, the bridge must be replaced. Why not do it in 1975 dollars rather than continuing to create an uncertain future for the shipyard and denying them the ability to bid on big ships."

"Harry, understand that the law says that an environmental impact study is now necessary before we can proceed."

"Isn't that what we just finished?"

"No, that was an economic study."

"Oh, I thought the first one was an economic study."

"No, that was an alignment study. And after we complete the Environmental Impact Study, we then need another economic update, and if that checks out, then we can get into the design and engineering part, and then another economic update, and then construction. Shouldn't take any more than another 10 years, the way I see it."

"But didn't General Dynamics first say they needed the bridge in the late 50's?"

"No, Harry, that was Bethlehem Steel who first stated the need. General Dynamics has only been talking about it for 11 years now, but just think, if we can keep it in the top drawer, in 10 years we'll be home free."

"Seems strange, Eric, that the shipyard has been able to survive all these years without the bridge — just between you and me, is this thing really necessary?"

"Well Harry, I'm glad you used the word survive and not profit. They've survived because of good management, exclusive technology, a conglomerate relationship and luck. By all rights, when Beth Steel closed the doors in 1963, that should have been the end. The South Shore is just lucky. We've a second chance at retaining those 5,500 jobs and this time, with the way the world shipbuilding market is going to bigger and bigger ships, I doubt that Lady Luck will pull us out again."

"Well, it's a tough decision to make, and there are lots of variables. I'm sure glad that everything doesn't take 12 years from start to finish."

"Harry, everything does take 12 years, at least."

"Cut it out, Swider. You know that's not true."

"It sure is, and we feel lucky if we can keep it down to that. Look at the single most important rapid transit extension in the MBTA system — from Quincy Center to the Expressway. We started pushing for it in 1971 and without any more hitches, the ribbon will get cut in 1983 — 12 years almost to a day."

"That's awful," exclaimed Harry. "All my friends in the construction trades are sitting on their hands waiting to get back to work and you tell me that it will be years before there is hope for them."

"It's awful, but true. We've changed our priorities as a state and as a nation. Our educational system has given so many of us college degrees that at some point government has to do something to keep us busy, so we passed a whole bunch of laws that provide college grads with jobs as consultants."

"Even unemployed college graduates will list on their resumes that they are currently consultants," chortled Harry.

"Why worry about the construction trades when our number one industry can become consulting."

"Sure," said Harry, "that makes sense... we could become a state of consultants, government employees, fast food franchise operations, and health and beauty aid stores... all clean non-polluting businesses... the hell with construction trades, industrial jobs, manufacturing, shipping. But, do you think it can work?"

"I don't know Harry, but I'm afraid we're about to find out."

"Swider, I think we should propose to the Administration that they hire a consultant to analyze the potential."

"I hear you Harry, and I like the way you relate — always thinking about putting more people back to work."

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

LIVING TODAY

'Don't Block Your Happiness'

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

A few people are unhappy and depressed because they feel they are not accomplishing anything significant in their lives. Everyone is not goal oriented ... but it's possible to be goal oriented and not do anything about it. That's a cause of frustration and unhappiness. It is an inward dilemma ... an inward feeling that I am not being true to myself and my own potentialities.

We may ask ... why would a person who wants to accomplish something not move toward his goal? One reason may be HEALTH. When a person is ill or has some organic disfunction he simply may not feel like working. Even his thinking is impaired. He may say "I can't think straight." Emotional health as well as physical health is essential for one to move systematically toward his goal.

Another reason why people who have goals and are not moving toward them is ALCOHOLISM and DRUGS. Alcohol has ruined many a writer ... lawyer ... doctor ... craftsman ... and now the suburban housewife is trying to kill her boredom with her alcohol. I am seeing many young people who have started drinking regularly as early as age 11 ... many who no longer have any incentive in life because they are drugged so much of the time. Alcohol creates for many people depression and frustration because they wanted to be something and find that they cannot because of the effects of alcohol.

Another reason for frustration and unhappiness in not reaching goals is that sound decisions were not made when crucial events happened. For example ... what happens after a divorce? One can handle it creatively or you can let it destroy you. To any such tragic event in one's life there usually follows a period of grief and adjustment. This grief must run its course and be expressed. Then ... it comes time for one to put the past in the past and move on to what lies ahead. Too many people drag along the unfortunate event of the past and allow it to block their forward movement toward their life goals. This is destructive and frustrating and leads to great unhappiness.

Finally ... in order to have a healthy outlook on life it is desirable that we NOT PUT ALL OUR EGGS IN ONE BASKET. Have more than one objective in life. If a woman says ... "All I live for is my husband or my children ..." which is a very common attitude on the part of women, if she loses her husband through divorce or death and when the children are grown and gone ... then what? It is best that we not put all our eggs in one basket. The will to live happily must rest not upon any one pillar but upon several worthwhile objectives.

There's a lot of living out there for all of us. We can make things happen or be a victim of what happens. You determine which.

'A Constant Hazard'

Powers Seeks Tighter Enforcements On Speeding

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers planned to meet today [Thursday] with Police Chief Francis X. Finn to discuss "tightening up" enforcement of speeding regulations in Wollaston and Quincy.

Powers will present Finn with a petition signed by 81 Sachem St. residents, all concerned about what Powers called "the constant hazard" of cars which speed and ignore the STOP sign at Franklin St., Wollaston.

In a letter to Finn, Powers noted two young children have been struck by cars this year in the area of Oakland Ave. and Cedar St. Powers said he has also received complaints from residents on Beach St., Elm Ave., Newport Ave., Fenno St. and Waterston Ave. He said:

"It appears that motorists traveling in Quincy are going all together too fast, too often on Quincy streets."

During the meeting with Finn Powers said he wanted to examine records kept by the Police Department, containing the number of citations issued by each member of the Department. He said in his letter:

"I wish to meet with you...to review the situation and examine this list with you to determine if there is any breakdown or inaction in any particular area with a view of tightening up the enforcement of our speeding regulations."

"I would like to see full utilization of all on-the-beat patrolmen and cruisers in a combined effort to curb speeding within Wollaston and Quincy."

Delahunt Accepts Invitation

To Join VIVA Advisory Committee

Rep. William D. Delahunt has accepted an invitation to join the National Honorary Advisory Committee of Voices in Vital America (VIVA).

A national organization established in 1967 and incorporated in California as a non-profit, non-political educational organization, VIVA seeks to make the American public aware of the plight of prisoners of war and those missing in action.

In accepting the invitation, Delahunt said the North Vietnamese and their allies have failed to assist in providing an accounting of American POWs and MIAs, thus violating the Paris Peace Accord.

Urging Americans to write to their congressmen and senators demanding an account of POWs and MIAs, Delahunt said:

"It is absolutely vital that we show the North Vietnamese and their allies that this is truly a unified effort by the American people, Congress and the 1300 affected families, speaking with one voice."

Wollaston Nazarene Church To Be Remodeled

The congregation of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene recently voted to endorse the church board's plan to remodel the front of the church's sanctuary.

They also agreed to finance it by a special offering to be raised in 90 days.

According to present plans, the pulpit will be moved roughly 15 feet out from its present position, a longer altar rail will be installed, and the choir will be moved forward.

Plans also include the installation of a new rear-projection screen and the refurbishing of the sound system. One of the two pianos will be removed and replaced with the organ.

Purpose is to give a warmer, more open feeling, to provide a platform for more varied kinds of worship and evangelism, to make the sanctuary more attractive, and make college chapel services more inspiring.

Fifty-one seats are expected to be removed.

'Bureau Drawer' Grand Opening Sept. 8

The Bureau Drawer, a thrift and gift shop, will hold its grand opening Monday, Sept. 8. The new shop, located in the remodeled basement of the Protestant Social Service Bureau office, 776 Hancock St., Wollaston, will accept crafts, sports equipment, jewelry, bric-a-brac, housewares, antiques and women's and children's clothing on consignment or by donation.

The shop will receive articles every Tuesday in August and the first Tuesday in September, from 1 to 7:30 p.m.

All proceeds benefit the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

Volunteer workers are needed for a few hours each week. Anyone interested is asked to call the Bureau office at 773-1360.

'Lost And Found' Performs Here

Orsolini, Dave Crofford and John Pfoutz. Other members are Kay Carpenter and Tim Gilbert of Olivet Nazarene College in Illinois; Bob Finnie, Jan Schlosser and Jim Uchlein of Mt. Vernon Nazarene College in Ohio; Steve Scott and Susan Welch of Point Loma College, California, and Gary Silverwright of Oklahoma.

The students are touring the East Coast this summer and have performed in Europe, Africa and North America. The group has sung on radio and television, in auditoriums, churches and schools, in front of combined audiences totaling well over one million.

Ensign Lee Davis In Great Lakes Races

Ensign Lee Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell A. Davis of Squantum, recently sailed more than 1,000 miles in the world's longest fresh-water races in lakes Huron and Michigan aboard the U.S. Naval Academy ship, Avenger.

A watch captain and tactician on the 48-ft. racing sloop, Davis determined boat position and method of handling.

The Centennial races--coordinated by the 100-year old Chicago Yacht Club--began at Port Huron, Mich. The Avenger and 350 competitors set sail for Chicago on July 19. Two races over a triangular course were held near the Windy City. Last event of the series was the famous race to Mackinac Island at the tip of Michigan, concluded August 1. The Avenger and its nine-man crew are returning to the Academy at Annapolis, Md., via the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Ensign Davis, a June graduate, was on the school's sailing team for four years. He's participated in numerous East Coast races. In this year's Annapolis to Newport, R.I., event he was officer-in-charge of the Avenger.

Davis will report to the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla., in September for flight training.

Hannon Asks Registry To Check On Noisy Motorcycles

The Registry of Motor Vehicles has been asked by Mayor Walter J. Hannon to conduct a spot check of motorcycles in Quincy operating with improper equipment.

"Throughout the city there are a number of motorcycles which have had their mufflers modified or removed," said Mayor Hannon.

"These vehicles are creating a serious noise problem for many residents."

In a letter to Registrar Robert Panora, Mayor Hannon asked that a spot check of motorcycles be conducted in Quincy.

"If there are motorcycles being operated with improper equipment, we want to know about it," Hannon said.

"The noise from motorcycles without mufflers has been disturbing residents, particularly in the North Quincy areas near Quincy Shore Drive."

He noted that most motorcycle operators maintain the original equipment on their vehicles, but that a few are causing trouble by making unauthorized modifications.

"There's nothing more unpleasant, especially at night, than a noisy motorcycle," Hannon said. He is asking that the registry take immediate action in making the spot check.

Survival Receives $23,000 Mental Health Dept. Grant

Survival, Inc., the multi-faceted drug and youth program serving Quincy and the South Shore, has been awarded a $23,000 grant from the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, Division of Drug Rehabilitation.

Members of a Regional Review Board which determined the award cited Survival's program as "the most impressive of those the site team has visited."

Announcement of the grant award was made by Waldo B. Lyon, regional co-ordinator for the drug programs within the department of mental health. He said:

"Survival, Inc. continues to provide high quality drug treatment services to the South Shore area. The blend of professional and para-professional talents and the large, trained volunteer crew are impressive aspects."

The award, representing a $1,000 increase over last year's grant, comprises 10 per cent of Survival's budget and will be used through June 1976.

Self-Help Home Program Now Underway

The Self-Help Home Improvement Program in Atlantic, funded through $35,000 of Community Development money is now underway announces Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

The program was initiated by the Atlantic Neighborhood Association in cooperation with the Department of Planning and Community Development and Ward 6 City Councilor Dennis Harrington. Mayor Hannon has designated the Planning and Community Development Department as the Department responsible for all community development activity.

The Self-Help Home Improvements are part of the city's neighborhood preservation program. The voluntary program will assist homeowners who seek help to paint or do minor repairs on the exterior of their homes. "On a street where there are one or two houses in deteriorating condition, our objective is to work on them, to improve the environment of the entire street," said Mayor Hannon.

Several CETA employees are being reassigned from other positions within the City to the Atlantic neighborhood, to do the painting and repairs. James Pinkham has been hired using Community Development funds to coordinate their efforts. He will also assist homeowners in assessing their housing needs.

All other program activities will be coordinated through a resident committee and staff from the Dept. of Planning and Community Development.

This committee will determine eligibility requirements, handle applications and establish priorities.

"This is a unique program," said Geoffrey A. Davidson, Director of the Department of Planning and Community Development. "The City is working very closely with a neighborhood association to make a substantial impact on the Atlantic Neighborhood, using a relatively small amount of money."

General income eligibility requirements include levels for low income to moderate income. The low income gross salary requirement for one person is $4,650. A low income gross salary for a family of eight is $10,200. Moderate income levels are higher ranging from a gross of $7,700 for one person to $15,450 for a family of eight. Income deductions are allowed for such things as medical bills, tuition payments, child support and health insurance.

Low incomes have priority over moderate ones, but the major factor is the condition of the house.

"The program's goal is to help the elderly person on a limited income and the person who for whatever reason, doesn't have the financial resources to keep their property up," said Joanne Condon, President of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association.

Homeowners are expected to pay for paint and necessary supplies. However, if this presents a hardship it may be waived by the committee. All of the labor required for the home improvements will be supplied with the CETA personnel and the Program Coordinator.

Homeowners who wish to participate in the program may apply at the Atlantic Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St. during August. Hours will be Mondays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., and Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Repairs Underway At Neponset Circle Viaduct

State DPW Commissioner John J. Carroll announces today that repairs to the concrete deck of the Neponset Circle viaduct are underway.

Work, which started Saturday, will be restricted to the northbound roadway, with two lanes open to traffic at all times. Crews, working 24 hours a day, seven days a week, will begin repairs in the high speed lane.

It is estimated that the job will be completed in 45 days.

They'd All Like To Forget 38th Race Week

The 38th annual Quincy Bay Race Week is one which all connected with it would like to forget.

In the last 37 years no more than one day's racing had to be cancelled in any one year but this year, after a good start on Wednesday, racing was cancelled the next three days.

The weatherman finally cooperated Sunday and the final day's racing was held.

"It was discouraging seeing the racing cancelled three of the five days and the way it started out Sunday, I was afraid we were in for trouble again," said Ken Lavers, Race Week president. "After those two days of rain Thursday and Friday, we thought we would be able to race Saturday when it cleared, but a lack of wind forced another cancellation."

"We did get one inside series in on Saturday, and the ocean races were held. Sunday there was very little wind in the morning and I was afraid the final day of racing would also be called off, leaving us with just opening day. The ocean racing started Sunday but the boats stalled because of lack of wind, but it picked up in the afternoon and things went well after that."

"So, the final standings were based on only two days of racing, opening and closing day."

The opening day racing was hosted by Town River at Wessagussett and the closing day racing hosted by Metropolitan and Wessagussett Yacht Clubs, also at Wessagussett.

"We had a great turnout of boats on the Outside Line Saturday," said Al Woodman, Outside Line chairman. "There were 151 boats out there and three crew members for each one, making almost 500 disappointed people."

Woodman waited an hour longer than he wanted to wait before cancelling Saturday's races, hoping against hope winds would pick up.

Lavers explained that the Gala Night last Friday and Rendezvous Night Saturday went on as usual, although Friday's rains put a slight damper on that night's festivities. Gala Night was held at Quincy Yacht Club and Rendezvous Night at Town River.

Trophy Night will be held at Quincy Y.C. Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. when all prizes will be awarded. All winners and guests are invited to this event.

Connors' Sand Piper Best In Marine Parade

The 38th annual Quincy Bay Race Week was victimized by the weather but the colorful Marine Parade was held as usual Sunday with about 85 boats participating.

The boats used the Bicentennial theme this year with the Quincy Heritage Cup for best decorated boat going to the Sand Piper out of the Germantown Yacht Club with Jerry Connors skipper.

The runnerup for best decorated cruiser was Clementine III out of Wollaston Yacht Club with Past Commodore Clement Coolidge skipper.

The special award for outboards was won by Lyn-Dee out of Braintree Yacht Club with Walter Rice skipper.

The theme was "Quincy Bay Yesterday and Today".

Town River won the award for having the most boats, 28, one more than Braintree.

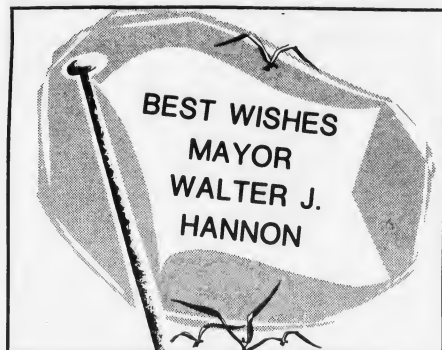

Leading the flotilla was the Quincy Police Boat, Alert, under the command of Leo Luciani.

Al Shaughnessy was chief marshal and Torey Montesi was parade chairman.

Margaret Huly Takes Red Fleet Honors

Margaret Huly of Wollaston Y.C. skippered her Blue Lightning to victory in the National Tens Red Fleet series with 25% points.

Following were Billy Kelleher, Cottage Park, 23; Don Mathewson, Wessagussett, 17; Mike Rodgers, Winchester, 14%; and Pamela Given, Wessagussett, 6%.

These rugged, vinyl-covered VHF-FM Marine Radio Telephones are splashproof, and impact, humidity and fungus resistant. They are the end-products of the same highly skilled engineering that produces precision radio equipment for aviation applications.

The completely self-contained all solid-state units produce maximum reliability and performance, and are pre-tuned for easy, legal, do-it-yourself installation. They can be panel mounted or, with the universal mounting bracket included, placed on or below table top or mounted on a bulkhead. An anti-theft device is included at no extra charge.

The radiotelephones have transmit indicator lights, and harbor switches to cut maximum power to one watt for in-harbor use [as required by law]. They provide maximum power with minimum power drain, and operate on standard 12 V DC electrical systems.

All GENAVE instruments are made in the U.S.A., in U.S. Government inspected facilities, to ensure adherence to the highest manufacturing standards, and are FCC Type Accepted.

● Babe Ruth

Fireman, Morrisette In Showdown For City Title

Firemen Local 792 and Morrisette are playing this week for the Babe Ruth League city championship, as Firemen eliminated Barry's Deli, 1-0, in an outstanding game.

The best 3 of 5 championship series continues today [Thursday] at 5 at Adams Field and the next two games, if necessary, will be played Friday and Saturday at the same time and place.

John Wilkinson pitched five-hit ball, struck out six and walked only one in the win over Barry's. Shortstop Ray Coscia excelled in the field. Dave Austin played his usual fine game at first base and scored the only run in the third inning when he singled, stole second, moved to third on a sacrifice fly and scored on a passed ball.

Peter Niosi pitched brilliant ball in defeat, allowing just two hits, struck out two and walked four. Jim Deitsch of Barry's had a double and two singles.

Morrisette made the title series by eliminating Police in three games. Morrisette won the opener, 9-3. Police evened it up, 5-0, and Morrisette won the clincher, 8-5.

Nationals Bow To Ontario In Finals

Quincy Babe Ruth League's National League All-Stars advanced to the finals of the McDonald's Bantam Tournament in Kingston, Ontario, before bowing to Leaside, Ont., 14-10.

For Quincy, Mike McCormack had a double as did Dave King and Paul McDermott. Paul O'Toole, Brian Condon and Steve Currier had singles.

In its opener Quincy had nipped St. Catherine's, 6-5, with King the winning pitcher. McCormack had three for four including a triple, and McDermott, Don Perdios, King and O'Toole had other hits.

Quincy edged Branford, 4-3, in its second game, with Perdios the winner. McCormack and O'Toole pitched in relief. Perdios, McCormack and Brian Jolley had a hit apiece.

In the semifinals the Quincy Nationals eliminated Quincy's American League's, 5-3, coming up with four runs in the seventh inning. McCormack was the winning pitcher and also had three for four including a triple. Perdios had two hits as did King, including a clutch seventh inning triple, and O'Toole had one. For the Americans Len Picot, John DiNardo and Pat Ennis each had a hit, DiNardo's being a long triple which put his team ahead, 3-1. John Wilkinson and Peter Nioso pitched well.

In their first game the Quincy Americans topped Newmarket, Ont., 3-1, as Niosi and Ray Cosia combined for a four-hitter. Going hitless into the sixth, Jim Deitsch singled, Pat Graham walked and Picot belted a three-run homer to drive in all the runs.

In the second game Wilkinson pitched a twohitter as Quincy breezed over a strong Ontario team, 10-0. Deitsch hit a home run and Ennis a sharp single in the shortened four-inning game.

AMONG EDDIE FEIGNER'S FEATS during a softball game is pitching blindfolded. Here Al Jackson stands by the famed leader of the four-man team to serve as his "eyes".

Eddie Feigner Takes On Quincy All-Stars Saturday

The Quincy Softball League All-Stars will face Eddie Feigner and his famed four-man team, The King and His Court, Saturday at 8:15 p.m. at Rotary Field in a game sponsored by Quincy YMCA.

Feigner and his team, which have made many Quincy appearances through the years, have been playing coast to coast for 30 years. Eddie is a magic name in sports and is a great showman. He has pitched in nearly every major league and minor league park in the country as well as in every state.

Many a major league baseball star has been unable to hit Feigner's blazing fast ball. He has only a catcher and two infielders with him but his four-man team has a remarkable won-lost record.

Playing for Quincy in Saturday's game will be Dana Chella, Tom Dale and Lenny Cedrone of County Line; Doug McLean and Jim Bule of Beau's; Al Sampson, Glen Gauthier and Tom Harrington of Kelly's; Bill Osborn of Rouillard's, Ted Stevenson and Fred Azar of Sabina's and Gus DiBore of Wells Grille.

Quincy Nets Clinch

Top Spot In 'Y' League

The Quincy Nets are rolling along at the top of the Quincy YMCA Summer Basketball League with an 11-0 record and, with one game remaining, have clinched first place.

The Nets added two wins last week, defeating Hanover, 65-52, and Palmer Pub of Quincy, 60-38.

Against Hanover Paul Kelliher had 15 points, Jim Dough had 14 rebounds and Bob McKay had eight assists and four steals.

In the Palmer game Dough, number nine scorer in the league, scored 18 points and Kelliher has 10. Rick Sprague, the league's number two scorer, had 19 for the Pub.

Sprague is averaging 21.6 points a game, Steve Martinelli of the Nets 13.7 and Dough 13.1.

● Lawn Bowling

Motta, Ziniti, Bourdon Win Treble Championship

Paul Motta, Joseph Ziniti and Roland Bourdon of Cunningham Park won the treble championship in the 31st Eastern Division Lawn Bowling Tournament held at the Merrymount and Cunningham courses. New York was second, Fernleigh, Conn., second and Milton's George Archilles, Jack Kaufman and Mark Benos third.

Winner of the second event was Smithfield, R.I.,

Essex County, N.J. was second, Smithfield, R.I. third and Cunningham Park's Sam Drevitch, Dick Murphy and Jack MacDonald fourth.

The third event was won by Brooklyn, with Sunrise, N.Y., second and Greenwich, Conn. third.

Essex County, N.J., won the fourth event with Quincy's Henry Bishop, Henry Johnson and John Durant runnerup.

In doubles, Quincy's Normand Wakeling and John

Durant was the winner with Boston second, Smithfield, R.I., third and Cataract City of Niagara Falls and Milton tied for fourth.

The second event was won by Greenwich, Conn., with Tam O'Shanter, Conn., second, Bridgeport, Conn., third and Cataract fourth.

In the third event Quincy's Aleck Russell and James Fraser were the winners and Boston runnerup. Essex County, N.J., won the fourth event.

Danny O'Malley In Heavyweight Bout Aug. 26

Danny O'Malley of Quincy will take on Eddie Casey of New Bedford in a heavyweight bout as Sam Silverman brings outdoor boxing back to Sargent's Field in New Bedford Aug. 26.

This will be the pro debut for O'Malley, who is managed by Nick Decridio of Somerville. He turned pro because no New England amateur would face him. He was a four-letterman at Quincy High and had 11 AAU bouts, winning eight by knockouts.

Maureen Walsh Throws Discus 68 Ft., 10 Inches

Maureen Walsh hurled the discus 68 feet, 10 inches, one of the best throw ever in New England by a 12-year-old girl, to highlight a recent Quincy Track Club meet.

Nine other records were set, including a blazing 9.8 in the senior 100 by Lee Watkins, who is on leave from the U.S. Air Force.

Denise Santo clipped half a second off the elementary girls 100 record time, winning in 13 seconds flat. Loretta Carrigan finished second in the same time, 13.0.

Steve Doherty, who will enter his junior year at North Quincy High School, vaulted 11 feet, beating the old mark by exactly one foot.

Janice Kelly set two new marks for senior girls, taking the 100 in 11.6 seconds and the long jump with a leap of 15 feet, 3 inches.

Dan McIntyre was a triple winner among junior boys, winning the 100, the 440, and the 60-yard hurdles.

The club jerseys have arrived and members are urged to pick them up as soon as possible.

Recreation Roundup

By JOE MOSESSO

At the city's 13 beaches, youngsters are preparing their skits for the upcoming "Water Carnival" at Fenno Street beach. Among them are - Bayfields Michele Cobbon, Mike Elchuck and Bill Hughes, Elm Ave's Scott Lawless, Joel Grando and Billy Kulik, Ruth Shines, Chuckie Kenney and Laurie Adams of Orchard and Lori Ann Wright, Paul Nevin and Larry Farnsworth of Snug Harbor.

Tim Flynn reports there are many talented youngsters, who have a good chance to win this year's archery tournament. Some of the hopefuls are Montclair's Bill O'Connell and Earl Sylvester, Bob Ready and Cindy McKay of Shea Rink, Mike Lupo and Brenda Morrison of Snug Harbor and Fenno Street's Paul Mallory.

Increased interest in the music and drama programs is due largely to the spirited and enthusiastic work of specialists Karen Walsh and Theresa Iacovino. Participants include Pond St's Cindy Meyers and Cathy Cameron, Stoney Brae's Maureen Ryan, Joe Vella and Jennifer Shores and Kathy Driscoll, Lee Ann Palmer, and Mary Ellen Thomas of O'Rourke.

Terrariums were in the spotlight in last week's nature program. Some of the more inventive ones were created by Baker's Robin Shuman, Jean Kufe, Leah and Erin Kelley, Chris Dever, Maureen and Kathy Connolly and Kim Kowlick, Cheryl Attridge and Joanne Bimmler of Squantum.

Tennis specialists Kevin McGinley and John Franceschini have released their scouting list of this year's pre-tournament favorites. In the boys division Steve DeLuca [Welcome Young], Tony Breen [Squantum], and Mike Donnelly [Faxon Park] all look good, while in the girls division Welcome Young's Faith Lindberg, Kincaide's Sandy Doyle and Shea Rink's Sue Gallery should provide strong competition. The senior division should also be strong this year led by Russell Park's Leo Bottary and Lisa Contos of Welcome Young.

The arts and crafts project for last week was stuffed animals. Some of the more creative ones were done by Beechwood Knoll's Patty Miceli and Debbie Belanger, Dave Farrell and Sue Estabrooks of Myles Standish, Montclair's Dean Zoia and Rich Lewis of Snug Harbor.

This year's gold tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Course should be close in all divisions reports golf specialist Ken Furfari. Standouts include Elaine Galvin, Nancy Smith, Billy Burt, Ed Campbell, Jim McSweeney, Nancy McDonald and Eileen Morrison.

A record-breaking 300 children have taken part in this summer's ceramics program. Ceramics specialists Andrea Quinn and Beth Hannatte report some of the more artistic talent has been shown by Atlantic's Tom Bulger and Lucy Chemel, Tommy McGrath and Mike Bradburg of Fenno St., Adam's Marie Lawler and Mike Ploof and Sandra Halfield and Julie Green of Wollaston.

The new track and field program continues to gain more and more popularity each week. Supervised by North Quincy track stars Brian and Paul Doherty, this program is one of this summer's most successful. Standouts include Rita Sandonato, Nancy Martin, Bob Steen, Billy Coose and Mike Williams.

In sports, playoffs begin this week in all leagues.

Morrisette Eyes State Title, Northeast Regional Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

HOUSE HONORS — State House of Representatives recently presented a citation to the Morrisette Legion Post in recognition of its winning the Zone 6 baseball championship with a 20-2 record. Morrisette now has won three straight games in the state championship double-elimination tourney in Lynn and will be host team for next week's Northeast Regionals at Adams Field. Left to right, Asst. Coach Bill Corcoran, Head Coach Ray Cattaneo, Rep. Joseph Brett, who made the presentation; Asst. Coach Connie Carlozzi and Manager Tom Malvesti.

Morrisette Post, enjoying one of its finest seasons in its long baseball history, is an automatic entry in next week's Northeast Regional Tournament at Adams Field, but Coach Ray Cattaneo and his players may also be the Massachusetts champion.

Going into last night's (Wednesday) game against the Lawrence-Dudley Webster winner at Frazer Field in Lynn in the state championship round robin tourney, Morrisette had won three straight one-run games and was the only remaining undefeated team in the double elimination event. Monday, Morrisette, pushing its impressive record to 26-3, engaged in its fifth successive one-run games as it nipped Dudley Webster, 7-6.

Morrisette lost a 6-2 lead as D-W scored four times in the sixth but in the ninth Joe Glynn walked and Jimmy Roberts doubled in the winning run. Mark Dwyer went eight innings and had only one bad inning, the sixth. Tim Clifford, who has a 14-1 record this year, pitched the ninth.

Dave Perdis, playing his first game at shortstop, played an outstanding game and also had a triple, double and single. Frank Miceli and Glynn also had three hits each and Roberts two.

Sunday Morrisette, which won its 19th Zone 6 championship to make the state tourney, came from behind twice to edge Lawrence, 6-5, in 11 innings.

Morrisette rallied from a 4-1 deficit with three runs in the ninth, each team scored a run in the 10th and in the 11th Jack Rabel singled and scored the winner on a tremendous double by Mike DePolio.

Jack Lawlor pitched until the ninth when Mitch McBride relieved. Clifford pitched the final two innings.

Rabel had three hits, Dennis McGuire a home run and single, DePolio his winning double and single and Morrisette and E. Bridgewater had the third and deciding game of their second round series rained out three nights in a row, state officials decided to make it an opening game in the state championships.

Morrisette, which had won the opener, 8-7, and dropped the second game, 6-5, celebrated by winning, 5-4, with Clifford pitching all the way for his 14th win. He allowed eight hits, struck out 12 and walked five.

Morrisette won it with two runs in the ninth. Dwyer was hit by a pitch, Rabel singled and Lawlor's hit drove in both runs.

Glynn had a long home run and Lawlor and Rabel two hits each to spark Morrisette.

"These kids are' just fantastic," Cattaneo said. "Whether or not we win the state title, we have proven we belong in the Northeast Regionals. These kids never say die and time after time have come from behind to win. I couldn't be prouder, they are one of the best groups I've ever worked with."

Morrisette, which bombed Weymouth, 10-2, in a playoff to win the Zone 6 title, swept Norwood in two games in the opening round of the state tourney.

ENC To Conduct Basketball, Soccer Camp

The Crusader Basketball and Soccer Camp, conducted by Eastern Nazarene College coaches, will be held again this summer at Long Lake Acres in Naples, Me.

Camp One will run from Aug. 17 to 23 for boys nine through 12. ENC Basketball Coach Jim Smith, who has a record of 110-48 at ENC and a lifetime record of 216-115, will be the basketball director and Steve Shoff, a former ENC star and now head coach at Weymouth North High School, will be the soccer director.

Camp Two will run from Aug. 24 to 30 for boys 13 through 17 with Smith as basketball director and Neil Nicoll, ENC head coach with a record of 26-11-4, the soccer director. Also assisting in the soccer program will be Herbert Voleisinger, head coach of the Boston Minutemen.

A boy can choose either basketball or soccer and there will be fundamentals, clinics and two games a day. This is the third year for the Crusader Camp and there are still openings for beginners and advanced players.

The fee is $80 for six full days which includes T-shirt, insurance, transportation from Quincy, water skiing, private swimming beach, cabins and showers. There will be one counsellor for five campers, registered nurse and excellent meals.

Tobin, Brownell, Delahunt, QCA Favor New Assessing Methods

A capacity audience filled Gardner Auditorium at the State House Monday to deliver and hear testimony on a bill which would permit city and town assessors to use different methods in determining fair cash value of property.

Testimony before the Joint Committee on Ways and Means lasted four and one-half hours with the majority of representatives and individuals speaking in favor of the bill introduced by Boston Mayor Kevin White.

Opponents raised questions as to the bill's constitutionality and many legislators favor the seeking of a ruling by the Supreme Judicial Court.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell relinquished his allotted testimony time to allow citizens to express their views on the bill.

Last week Rep. William D. Delahunt and 77 other legislators filed a resolution requesting the Supreme Judicial Court to postpone any orders requiring real estate assessment at 100 per cent valuation until Jan. 1, 1979, allowing the people to vote on the matter through a ballot question.

The resolution passed by a vote of 220 to 53.

Brownell submitted written testimony to the Committee stating the average Quincy homeowner would face a 48 per cent net increase on his tax bill if 100 per cent evaluation were enforced in the city.

Citing statistics compiled by MIT Professor William C. Wheaton for the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, Brownell indicated the average Quincy homeowner would experience a 25 per cent increase in his real estate tax bill. He noted, too, the city would lose at least 23 per cent of its state school-aid money which would have to be recovered through local property taxes.

"There are few home owners who could afford such a tax increase in one year."

Brownell continued: "On the other hand, the study shows the tax bill would decline 20 per cent on commercial property and 54 per cent on industrial property. This is just not fair."

Calling himself a consistent opponent of 100 per cent valuation, Delahunt said implementation of the law - passed in December by the state Supreme Court - would trigger "financial havoc" in Quincy and would deal "a severe blow" to the majority of Quincy homeowners.

Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin said he "fully supports" the bill, saying it would, if constitutional, "remove the Sword of Democles that now hangs over the head of the homeowner who is facing 100 per cent revaluation."

The Quincy Citizens Association submitted written testimony to the Committee, recording its members in favor of passage of the bill, and labelling the impact of 100 per cent valuation as "catastrophic" to Quincy homeowners. The statement said in part:

"The crux of the matter is the distribution of cherry sheet funds to the cities and towns. This distribution should not be based in assessed valuation which fluctuates day to day. It should be based on population figures... One-hundred per cent valuation will make continued home-ownership impossible for the elderly, widows, the retired and small families struggling for a home of their own."

"Homeownership is the fabric on which our stable society is built and our Association hopes the legislature, in its wisdom and prudence, will see that homeownership is preserved and encouraged by legalizing the percentage method of real estate assessment."

Hearings To Improve QDC Caseload

A special legislative committee will hold public hearings today [Thursday] and Friday to field suggestions on how to improve the operation of Quincy District Court.

Rep. William Delahunt, chairman of the committee called Quincy Court "the third busiest district court in the Commonwealth" and said his committee is now considering re-arrangement of judicial districts, shifting some of the present Quincy Court caseload to surrounding district courts.

Delahunt noted Quincy

District Court now serves Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Randolph, Milton, Holbrook and Cohasset. He said the committee plans to re-group this arrangement of cities, so that Randolph and Holbrook would align with Stoughton District Court, Milton with Dedham District Court, and Cohasset with Hingham District Court.

Delahunt noted these three courts carry a "significantly smaller" caseload than Quincy District Court.

The hearings will begin today [Thursday] at 10 a.m. in the courthouse.

4 More Take Out Papers

Four more candidates have taken out nomination papers for the city election, bringing the total number of candidates with papers to 44.

The new candidates are: Walter J. Hickey of 155 Huchins Ave., Squantum, seeking the Ward 6 Council seat. Edward W. Meade of 19 Crosby St., Houghs Neck, and John B. Whalen of 144 Spring St., Houghs Neck, Ward 1 Council.

Paul F. Trenham of 135 Edgewater Dr., Houghs Neck, School Committee.

Of the 44 candidates who have taken out their nomination papers, only 12 had filed their papers by mid-week.

Stephen E. O'Meara of 270 Farrington St., Wollaston has withdrawn from the Councillor at-large race.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Davis Criticizes MBTA's South Shore Fare System

Harold Davis, candidate for City Councillor at-large, sharply criticizes the MBTA's fare system on the South Shore.

Davis has obtained Rep. Joseph Brett's support to introduce legislation authorizing a study of the MBTA fare system.

According to Davis, a resident of Houghs Neck will pay three times more for a trip from that section of Quincy to Boston, than an individual traveling from Mattapan to Harvard. This situation exists even though both types are on the Red Line and a Mattapan to Harvard trip is longer than either Houghs Neck to Boston or Harvard, he said.

According to figures obtained by Davis from the MBTA, a round trip from Houghs Neck to Boston via bus and rapid transit costs $1.60 while a trolley and rapid transit journey from Mattapan to Harvard cost 50 cents.

Davis said he has received complaints from Quincy residents about the fare structure particularly in light of poor service. Delays of 15 or 20 minutes were commonly mentioned as the normal situation during rush hour. Similar complaints have been made to Davis concerning poor bus service in Quincy and even the skipping of scheduled service, he said.

Davis said it was time the MBTA explained why Quincy and South Shore residents are being made to bear this unfair burden compared to that carried by the rest of the MBTA service area.

"It is an acknowledged fact that the Red Line extension is a money maker," he said. "This coupled with the excessive fare structure indicates that Quincy residents are being victimized."

Marilyn Hanabury Seeks Stricter Parking Enforcement

In a recent letter to Police Chief Francis Finn, Mrs. Marilyn D. Hanabury of 2 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, candidate for the Ward 5 City Council seat, asked for stricter enforcement of parking regulations.

She cited three specific spots in Wollaston where she said parked cars presented hazards to moving traffic: Quincy Shore Drive at Beach St., Newport Ave. at the Wollaston MBTA station, and the section of Standish Rd that forks into Old Colony Ave.

"Some provision should be made for homeowners in the area to park safely," Mrs. Hanabury said, speaking of the Quincy Shore Dr. and Beach St., situation. "The speed on the boulevard must be cut in order to prevent deaths." She suggested the installation of a set of regular working lights at the corner of Beach St. and provide a protective barrier along the sidewalk restaurants to protect customers.

"Enforcement has got to be for everyone, not just the young and longhairs."

Brownell Appoints 5

To Ward 1 Action Committee

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell has appointed five Quincy residents as members of the Ward 1 Affirmative Action Committee of the Democratic Party.

They are Mrs. Sheila Ward of 120 Putnam St., Quincy; William J. Mitchell Jr., of 148 Darrow St., Houghs Neck; Susan Ray of 80 Butler Rd., Quincy; Roswell S. Clarke of 90 Bicknell St., Germantown; and Anthony J. Battaglia of 144 Babcock St., Houghs Neck.

Brownell, chairman of the Ward 1 Democratic Committee, said this committee will implement the Democratic Party's Affirmative Action Plan on the ward level.

This plan designates 10 target groups: women, native Americans, senior citizens, Blacks, Puerto Ricans,

LaRaia Says He Has Shown Concern For Citizens Input

Mayorality candidate Joseph J. LaRaia told West Quincy residents recently his concern for citizen input has been demonstrated during his tenure on the City Council.

"My past action should be proof that I intend to follow through on this concept," LaRaia told neighborhood residents at the home of Thomas and Joan Picard, 61 Rogers St., West Quincy.

He cited the 1972 assessment increase to one third of the city's homeowners which came at the same time the city was being faced with a $13 increase in the tax rate.

"The people received their tax bills without any warning of the assessment increase," he said. "I asked that City Hall be opened to let these people air their grievances. They should have been informed of the assessment increase before the bills were mailed."

LaRaia also talked of the $2 million bond issue for public improvements which was passed, he said, despite his objection.

"The city is expected to receive $2 million from the federal government during the next two years," he said. "I think the bond issue is unnecessary."

"We're going to have to pay lots of money in interest simply for the privilege of receiving the money now rather than later," he said.

Operach To File Nomination Papers Friday

School Committee candidate Paul Operach of 25 Trask Ave., West Quincy, said he will file his nomination papers by Friday.

At a recent gathering at the home of George Addallah of 15 Winter St., Quincy Point, Operach pledged he would recommend, if elected, a policy of hiring qualified local people for all professional and non-professional positions. He said:

"Residents who pay taxes and contribute to the community in many other ways should be given initial opportunities for all positions."

He continued, "Although some change has occurred, many supervisory and administrative positions have not followed suit. Local people reflect the same views and philosophy of the students which is vital in the educational process."

Harold Re-elected Young Democrats Committeeman

Atty. Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore was recently re-elected National Committeeman of the Massachusetts Young Democrats at the group's convention in Framingham.

Harold has served as National Committeeman for the past year. Previously, he served for two years as president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Massachusetts.

As National Committeeman, Harold represents the Massachusetts group before the National Executive Committee in Washington, D.C.

Harold served on the state Democratic Planning Group which drew up the state's first affirmative action proposal. He was later elected a state-wide alternate delegate to the party's National Charter Convention which was held in Kansas City last December.

He has also served as a co-ordinator for the 1972, 1973 Democratic "Phonothones."

Bellotti, Jr. Says Schools Must Develop Character

Quincy School Committee candidate Francis X. Bellotti Jr., praised the Quincy School Systems efforts in providing the best modern equipment for its students, at a coffee hour held recently in his honor.

But, Bellotti added, the schools need to develop stronger character in our future adults.

"Developing success oriented personalities will

Toland Stresses Good Citizenship

Mrs. Patricia Toland, candidate for school committee, says she feels specific projects involving good citizenship should be encouraged by classroom teachers.

Speaking at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Selwyn Tanofsky, 55 Princess Eve Drive, she said:

"I would like to see children learn to respect one another, their teachers and their school property. I want to see children taught good citizenship. They need to learn what their rights and responsibilities are, both as individuals and as members of the community."

have a greater influence in causing future generations to lead noble and useful lives, than merely exposing our young to modern machines," Bellotti said.

"Today's crime rate is astronomical, and if we are to deal with it effectively, we must do so in our educational institutions. If young people are properly educated, many of today's social problems will disappear in the next few decades."

"I have been surveying self-improvement and character training programs for over five years and have gained much that I wish I learned in grammar school. As a member of your school committee I will strive to insure that your school system brings out the best that is in the students of Quincy."

77 Adams Place in Quincy

We're approaching the final stages of construction and, though our appearance is a bit rough around the edges, 77 Adams Place is now open with a furnished model apartment for your inspection.

A little imagination is all that's needed to visualize the gracious, elegant landmark this building is destined to be. No imagination is needed to see the remarkable advantages of living at 77 Adams Place. Prime location. The historic Adams Mansion for a neighbor. Spectacular views. Short walk to downtown shopping and the new MBTA Red Line to Boston. Rooftop pool, clubhouse, and sauna.

Rents start as low as $285 for a one bedroom and $390 for a two bedroom-two bath apartment. Visit us any day, noon to five, at the corner of Adams and Alleyne Streets, or call 471-8508. From the Southeast Expressway, take the Furnace Brook Parkway exit (No. 24) and follow to the third traffic light. Turn right on Adams Street for one mile.

Quincy Job Market Increases 1,100

The job market in Quincy showed an increase of 1,100 during 1974, reports Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

"Even though unemployment remains far too high," Hannon said, "We are making good progress in developing more jobs in the city."

The total number of jobs in the city was 30,096 at the end of 1974, he pointed out.

He said, the annual payroll for all wage earners in Quincy businesses climbed to $262,475,200 in 1974. "That was an increase of $18,000,000 in one year."

Referring to figures just released by the state's Division of Employment Security, Mayor Hannon said that construction jobs have remained stable at just over 1,600.

Some 3,663 positions exist in communications, transportation and utilities. These have shown a slight increase in the last year, but "jobs in these fields are up almost 200 in a two year period," he added.

The biggest increase came in finance, insurance and real estate with 1,000 more jobs being created in 1974, bringing the total to almost 3,500 people employed.

"We are now reaping the benefits of having State Street South and Kemper Insurance in North Quincy," said the mayor. "From 1972 to the end of 1974, the number of jobs in this field has gone from just over 1,500 to almost 3,500."

He pointed out that manufacturing jobs have been dropping in the city since 1967 and now stand at just over 8,000.

"We were aware that this trend was developing, and that is one of the reasons we went after State Street Bank, Kemper Insurance and Jordan Marsh," Hannon said.

"As a result of our efforts, there are more jobs in Quincy in this area than ever before."

Hannon indicated that the new companies in North Quincy came to the city in the past few years because of the MBTA. "Direct access to Boston is essential for a company like State Street South," he said.

He added that many Quincy residents are now working at Jordan Marsh, Kemper Insurance, and State Street South.

Hannon said he was glad to see jobs in the service industries show an increase in 1974. "For the first time, there are over 4,000 such positions in the city," he said. "Over 400 new jobs have been created since 1972."

Hannon said he is convinced the long term job picture is good for the city "if we keep working to attract the right kind of businesses to the city."

alcoholic beverages, standing

In a letter to City Clerk Gillis, Delahunt noted "strong sentiment" among Houghs Neck residents to have the lounge's license permanently revoked. In his letter to Gillis, Delahunt said:

"Neighbors in the area have been constantly harassed by patrons of this establishment. It is certainly unfair that long-time citizens, women and children should have to bear the brunt of this type of conduct...I feel the situation has not improved but rather deteriorated and at this point strong action should be taken by the Licensing Board."

A Sad 20th Anniversary

1955 Polio Epidemic Victim Urges Parents To Immunize Children Early

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Mrs. Sybil Mattson of 7 Carter St., South Quincy will mark Saturday as the 20th anniversary of a tragedy she wishes all to avoid.

A victim of the 1955 polio epidemic which insidiously stalked through New England, Mrs. Mattson was one of 142 Quincy residents stricken by the disease in that year alone.

The mother of two, Mrs. Mattson is paralyzed from her neck down and confined to bed.

But she will not remember the year 1955 morosely; she will not sulk in self-pity. She has planned, in fact, to gather at her home some 40 friends and former patients, doctors and nurses, who met that year in White-9 at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mrs. Mattson wants not only to rekindle old friendships, but more importantly to dramatize the importance of early polio immunization for children.

Her chest encased in an armour-like respirator pumping up and down, up and down, to keep her alive, Mrs. Mattson explained she wants to trigger a new consciousness of her disease, stressing to young mothers in particular the need for early polio immunization. She said: "I'd somehow like to reach the young mothers so their children won't have to celebrate a 20th anniversary like this one. Young mothers have no recollection of polio at all. It seems when the disease is out of sight, it's out of mind.

"Unless a mother goes to a pediatrician or a Well-Baby Clinic, the child is not immunized until it's time to go to school. If I could speak to all young mothers, I'd tell them, 'Immunize early - even before it's required, or it may be too late.'"

Once a dreaded disease, polio can now be prevented through immunization. Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred Mahoney said

The names of 34 candidates—28 men and six women—will appear on the Quincy city preliminary election ballot Sept. 23.

The 34 will seek nominations for 13 municipal seats—mayor, three city council at-large, six ward council and three school committee.

City Clerk John Gillis said a drawing for position on the ballot will be held in the City Council chamber Friday at 4 p.m.

There will be only five preliminary election contests: mayor, council at-large, school committee, Ward 1 and Ward 2 city council.

In Wards 3, 5 and 6, the incumbents have only one challenger each thus guaranteeing each a nomination for the Nov. 4 final election.

The most interesting development was the failure of School Committeeman Frank Anselmo to file his papers for the Ward 4 council seat.

It leaves incumbent James A. Sheets the only incumbent unopposed.

There were no 11th hour surprise candidates as the clock reached the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

The mayor's race officially turned into a four-candidate contest as Mayor Walter J.

Hannon and three challengers filed. The three: Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, Grace E. Saphir, 921 East Squantum St., North Quincy and Professor Michael Jovanovic of 62 Town Hill St., West Quincy.

Seven filed for city council at-large.

Incumbents Arthur M. Tobin, and John J. Quinn, and School Committeeman Harold Davis, Rep. William D. Delahunt, Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., and Helen M. McDonnell of 86 Granger St.

George A. Trubiano, 203 Atlantic St. and Joseph F. O'Brien, 60 Butler Rd. failed to file their papers. Joyce L. Baker, 162 Warren Ave. and Stephen E. O'Meara, 270 Farrington St. withdrew from the race earlier.

One of the three at-large seats is open as the result of LaRaia's decision to run for mayor.

Nine filed for the school committee:

Incumbent Francis X. McCauley, Kenneth J. Runge, 87 Willett St., J. Thomas Mullaney, 115 Standish Ave., Francis X. Bellotti Jr., 120 Hillside Ave.,

Mosquito Spraying 'Precautionary'

No Encephalitis Danger Assures Dr. Mahoney

The South Shore Mosquito Control Project conducted an aerial spraying Tuesday as a precautionary measure against encephalitis.

The spraying followed the discovery last week that a 62-year-old West Quincy man had contracted the disease.

City Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred Mahoney emphasized the spraying is totally precautionary. He told The Quincy Sun:

"There is no danger at all. I agreed to the spraying as a precautionary measure."

Mahoney noted only 38 cases of encephalitis have been recorded in Massachusetts in the last 50 years. He also said the spraying substance is completely harmless to humans, plants and birds.

Spraying began Tuesday at 5:30 a.m. beginning in the Quincy section of the Blue Hills Reservation.

Spraying operations continued down Adams St. to Furnace Brook Parkway to Copeland St. to Center St. and down to the Braintree line.

Further spraying will take place throughout the South Shore including Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham.

Hannon Statement Criticized

No Decision Made On S. Quincy MBTA Station Insists UMTA Official

Mayor Walter J. Hannon's "fact of life" statement on the building of a South Quincy MBTA Station has triggered sharp criticism from Quincy officials and a countering assurance a final decision on the station has not yet been made.

Peter N. Stowell, New England regional director of Urban Mass Transportation Administration [UMTA], told The Quincy Sun a decision on the station has "very definitely not been made" by UMTA Washington officials.

A 13-member delegation of Quincy and Braintree officials and residents travelled at their own expense to Washington, D.C. Friday to express their opposition to the proposed station to UMTA officials.

Thursday night, unknown to them, Mayor Hannon told a gathering of a reported 125 South Quincy residents:

"The MBTA station in South Quincy is a fact of life. It doesn't make any difference who the mayor is on Jan. 1, 1976, the station is going in."

Quincy delegates attending the three-hour meeting in Washington, D.C. were Reps. Joseph Brett, Thomas Brownell, and Robert Cerasoli, City Councilors Joseph LaRaia and James A. Sheets, Quincy Citizens Association President Pasquale DiStefano, Atty. Paul Harold and Norman Forde and Hugo Fabrizio, Quincy residents and businessmen.

Also attending were Braintree Rep. Elizabeth Metayer, Holbrook Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr.; Northeast Braintree Civic Association President Joseph P. Hernon; Transportation Consultant Stephen J. Karol; Susan Riley, aide to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy; Ralph Neas, chief legislative assistant to Sen. Edward Brooke; and Robert Herring, aide to Cong. James A. Burke.

Representing UMTA were Jerry Premo, associate administrator; Roger Krahl and Ray Casas, office of capital assistance; William M. Donnelly, office of chief counsel; Keyoshe Mano, capital assistance and environment; Jerry A. Fisher, director of project development.

Stowell said UMTA officials are now reviewing the transcripts of hearings conducted on the South Quincy Station in Quincy, investigating allegations by Quincy members of the delegation the hearing at Masonic Temple was conducted improperly.

Reacting to Hannon's "fact of life" comment, Stowell said: "I don't know what he had in mind, but I hope he has the money to pay for the station himself."

Meanwhile, DeStefano, speaking for the QCA, demanded Hannon reveal the individual who informed him the station will be built.

Hannon, at his summer home in Kennebunkport Me. Tuesday, was unavailable for comment.

Quincy members of the Washington delegation showed surprise and outrage at Hannon's "fact of life" statement. Their reactions:

Rep. Thomas Brownell: "I was very surprised at the Mayor's statement...I feel it was wishful thinking on his part...I don't think his statement represents fact. Mr. Premo assured us the decision has not been made and I have full confidence in the gentleman."

Rep. Joseph Brett: "The Mayor was speaking off the top of his head. We received a very courteous and cordial reception by UMTA representatives in Washington. It appeared from our three-hour conversation the matter was not a closed book. Minds are still open. No final decision has yet

Protection And Pet

Large Dogs In Greater Demand At Quincy Animal Shelter

By POLLY DREDGE

Large dogs are in greater demand today, more than ever before, according to Quincy Dog Officer Francis E. Berlucchi.

The border shepherd is the most widely sought at the Quincy Animal Shelter, and is the most common handled by the shelter. The mixed shepherds and other large dogs are easiest to place because, according to Berlucchi, people today are looking for protection as well as companionship in their pets as crime continues to rise.

Some say it's a "sign of the times", the beagle is no longer the No. 1 favorite, and other smaller dogs seem to be slipping in popularity.

Berlucchi reports the animal shelter does not place dogs exclusively in Quincy. Quite the contrary - the shelter has placed dogs throughout the greater Boston area, and even as far as Rhode Island and New Jersey.

A letter from one of the shelter's satisfied customers reinforces Berlucchi's remarks about companionship and the radius of the shelter's placement efforts:

"...Duchess is great. She loves her home and her canine friend Fritz. ... She has taken over our entire family. I just can't say enough about her! We love her. I don't understand why her first owner had so much trouble with her. She obeys, [and] is affectionate... We always include her on our vacation trips and she rides in the car well."

Duchess was a mixed shepherd the shelter had received and placed in a Brockton home.

Berlucchi, assisted by James Blake and Russell Gullicksen, handles 30 to 35 dogs a week in the 36 cage shelter.

Ninety percent of the dogs are either returned to their owners or are placed in new homes, according to Berlucchi.

Besides providing a 24-hour service to receive complaint calls, shelter personnel have provided animal ambulance service, answered questions and given advice about sick pets - actions beyond the outlined duties of a dog officer.

Tobin Anti-Discrimination Legislation Engrossed

Senator Arthur H. Tobin

announces that legislation be sponsored to prohibit discrimination in granting of mortgage loans and in the furnishing of credit or services solely because of age, has been engrossed in the Senate.

"Discrimination solely because of age has been an outrage to the elder citizens of our Commonwealth," Tobin said, "and to deny credit to older persons is a humiliating experience for the many older persons who have had a lifetime of good credit."

Present System 'Obsolete'

Recommends Adams Birthplaces Alarm Linked To Fire Headquarters

Supt. of Fire Alarm John Schmuck has recommended future fire alarm equipment at the Adams Birthplaces be connected with the city's central fire alarm system.

Calling the present systems at the historic Franklin St. birthplaces "obsolete, ineffective and inoperative", Schmuck suggested the equipment be replaced with a system approved by Underwriters Laboratories. Emphasizing the need of replacement, not repair, he said: "An attempt to repair the existing equipment would be foolhardy."

Quincy Heritage Executive Director John R. Graham has called a meeting of city and fire officials Tuesday, Aug. 26 to make recommendations to Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the City Council for "a comprehensive fire alarm system in the birthplaces."

Expected to attend that meeting are City Councillor Warren A. Powers, chairman of the Historical Places Committee; H. Hobart Holly, president of the Quincy Historical Society; Joyce Baker, chairman of the House Committee of the Society; John Schmuck, superintendent of fire alarms; Gordon MacPhee, administrative assistant at Quincy Heritage and Graham.

The group will discuss "inadequacies" in the fire alarm system at the Adams Birthplaces and will review the functioning of the present system.

According to Quincy Heritage, Roger W. Cabell, designer of the electric monitoring system presently in the birthplaces, gave assurances steps have been taken to correct "minor deficiencies" in the system which he said is now "operational".

According to Cabell, the system, installed approximately 10 years ago, monitors electrical wiring through both houses. Any electrical shortages register on a master log located in the caretaker's house and an alarm sounds, he explained to the Quincy Heritage office. The system, however, is not connected to the city's central fire station.

Quincy Historical Society President H. Hobart Holly agreed with Schmuck's appraisal of the birthplaces, terming the fire alarm systems there as "inadequate" and in need of replacement.

In a report prepared for Mayor Walter J. Hannon and quoted in last week's Quincy Sun, Quincy Heritage Executive Director John R. Graham said he toured the Adams birthplaces with Holly nearly two years ago. Graham said at that time Holly failed to tell him the fire alarm on the exterior wall of one house was not connected to the fire station. In his report, Graham said:

"I learned...only a bell would ring if a fire broke out. The bell was connected to the apartment of the hostess who lives in one of the houses. Obviously, if she were not at home, no one would know about a fire or burglary."

But Holly told the Quincy Sun he "did not recall" the conversation cited by Graham. According to Holly, the fire alarm equipment Graham spoke of is a "secondary system" which alerts the hostess living in one of the houses of a fire or break-in. The older system, Holly said, is connected to a "howler" on the outside of one of the houses, which would attract the attention of neighbors.

In his report to Hannon, Graham mentioned his concern that the Historical Society had never brought the fire alarm inadequacies to the city's attention.

Responding to that comment, Holly told The Quincy Sun:

"No one knew the fire alarm systems were inadequate until the fire department told us so. We have been cooperating with the city on the matter and we are interested in seeing the houses being well protected."

Schmuck's report, dated March 24, 1975, labels the fire alarm systems at the Adams birthplaces "inoperative." The report, referred to by Graham as "scathing", said in part:

"Any resemblance between the equipment at this location and a real fire alarm system is strictly accidental. Both buildings have a very old-style rate of rise/fixed temperature heat detectors...We informed the caretaker that the systems were inoperative."

Last week Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers requested the city to take "immediate steps" to protect two of its historic sites from possible fire.

He said he learned of the fire alarm deficiencies through a communication from Joyce Baker, chairman of the House Committee of the Quincy Historical Society.

Graham's report to Hannon on the birthplaces recommends the City Council appropriate funds for a proper fire alarm system estimated to cost some $9,800.

Dear Fellow Citizen:

In the next few months the Massachusetts State Senate will be voting on the following critical issues. In order to assure the fact that the wishes of the people of Quincy will be carried out, I urge you to fill out and return this questionnaire to me at my office in the State House, Room 413C. Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.

Furnace Brook Pkwy, Copeland St Work On Schedule

Work at the Copeland St.-Furnace Brook Parkway intersection is progressing on schedule according to Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets.

A portion of the pavement in the intersection is being widened some 12-15 feet to allow trucks bound for downtown Quincy to turn safely from Furnace Brook Parkway to Copeland St.

Numerous incidents occurred where trucks making the turn have struck the pedestrian light and protective, iron plates and poles on the corner, he said.

Small children standing on the corner believed they were safe behind the steel guard poles but were actually in jeopardy.

Sheets indicated that work should actually be complete before the beginning of the new school year. He said the Public Works Department had done a good job in coordinating with the MDC on the project.

$32,075 In Wiring

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts reports 101 permits were issued for an estimated $32,075 in wiring during July.

Fifty-seven certificates of approval were awarded and $818 were collected in fees.

Of the one hundred sixty-two inspections made, 15 were re-inspections. Nineteen defects were noted and two fire calls were made.

Major wiring project for the month was a new recreation building at Aquarius Estates, 62 South St., Quincy Point.

RIGHTS 'N' WRONGS Let honeymooners go on trip alone

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
Our daughter and her fiancé are to be married late this summer and will honeymoon in Hawaii. He is in the travel business and says he can get a deluxe suite at a fancy hotel for practically nothing. They have invited us to go along. He is going to rent a car and we would be included at no charge.

Besides all that, he knows the islands well and could get us lots of extras. Should we go?
Mom and Dad in Texas
Dear Mom and Dad:
You really want to share a suite with a honeymoon couple (and vice versa)? Stay home and let the young people take the trip alone. You aren't going to save all that kind of money. There are literally scores of guided tours offered in Hawaii, and I feel sure that any director will give you more time and attention that your son-in-law.

Even people in the travel business don't get deluxe suites for "practically nothing" especially when they aren't on a "working trip" or have outsiders along. If you two go on a tour, there is bound to be another couple along who would be happy to share car expenses with you, but on a guided tour, who needs an automobile?

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
At a wedding dinner the master of ceremonies told an endless series of ribald jokes about newlyweds. Will you comment?

Ferris B.

Dear Ferris:
Two words: bad taste. The father of the bride should have scanned the MC's material beforehand or have cut him off in the middle of his routine. Certainly someone goosed on the choice of MC. If everyone else feels as you do, I doubt if he will be called upon to serve again.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
My girlfriend and I got engaged last week. I had planned to give her a diamond ring but now she tells me she wants a huge pearl ring instead. To make matters worse, the diamond I had planned to give her is a family heirloom. Should I give the lady what she wants? My mother is very upset about the whole thing.

Sam

Dear Sam:
Yes, give your fiancée the pearl ring. Suggest to your mother that she have the diamond reset in a pendant setting and you could give it to your bride on her wedding day. It seems to me that would be a solution that would make both the women in your life happy. Good luck!

Today's Women Sunny always wears her star

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Sunny Griffin, top model turned actress turned Avon beauty editor, has been getting so many requests for copies of the star she wears on a neck chain in the Avon commercials that the company will start selling them.

Sunny's star, however, didn't come from Avon but was designed by her husband, CBS newsmen Richard Wagner, who had a jeweler make it up for her.

"I never take it off," Sunny says, "so naturally I wear it in commercials. And after they went on the air, we began getting letters from places like Kodiak, Alaska, saying, 'We are five members of a rock group, and we want five of those stars in gold, five in silver and five in green.'"

"So now the company is going to make up stars for sale, only they won't be exactly like mine, because they won't be solid gold."

Sunny supplemented her $20-a-month allowance when she was in college by taking in sewing.

"My allowance had to cover everything," she remembers, "food, books, everything. Books were the first expense to go, but, since I was planned to be a boy at Cornell and it cost $18 to go from Hood where I was in school to Cornell and back, I had to augment my income. "So I hemmed dresses for 20 cents a hem.

"But I could do more than that. I even made a wedding dress for a girl who was being married in the National Cathedral."

Because of her expertise with a needle, Sunny was chosen one of Glamour magazine's "Best Dressed College Girls in America," so, upon graduation with a degree in chemistry, she applied to Glamour for a job.

"But can you type?" she was asked.

And the question kept being asked everywhere else she applied.

STITCHING WITCHERY

By BETTY W. KINSEY

Dear Betty: I can't recall if you have ever mentioned in your column that polyester double knits make great tablecloths. I made one 3 1/2 yards long for my mother for Christmas and trimmed it with inexpensive lace. Washes beautifully. — JoAnn Hohensee

Fantastic, JoAnn. What could be easier to take care of than polyester knit? I can picture one cloth for each holiday...red and white for Christmas, orange and black for

"I'd thought I'd go into New York and get a job right away," she remembers, "but because I couldn't type, nobody wanted me until finally someone suggested I become a model."

Sunny went to the Eileen Ford Model Agency where she was accepted to become a face on the cover of "Harper's Bazaar," "Redbook," "Family Circle," etc. "I was a model at the very best time," she thinks, "because that's when models were being sent all over the world for assignments. Now, with less money available, that doesn't happen."

"But there was a time when my biggest problem was whether I could get a flight from Acapulco to Hawaii."

"If I had less than six bookings a day, we had razors at our wrists. If we made less than $2,500 a week, we were suicidal."

"People often ask me how I kept my weight down when I was modeling, but the real problem was how I could eat enough to keep from starving. As a model, I always ate a huge breakfast, because I didn't know when I'd ever see food again. I'd be booked straight through from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m."

Sunny met her husband while she was in college and he was dating her roommate.

"I used to tell her, 'Don't let him get away, because he's so cute,'" she says. "But now I'm glad that she did."

TIE-DOWN TERROR

Vacation travelers usually tie down a mass of junk on the roofs of their cars. This could prove fatal to the driver behind if the job is done poorly. Actual case:

You're starting out from home on vacation. You've left the rear of the station wagon pretty clear for unobstructed visibility and a place for the kids to nap during the long drive. The top carrier, though, is loaded with assorted gear and two or three suitcases. As a precaution against rain you've covered the top with an improvised tarp, actually a discarded plastic shower curtain tied down with wrapping twine.

Unknown to you, a tie down snaps from the whipping power of the windstream - and then another. The wind gets under the plastic and suddenly it rips loose and plasters itself across the windshield of the car behind. The instantly-blinded driver hits the brakes in panic, spins out and smashes into a concrete abutment. The father, mother and three kids are killed. A five-year old boy is the only survivor.

Regular meetings will be held at Wollaston Lutheran Church Hall, 550 Hancock St., Wollaston. Social hour is at 1 p.m. with the exception of the November meeting when a luncheon will be held at noon. Tickets may be obtained from chairman, Miss Margaret A. Libby. This will be followed by the regular business meeting. All business meetings begin at 2 p.m.

The opening meeting of the season will be Vice Presidents Day Oct. 21. Speaker will be William Stockdale, recently returned from a trip with his wife, Connie, and 8-year old son, Joshua. His subject "Across Siberia and around the World by Train", is the very first trip of its kind. There will also be a collection for the Veterans. A food sale will also be held with Mrs. Harold M. Knowles, chairman.

On Nov. 18 following the luncheon and business meeting, Myrtle Strong Allen will present a book review entitled: "Books, a Refueling Station". She will also tell how to discover the right book as a Christmas gift and for yourself. Members are allowed unlimited guest privileges for this day.

For Dec. 16 there will be a musical introduction for Christmas with Mrs. Ina Hall, soprano accompanied by Mrs. Dorothea Malout on the flute and Mrs. Mildred Wise at the piano.

William Flavin on Jan. 20 will take members on a trip "Along our Coast from New York to Calais".

On Feb. 17 Susan Betz of the Gillette Company will speak on "Grow One Small Plant". She will explain the basics of plant care. Special guest for this meeting will be Miss Louise Dinagan, librarian of the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

On March 16 the Irish Step Dancers from the Rita O'Shea School of Dancing will set the mood for St. Patrick's Day.

There will be a collection for Second and Fourth Districts Scholarship fund.

The officers will give their report at the annual meeting April 20. Special guest will be Mrs. Agnes Ford, librarian of the Wollaston Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library. Dorothy Jackson will present a program entitled: "Scenes and Songs of Mexico", featuring slides taken during her eight visits to Mexico. There will also be an exhibition of arts and crafts.

Social hour hostesses for the year will be:

Mrs. George H. McGill and members of the Education Committee and Mrs. Lewis E. Stoye and members of the Literature Committee for the Oct. 21 meeting.

The Dec. 16 Hostesses will be Mrs. Frederick W. Swain Jr., and members of the Reception Committee. On Jan. 20, Mrs. Irving M. Senter and the Home Life Committee will be hostesses. Feb. 17 the meeting will be hosted by Mrs. Henry C. Prescott and members of the Conservation and Gardens Committee. March 16, Mrs. Arthur G. McLean and the Credential Committee will be hostesses. For the annual meeting hostesses will be Mrs. Gilbert M. Fox Jr., chairman of the Preservation of Antiques Committee.

On March 2 at 12:30 p.m. there will be a special money raising event for the year for the Dessert Bridge Party. There will be many table and door prizes. Mrs. Allen P. Remick will be chairman, assisted by members of the board.

Germantown Heritage Society Completes Shed Memorial Restoration

The Germantown Heritage Society has completed its restoration and beautification project at the Shed Memorial.

The project, launched in the spring of 1975, combined the voluntary participation of several city departments, private companies and local businesses, citizens' groups and area residents, young and old.

Planners of the project, including society members Mrs. Helen Hodgkins, President Harold Crowley, and William J. Verner Babcock, professor of botany at Eastern Nazarene College, enlisted the help of all segments of the city in an effort to develop community pride in Germantown's heritage.

The Shed Memorial, erected in 1916 by the Shed Family Association, memorialized

Daniel Shed, first resident of Germantown. A target of vandalism in recent years, the potentially beautiful memorial fell into neglect.

When the Germantown Heritage Society formed in the Spring 1974, members decided to focus its first beautification efforts on the historic site.

The Quincy Housing Authority, through the co-operation of Clement O'Brien and Frank Terranova, provided needed tools and machinery for the project. The city's forestry department, with the aid of John Koegler, agreed to provide the Society with eight evergreens to enhance the plating site.

The Park Department donated fertilizer, peat and seed through the co-operation of Richard Koch and Professor Babcock gave the project a gigantic boost by providing nearly all the plantings used in the beautification plans.

In addition, the Germantown Garden Club donated two flowering dogwoods in memory of the Club's first president Mrs. Martha Bartlett.

All together, 22 trees and 36 flowering shrubs and evergreens were planted. Flower beds were also planted during warmer weather to complete the plating scheme.

Howard Barnicott, stonecutter and Germantown resident, cleaned the monument and painted the copper lantern.

Stone dust paths cut by Germantown residents and provided through the courtesy of Old Colony Construction Co., lead across the circle and past the monument, now standing in tribute to Germantown's first resident and to its present day citizens involved in building Germantown's heritage for the future.

Polio Victim Urges Early Immunization Of Children

Chapter 76, Section 15 of the General Laws requires a child to be immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and measles before entering Grade 1. Immunization against mumps and rubella, although not required by law, is strongly recommended, he said.

According to Dr. Mahoney, each Quincy child must undergo a physical examination before entering the Quincy School System. At that time, the examining physician checks a child's medical record for the required immunizations.

Her cheeks rosy, her eyes sparkling, Mrs. Mattson's spirit and smiles astound Carol Furtado of Hingham, Mrs. Mattson's day nurse for one year describes her patient as "an exceptional person."

"Her outlook, her acceptance, are exceptional. She always enjoys people and gets involved with other people."

During the day, Mrs. Furtado reads the newspaper with Mrs. Mattson and friends - a group of "close, very loyal friends" says Mrs. Furtado - drop in to visit Mrs. Mattson.

In 1966, the year Mrs. Mattson's husband Ralph died of a heart attack, a legal trust fund was established to raise funds to aid Mrs. Mattson, a mother of two. Donations poured in.

In addition, the March of Dimes offered Mrs. Mattson the care of a day nurse free from the time she was stricken. Mrs. Mattson also needed the care of a night nurse whose salary was paid through fund donations.

Mrs. Mattson said the "Ralph R. Mattson Family Fund" has been discontinued as of this year and the March of Dimes recently informed her it can no longer provide a day nurse free of charge.

"Things have changed quite drastically," said Mrs. Mattson. "We'll have to get help elsewhere."

Mrs. Mattson is hoping for sunny weather Saturday to enjoy the planned afternoon reunion. Guests will begin to arrive at 2 p.m. to enjoy a selection of sweets, dips, coffee, punch and beer. A special lift used to transport Mrs. Mattson in times of emergency will carry the reunion hostess outside to greet her guests.

A poignant mixture of happiness and remembered grief, this reunion may soberly remind young mothers to guard their children against polio - a disease now controlled yet still contractable without proper and early immunization.

By PAUL HAROLD PR Voting Question To Go On Ballot

Mayor David McIntosh and his associates filed petitions bearing 3,000 names seeking to have the question of abandoning PR voting placed on the November ballot.

McIntosh said that while the people strongly supported Plan E, "all factions are sick and tired of PR voting".

If PR is rejected by the voters, Quincy will return to plurality voting with primary and final elections.

SHIPYARD CONTRACT TO EXPIRE IN TWO DAYS

Workers and company officials of Bethlehem Steel Company turned their attention to New York, where contract negotiations are being carried on. The present contract for workers is scheduled to expire on Monday.

Orders have gone out to workers to prepare for a strike, but unofficial reports from New York indicated that agreement is near on all issues, except the date of retroactivity of the new wage scale.

In the meantime, the Navy insisted that protective grease be spread on heavy machinery in the event of a walkout.

Eight Bethlehem shipyards, Quincy, East Boston, two in Baltimore, three in New York and one in Hoboken, N.J., would be affected by a strike if contract negotiations fail.

VOTERS TO GET RENT CONTROL QUESTION

The controversial problem of rent control, whether or not it should stay or go, will be decided by the voters in November.

The question was referred to the voters after a two-hour bitter debate at this week's City Council meeting. Since the council was hopelessly deadlocked on the issue it was decided to let the people decide.

1953 - YEAR OF ACTION FOR YMCA

It was announced by the new president of the Quincy Y, Thomas Burgin, that 1953 will be an action year for the Y.

The Y recently obtained a new building site on Coddington St. to replace its outdated facility on Washington St. The raising of money for the new building has gone along all right to date, but it is not coming in fast enough to keep up with the constant rise of building costs.

SCHOOL REPORT

It was announced this week that the new Fenno St. school is ready for occupancy, but the new Snug Harbor school will require more work. Overcrowding at the Cranch School required the transferring of 35 students to the Coddington.

And word received by Mayor McIntosh is that the MDC will continue to oppose the city's plan to build a new Cranch Hill school on commission land on Furnace Brook Parkway.

DR. GOSSARD CRITICIZES COMMITTEE ELECTION METHOD

In his annual report, School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard criticized the Plan E method of electing members of the school committee.

Under Plan E, all seven members are elected every two years. Dr. Gossard said that this system violates every known rule of good procedure. He suggested that the terms be staggered so that there will be some continuity on the board.

STATE HOUSE BOX SCORE

Quincy Delegation Backs Welfare Cuts

By RON IACOBUCCI

dollars in subsequent years.

STATE HOUSE - The House last week approved 200-31 a series of welfare cuts which includes the elimination of 18,000 employable persons from the General Relief roll.

The entire Quincy legislative delegation, Reps. Joseph Brett, Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and William Delahunt, voted in favor of the welfare cuts.

The bill would deny General Assistance to students and employable persons waiting to obtain employment compensation or AFDC.

According to Ways and Means Chairman John J. Finnegan (D-Dorchester), 18,000 individual cases and 16,600 family cases would become ineligible, resulting in a savings during the fiscal year 1976 of $26.3 million dollars.

The bill would also limit medical assistance for General Relief recipients to treatment for acute illness or injury and rehabilitation for short term disabilities. Projected savings in this area are 17 million dollars in fiscal 1976, and 23 million

The House approved 134-87 legislation to permit Massachusetts' participation in a proposed New England Regional Presidential Primary.

The measure, sponsored by Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill, will allow Massachusetts to seek agreement on a New England Regional Presidential Primary by permitting the Secretary of State to designate a Primary Day as the first Tuesday in March.

In an open letter to all members of the House O'Neill said, "A regional presidential primary approach is sensible. There is a communality of interest in New England in such matters as federal energy policy, the fishing industry, and transportation. Our common problems would be addressed more directly by the presidential candidates if we provide a strong and unified convention block."

The entire Quincy legislative delegation voted in favor of the regional primary bill.

Letter Box

'Be Tough Against Traffic Violators'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

When are our parking and traffic ordinances going to be enforced? Although many other ordinances are not enforced or observed for various reasons, these violations seem to be among the worst and most prevalent. And yet, the present establishment continuously creates new "No Parking" areas and does nothing to enforce our present traffic regulations.

The first problem concerns the many areas of illegal parking which long have been a problem for local businesses and residents throughout the city. The culprits around the MBTA stations are mostly commuters parking all day on our residential streets.

These violations, however, also take place in many other areas where the city spent tax dollars to change or add signs. In some areas the flow of traffic is reduced to almost one lane, others as along Upland Rd. and Newport Ave., traffic is reduced to one lane each way over streets that were widened with our tax dollars and where homes were taken.

People in good faith went to their local voice in city government to improve bad situations but petitions and vocal opinions are ignored. These violators should be tagged continuously for as many days as they park illegally. We seem to be creating nothing but illegal parking lots on our streets.

Hancock St., in downtown Quincy is an example where the Mayor, himself, said there would be no parking on one side, but again even though signs were changed, illegal parking goes on unabated.

Another problem is much more serious and concerns the traffic violations such as going through red lights or speeding through the yellow lights to beat the green light. This happens again in all areas of the city at almost every traffic light.

There seems to be no effort to stop this practice by our police or officials and it appears that nothing will be done until there is a serious accident. At many of these lights our children and commuters are crossing the street with the proper light. Many cars completely ignore these lights and only when one of our loved ones get hurt, killed, or has an accident will there be an uproar and something will be done, after it's too late.

The responsibility for the protection of our lives and property falls solely with our officials. Our lives and property and our children and pets are certainly worth some effort of protection. If we are going to bring in outsiders then we must educate them to our laws before they get one of us.

The cure can only come from City Hall. Our Police Department should be given orders to crack down on these violators. If we took some policemen out of some cars and had more foot patrolmen maybe we could improve the situation. Our city has its own character and if we are to retain our principles and integrity then we must go back to good government which stands behind its people. Only when we have a reputation for being tough against traffic violators can we have safer streets for all. A good reputation for toughness can be a good means of enforcement. Perhaps those machine guns at every red light will help.

Watching The Bumper Stickers Go By

By HENRY BOSWORTH

One of the favorite political pastimes of the moment is "Standing On The Corner Watching All The Bumper Stickers Go By."

It is also known as "Who's Going Around With Who?" [Or is that whom?]

I never realized the importance so many people place on attaching bumper stickers to automobiles in political campaigns until a couple of weeks ago. That was when I innocently mentioned who seemed to have the most bumper stickers in town. The reaction was like tossing a double yolk egg at an electric fan.

But really, do they mean so much?

As I noted earlier, bumper stickers don't vote. And you can't be sure that those whose cars they adorn will actually show up on election day to vote. Or, for that matter, if they do turn up, once they step into the privacy of a voting booth, how can you be sure they're voting for the same name that's on their car bumper?

There are some timid souls who feel they have to put a bumper sticker on just because a candidate or a friend asks them to. Then on election day they vote for someone else.

But, the so-called political experts insist bumper stickers are a major part of the overall strategy. Bumper stickers give the candidate an image of momentum. One bumper sticker covers a lot of ground. It is seen in many places. Much better exposure than a stationery sign gives.

But, that could boomerang, too. For instance if some nutcake speeds down your street or cuts you off and he happens to have Joe Doaks' campaign sticker on his car, are you going to vote for him? Your reaction might be: "If that's the kind of a jerk he's got working for him, I'm not voting for him."

Some goes for a car long parked at an expired meter and no tag on it. And you get a tag for being a couple of minutes late.

Then there are candidates who go around slapping bumper stickers on cars without asking permission. Until the car owner discovers it, the candidate has picked up some exposure. But after discovery he's lost a definite vote or two.

Another interesting thing about bumper stickers is checking to see the pairings. Like which candidate's stickers are on the same car.

A candidate who gets his sticker on a car with a popular vote-getter, may pick up a few votes as a result.

Of course that can work the opposite if one of the candidates is controversial or a light-weight. Anyway, for what they're worth, here are some pairings spotted at random this week:

Hannon and Toland. Hannon and Harold. Hannon and Davis. LaRaia, Delahunt and Quinn. Hannon, Tobin, Delahunt and Stenberg. LaRaia and Delahunt. Saphir and Harold. LaRaia and Davis. McCauley and Mullaney. Hannon-alone. LaRaia, LaRaia, LaRaia, LaRaia and-LaRaia, all on the same car.

WELL, now that the deadline for filing nomination papers has passed, former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre confesses he came close to becoming a candidate. Not for mayor or city council but for the school committee.

Now Massachusetts Senate counsel, McIntyre apparently has a real yen for the school committee. Shortly after he bowed out as mayor and senator he was asked if he might someday again seek municipal office and replied: "I might-for the school committee."

Political observers still think he would be a powerful vote-getter in a statewide or regional election, if he ever decides to get back into action as an active candidate.

★★★

AND, that reminds me. Some political observers will be watching to see how Marie MacIntyre makes out in the School Committee race. She's no relation to McIntyre but the name-despite how it's spelled-is still a magic one in Quincy.

★★★

SABINA STENBERG, candidate for city council at-large spent several days last week campaigning via telephone from the Huntington General Hospital. In for tests and a checkup, she was released Saturday and is now back at work and campaigning in person.

★★★

SMALL WORLD: Staffer Mary Ann Duggan, back from a vacation camping trip, reports sighting this sign in Inverness, Nova Scotia: "Quincy Market, LTD." A pound of bacon there cost $2.25.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Is The Total Confiscation Of Wealth Inevitable?

By ERIC SWIDER

Harry came over to visit me the other day, and was very concerned about the editorial he read in the Wall Street Journal recently. "Calm down Harry," I told him, "this is New England not Olde England, so it probably won't happen here for years."

"Yeah, but listen Eric, England has traditionally set the pace for social and tax reform for this country and when we start taxing wealth like they're doing, we're gonna eliminate all the incentives for people to invest and take a chance and create jobs."

"Calm down Harry, just because the British government consumes 60 per cent of their national income and the marginal tax rate on interest income is 92 per cent, is no reason for alarm at this time."

"But read this - Look, they're hiring an additional 2,500 tax collectors to go and spy on people - the government will have the right to buy anything from you at the value you declare it to be on your tax forms, and each year people will have to place a market value on everything from the stale crumpets in their bread box to junk in their attics."

"But Harry, it's for people who have assets in excess of $240,000 - that's only a 100,000 or so, right?"

"Wrong, Eric, wrong. With the way inflation is going in England, by next year people who have assets today with a market value of $168,000 will be liable, and if it continues, today's assets worth a measly ten grand will be worth $240,000 by 1984, which means government will be grabbing everything in sight."

"Hmmm. That is a problem. But just think, Harry, if you lived in England, by 1984 you could be classified as a millionaire - you must be worth 40 grand now...so there is a bright side to it."

"Cut the palaver, Swider, this is serious stuff. The editorial is aimed at Senators Kennedy and Mondale, who are the two most outspoken proponents of closing tax loopholes, and their friends at Cambridge and Brookings."

"So?"

"So. What da ya mean, so? Don't you realize that that is our United States Senator and the crowd at Harvard they're talking about."

LIVING TODAY

Improving One's Position

By WILLIAM F. KNOX

It's sad when a person has no one else to talk with but his/her counselor. Yet ... there are many people who go to their therapist precisely for this reason. Once a week ... or once a day ... from 30 minutes to an hour some people pay someone to talk with them. Some people go to cocktail lounges for the same purpose ... to have someone to walk with. Many affairs are begun and continued for this reason ... to have someone to talk with. We place a high value upon communication with another person.

I like to think of counseling as going beyond merely having someone to talk with. That's a nice side benefit. I think of counseling as a means of increasing one's self-confidence ... of resolving conflict ... a process of learning better how to cope with life. Certainly we talk ... that's the principal tool. Counseling may be called then... a PROCESS FOR IMPROVING ONESELF AND ONE'S POSITION IN LIFE. Two persons are involved ... the counselee and the counselor. There must be rapport between them. The counselee must have sufficient confidence in the counselor to share his/her innermost thoughts ... be assured that he/she can trust the therapist that in no way will the privileged conversation be violated. The counselee must feel that the counselor has had sufficient experience in living, and even suffering of life circumstances, to be able to have empathy and understanding. Notice I didn't say sympathy and pity. The counselee must not feel that the counselor "needs" me ... in the sense of needing to help a weaker person ... because of a neurotic compulsion to "help people". This would spoil his objectivity.

"Well, what about it?"

"Well, they're doing us in, that's what about it. After all, look at what the Kennedys and Harvard have stood for over the years."

"Come on Harry, get off your soapbox. If you want to declare your intentions to run against the Senator on the strength of your arguments, do it, but my guess is that the population generally thinks that tax loopholes are not the basis for the strength of the American economic system."

"Well, if they're not Swider, what is?"

"Oh, I guess the chance to succeed, to make a meaningful contribution, to live the good life...."

"...Yeah, precisely Eric, the chance to make it big. That's what keeps entrepreneurs plugging away, the chance to become a success, to be looked up to."

"So how does the British system mess that up, Harry?"

"Well, the way I see it, it removes most of the opportunities for wealth accumulation...you know, it takes away the fun of looking to ultimate rewards for years of hard labor, sweat and toil...and besides, it's just another step to the ultimate disaster...the total confiscation of wealth."

"Harry...total confiscation of wealth...that's some pretty heavy stuff...sounds even a little bit pink to me."

"Sure it is, and that's the point, step by step, inch by inch, we're eroding the American system of competitive endeavor...closing tax loopholes, taxing wealth, taxing interest, income, everything in sight. And still government has more and more good things it wants to do. So what does the alternative ultimately become? After all, it's one big game at redistribution of income, isn't it? At the rate government has ballooned in the last fifteen years, the inevitable conclusion is that before another fifteen years passes, our government will be in such firm control of liberals that they'll advocate and adopt programs to eliminate all personal wealth and possessions."

"You mean Harry, that the Kennedys might lose their Compound, and Harvard all its investment portfolio?"

"That's precisely what I mean, Eric."

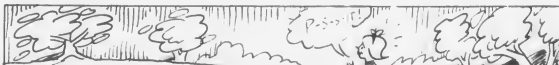

"Give the people what they want, Harry; that's the only way."

On the other hand the counselor must see his counselee in an I'm O.K. ... You're O.K. position ... as equals ... sharing together a life problem ... and pooling their knowledge and skill and feelings toward the end of improving the life position of the counselee. The counselee must keep appointments ... making strong efforts to apply what has been learned in the counseling session ... do the "homework" which the counselor suggests. The counselee must not expect the counselor to pull a rabbit out of the hat. Human problems are created by our human inadequacies ... human problems are solved by our human efforts.

"How long will it take to solve our marriage problem?" is a question we're often asked. Only the counselee can answer that question. It depends on the nature of the problem ... the involvement of other persons in the problem ... how quickly a person arrives at a decision of what to do to improve one's life position. Counseling is a growing process. It is good to get as quickly as possible an understanding of the NATURE OF THE PROBLEM ... then a vision of where you want to be six weeks or six months from this point. We usually have to get rid of the factors which have created the problem before we can solve it.

Counseling is a process of improving one's position in life. It works.

Services Held For William F. Ryan, 52, Recreation Director

WILLIAM F. RYAN

Ann Maire Collamore of Georgetown.

Friday, Mayor Walter J. Hannon ordered flags in Quincy be lowered to half mast out of respect to Mr. Ryan.

Mayor Hannon had this praise for Mr. Ryan:

"Mr. Ryan was a man who, although he had no children of his own, was like a father to thousands of kids over the years. He took more than a passing interest in kids, and was dedicated to each and every young person in Quincy." He said Mr. Ryan was "a fine gentleman who gave more than 20 years of dedicated service to the city of Quincy."

Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin praised Mr. Ryan, on behalf of the city council. He said:

"On behalf of my colleagues on the city council, I wish to express our sincere condolences to Bill Ryan's wife and family, and offer them our thanks for his efforts over the years."

"We were deeply saddened to hear of the untimely death of a very dedicated and respected department head of our city. Bill Ryan had a great rapport with our young people, and instituted many, many recreational programs for both young and old."

"Our city is very much enriched because we had a man like Bill Ryan serving our citizens."

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Services were held Monday for William F. Ryan, recreation director for the City of Quincy for 20 years.

A funeral Mass was celebrated by Msgr. Ralph Gallagher Monday morning in St. Agatha's Church, Milton. Burial was in St. John's cemetery, Worcester.

Ryan, 52, of 65 Upton St., West Quincy, died Friday at his home after a short illness. He was born in Worcester and lived in Walpole before his 20 years of residence in Quincy.

Former recreation director for the town of Dedham, he was appointed Quincy recreation director in June, 1955.

He held a B.S. degree in recreation from Springfield College and had done graduate work at Springfield College and Boston University.

Active in the field of recreation, he was past president of the Massachusetts Recreation Association, and a member of the National Recreation Association, Eastern Massachusetts Recreation Association, American Recreation Society, American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and the New England Recreation Association.

He was also a member of the Wollaston United Commercial Travelers, Morrisette Legion Post, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quincy Red Cross Chapter. He was a member of the board of the Council on Aging of Quincy.

A World War II veteran in the special forces of the U.S. Navy, he was appointed to the State Citizenship Participation Committee on Recreation in 1957 by Governor Foster Furcolo.

Mr. Ryan was a graduate of North High School, Worcester, and attended Bridgton Academy, Bridgton, Me.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara [Gurney] Ryan; a brother, Paul E. Ryan of New Rochelle, N.Y., and a sister, Mrs.

New Hours For Heritage Center

Effective Monday, Aug. 18, the Quincy Heritage Visitors' Center in the Quincy Square MBTA Station will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The change in hours to a later closing time is being made in response to public demand, according to John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage.

Graham noted that while the Center primarily services tourists, it is frequently being used by city residents seeking general data about the city itself. It is to encourage this use by local residents that the hours will be changed, he said.

The Visitors' Center operates at no cost to the city with federally-paid CETA [Comprehensive Employment Training Act] employees and volunteer help. Local street guide maps, historic sites brochures, commemorative items, and bus tour information is available at the Visitors' Center, which is also open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Dr. Nobili To Address Weymouth Emphysema Club

Respiratory allergies and how to control them will be discussed by Dr. Conrad Nobili, Quincy allergist, at the Aug. 20 meeting of the Weymouth Emphysema Club.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Tufts Library, 46 Broad St., East Weymouth.

South Shore residents of Weymouth, Quincy, Randolph, Holfbrook and neighboring communities, who have breathing problems, are invited to attend the lecture and join in the question and answer session afterward. This meeting is the third in a six-month educational course for area residents in which family members and friends are encouraged to participate.

Future programs will discuss: "The Nurse's Role in the Care of the Respiratory Disease Patient", "Physical Therapy and Lung Disease" and "Adjustments in Living with Lung Disease".

There is no charge for the course, since the program is supported through Christmas Seal contributions. For further information, persons can call the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 326-4081 or attend the meeting.

Policy Committee Setting Up HN Development Program Guidelines

The Policy Committee for the Houghs Neck Community Development Program has begun work to set up guidelines for the use of $1,050,000 in city and federal funds.

"The individuals serving on this committee were carefully selected to provide the broadest cross section of Houghs Neck residents," said Mayor Walter Hannon.

"This will ensure that all Houghs Neck residents are fairly represented when community development guidelines are being established. 'I anticipate that this committee will work closely with the staff of the Houghs Neck project and Ward 1 City Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

The 13 members, recently appointed by Mayor Hannon to serve on the committee include:

Arnold Berenson, 1093 Sea St.; Harold Crispo Jr., 210 Rhoda St.; Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, 81 Macy St.; Virginia Kamb, 80 Bayview Ave.; Ripley M. Keating, 112 Sea Ave.; James Kenny, 15 Medway St.; Frederick Kussman, 29 Joseph St.; Richard Monahan, 21 Madeleine St.; Lois Murphy, 135 Sea Ave.; John Nigro, Winthrop St.; John B. Powers, 99 Lenox St.; Stephen K. Richmond, 20 Stoughton St. and Robert Stirling, 37 Littlefield St.

The first step taken by the committee was to break down into three smaller subcommittees, each handling a separate aspect of the program.

The subcommittees include Public Works, Rehabilitation, and Loans and Grants. Additional subcommittees will be created as the need arises.

The Public Works Subcommittee will select streets for curbing and paving and plan beautification projects which will include tree and shrub plantings.

"Public safety will be a major consideration in creating a time-table for the repair or paving of streets," said Lars Norman Lundin, Director of the Houghs Neck Community Development Program.

The Rehabilitation Subcommittee will meet this week to discuss neighborhood versus random code inspections, contractor or home-owner work, code enforcement and eligible projects for loans. Generally any condition which violates code standards is potentially an eligible project. A code violation includes plumbing, heating, wiring, roofing, kitchen facilities, siding, gutters, second means of egress, steps and porches in deteriorated condition.

The Finance Subcommittee will also meet this week to discuss eligibility requirements for loans and grants. Types of loans, interest rates and other sources of funding for those who might not be eligible, will be determined.

"Residents have a greater voice in deciding upon eligibility requirements for loans and grants under the Community Development Program than in past federal programs," said Lundin. "The federal government has established general guidelines, but it is up to us to set up our own requirements," he added.

Lundin also noted that over 100 applications have been received for a special Section 312, three percent low interest loan program.

Federal funds totaling $65,000 were recently made available under Section 312 of the Federal Housing Act to Houghs Neck residents. Lundin urges residents of Houghs Neck to visit the site office at 1086 Sea St. and ask about a possible 312 home improvement loan.

Connie's Snack Shop Reopens After Renovations

COSTA DRACOULES, [left] owner of recently renovated Connie's Snack Shop with daughter, Connie, part-time waitress, after whom Snack Shop was named.

Connie's Snack Shop, 1395 Hancock St., re-opened in mid-July after two weeks of extensive renovating and remodeling with assistance from Kenneth Parry Associates.

The snack shop, owned by Costa Dracoules of 22 Schlager Ave., West Quincy, was named for his 19-year old daughter, Connie, when she was three years old.

Connie, working part time at her father's shop for three years, is a graduate of Quincy High School, and is a sophomore at Curry College, Milton, majoring in Spanish.

Parry Associates is an architectural firm retained by the City of Quincy to aid Quincy Center businessmen who wish to upgrade their businesses, inside or out. The firm will complete the job, at no cost to the business owner, and bill the city. The city is then reimbursed by the federal government.

High And Pretty On A Hill

Limited-Time $2,000 Price Reduction At Royal Highlands

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Royal Highlands Condominiums located at 308 Quarry St., West Quincy is now offering a limited-time $2,000 reduction on the purchase price of its luxurious condominiums.

Situated high on a hill in Quincy's geographic center, the 35-unit, eight-story, building overlooks Quincy Bay, affording a view of the Boston skyline, the Blue Hills, and Quincy Bay.

William Craig and Frank Dunphy, co-developers and co-owners of the complex, said all the condominiums are two-bedroom with one and one-half bathrooms. A living room dining area, kitchen and balcony complete the apartments which range in price from $29,900 to $40,000. The limited-time reduction would make it $2,000 less or $27,000 to $38,000.

The condominium concept dates back many years to Europe but only recently has condominium living gained popularity in the U.S.

An alternative to apartment renting and home buying, the condominium concept allows a person to own his condominium eventually and take advantage of such facilities as an indoor, all-season swimming pool, sauna and exercise rooms and recreation areas at no added cost - luxuries many homeowners cannot easily afford.

Craig and Dunphy also noted the condominium offers freedom from maintenance costs and cares. Roof shingling, gutter work, exterior painting, grass cutting, lawn fertilizing, shrub care, snow removal, installation of storm windows and doors - all those chores disappear for the condominium owner. Craig said:

"We feel there is a place for a house. It is ideal for raising children but can be very expensive to keep up, especially if you are not in a position to do some maintenance yourself."

"There are many financial benefits with the condominium. People are becoming tired of paying rent without anything to show for it. Each year there will be a tax savings depending on the tax bracket of the individual... Part of every monthly payment goes to reduce the mortgage, thus building equity for the owner which isn't available through renting."

Within easy access of Royal Highlands are major arteries including the Expressway, shopping centers, entertainment spots and places of worship.

Recent meetings with the backers of Royal Highlands resulted in the lowering of the interest rates from nine and one-half per cent to eight and three-quarters per cent. Backers also agreed to allow institution of a program called "Rent With The Option To Buy".

Three plans exist under this option: A renter who decides to buy within three months of occupancy will have all his rent payment credited towards the purchase price of the condominium; a renter deciding to buy within six months of occupancy will have half his rent payments credited toward purchase; and a renter deciding to buy within one year of occupancy can receive a credit up to $2,000.

In addition, a person who buys a unit before Dec. 31, 1975 can qualify for a five per cent federal tax credit up to $2,000.

Topping Royal Highlands is an expansive roof deck and penthouse including a function room which can be reserved by condominium owners.

The indoor, heated swimming pool is located on the ground level which also houses a lounge area, a community kitchen, exercise room, sauna bath, ping pong and pool tables.

An outdoor recreational facility offers shuffle board, horseshoes, badminton and a picnic area. Laundry facilities are also located on the ground floor.

Many satisfied condominium owners have written letters of thanks and praise to Craig and Dunphy.

Lloyd Creighton, principal of Quincy High School, wrote:

"The people here, residents and managers alike, are most congenial. The atmosphere is friendly. I like the convenience of proximate location to my work, to shopping and to the expressways North and South as well as to the West. The amenities in the form of recreation hall and function room are great but swimming in the heated pool all winter has been wonderful, most enjoyable."

ALL-SEASON indoor swimming pool at Royal Highland Condominiums, West Quincy, measures 18 by 45 feet. Here, Rita and Bill Murphy enjoy an after-work swim.

And William Devine, real business owner, wrote:

"Having had the opportunity to look at every condominium complex in southeastern Massachusetts, I defy anyone to show me an apartment or condominium in Massachusetts that could match this building for quality, convenience and location...I can get up at 7 a.m. go down the elevator, punch the bag, go for a swim and get ready for work without leaving the building."

Interested persons can visit Royal Highlands Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1-6 p.m.

MAYOR WALTER HANNON places the final brick on the roof of the community room at 77 Adams Place Apartments with some instructions from bricklayer foreman George Hayden. City Treasurer Robert Foy looks on. In background are the rooftop pool and sundeck.

PREVIEW SHOWING

77 Adams Place in Quincy

We're approaching the final stages of construction and, though our appearance is a bit rough around the edges, 77 Adams Place is now open with a furnished model apartment for your inspection.

A little imagination is all that's needed to visualize the gracious, elegant landmark this building is destined to be. No imagination is needed to see the remarkable advantages of living at 77 Adams Place. Prime location. The historic Adams Mansion for a neighbor. Spectacular views. Short walk to downtown shopping and the new MBTA Red Line to Boston. Rooftop pool, clubhouse, and sauna.

Rents start as low as $285 for a one bedroom and $390 for a two bedroom-two bath apartment. Visit us any day, noon to five, at the corner of Adams and Alleyne Streets, or call 471-8508. From the Southeast Expressway, take the Furnace Brook Parkway exit [No. 24] and follow to the third traffic light. Turn right on Adams Street for one mile.

MONEY TALKS

Which Economist Do You Listen To?

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

And Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham

8 - 6 Weekdays

8 - 7:30 Thursdays

With all the conflicting advice dispensed by the nation's economists and financial experts, it is little wonder that all of us - from Arthur Burns to you and me - get increasingly confused about monetary policies these days.

Some economists urge more and more spending as a means of turning the corner on the recession. One spokesman for this point of view, Robert Eisner, chairman of Northwestern University's department of economics, insists:

"To combat a recession and put people back to work, the basic prescription is quite simple. We need more spending, public or private or both. And that comes from lower taxes, increased government expenditures, and easier money—all best arranged to bring about the spending now rather than some time in the indefinite future."

On the other hand, we have this opinion of economist Oliver H. Jones, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association: "The nation has mortgaged its future. Debt owed by consumers, business, and government stands at record levels. The scramble for still more credit threatens the economy and the financial institutions... The solution proposed - still more debt!

"We hear little of the Puritan ethic, the value of saving, or the necessity of reducing expenditures to levels we can afford... Whether the nation can work its way out of the heavy commitment it has made on the use of tomorrow's income without serious financial distress - without going thru the wringer - remains to be seen. Clearly, this will not be achieved without a substantial reduction in our present obligations and a substantial commitment to saving."

Eisner thinks it is good that the new tax cut, totaling $22.8 billion, is now on the books. But economist Pierre A. Rinfret calls it "a joke".

How do we beat inflation? "If each one of us," says Rinfret, "would give this country a day's work for a day's pay, we could end inflation tomorrow. We don't owe it to our country to consume or to invest in the stock market. We owe America integrity, quality, and work, but we don't owe it spending or losing our money. Money saved is money invested."

For the life of us, we cannot see how forever piling indebtedness upon indebtedness, spending more than we earn—whether on the personal or governmental level—leads to anything but eventual disaster.

Herbert Mahn Named 'Instructor Of Year'

HERBERT O. MAHN has been named FAA Norwood District Instructor of the year.

(Official U.S. Navy Photo)

Instructor for all courses.

The Aero Club recently received an FAA safety award for over 5,000 accident-free flight hours by students.

Herbert O. Mahn of 143 Fayette St., Wollaston has been named instructor of the Year by the Federal Aviation Administration's General Aviation District Office in Norwood.

He and other district winners will be considered for a regional award.

Mahn is Manager and Chief Instructor of the South Weymouth Naval Aero Club. He started flying in 1950 and soloed on his 16th birthday. He received his private license at age 18 while in the Air Force.

In 1958, he received his commercial license. He passed the instructor exam and received his certificate in 1964.

Mahn helped form the Aero Club at the Naval Air Station, South Weymouth in 1965 and immediately began teaching full-time. In 1968 the Club formed an FAA-approved school and he became the Chief Flight

Taxes Paramount Issue, Says Saphir

"The issue of paramount importance to the people of Quincy is that of taxes," says Grace Saphir, mayoralty candidate.

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chandler of Belmont St., Wollaston, Mrs. Saphir stressed the need for holding the line on taxes.

Citing a tax increase of 12.2% in the past four years, Mrs. Saphir added that one out of every three homes received tax assessment increases in 1972 that further increased the taxpayers burden. The net result of this action was to drive businesses and homeowners out of the city, she claimed.

"We must analyze the false prophecy that it 'broadens the tax base' and will help reduce our tax rate. Forty million dollars worth of development by State Street and Jordan Marsh have not reduced our tax rate at all. It only increases the services, some of which we could probably do without."

Mrs. Saphir said it was the mayor's duty to operate the city within a budget acceptable to its people. She promised to hold the line on further tax increases and to seek more efficient ways to operate the city.

Other concerns of those people present were mixed trash and rubbish disposal, dogs and the leash law and 100% valuation of properties, she said.

Quincy Schools Poet's Poem

To Be Broadcast In Middle East

Diana Der Hovanesian, Quincy's poet-in-the-schools, will have her "Sixtieth Anniversary of the Armenian Genocide" broadcast in three languages throughout the Middle East this month.

The poem will be broadcast by the Cyprus Broadcasting System, according to Andreas Christofides, Director General.

The lengthy poem was translated into Armenian for publication in a commemorative issue of "Nayiri", a Beirut publication.

The Greek translation was done by Christofides, editor of the "Cypriot Anthology of Poets", and a well-known poet.

The English version was first heard in April. It was read by Michael Kermoyan in Madison Square Garden.

Diana will continue conducting her poetry workshops in the Squantum School this fall.

Lost Bicycle Auction Saturday At Wollaston Fire Station

The annual auction of bicycles held by the Quincy Police Department will take place at 9 a.m., Saturday, at the Wollaston Fire Station, Beale St.

The bicycles are those which were recovered by police this past year, and not claimed by owners.

City Purchasing Agent Richard Buckley, who will auction off the bicycles, invites all residents interested in purchasing a bicycle to attend the auction.

He said there are approximately 50 bicycles to be sold, and they are available in all sizes.

He noted that all bicycles will be sold "as is", and all sales will be cash and carry.

No claims will be considered on the day of the auction.

CAP Squadron Raises Over $400 Sponsoring Circus

The Quincy Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol raised over $400 as sponsors of the recent performance of the International All-Star Circus.

The circus, based in Florida, attracted more than 500 people for their single performance in the Quincy Vocational Technical gym. Acts included acrobatics, tumbling, clowns, magic shows and one of the few performing trained leopards in captivity.

The Quincy Squadron, under the command of Major Laura Gottron, has a current membership of over 70 cadets ranging in age from 12 to 18 years. The cadets receive training in aerospace education, military leadership, drill and ceremony, navigation and weather, first-aid, emergency services, search and rescue, flight orientation, and flight operations.

The cadet drill team recently won the Massachusetts Wing Civil Air Patrol Drill Competition and placed fourth in the regional competition in Nashua, N.H.

'Boston Basin Bicycle Book' Includes Quincy Chapter

The final chapter in the newly-published "Boston Basin Bicycle Book" traces a 13.4 mile route through Quincy and Milton Lower Mills.

Entitled "Taken for Granite", the chapter, last of 30 sketches a brief geological history of the Neponset River Basin and describes the beginnings of the first American railway used to transport native Quincy granite to the Neponset River where it was then shipped to Charlestown to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

The chapter, one of five covering the area south of Boston, contains a picture of Quincy's historic "Church of Presidents."

Explicit written directions accompanied by a route map trace the bicycle jaunt beginning at the intersection of Adams St. and Dorchester Ave. in Milton Lower Mills.

The route winds down West Squantum St., East Squantum St., crossing Quincy Shore Drive and then proceeding into Quincy Square. Here the route circles the Church of Presidents and proceeds back to Hancock and Adams St., returning finally to the starting point in Milton Lower Mills.

The route passes the American China Trade Museum which houses "some of the luxurious artifacts which wealthy Bostonians spent their money on in the early 1800's." The museum is the old home of R. B. Forbes, who, together with his kinsmen, invested in railroads and played "an active part...behind the scenes in abolition politics and in running the Civil War."

Published by David R. Godine, the paperback book was written by Edward and Janice Goldfrank and Alexander and Nicholas Humez.

Police Host Over 300 Retarded Youngsters At Picnic

Over 300 retarded children and adults recently attended an annual summer cookout held at Pageant Field, Merrymount Park.

The event was sponsored by the Quincy Police Betterment Association with the co-operation of the Quincy Park and Recreation Department and the South Shore Mental Health Association.

The cookout guests, hailing from throughout the South Shore area as far as Pembroke, feasted on hot dogs, tonic, ice cream and potato chips. At the end of the day, each was awarded a police badge, making the individual an honorary member of the Quincy Police Department.

Events scheduled throughout the day included a softball game refereed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon, basketball and football games, horseback rides through the courtesy of Officer Frank Berton, and an attack dog demonstration by Officer Dan Kennedy.

In addition, folk singers from St. John's Church entertained with an afternoon concert.

Edward Meade Ward 1 City Council Candidate

Edward W. Meade of 19 Crosby St., Houghs Neck, a Quincy resident for 21 years, announces his candidacy for the Ward 1 City Council seat.

He has been chief engineer for the Boston Hospital for Women, Brookline, for 22 of his 25 years of employment there.

Married for 30 years and father of two sons, Meade graduated from the Officers Training School, Fort Trumbull, New London, Conn., and served in the Merchant Marine for seven years.

An Explorer Advisor, scout master and assistant cub master for 12 years, he also worked as a training instructor for the Quincy Council of the Boy Scouts of America for two years.

Meade was a member of the Quincy High Football Team Father's Club for two years, received the Good Neighbor Award and is a life member of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

A member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the first PIA president of the Great Hill School in Houghs Neck, he has completed courses in business management at Boston University, Quincy Junior College and Bristol Community College.

Robert Martinson Seeks Ward 2 Seat

Robert H. Martinson of 60 Hughes St., South Quincy announces his candidacy for Ward 2 City Councilor.

Martinson said he plans a door-to-door campaign and will accept only one dollar donations from individual voters.

A graduate of North Quincy High School and Bryant and Stratton, Martinson, 52, has never held political office before.

Speaking on busing, he said: "We better have someone sitting on the City Council who is against busing because I think Judge Garrity is going to try to force it down our throats."

He also urged added focus on the elderly, suggesting the city "get into the nursing home business." He said:

"We give them a beautiful title—senior citizen—but nothing to go with it."

An Air Force veteran and Quincy resident 30 years, Martinson has been involved in sales management for 25 years. He and his wife Edith have four children.

Harold Supports Alternatives To 100 Per Cent Valuation

Paul D. Harold, candidate for City councillor at-large, has urged state officials to develop alternatives to 100 per cent valuation of real estate.

In testimony submitted to the Ways and Means Committee at the State House recently, Harold said that such a change was needed to protect families from losing their homes.

Harold attended the hearing to record his opposition to 100 per cent valuation and to suggest that the tax burden on the homeowners be reduced by allowing assessments on business properties according to the income the property earns, rather than re-sale value.

"We have carried our reliance on the property tax system so far that it is becoming impossible for our citizens to maintain homes. The property tax is outmoded, unfair, and an inadequate measure of wealth as presently practiced," he said.

Harold said he supported the 1970 referendum to amend the state constitution to allow for assessments according to use of property, and pledged to work again for the amendment when it comes up again on the state ballot.

Kelly Seeks Change In Flood Plain Zone Elevation Requirements

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly has requested the Department of Housing and Urban Development to reduce the minimum elevation requirements on structures built within flood-plain zones.

According to Richard Meade of the city's department of planning and community development, the minimum safety level in Quincy is 11 feet or sea level, as determined by the Army Corps of Engineers and HUD.

Structures built within a 100-year period and within a flood-plain zone in Quincy must have a basement elevation of at least 11 feet or above, he explained.

Kelly said he has received numerous complaints about this minimum safety level from Ward 1 residents. He said many Houghs Neck and Germantown residents have been designated as within a special flood-hazard area when that area has had no history of flooding at all.

In a letter to George K. Bernstein, HUD federal insurance administrator, Kelly cited the case of one man who will be forced to raise the basement elevation of his planned home by almost five feet in order to comply with the imposed regulations. He said, too, the man's property has not had any flooding problems in the past.

Asking Bernstein to review the data used to compute the minimum safety level in Quincy, Kelly said:

"We can still regulate the development in these areas without imposing hardships which will create more problems than flooding has in the entire city."

Mullaney Concerned Over Voter

Apathy Toward School Committee

School Committee candidate J. Thomas Mullaney filed his nomination papers last Wednesday and expressed his concern over the voters apathy toward the school committee. He said:

"The least understood and most underrated elective office is the school committee. The mayors' race and city council contests seem to overshadow the school committee elections.

"Many people have no idea what the office is all about. A national Gallup poll recently found that 63 per cent of the adults surveyed could not name anything their local school boards did in the last year.

Toland Suggests Advanced Programs In Early Grades

Mrs. Patricia Toland, candidate for school committee, has commended the existing Lab Program and Advanced Placement courses offered by the Quincy Public Schools, but suggested advanced programs be instituted in the early grades.

Speaking recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moriarty, 226 Wilson Ave., Wollaston, she said:

"I would like to see children really challenged and excited about what they are doing. Quincy does offer its brighter students programs which are interesting and challenging, but the earliest of these begins in the fifth grade."

"I want to see this type of program established sooner. The present instructional system seems to overlook an element that research has proven stimulating to bright students—competition. Children in the first four grades who are reading well above grade level should be offered a healthy type of competitive program so that their enthusiasm for learning is not diminished before they are eligible for the Lab class."

Enrichment programs in other areas such as math and science should also be made available to qualified students. These courses would have to be carefully designed and supervised to ensure that the quality of the learning is emphasized.

"Many psychologists today feel that younger children are tremendously receptive to learning. The early grades, when children are most eager to learn, should offer challenging material for those whose basic skills develop quickly."

School System Community's Most Important Business, Says Marie MacIntyre

Marie E. MacIntyre, candidate for Quincy School Committee, spoke with her neighbors in Squantum at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. MacIntyre of 118 Standish Road at a Saturday morning coffee hour.

Miss MacIntyre was asked what she meant by her previous statement, "so that we can still recognize ourselves and Quincy as a community in the next 200 years."

"I have been asked that question by various people," she commented. "People seem to think that I'm against progress and want to return Quincy to a one-horse town! Nothing could be further from the truth."

"What I mean by the statement is that Quincy has a unique heritage considering Quincy's role in the foundation of our nation. It has always been a place where its citizens were forward-looking. I want to continue the proud legacy that Quincy's early citizens laid to us and to the future citizens of this city as Quincy continues to progress."

"The most important business any community has is its school system. The schools are where future citizens are trained to carry our community into the future," she continued. "At the present time the major item discussed concerning the schools is not what is being taught [curriculum] but rather by what means [discipline].

"Character building and discipline start in the home. It is the family's job to start this process. It is the school's job to educate and develop skills and opportunities for students. The schools and the teachers must be committed to help each student gain these skills to the best of each student's ability. The job of the School Committee should be ever-vigilant so that students in Quincy will get the best possible education.

"Our future depends on it."

Newton Officials Visit Quincy To See MBTA Effects

Mayor Walter J. Hannon Saturday hosted a group of Lynn officials examining the effects of MBTA extensions to the suburbs.

Among the Lynn officials were 15 members of the Blue Line Commission; 11 members of the City Council; Mayor David L. Phillips; the Director of Community Development, Edward L. Calnan; and Michael Brennan, Director of the Redevelopment Authority. Jack Leary, Project Manager for the MBTA was also in attendance.

Included on the agenda for the visit was a trip to State Street South, a ride on the Red Line and tours of the MBTA and Ross parking garages, Kemper Insurance and Church of Presidents.

The ride on the Red Line and tours of MBTA facilities were of particular interest to the Lynn officials as an extension of the MBTA Blue Line through Lynn has been proposed. An interest in the effects the Red Line extension has had on Quincy, results from this proposed extension.

During lunch, hosted by Corcoran, Mullins and Jennison, Inc. at the new Adams Place, Mayor Hannon discussed impacts of the MBTA extension to Quincy.

"Literally millions of new tax dollars and thousands of jobs have been attracted to Quincy because of business development related to the Red Line," said Hannon. "Prime examples are Jordan Marsh, State Street South and Kemper Insurance."

New Mayor Phillips had these observations:

"Our trip to Quincy shows us what we can do to improve the City of Lynn by having the MBTA."

"We're using Quincy as a model for the development of Lynn."

"Mayor Hannon is a strong mayor who makes strong decisions which are in the best interests of the progress of the city of Quincy."

"I am impressed with Mayor Hannon's leadership."

"I was particularly impressed with how clean the city is."

Labor Dispute Delay S-W Quincy Street Lighting

Labor disputes within the Massachusetts Electric Company have delayed indefinitely many new street lighting projects in Ward 4 according to Councilor James Sheets.

Sheets said his office had contacted the Massachusetts Electric Company because of the "excessive amount of time" they were taking in making lighting surveys, installing new lighting and repairing existing lighting. He said he was informed that the company was beginning to work on the log jam created by the labor disputes, but substantial delays were ahead.

Sheets said street lighting work has been asked and scheduled for:

The Eastern ends of Connell St., White St., Cliff St., Campbell St., Shirley St., and Robertson St., at Adams St., Rodman St., Taber St., Plain St., and Trafford St. in South Quincy.

Arthur St., Nelson St., Suomi Rd., and Buckley St. in Southwest Quincy.

Gordon St., and parts of Water St. in the area of Kincaide Park.

Upton St., Emerald St., Shawmut St., Argonne St., Penner St. and Gridley St., West

Quincy.

In addition, Sheets said requests have been made to repair street lighting in a number of areas, but these have now been delayed. Sheets said he would have all these projects moving forward as soon as humanly possible.

Morrisette Wins State Legion Crown After 30-Year Quest

By TOM SULLIVAN

Massachusetts Legion baseball champion.

Morrisette Post tried for 30 years to win this cherished title.

Eighteen times it had won the Zone 6 crown to qualify for the state tourney.

Six times it had reached the state championship finals, but each time it came out the bridesmaid, never the bride.

But Cattaneo's team, with an incredible record over the second half of the season, finally captured the state championship last week as it swept through a five-team double elimination tournament undefeated at Lynn's Frazier Field.

After winning three successive one-run decisions in the state championship round-robin, Morrisette exploded for 15 runs in the fifth and sixth innings and rolled over Lawrence, 21-5, for the prized title.

So, Morrisette not only is the host team this week for the Northeastern Regional Tournament at Adams Field, but it represents the state as champion. Runnerup Lawrence was invited to round out the eight-team field.

The Northeasters got under way Wednesday with a morning doubleheader pitting Oldtown, Me., against Cranston, R.I., in the opener and matching Torrington, Conn., and Milford, N.H. in the second game. Lawrence met Bennington, Vt., in the opener of a two-night doubleheader with Morrisette clashing with Depew, N.Y., in the nightcap.

This morning [Thursday] it is the loser of the Maine-R.I. game playing the loser of the Vermont-Massachusetts and the winner of those games playing in a 10 a.m. twin bill. In another twin bill at 5:30 p.m., the Connecticut-N.H. loser meets the Morrisette-New York loser and in the second game the winners of those games clash.

The double-elimination event continues Friday with a 1 p.m. game and another two-night doubleheader at 5:30, Saturday games are set for 2 and 8 p.m. and Sunday a 2 o'clock game and, if necessary, an 8 p.m. contest winds up the tournament with the winner going to the national championship tourney in South Dakota.

Ace Tim Clifford, with a 15-1 record and well-rested, was due to pitch Wednesday's opener against New York.

After losing to Weymouth, 8-5, back on July 18, Morrisette won 13 of its next 14 games to sweep to the state crown. It won its last five regular season games, bombed Weymouth in a playoff for the Zone 6 title, won two in a row over Norwood in the first round of the state tourney and edged E. Bridgewater in the opener of the second round.

After being nipped by Easties in the second game of that series, the locals swept to four straight wins in the state championships, edging E. Bridgewater, Lawrence and Dudley-Webster by one run, then annihilating Lawrence.

One of the happiest spectators at the state championships was long-time Morrisette coach Nick Malvesti, who had led the team to many zone titles and into the state finals several times. Nick had moved to Florida after retiring but last week moved back to Quincy just in time for the tournament.

"Boy, was he happy!" Cattaneo said. "It was fitting that Nick could make the tournament, he coached Morrisette for so many years and just missed the state title several times." Cattaneo, incidentally, was an outstanding infielder for Malvesti.

Morrisette trailed Lawrence, 3-2, after four innings but erupted for six runs in the fifth and nine more in the sixth. It finished up with four in the eighth.

Clifford relieved starter John Lawlor in the fifth and gained his 15th win. In his four innings Clifford struck out eight including the game's final batter.

Morrisette, which had won on its pitching over the first half of the season, then began to break loose with its bats, collected 15 hits including a home run and triple and seven runs batted in for Frank Miceli, Joe Glynn's triple and two singles and four RBIs, a home run and single for Lawlor and two hits for Dave Perdios, who reached base four times.

Perdios, who had seen little service during the season, stepped into the starting shortstop spot in the last few tourney games when Paul Messina suffered a freak eye injury, played outstanding ball.

"What can you say?" asked a jubilant Cattaneo upon receiving the state trophy. "It is a great feeling to finally be a state champion and these boys were just fantastic all season long. They never quit and came from behind to win many games. I can't say enough for them."

"A lot of credit must go to my assistants, Connie Carozzi and Billy Corcoran. Billy handles the pitchers and Connie, with a wealth of baseball knowledge, talks to the hitters before they get up, leaving me free to direct things as third base coach. It is great to know there is someone on the bench to look after things."

Cattaneo, the fourth coach for Morrisette, had two previous shots at the state crown but was runnerup to Leominster in 1971 and to Milford in 1972.

Malvesti, Bruno Carloni and Carozzi also coached Morrisette. Carozzi also coached at Braintree, Quincy and Abington. He coached Morrisette for seven years before Cattaneo took over in 1970 and he has been a Legion coach for more than 20 years.

Rena Roche Wins FB Tourney

Rena Roche recently won a Women's Tuesday Tournament held at the Furnace Brook Golf Club, scoring a low gross of 48. Other winners were: Pat

Quincy Track Club Hosts State Titles Saturday

The Quincy Track Club will host the All-New England States Championships Saturday at 1 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The championships are open to athletes of the New England, Connecticut and Maine Associations only, and entrants must be at least 14 years of age.

Events for both men and women include the 100, 220, 440, half-mile, mile, shot put, discus, javelin, long jump, high jump, sprint relay and mile relay.

The starting height for men in the high jump is 5-6 and women 4-6. The men's shot will be 16 pounds and the women's eight pounds. The sprint relay for both is four legs of 176 yards and the mile relay is four legs of 440 yards.

The women also have 100-meter hurdles, while the men have a three-mile run, 120-yard high hurdles and pole vault with a starting height of 12 feet.

The entry fee is one dollar per athlete and four dollars per relay. Entries close tonight [Thursday] at midnight.

Engraved championship medals will be awarded to the first three in each event and a team trophy will go to the winning male and female teams.

How Time FliesQuincy, North Grid Practice Starts Monday

Time surely flies when you're having fun.

This phrase can be used as far as schoolboy football coaches and players are concerned because it hardly seems possible practice for them will begin Monday morning.

Dave Burke, a former North Quincy standout and one of the heroes in the Raiders' 1944 and '45 wins over Quincy, has returned to his alma mater as head coach, succeeding Ralph Frazier. Dave had been an assistant at Quincy for the past 11 years.

Burke, who has all North's assistants, Tom Fitzgerald, Dick Meyer, Ken McPhee and Ted Sadowski back, will lead the Raiders on to the Cavanaugh Stadium turf Monday at 8:30 a.m. They will work out until 10:30, have a break for lunch and a rest, attend group meetings from 12 to 1, then practice again from 1:15 to 2:30. The squad will wear pads during the morning drills but will work out in the afternoon without them.

North will follow this schedule throughout next week. Hank Conroy returns for his 12th year as Quincy's head skipper and he has two of his assistants, John Bogan and Hank's son, Mark, back. Hank lost Burke to North and 11-year veteran assistant Bud Mosher resigned.

Peter Chella, a Quincy tackle in 1961 and '62, who played at the University of New Hampshire, will be one of the new assistants but the second hasn't been appointed as yet, although the coach recommended is expected to be named soon.

Conroy will follow his schedule of past years, leading the Presidents in morning workouts from 8:30 to 10:30 at Faxon Field with pads, breaking for lunch and drilling without pads from 11:30 to 1:30.

Both teams, starting their second season in the Suburban League, will open with non-league games on Sept. 20, Quincy playing at Dedham and North hosting old rival Milton. Quincy's first league game will be at Waltham Oct. 11, while North will make its league bow a week earlier at Weymouth North.

Track Club Winds Up With City Championships

The Quincy Track Club winds up its second season tonight [Thursday] with its second annual city championships at Veterans Memorial Stadium. There will be competition in all events in all age groups.

Trophies will be awarded to first place finishers in all events, and medals to second and third place finishers. All members of the club are urged to attend, as it is the last meet of the season. There are still track club jerseys to be given out.

Membership in the club is at a record 375 but most are in the 9-12 year old categories as club officials still are having trouble attracting those in the older age brackets.

In last week's meet Florence Lorenzano, the most improved runner on the club, set records in the elementary girls 220 and 440. She did 31.5 in the 220 to break the old mark of 33.5, and covered the 440 in 1:12.0, bettering the old figure of 1:14. The old records had been held by Ginny McIntyre, Florence is 12 and will enter the seventh grade at Point Junior High next month.

Danny McIntyre was a triple winner, taking the junior boys 220, 880 and mile. Shawn Burns, Loretta Garrigan, Joanne Troy and Marie Voelkel were double winners.

Other results:

50-yard dash - Elementary girls, Loretta Garrigan, 6.7 [New record, old record 7.1]; elementary boys, Andy Levitsky, 6.6 [New record, old record 7.2].

220 - Elementary boys, Mike Cullen, 32.4; junior girls, Marie Voelkel, 32.4; senior girls, Joanne Troy, 29.0.

440 - Elementary boys, Shawn Burns, 1:12.9.

880 - Senior girls, Dottie Irvine, 2:40.8 [New record, old record 2:44.1]; senior boys, Jeff Hennessy, 2:13.5.

Open mile - Girls, Ellen Caramanica, 6:32 [New record, old record 6:48]; boys, Dan McIntyre, 5:25.

Two-mile - Senior boys, Kevin O'Brien, 10:30.

Relays - Elementary girls, Nancy DiChristofaro, Donna DiChristofaro, Loretta Garrigan and Joanne O'Leary; elementary boys, Andy Levitsky, Bill Bourikas, Mike Cullen and Shawn Burns; senior girls, Marie Voelkel, Judy Malloy, Dottie Irvine and Joanne Troy.

Long jump - Elementary girls, Donna DiChristofaro, 12-5 1/2; elementary boys, Shawn Burns, 12-9 1/2; junior girls, Marie Voelkel, 12-3; senior girls, Joanne Troy, 13-8.

High jump - Elementary girls, Loretta Garrigan, 4-0; elementary boys, Rich McCarthy, 4-4.

Shot put - Elementary girls, Karen Petroskas, 18-0 [New event, new record]; elementary boys, Brian Masters, 26-6 [New record, old record 24-6]; junior boys, Joe McCormick, 29-10; senior girls, Debbie Brennan, 25-8; senior boys, Chris Green, 33-4.

Discus - Elementary boys, Billy DeCarli, 61-6; senior girls, Maryann Sylvester, 72-11; senior boys, Mike Gallagher, 107-4.

Javelin - Junior boys, Peter Doherty, 98-4; senior boys, Joe Cori, 126-2.

Pole vault - Senior boys, Steve Doherty, 11 feet [Ties record].

By JOE MOSESSO

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program ends this week.

The administrative staff expresses "sincere thanks" to the entire recreation staff for making the program one of the best ever.

The finals of Superstars Competition for children's ages 8-12, was recently held and the best overall athletes for the city of Quincy in their respective age groups are: Midget Boys, Joe Johnson, Midget Girls, Lauri Quinn, both of Quantum; Junior Boys, Mike Donovan of O'Rourke and Steve Priscella of Elm St. tied; Junior Girls, Mass Fields Joanne Runge. All the winners will be presented trophies on Field Day by Superstar Director Brian Buckley.

On the 13 city beaches are a number of youngsters well on their way to becoming masterful swimmers. Among them are: Avalon's Adam MacDonald, Ed Kerr and Joe Noonan, Mound Street's Lisa Bogen, Lisa Biggie and Pat Hunter, Chuck McGrail, Sue Megnia and Dennis Fox of Baker, Bayfield's Chris Dolan, Sandy Levine and Bob Blaney and Orchard's Dawn Tower, Tom Long and Brenda Walsh.

Stuffed animals continue to be the "craze" in arts and crafts. Some of the finer creations reports specialist Andrea Quinn were done by Shea Rink's Mark Rigni and Bob Romano, Stoney Brae's Joey Villo, Kelley and Maura Doherty of LaBrecque and Russell's Sue Finnegan and Renee Nardo of Taffrail.

Track specialists Paul and Brian Doherty believe they have found some future Olympians in the parks, including: Lou DiPietro, Joyce Kennedy, Julie Greene, Bill DiCarli, Brian Walsh and Margaret McBride.

Tennis specialists Kevin McGinley and John Franceschini took a busload of youngsters to see the Boston Lobsters play Evonne Goolagong and the Pittsburgh Triangles last week. Some of the children enjoying the action were Sal Lorenzano, Sue Gallery, Lisa O'Brien, Mark Stewart and Brad Merritt.

Tim Flynn reports his group has almost perfected the use of the bow and arrow. Marksmen include Pollard's Jim Dwyer, Chuck Sullivan and Danny White, Steve Spencer of Snug Harbor, Danny Masters and Paul Mallory of Fenno Street, LaBrecque's Janet Sines and Claire Oliverio of Fore River.

Music specialist Karen Walsh, reports members of the recreation choir are Bishop's Ann Hegarty, Phyllis Bush, Matt Higgins and Tim McCarthy and Bill Doyle, Dennis Roach, Sue McDonald and John Steen of Chapel.

Nationals Rally To Edge, Americans, 7-6

The National League rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to edge the American League, 7-6, in the first Babe Ruth League All-Star game played under the lights at Adams Field.

The Americans had scored twice in the top of the inning to take a 6-3 lead but the Nationals put together three hits and three walks for the win.

Hits by John Andrews and John Fitzgerald, walks to Don Perdios, John Houten and Fran Donovan set the table for a bases loaded two-out double by Dave Crammond. The ball went up the alley between left and center and carried all the way to the fence.

The Nationals started the scoring with three in the second inning on a walk to Ed Laracy, a hit batter [Crammond], a two-run double by Mike McCormack and a sacrifice fly by Perdios.

The Americans scored single runs in the third and fourth with Andy Oriola, John Wilkinson and John DiNardo having the key hits. They added two in the fifth on three walks and a single by Wilkinson.

In the top of the ninth two errors and Oriola's single added two runs.

The game was the first ever played by any Quincy Babe Ruth League teams under lights. It will become an annual event at the end of the season, thanks to the fine cooperation of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and its chairman, Dick Koch.

A trophy was presented to winning coach Dick Laracy at the end of the game. It will be passed on from year to year to the winning coach. Kurt O'Sullivan of the American League was named the most valuable player by the umpires and given a trophy.

NATIONAL LEAGUE Babe Ruth League All-Star team, which won the first all-star game played under lights. Firemen Breeze By Morrisette For Title

Firemen Local 792 made short work of Morrisette to win the city-wide Babe Ruth League championship in three straight games.

Firemen pounded out 27 hits for 31 runs while Morrisette had 16 hits for 12 runs.

Sal Coscia, John Wilkinson and Dave Austin were the Firemen's starting pitchers and all pitched complete games.

The final series produced some good long ball hitting by both clubs with Sal Coscia pounding out a triple, three doubles and four singles. Gary Oriola, Austin, Wilkinson and Bob Roberts also hit well.

For Morrisette Rick Gilbody, Brian Harding, John Sylva and Bob McCabe were the top hitters.

Serafini-Robbins Win Mother-Daughter Tourney

In a recent mother-daughter tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Club, a nine-hole net tournament, the winners were Joyce Serafini and Joy Robbins with a 36.

Tied for second with 43s were Edna Phelps and Chris Corbin, Helene and Denise McPeck, Marie Corayer and Gay Robbins. Fifth were Pat and Colleen Tehan with 44. Tied for sixth with 45s were Audrey and Janet Sager, Mimi DiFederico and Laurie McGregor. Tied for eight were Rena and Roberta Roche, Mel and Gerry Corbin, and there was a six-way tie for 10th between Barbara Spinello and Marie McCarthy, Eda and Debbie Flate, Mary and Janet Morrissey, Ann and Kathy Donovan, Priscilla and Peggy O'Neill, Amelia and Laurie Stearns. Many of the daughters playing were under 10 years of age.

Mrs. Anthony Spinello was chairman, assisted by Isabel Morrison and Mel Corbin.

SPEED RECORD

On Aug. 20, 1955, Col. Horace A. Hanes, U.S. Air Force, set a record to date in flying 40,000 feet in the air at an average speed of 822.135 miles per hour.

Randolph Oilers Have Quincy Look

The Randolph Delta Oilers football team of the Eastern League features several players from Quincy and North Quincy.

The Oilers, who Sunday romped to a 28-0 win over the Hartford, Conn., County Bruins for their second straight league win, have Paul Doherty, former North Quincy High star, who does all the kicking off and also kicks points and fields goals.

In a 21-0 win over defending champion Middleboro Cobras two weeks ago Doherty kicked a 43-yard field goal and an extra point.

Steve Carrera, one of Quincy High's top runners a few years ago, was the Oilers' leading ground gainer in the first two games but sat out Sunday's game due to a back injury except for holding the ball for Doherty.

Pat Grimes from Quincy High ran back several punts for good yardage Sunday and Kevin Cotter, a Quincy resident who played at B.C. High, stood out on defense.

Ted Meyers, former Quincy High player joined the team as a quarterback just last week and it was a beautiful fake on his part which led to Randolph's last touchdown Sunday.

The Oilers, coached by Al Scibetta, who starred at Randolph High and is now a Quincy resident, dropped a 7-2 heartbreaker to the Attleboro Tri-Kings in their opener when Attleboro blocked a punt and recovered in the end zone for the only touchdown.

The team will play at Webster Friday night, go to Plymouth on Friday night, Aug. 29, and return to Randolph Memorial Field for a game against Greater Boston on Sunday, Sept. 7.

Pagos-DiFederico Scotch Foursome Winners

In last week's mixed Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club Jim Pagos and Mimi DiFederico shot low gross of 38.

Lou Cugini and Mary Sokolowski had low net of 27, Tony Spinello and Mary

Morrissey second net of 30, Joe DiFederico and Joy Robbins, Marie Serafini and Barbara Spinello, Tom Donehue and Mae Butler tied for third net of 32 and Matt Smith and Pat Cugini, Joe Chapin and Priscilla

O'Neill tied for sixth net of 33.

In the women's tournament, a nine-hole throw out event, Rena Roche had low gross and Pat Cugini low net. Alleen Hoag shot second gross, Mary Morrissey second net and Pat Tehan third net.

'Almost Joey's' License Revoked, Appeal Set For Sept. 4

An appeal on the revocation of "Almost Joey's" all-liquor license, is tentatively scheduled to be heard by the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission Thursday, Sept. 4.

Atty. Martin Cosgrove said he believes chances are "excellent" the ABC will overturn the Quincy Licensing Board's decision last week to revoke the controversial Houghs Neck bar's license.

The bar was officially closed last Friday at 12 midnight after the Board found "sufficient evidence" to substantiate charges of illegal sale of alcoholic beverages June 15 and illegal sale of alcohol to a minor June 17.

Atty. Cosgrove said he thought it "unfair" the Board did not grant a continuance in the proceeding, allowing him to counter the testimony of a 15-year-old youth who said he and three others paid an 18-year-old to buy beer for them

Sunday, June 15.

After a brief recess to discuss a possible continuance, City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the Board, said he felt the Board should act on the matter.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, board member, made the motion to revoke "Almost Joey's" license, saying:

"I believe sufficient evidence has been presented on charges one and two and I move the license of 'Almost Joey's' be revoked immediately with charge three stricken."

The vote of the Board was unanimous with Fire Chief Edward Barry absent. A third charge involving the alleged intoxication of Murphy was dropped.

Robert W. Meade, bartender at "Almost Joey's", testified he "did not recall" anyone asking to buy a case of beer at "Almost Joey's" Sunday, June 15 when he was on duty.

This statement conflicted with testimony last Tuesday by Police Officer Peter Flynn who told the board he attempted to buy a case of beer at the bar that day when involved in a special plain-clothes detail.

Flynn had testified he was served a beer at the bar by Meade. Flynn, who said he observed cases of beer in a storage area near the men's room, testified he told Meade he wanted to buy some beer since it was Father's Day and he had no liquor at home.

Flynn said Meade, busy at the time, said to him, "I'll get back to you later."

Meade, had not testified before the Board's first proceeding last Tuesday because he had not retained legal counsel.

Testifying on the charge of illegal sale of alcohol to a minor, Meade said he served a girl a gin and tonic after examining the Massachusetts license she produced as identification. He said he "examined the license carefully," comparing the license photo with the girl asking to be served. He testified he was "satisfied" the girl at the bar was the girl pictured on the license produced.

Queried by board members, Meade said he did not ask the girl to give her name, address, social security number or birth date.

The juvenile identified Meade as the man who served her June 17. She said she had "borrowed" the license from another person whose name she said she did not recall.

She also testified she was served again by Meade about two weeks later without being challenged about her age.

Meade said he had received instructions from Murphy, his employer, to accept only a Massachusetts driver's license as proper identification to be served at "Almost Joey's".

During his testimony, Murphy said several signs posted in the bar indicated only Massachusetts licenses will be accepted as identification. He said he told his bartenders not to allow persons inside who could not produce the proper identification.

Murphy also testified he keeps cases of canned beer on the premises because sometimes the supply of bottled beer is exhausted.

A 15-year-old youth, testifying on the illegal sale of alcohol June 15, told the Board he asked an 18-year-old to buy a case of beer for him and three other friends. The youth said the older boy went in the front door of "Almost Joey's" and "five or ten minutes later" the older boy "came from behind" the lounge and instructed the youth to pick up the case of beer at the back door of "Almost Joey's".

Questioned by Atty. Cosgrove, the youth said he did not see the older boy come out of the back door of the bar and said he did not see any purchase made inside the establishment. The youth said he could not swear the older boy purchased the beer at "Almost Joey's".

A Bell St. resident, who told the Board her front yard is diagonally across the street from "Almost Joey's", testified she saw people on three different occasions come out of the alley behind the lounge with beer. She said she had seen the 15-year-old youth come from the alley with beer.

Before the Board voted on the revocation of the lounge's license, Chairman Gillis informed those attending the proceeding that Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Ward I Councillor Leo J. Kelly wanted an opportunity to speak before the Board.

But he said the two would not address the Board on the advice of Asst. City Solicitor Robert Fleming.

Earlier this month, Hannon and Kelly recommended the taking of the lounge property by eminent domain and Reps. Thomas Brownell and William Delahunt backed their efforts to close the controversial bar.

Atty. Paul Harold submitted a statement to the Board, urging them to judge the validity of the charges against "Almost Joey's" but not to be influenced by proposals to take the area by eminent domain. In a letter to Gillis, Harold said:

"This is clearly a licensing case, not a case of land-taking for public facilities. Here is a store in a business area, ill-situated for a park, and across the street from vacant land which would serve the purpose of a park if needed."

No Decision Yet On S. Quincy MBTA

been made and won't be for some time."

Rep. Robert Cerasoli:

"I think a lot of people, including the Mayor, have decided this station is a foregone conclusion because the Governor [Michael S. Dukakis] and the secretary of transportation [Frederick P. Salucci] want it. But Mr. Premo indicated the station is not a foregone conclusion by any means."

City Councillor Joseph LaRaia:

"What the Mayor said is his own statement. The fear is now, he may have some 'secret information' he is not revealing, but I feel UMTA will refute that...The delegation feels assured of UMTA's concern and objectivity."

QCA President Pasquale DiStefano:

"It is deplorable the Mayor has made such a statement...It is more than an idle remark; he is withholding information. The QCA demands he make public the individual or individuals who told him this so we can check on it...If the statement is an opinion, the Mayor should have said so."

Norman P. Forde, Quincy resident and businessman:

"Our neighbors are now demanding to know who is telling the truth. They ask, 'Would our government officials let us spend our hard-earned money and travel to Washington on a fool's errand if a decision had already been reached? I say no. I believe it is just another irrational statement by Mayor Hannon, trying to convince people that his decision is the correct one, regardless of the people's feelings.'"

City Councillor James A. Sheets did not comment on Hannon's statement but said:

"The UMTA officials seemed to be genuinely concerned about the conduct of the hearing. No decision has been made as to the federal appropriation for a South Quincy station. I would assume no formal decision has been made. I believe UMTA will not make a formal decision until they look into the conduct of the hearing and until both sides get a chance to air their views - pro and con."

Atty. Paul Harold:

"I don't think the station is a fact of life. We were encouraged by the people at UMTA. We were talking to the top echelon - to the people who make the decisions. Their presence indicated they felt the matter was important enough to meet with us. We had a chance to give our side and I believe the matter is still up in the air."

UMTA officials are now preparing a environmental statement on the South Quincy station - a statement which must be circulated at least 45 days. Premo promised members of the Washington delegation each will receive a copy of the statement about which they can submit comments.

He also ensured the delegation UMTA will investigate allegations the Masonic Temple hearing was "a sham" and "manipulated all along the line." He said:

"We will devote our immediate energies to making a determination on the hearing and seek to evaluate the analysis. We will give the best and fairest evaluation there is."

Rep. Cerasoli, who termed the Masonic Temple meeting "a sham", was criticized for his statement by Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the South Shore Building Trades Council.

Responding to D'Olimpio's contention that Cerasoli "dominated" the hearing for 40 minutes, the representative said:

"Anyone present at the hearing knows that I need not remind Mr. D'Olimpio that it took 40 minutes to deliver my speech because I was continually interrupted by the crude hisses and cat calls of planted hecklers who were there to disrupt the proceedings. I refused to give in to this type of intimidation, so I kept the podium until I was allowed to finish my presentation."

D'Olimpio said the South Shore Building Trades Council favors the building of a South Quincy Station because the project would mean more jobs for workers. Cerasoli said he, too, is interested in more jobs for people but warned:

"I will not use the people of South Quincy as the sacrificial lamb for any jobs. I represent those people down there, not the MBTA, not the governor, not the trade unions and not the vested business interests. I refuse to be intimidated by hatchet men acting as spokesmen for vested interests."

St. Moritz Pond Treated For Weeds

Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin announced today that the MDC has awarded a contract for the control of aquatic weeds in Second Pond at St. Moritz in West Quincy.

The MDC action is in response to a request by Senator Tobin and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets that the West Quincy Pond be upgraded for its recreational value.

The MDC contractor will use a chemical, approved by the State Department of Public Health, which should effectively control the overwhelming growth of weeds at Second Pond. The MDC will post the pond while the control project is under way, a period of approximately two days. The chemical being used is completely safe, completely degradable and will not harm any Marine Life in the pond.

"This project is the beginning of bringing back the St. Moritz area to its once unsurpassed beauty for fishing and just plain loafing," Tobin said.

'Quincy: 350 Years' SalesNear 1,200 Copies

Sales of the Quincy Heritage book, "Quincy: 350 Years", have reached nearly 1,200 copies, reports John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage.

Edited by H. Hobart Holly, president of the Quincy Historical Society, the 74-page book contains 12 chapters written by different authors. In addition, there is a special section devoted to a map and detailed explanation of the 18 areas of interest along the historic trail.

Some 55 historic pictures, culled from the detailed files of the Quincy Historical Society and the Thomas Crane Public Library, highlight the book.

Chapters include "Geology and Geography", "Religion and Ethnology", "Twenty-seven Miles of Shoreline", "Economic Life", "Quincy's Government - Past and Present", "Education", "Quincy's Communities", "Distinctively Quincy", "The Adams Family and Quincy", "Quincy's Sons and Daughters", and a special chapter outlining Quincy's future over "The Next 350 Years".

The book is available in softcover for $3 and in hardcover for $7.50 at the Quincy Heritage Visitors' Center in the Quincy Square MBTA Station.

Speaks In Quincy

DiGrazia Says Police To Be 'Strongly' Present When Schools Open

Boston Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia said police presence in Boston schools this September will be "strong from day one" with hopes of lessening that presence as quickly as possible.

Speaking before a special meeting of the Quincy Kiwanis, Lions, and Rotary Clubs Monday, diGrazia told the gathering he wanted to avoid an "armed-camp appearance" within Boston schools. He told the audience in Sons of Italy Social Center:

"Our approach is be tough, have a strong presence to start off with the hope we'll be cutting out quickly. That type of armed-camp appearance is just not conducive to education."

Warmly welcomed by some 100 men attending the meeting, diGrazia made very brief formal remarks on busing and then fielded audience questions for the remainder of the time.

diGrazia said between 800 and 850 members of the Boston Police Department, Metropolitan District Commission and state police will be helping to maintain safety and order when Boston schools open in September.

Declining to comment on whether he thought court-ordered busing would be overturned, diGrazia said:

"The problem is education...Youngsters, black and white, have a right to education...I don't know if moving them around is facing the problem in the Boston School System."

Making an appeal to Boston parents, diGrazia said:

"I, as a police officer, can't guarantee the safety of every single student who will be bused to school. But the Boston Police Department will do as much as possible to protect the safety of these youngsters who will be going to school... And I hope the adults will show more intelligence this year and allow youngsters to go to school in safety as they should."

The Commissioner said, too, teachers in the Boston Schools must try to maintain routine classroom discipline on their own, instead of seeking the immediate aid of marshals within the schools.

On other topics, diGrazia commended the job done by police women on the Boston Police Force. Thirty-three women now belong to the force, with nine of them still studying at the Police Academy. Speaking of male chauvinism and the stereotypical "Frail Woman", diGrazia said:

"It's difficult to admit a five-foot two, eyes of blue, 105-pound police officer can do the work of a six-foot four, 220-pound man. We have always looked at the person's brawn, not his brains or heart. That's an unfortunate approach. We have to look at what makes the person...And women can do the job...Some police women are creating problems but some police men are creating problems, too."

Asked about the impact of the newly-passed state gun law - a law requiring a mandatory one-year minimum sentence for illegal possession of firearms - diGrazia said the law has seemingly not deterred illegal possession by the "hard-nosed criminals" but has decreased the number of firearms illegally possessed by petty thieves.

He said he favors stricter penalties for car theft in order to try to curb the rate of such thefts. diGrazia estimated 90 percent of all car thefts are the "joy-ride type" which become categorized as misdemeanors.

He said, too, he favors the implementation of a more equitable system of sentencing convicted persons to prevent one from "getting off scot-free" while another, convicted of the same crime, "gets sent away".

He said he advocates, too, stiffer sentences for repeaters.

Enrollment Down 200

School Bells Ring Sept. 3 For 15,750 Public Students

Thirty-five new teachers will join the public school staff of 1,077 in welcoming an estimated 15,750 elementary, junior high and high school students during opening day of the 1975-1976 school year next Wednesday.

Following a three-year downward trend in enrollment, this year's unofficial registration has dropped by about 200 students. Last year's official enrollment was 15,969.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon told The Quincy Sun: "We've been dropping by about 200 students over the past three years."

However, Wilfred Nolan, co-ordinator of Elementary Education, noted kindergarten enrollment has seemingly stabilized, with 1,105 scheduled to begin the school year. Last year's kindergarten registration totaled 1,104.

Outlining the status of planned renovations at North Quincy High School, Dr. Creedon predicted students will face double sessions in Quincy "not before the 1978-1979 school year," three school years away.

Dr. Creedon projected Spring 1976 as the tentative groundbreaking date for the addition and major renovations at North Quincy High School.

Although Dr. Creedon said students at North Quincy High School will not experience any disruptions in normal classroom routine this year, he said the 1975-1976 school year may well mark the last for the present gymnasium at North. Creedon said the gymnasium will have to be razed before any renovations begin.

Pending approval of architectural drawings of the planned renovations, Creedon said bids on the addition and renovations will be open by January or February of 1976.

The superintendent also foresees additional space needs in the school system and has recommended to the School Committee the following proposals:

★ Acquire 3,000 square feet of space at the Quincy Savings Bank for all business offices of the school department and renovate existing business office to better accommodate the space needs of administrative personnel.

★ Acquire the former fire station at the Squantum Naval Air Station and 11 acres of school-owned land in the rear of Myles Standish School to house the maintenance facility

Their Secret Was Discovered

Suicide Of 2 Young Lovers A Mystery 125 Years Later

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

"To the oppressed and downtrodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul - Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Those words - penned some 125 years ago - by 15-year-old Hannah Banks - probably offered solace and strength to two young un-wed lovers whose long-kept secret, one day uncovered, made them take their own lives here in Quincy, seeking in death that comforting, longed-for "birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

John Grieve and Hannah Banks, apparently first cousins forbidden to marry, abandoned in 1850 their hometown of Zanesville, Ohio, travelling to Quincy, not as husband and wife, not as brother and sister but as cousins, with Hannah disguised as a boy.

Their stay in Quincy ended abruptly, tragically, and the riddles surrounding their young lives lie forever interred in Hancock Cemetery.

One riddle revolves around the tombstone inscription - an inscription ordered by the father of John Grieve. It reads:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A. J. Davis."

Who was A. J. Davis? Did his philosophy and writings actually prompt the lovers to commit suicide?

Andrew Jackson Davis lived in Boston and was a dabbler in the realms of spiritualism, mermerism and faith healing. He also perused the Bible, extracting contradictions in Scripture.

Both John and Hannah, living in Quincy under the aliases of John Green and George Sands, read volumes on the subject of spiritualism and spent long hours in their Elm St. lodgings, talking about the after-life, and communication with the City Awarded $866,433 For Streets

Quincy has been awarded $866,433.50 for repairs and renovations to Sea St., Washington St. and Southern Artery as part of the city's Topics Program.

Senator-City Council

President Arthur H. Tobin said the allocation was included in a $45 million public works bond issue recently enacted by the state senate.

Tobin said work on the project is scheduled to begin this summer.

Quincy Man Bicycling Home From West Coast

By POLLY DREDGE

David D'Olimpio, a 21-year-old Quincy resident bicycling cross country from the northwest has passed the halfway mark of his 3,000 mile trip.

D'Olimpio left Quincy Tuesday, July 1, on his Italian 10-speed bike for Montreal, where he planned to catch a train to Vancouver. He left Canada for home July 13.

By Aug. 2, he had reached Fort Collins, Col., covering 2,192 miles on bicycle since he left Quincy, and 1,801 since he left Vancouver.

In a brief letter to The Quincy Sun, he told of his first few days of travel.

Following Rte. 100 through Vermont, he averaged 65 miles daily, the first two days. After the third day, his legs "started to come around" and managed to cover 75 to 80 miles daily.

D'Olimpio reached Sutton, Canada, his mother's hometown, by Sunday, July 6, and visited friends and relatives.

Despite his unexpected delays the first two days of his trip, he managed to catch the Canadian Pacific Train Monday morning. A Sutton man, formerly of Braintree, was headed for Montreal on business Monday, and agreed to take David and his bike along.

The two entered Montreal via the Canadian Auto Route. "If there weren't signs in French, the traffic and city could pass for Boston," he wrote.

He mentioned the "grandure" of the Great Lakes, the miles and miles of the plains, and the Rocky Mountains, he had seen from the train.

The adventure-seeking bicyclist had stopped at a Canadian Youth Hostel camp ground in Alberta for a few days. He boarded the Vancouver train July 11.

Building his endurance, he had covered 80 to 90 miles daily since July 13.

"Washington was a changing country. I started out in tall wood country, with forests, thick and green. It then turned to farm land where, for miles, there was nothing but wheat fields stretched for as far as one could see, gold with grain. Quite suddenly it sunk with a brush prairie land that was totally uninhabited.

"Through Idaho, I followed the Lewis and Clark Trail. Again, I was in a heavily wooded area with mountains on either side."

The Sundance Kid, his newly acquired nickname, encountered his first heavy rainstorm July 31, his first night in Rocky Mountain National Park.

"After drying out my tent and bike, I left to begin the ascent of mountain passes reaching over 12,000 feet. I shared the day with a biker from Santa Ana, Calif., who was passing through the park but then heading south. We left at 9:30 a.m. and spent the next four hours climbing steep grades for 20 miles. We started out in T-shirts but as we got higher we added heavier clothing."

Trail Ridge Pass was the third and highest pass, 12,000 feet. "Visibility was around 60 miles, rather poor because of the clouds...I could feel the cold, fresh, clean air cleansing my lungs...It was with deep regret that I pointed my bike down the other side and pushed away from the summit to begin the long trip down."

He passed quickly through Yellowstone National Park and the Tetons.

D'Olimpio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine D'Olimpio of 70 Walnut St., Quincy Point, less than a month from home, will cross the plains states and into the midwest.

"So far it has been a very rewarding trip and I am looking forward to the last leg of biking back home."

Hannon, Quinn, Bellotti Win Top Spots On Ballot

Mayor Walter J. Hannon won top billing in a drawing for ballot position in the city's Sept. 23 preliminary election.

Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke drew the names Friday in City Council Chambers as a smattering of hopeful candidates watched.

Grace E. Saphir landed second place in the ballot order for mayor, followed by Councillor Joseph LaRaia in third place and Professor Michael Jovanovic fourth.

Burke randomly picked the names from a sliding-lid wooden box held high by John Baker of the city's Election Department.

In the drawing for councillor at-large position, incumbent John J. Quinn took the number one slot. Following him in order were: Sabina Kavanaugh Stenberg [2]; Rep. William D. Delahunt [3]; Incumbent Arthur H. Tobin [4]; Helen M. McDonnell [5]; School Committeeman Harold Davis [6]; and Atty. Paul D. Harold [7].

James L. McDonough topped the field of four Ward 1 candidates. Following him in order were: John B. Whalen [2]; Incumbent Leo J. Kelly [3] and Edward W. Meade [4].

Winning the Ward 2 top ballot position was John S.

Isaac, followed by School Committeeman Daniel G. Raymondi [2] and Robert H. Martinson [3].

Francis X. Bellotti Jr., will lead a field of nine School Committee candidate names. Following him in order will be: Christopher F. Kennedy [2]; Marie E. MacIntyre [3]; Patricia M. Toland [4]; Incumbent Francis X. McCauley [5]; Jan A.

Rich [6]; J. Thomas Mullaney [7]; Paul Operach [8] and Kenneth J. Runge [9].

There is no preliminary contest for the Ward 3, 4, 5, 6 City Council seats.

Tell sister you'll shop for yourself

By RIV TOBIN

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My sister is a professional seamstress and has offered to make all my children's clothes. I have three small daughters and two teen-age sons, so you can see it would be a great help to my budget.

She said it would make things easier if I put her name on my charge account so she could buy fabric and findings whenever she was shopping. Well, I just received my first bill from Sears and it's $283.26! This is more money than I would spend for ready-made clothes for the youngsters, but I realize they are really getting better clothes.

Should I tell my sister not to sew for them any more or should I just take her name off my account?

Mary Lou B.

Dear Mary Lou:

Tell your sister what you have told me. You could buy the fabric you want for the garments you need. That way you would keep control of your budget.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

On a buffet table, what implements are provided for the mustard and mayonnaise?

Mrs. L. Barber

Dear Mrs. Barber:

Mayonnaise is usually served with a small spoon and mustard is served with a wooden paddle or spoon. Mustard paddles or spoons are generally made of olive wood.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I am a recent divorcee. My engagement ring belonged to my ex-husband's aunt. Should I return it?

K.N.L.

Dear K.N.L.:

By all means, or at least offer to do so. Of course, other jewelry given to you is legally yours to keep.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I have need to write to a certain company and register a complaint. To whom do I address the body of the letter?

Mathew W.

Dear Mr. W.:

The salutation is "Gentlemen." You really aren't writing to any particular person but are writing to the company.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

We are not of the Catholic faith but have been invited to an ordination. What should we wear?

The Hersheys

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Hershey: Street clothes are the appropriate attire.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My family has always been big for birthday parties. My father died last year and Mom says that since we always celebrated his "birth" day we should now celebrate his "death" day. Comment, please.

R.D.J.

Dear R.D.J.:

A death is certainly not "celebrated." A small family gathering might be appropriate but certainly not a party.

Today's Women

FASHIONS

Layered, western looks return

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service

This year's back-to-school fashions will have definite Oriental and Central European influences for the girls while the western look is expected to remain popular with the guys.

The trend for femmes this year will be clothes, clothes, clothes! Layers of them, in fact, with stripes and multi-blends of four and five colors running through dresses, sweaters, scarfs and knee socks.

"Economic conditions are keeping fashions from changing radically," said Mrs. Betty Weisfeld, fashion coordinator for a large West Coast department store. "We saw the layered look last year and this year will be a continuation of it."

"Silhouettes will be much fuller this year," Mrs. Weisfeld said in an interview. "The overall look for girls will be very subdued with the use of muted colors such as rust, brown and dark green and the fuller, longer look which can only be called 'The Great Coverup.'"

The outer-most layer will consist of a mid-calf length coat, poncho or jacket with wide shoulders, and kimono or raglan sleeves. Waistlines will be free or loosely belted and collar will be in either bateau, funnel, or officer's styles. Fake and real fur will be used for trim.

The second layer will consist of a sweater (any style that's appealing) with possibly a matching or contrasting scarf and knit hat.

"This layered look is especially good for colder areas of the country," Mrs. Weisfeld said. "However, it will have to be modified in the warmer sections of the country by eliminating the outer coat."

Dresses this year will feature the "tube look," which is loose and blousy with the emphasis on the shoulders. It can be worn with or without a belt. Hemlines will fall just below the knee.

BUNDLED UP - Cold weather isn't far behind once school starts and Sharon (left) and Luann are ready for it. Sharon is wearing a suede coat with white lamb fur trim and a matching knit cap and flared pants. Luann is wearing a heavy cardigan with shawl collar, pockets and belt, matching knit beret and scarf, and straight leg pants.

Skirts will be styled with kick or inverted pleats, side slits, or be wrapped or side-buttoned and worn open. According to Mrs. Weisfeld, culottes will again be popular.

New this year are the folk and Oriental looks. The folk styles recall the clothes worn in Central Europe during the first quarter of the 20th Century. There are vest and sweaters of various weights, lengths and cuts.

Pants will also bear the European look, said Mrs. Weisfeld. They'll be cut very full and very masculinely.

The Oriental look will exhibit both a Mongol and Mandarin influence in designs which will feature wool or fur-trimmed vests, bulky lounging coats and more simple peasant-style shirts and coats.

Boots of differing lengths and the standard oxford will be the prime styles to wear with the new, longer, fuller look.

"There's no big change in guys' fashions except that the clothes will be cut longer and larger," said Mrs. Weisfeld. "The western look in the earth tones will continue to be very popular and sweaters will be very important."

She noted that leisure suits have taken over for both dressy and casual occasions, especially on the West Coast.

"In both guys and girls fashions we'll be seeing a lot more natural fabric being used than we have in many years," Mrs. Weisfeld said. "Lots of 100 per cent cotton dresses and shirts and a lot more 100 per cent wool sweaters."

"With this trend we'll see corduroy become very popular this year and the number of clothes for dress and casual being made out of denim will be mind boggling," she said.

Some students need mindlift

By JOHN C. MOON

Dear John:
I am a girl student in college.

Every time I pick up the school paper, there is a picture of a streaker or half-naked person. And the stories are about dirty subjects.

At home I read the local daily newspaper. It doesn't contain filthy pictures and stories.

How come? Are journalism students in college going to be able to get jobs on big papers when they graduate?

Hate Dirt

Dear Hate Dirt:

Probably not. Many journalism students in the past were sick and so-called. In other words, they were goofed up politically.

But many journalism students today are goofed up sexually.

They should take Toilet 1A, instead of Reporting 1A.

In a lot of colleges, no one but the students are in charge of the editorial content of newspapers.

That is not the case in the outside world. There is a publisher, wanting to provide a good product and make a profit.

The Toilet Wall writers won't have a chance for a job unless they get a mindlift job.

Dear John:

My wife and I were recently married.

We still go out to dinner a lot, because she doesn't like to cook.

That's all right with me, but we eat in a lot of restaurants where the service is poor. When the service is bad, I hate to tip the usual 15 per cent.

But I don't want my wife thinking I am a cheapskate. What would you suggest?

Not a Cheapskate

Dear Not:

The best suggestion I can offer is to, jokingly, give the money to your bride and ask her to pay for the meals.

And then look closely when she tips.

Women are notoriously low tippers. Often they will tip just 10 per cent, even if the service is superb.

And if the service isn't up to snuff, women can stiff the waitress without a qualm.

You will save money in the tipping department, I am sure, if you let your bride do all the tipping.

Dear John:

I assume from your answers to letters written in by other kids that you are a man who thinks he knows a lot about girls.

Do you?

Assuming

Dear Assuming:

I do.

presently located on the ground floor of the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Dr. Creodon said the space freed by this latter move could be used as administrative offices to house business departments of the school system, as temporary administrative offices for North Quincy High School during double sessions, or as a specialized facility to house pre-occupational and career education programs at the junior and senior high school levels.

Ten of the 35 new teachers in the school system are special needs instructors hired in compliance with Chapter 766 - a law first implemented last year to guarantee proper instruction for students with learning disabilities.

Singing out the special needs teachers during his address Wednesday welcoming new faculty members, Dr. Creodon said:

"From you we will expect an uncommon sensitivity. For years we have needed the skills, competence and gentleness that we know you possess. We have faith in you and trust that you will share your gifts and give of yourself in an uncommon way."

Greeting all new faculty members on day one of a three-day, orientation program, Creodon compared the event to marriage. He said:

"Marriage begins in faith and trust; it is a commitment to sharing and giving.

"The same for teaching. Your students, our young people, their parents, our employers and the community at large...have placed in us a sacred trust. They believe in us, they trust us...to do what is in the best interests of their children. They expect us to get involved in the lives of their children. They expect us to give of ourselves in a way that brings credit to ourselves and to our profession."

But later in his address, Dr. Creodon warned the teachers:

"As educators we do not have the license to be in private practice at public expense. In helping young people to find themselves, to develop their individuality and to seek new pathways, we do not have license to hold up to scorn - either directly or indirectly - the values of the home and the community."

"While striving to excite our young people about new knowledge, we have an obligation to make certain that the basic skills are mastered."

Dr. Creodon said all administrative positions for the new school year have been filled.

Jean Ann MacLean will succeed Miss Merle Sawyer - retiring after 45 years in the teaching profession - as principal of Mass. Fields School.

Thomas Hall will succeed James Bready, former assistant principal at Broadmeadows Junior High School, and Luleen Anderson will succeed Alice Guilmarin as co-ordinator of elementary guidance and psychological services.

Dr. Creodon noted Arthur Woodward, co-ordinator of secondary education, will be studying alternatives to double sessions later on in the school year. Creodon said, unlike the implementation of double sessions in other school systems, double sessions in Quincy will not disrupt or halt extra curricular activities. He explained students at North Quincy High School will all attend classes during one session, while students at Quincy High School will all attend classes during the other session.

Dr. Creodon said the most immediate problem to emanate from renovations at North Quincy High School will be placing North Quincy High School students at alternate locations for physical education once the present gymnasium at North is torn down.

Record Enrollment Forecast At Quincy Junior College

SR HIGH SCHOOL LUNCH

Tuesday, Sept. 2 - * Full day for all personnel.

Wednesday, Sept. 3 -  Morning session only except for Freshmen and Sophomores.

Thursday, Sept. 4 - Fruit juice, big-q-burger with or without cheese, 2-2 oz. patties served on a Sesame seed roll, tater tots, beverage.

Friday, Sept. 5 - Citrus refresher, spaghetti w/meat sauce, buttered string beans, french bread and butter, beverage.

Quincy Junior College President Dr. Edward F. Pierce predicts a record enrollment during the 1975-1976 academic year, guaranteeing a total student body of 3,800 and hoping to reach the 4,000 mark.

Pierce told The Quincy Sun: "I'm usually conservative in my estimates...Last year I was 400 too low. Total enrollment will be around 3,800 - that I can guarantee. And I'm hoping to break 4,000."

Dr. Pierce's "conservative estimate" of enrollment this year represents a growth of 600 over last year's official registration of 3,246. If enrollment breaks 4,000, student population will have increased by 800.

Daytime enrollment at the college will total 1,230 this year, representing an increase of 223 students over last year's daytime registration of 1,007.

Evening enrollment will total 2,600, an increase of 361 students over last year's evening registration of 2,239.

Asked to pinpoint a cause of this increased enrollment, Pierce said candidly, "It's a result of hard work and good public relations."

Credit must go to [Administrative] Dean [Hugo] Saluti, Toby Felton [administrative assistant], to our coverage in the press. I don't have any one single answer...I have to give credit to everyone and everything."

Pierce added classes at the college will begin on schedule - Sept. 8 - despite the fact Massachusetts community colleges are delaying their openings.

First Islamic Mosque In N.E. To Be Built Here

The Arab American Banner Society of Quincy announced plans for the construction in Quincy Point of the first Islamic Mosque in New England.

The $25,000 mosque would serve the two-fold function as a house of worship and to perpetuate the rich heritage of Arabic culture.

Prominent Arabic-speaking citizens of Quincy Point of the Moslem faith were taking the leadership in raising funds. Officers of the Arab society were Abdo Hassan, president; Fathal Hassan, treasurer and Aziz Abraham, secretary.

Quincy Point, with some 200 Arabic-speaking Moslems, had one of the largest groups of Moslems in this section of the country.

COUNCILLOR AUSTIN URGES CITY HALL SITE COMMITTEE

Councillor Edna Austin announced that she would introduce a resolve asking the city manager to appoint a committee to recommend a site for a new city hall.

Councillor Austin pointed out that the present city hall was more than one hundred years old and housed a comparatively small part of the various municipal operations.

"The rent which the city now pays for office space would go far toward amortizing a loan for a new city hall," she said.

NAVY SHIFTS HOUSING UNITS FROM WEYMOUTH TO SQUANTUM

The 150-family units housing development which the U.S. Navy originally planned to build at the South Weymouth Air Facility would instead be built at the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The site change was made because with the expansion of the South Weymouth facility there would not be enough room for the housing development.

Announcement of the change to Squantum further complicated Quincy's acute school over-crowding. Superintendent Dr. Paul Gossard said that the estimated 200 children from the development would attend the Quincy and Squantum schools, but pointed out that federal money could probably be secured for construction of a new school.

Young Lovers Suicide Still Mystery 125 Years Later

dead.

This couple could have chosen hundreds of communities as a haven of anonymity.

Did they choose Quincy to be near this spiritualist A. J. Davis? Or did the father of young John Grieve order that inscription - "Deluded by the writings of A. J. Davis" - as a rationalization, an excuse, for the suicide, hoping to head off any probe which might reveal the two were unmarried.

The father himself contended John and Hannah were married 10 months before the left Zanesville. Why, then, did Hannah dress as a boy?

To support themselves, John and Hannah worked in a shoe factory in Quincy, the center of that thriving industry at the time. Perhaps the lure of the shoe industry and its wide-open job market attracted the couple east to the then town of Quincy.

However, co-workers in that Baxter St. factory soon noticed one of the two "cousins", seemingly the younger of the two, looked frail, almost effeminate, with delicate features and fair skin. Their curiosity peaked, the co-workers devised a scheme to expose the truth about this "George Sands".

According to a Zanesville newspaper article published Jan. 21, 1925, the co-workers tossed an apple to young "George Sands" during a lunch break, to test his method of catching.

Chauvinists of their day, these plotters wagered a man would catch the apple with arms outstretched while a woman would catch the apple in her lap. A lack of agility evidently uncovered the secret of her identity, for "George Sands" let the apple fall to her lap.

Undoubtedly, a hush fell over the gathering while a mixture of humiliation, rage and horror flushed the face of young Hannah Banks. Unable to withstand the stares, the snickers, the gossip, Hannah and John neither returned to work nor to their boarding house. They were never seen alive again.

The two disappeared on a crisp November day, the day inscribed on the Hancock Cemetery tombstone as the date of the couple's death.

Three months later, as the earth began to emerge from the frigid cloak of a New England winter, the mystery of the couple's disappearance unfolded.

Henry and Albert Hayden, rabbit hunting on Penn's Hill, discovered the frozen bodies of John Grieve and Hannah Banks lying at the edge of a small pond. The spot has been pinpointed as opposite 315 Franklin St., South Quincy, the former home of Noah Curtis.

Quincy Coroner Bass, great grandfather of the late City Historian William C. Edwards, examined the bodies, finding a bullet hole through the head of John Grieve and through the heart of Hannah Banks. A Zanesville newspaper described the two bodies as closely clasped together, frozen "in a loving embrace."

In fact, the bodies were wedded so firmly together, Coroner Bass ordered the bodies to be placed in Town Brook where the running waters thawed the corpses, enabling them to be separated.

Quincy townfathers, unable to unearth any information on the couple's next of kin, wired descriptions of John Grieve and Hannah Banks throughout the country.

Several months after the discovery of the bodies on Penn's Hill, the father of John Grieve arrived in Quincy to bury the couple properly. Although he asserted the couple were married 10 months before leaving Ohio, and although he ordered the word "wife" inscribed on the tombstone, the father never furnished documents to verify the marriage of John and Hannah.

An investigation of the Elm St. boarding house where John and Hannah lived uncovered a truck filled with letters, communications and bits of writings authored by Hannah Banks. One letter, dated Oct. 15 revealed the couple that contemplated suicide even before co-workers uncovered their secret. The letter, addressed to a Dr. Leroy Sutherland of Charlestown, an ardent abolitionist and proponent of evolution, was written in a girlish scrawl. It asked:

"I would like to have your candid opinion as to whether suicide would hinder our progression after death. Please answer and oblige."

Dr. Sutherland's response to the letter did not come in time. Would his answer have stopped the couple's suicide? If Dr. Sutherland had advised against suicide, would John and Hannah have searched for another town; a far-away village, where they could cloak themselves once again in anonymity - for a year, for a month, for a day?

The couple could not wait for a response from Dr. Sutherland. As they waited for death to end their earthly misery, they must have said over and over again, "Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul - Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

'You Missed Most Important Reason For Women's Lib'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I have greatly enjoyed the gift subscription to your newspaper that I receive here in California. Moving from Quincy was very hard after establishing a lifetime of ties there. The Quincy Sun has kept me in tune with what is going on in the city of the Presidents. Both my husband and I look forward to reading it each week with news of our friends and relatives at home.

The "Sunbeams" article of Aug. 7, however, is one that I must take exception to. In that editorial you comment that "despite all women's lib and that kind of stuff" the number of registered women voters has fallen. What really concerns me is your statement that there was little chance of a female sweep as I quote "It's pretty tough trying to get two women to agree on anything never mind 25,000 of them."

Mr. Bosworth, you have missed the most important reason for "women's lib". We do not wish to be bunched into one large group of the "girls". The average woman of today wants most to be treated as a person with individual rights, desires and chances for success in her chosen field. Women should be rated on their performance as individuals, not according to their gender.

This is more important in voting on political issues. For women to vote only for women is not liberation. That smacks too much of chauvinism. I can not speak for all liberated women, however I can hope that all voters, male and female, will choose their candidates only after careful consideration of their abilities, qualifications and positions on the pertinent issues of the day. The sex of the candidate should not be an issue. When all people vote in this manner that "women's lib" will be a success.

Return Veterans Day To Rightful Date, Nov. 11

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Legislation to return Veterans Day to Nov. 11, from the fourth Monday of October, has passed the House in Washington. It now requires action by the U.S. Senate and President Ford.

It was a well intended experiment, which gave our people a three-day weekend, but as noble as the intentions were, the intent and solemnity of this most important day was lost and shocked us deeply.

Forty-six states have returned to celebrating this most important event on its rightful date,

Nov. 11. We wish to join our fellow Americans who have returned Veterans Day to its proper status, one in which we can truly honor our departed fallen comrades, we couldn't do less.

May we respectfully urge your readers to let their Congressmen know their feelings on this most important matter.

Massachusetts this year will celebrate Veterans Day Nov. 11. The Federal Government will still celebrate the fourth Monday of October.

Disabled American Veterans.

Sunbeams

Sometimes I Hate Myself

By HENRY BOSWORTH

There are times when I hate myself. Really!

I do things and I just can't help it. Like when I'm sitting in front of a typewriter writing a Sunbeams column, I sometimes just can't resist the temptation to tease women. It's one of my weaknesses.

I have a mother, wife, and four daughters. I love them. But I tease them too. I even tease the girls in the office. I just can't help it.

But apparently my teasing isn't appreciated by at least one woman—Char-Lou Fay Benedict, now of Del Mar, California, formerly of Quincy. [See her letter in Letter Box, Page 10].

Seems a couple of weeks or so ago, I mentioned here that women voters still outnumber men voters in Quincy but noted that the female voters had "dipped in number from last year despite women's lib and all that kind of stuff. That's one example of my teasing.

Then I said that "if the gals all banded together, actually went to the polls and voted an all-female ticket, Quincy would have a woman mayor, about three women councillors and a woman school committee member." That was o.k. But then, I just couldn't resist adding this little extra tease:

"But little chance of a female sweep. It's pretty tough trying to get two women to agree on anything never mind 25,000 of them." [I just had to go and say it].

So Char-Lou, who used to be quite active in the Quincy League of Women Voters and is a real nice gal, has taken exception to what I wrote.

She says that I have missed the most important reason for "women's lib":

"The average woman of today wants to be treated as a person with individual rights, desires and chances for success in her chosen field. Women should be rated on their performances as individuals, not according to their gender."

Well, I don't blame women for feeling that way. But [here I go again] women who are really gung-ho libbers seem to stress equal rights and benefits but seldom mention equal responsibilities.

Whenever I hear women libbers talking, it's usually about equal pay, equal opportunity, equal this benefit or equal that benefit.

But I don't hear them talking about such little things like bringing home the money to buy the groceries and clothing, painting the house, mowing the lawn, shoveling the driveway of snow and things like that.

I sometimes think they are so determined to get their equal share of everything they forget us guys have equal rights, too.

Besides that, some of them are losing social ground. Like how many guys get up to give a woman a seat on the T these days? How many stop to help a woman fix a flat? Or get flowers just for the heck of it?

There are a lot of sincere women—like Char-Lou—who really believe in women's lib but are realistic about it, too. The world can't become a one-world street for women just like it shouldn't be for men.

But a couple of things still bother me about women's lib. I still don't understand why women who get married insist they are Ms. and not Mrs. If they don't want to be Mrs., why get married? They can stay single, be a Miss, have a career and let other women have a husband and children. They say there are at least six women—maybe 10—to every man so they might be doing five or nine other gals a big favor.

And why is it—or does it just seem so—that some of the most rabid women libbers seem to be men haters. And it is just coincidental that some of them are a bit on the homely side and would have a problem getting a man to say hello, after six months on a deserted island together.

But see, there I go again—teasing. It's a terrible weakness. I really hate myself when I do things like that.

I shouldn't have written this. The gals are going to be quite angry with me. But I just couldn't resist it.

However, I'm not the type to hold a grudge. I'm willing to meet with any woman libber for lunch to talk things over. Of course, I'd expect her to pick up the check or at least split it in the true sense of equality.

THEY SAY NO. 1 spot on the ballot is good for an automatic extra chunk of votes, so that explains the big smile Councillor John Quinn is wearing. He drew first place in the position drawing for the preliminary election, and will be in the top spot in the final election when candidates are listed alphabetically with incumbents first.

A FUND-RAISING reception and dance for Mayor Walter Hannon is set for Friday, Sept. 5, 8 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall. Sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Messina and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kane. Cost $4 per couple. Tickets also available from Jack Campbell, John Zarnadelli, Beverly Reinhardt and Audrey Hayes.

AND, A MOVIE fund-raiser for Harold Davis, councillor at-large candidate, is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 9 at the Strand Theater. The feature: "40 Cares" starring Liv Ullman and Gene Kelly. Tickets, $2 per, available by calling 773-0155.

WHEN HELEN MCDONNELL tossed her bonnet into the city council at-large ring, she had a blue ribbon on it. Filed her nomination papers tied with a blue ribbon.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Voluntarily, For Free

By ERIC SWIDER

Harry came storming into my office recently, swept past the receptionist, nearly knocked over my administrative assistant, and flipped a glare at the staffer that I was working with that told him in no uncertain terms that there was about to be a private meeting between Harry and me and that he'd better leave.

Just as he slammed the door behind the staffer, he turned to me and yelled, "If our conversations are going to be the subject of your columns Swider, I want 50% of the action."

"You got it, Harry - 50% of nothing is nothing."

"Nothing. What do you mean nothing? Don't you get paid for writing these things every week?"

"No," I explained. "I do it voluntarily, for free - in other words - nothing. What do I look like - Art Buchwald, Bill Buckley or Tom Wicker? I like writing and Henry Bosworth so far has found my stuff entertaining and occasionally informative, so he's letting me do my thing."

"But Enc, it's un-American to do things for nothing. I've seen you when you couldn't come up with something to write about and agonizing for days about it, so I naturally assumed there was big money at stake."

"Harry, it's very American to do things for nothing, it's the basis for America. Voluntary endeavor is what is right about America."

"How so?"

"Just think, if everything that had to be done was paid for, from the economic research that's conducted on behalf of our priority projects to the work of candystripers in hospitals, the cost of living would double."

"Now that I think about it," said Harry, "I guess a lot of what keeps a country moving is voluntary effort in some way or other."

"Sure, and that's what is the exciting part of my work, Harry. The hundreds of businesspeople, elected officials, labor union people, and citizens who give of their time and money, voluntarily, to pursue goals of making the community a better place, under the "Chamber umbrella" simply because they want the idea to work."

"That's right," exclaimed Harry, "...Remember a couple of weeks ago at the commuter boat presentation when Fred Salvucci commended the South Shore for all the "pro bono" work it's done on behalf of that program...it sure made me feel good."

"Right, and it made me feel good to think that people like Don White, Ed and John McHugh and Bud Knapp would give so unselfishly of their time to put the concept together," I explained.

"Yeah," said Harry, "and it made Salvucci feel good to think that the South Shore had probably done for free what the state would have to pay $100,000 for if they hired consultants. How come government doesn't get more pro bono stuff accomplished?"

"I'm not sure, but that's probably one of the exciting potential ways left to government to reduce the cost of their operations in the future - but labor laws, union contracts, and the psychology of volunteer motivation are probably more than most government officials are ready to deal with."

"Psychology of volunteer motivation?" blurted Harry. "That's a laugh. I don't see much of that coming out of you."

"Well, I'm glad you haven't noticed, Harry. I guess that suggests that what we stand for and attempt to accomplish makes so much sense that people will just flock to work on our projects."

"That's the way I read it," said Harry. "I mean, I'm your friend Swider, but it's a difficult relationship at best. No, what turns people on to the Chamber is the common sense program and goals with which they can identify."

"As well as the people - that great body of committed, involved people who want it to work - the Bill Kelleys, Jack Conways, Charlie Peaces, Gerry Rellys, Tom Flatleys, Dave Lords, Ed Allinsons, George Reardons," I explained.

"Swider, you're a name dropper."

"It's a good executive committee, Harry."

"But what do we do to get more people involved?" asked Harry. "There are so many problems that need solving and a massive infusion of voluntary effort could really get us lot of solid pro bono solutions."

"It takes staff, Harry. If we had more staff, we could get more people involved."

"That's the most incongruous remark I've ever heard," stated Harry. "Here we're talking about volunteerism and you tell me you need staff."

"Well, it doesn't have to be PAID staff," I explained. "If I could find several volunteers who were willing to contribute large blocks of time weekly, and we were compensated, we could get a lot more programs underway."

"Pshaw," said Harry, "I thought for a minute there that you were another..."

"Empire builder," I interrupted.

"Precisely, but who has large blocks of time they might contribute?" asked Harry.

"Retired executives who might be bored with their new found lack of action, and I'm sure in this area there are some people who "have it" and might find coupon clipping or garden clubbing unrewarding."

"Sounds like a way to get Bess's brother out of the house," chuckled Harry, "but back to this 50% of the action on your column, Swider, what about it?"

"Harry, you're incorrigible. Let's go have a beer."

LIVING TODAY

I Despise Injustice

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

"I despise injustice" ... said my counselee. "When I see it I'm just torn apart inside ... my body reacts immediately. My blood races ... I become irate ... I'm told that the pupils of my eyes become very small ... my face even flushes."

"You are really affected by injustice" ... I commented. "What kind of injustice are you talking about, Harry?" We were on a first name basis.

"Almost any kind, Bill," he replied. But particularly the kind where some helpless person is being persecuted by a stronger person. Like the white against the blacks ... like the rape of a little girl ... like the belittling of a student by a teacher ... or a parent ... the helpless people being taken advantage of by someone in a place of authority."

"I see ..." I was thoughtful ... and my whole being identified with what Harry was saying ... because I felt what he was saying. I despise injustice, too. I've been involved so many times with the kinds of situations he was describing. I see husbands bully wives verbally and sometimes physically ... and I am angered by it. I remember, as a pastor, being called to a home where a man had just beaten up his wife. I literally had to restrain myself ... I was so angry. My verbal punishment must have been of value ... because his whole life began to change and he's now a respected professional man. I could feel what Harry was saying.

"But now" ... Harry went on ... "I'm the victim of this kind of thing myself and I'm unable to do anything about it. My son's involved in a divorce ... and they're taking him over the coals. He's trying to be fair ... but his wife and her lawyer are saying things against him that are not true. But he can't prove that they're not true. And I had to sit there ... and hear this ..." Harry said, "helpless to do anything about it ... when I know that both she and her lawyer are lying ... right there in court, and then the unfair decision ... based on lies. Do you see why I'm so adamant against injustice?"

It was an academic question which didn't require an answer. What is the answer to injustice? No one can avoid it completely. I suppose we who have experience some of it early in life are better able to cope with it later in life ... same as all experiences of life. Somehow ... when I know a person is angered by injustice, that person goes up in my esteem. My father was ... so was Jesus.

Hannon Proclaims Sept. 1-7

Union Label Week In Quincy

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has proclaimed the week of Sept. 1-7 as Union Label Week.

He called upon residents "to observe this special period in honor of organized labor by displaying the union label, shop card, store card, and service button and by patronizing the products and services of union labor which are identified by these time-honored emblems.

Hannon's proclamation was issued in conjunction with the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations and its national Union Label and Service Trades Department, who sponsor and produce Union Label Week.

"The American Labor movement has, throughout its history, attempted to improve working conditions and wage standards that are far superior to those anywhere else in the world," he said.

"Organized Labor's distinctive emblems—the union label, the shop card, the store card, and the service button—are living symbols of highest quality...and a fine example of the American way of life."

Quincy Native Awarded $10,000 Grant For Muscular Dystrophy Research

The Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America announces that Professor John L. Howland of Bowdoin College, a Quincy native, has been awarded a $10,000 grant to support his continuing research into the causes of the crippling disease.

The grant was presented to Dr. Howland, a member of Bowdoin's Department of Biology, by Robert O'Neil, first Vice President of the Maine MDA chapter and its Campaign Chairman.

O'Neil, weather forecaster for WGAN-TV [Ch. 13 in Portland] and the station's public affairs director, will serve as a co-host of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for the fourth consecutive year. It will be seen in the Quincy-Boston area over Ch. 5.

One of the highlights of this year's telethon will be an interview, filmed on the Bowdoin campus, in which Professor Howland will discuss his muscular dystrophy research.

Dr. Howland, whose work has been widely reported in scientific publications on both sides of the Atlantic, has approached muscular dystrophy as a generalized or systemic breakdown in the functioning of the cell membrane, the semipermeable layer surrounding the outer edge of the cell. "Current Science", a weekly publication, said his research opened "a brand-new front" in the fight against the disease.

Dr. Howland is a Phi Beta Kappa and cum laude 1957 graduate of Bowdoin. He studied at Yale University Medical School in 1957-58 and continued his studies at Harvard University, where he was awarded his Ph.D. degree in 1961.

He was a Post-Doctoral Fellow at the University of Amsterdam for the next two years before joining the Bowdoin faculty as an Assistant Professor in 1963. He was named an Associate Professor in 1967 and was promoted to the rank of full Professor in 1971.

Professor Howland is the author of two textbooks, "Introduction to Cell Physiology: Information and Control", published in 1967, and "Cell Physiology", published in 1973. In addition, he is co-author of "A Mathematical Approach to Biology", published in 1972, and has written numerous articles published in professional journals.

Sister Denise Kelley Teacher Course Instructor

Sr. Denise Kelley, C.S.J. of St. John's Church, Quincy, will be one of five instructors at a three-week enrichment course for teachers at St. Agatha Parish Center, Adams St., Milton.

The course, aimed at those who already have basic diocesan teacher training, will help teachers deal with actual classroom situations and the problems faced at particular grade levels.

Sr. Denise Kelley will offer instruction to teachers of Grades 1-3.

The course will be held three successive Thursdays beginning Sept. 4, from 8-10 p.m.

There will be a $5 registration fee. For further information contact Rev. Edward O'Brien, 432 Adams St., Milton, 698-2439.

Dr. Djerf Center Orientation Sept. 9-10

The Dr. Charles Djerf Child Development Center will hold orientation days Tuesday, Sept. 9 and Wednesday Sept. 10 at the Faith Lutheran Center, 65 Roberts St., South Quincy, beginning at 10 a.m.

Tuesday's registration will be for three-year-olds while Wednesday's will be for four-year-olds.

Openings are still available and parents interested in enrolling their child in the Center may do so on either registration day.

Three-year-olds meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9-11:30 a.m. and four-year-olds meet Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9-11:30 a.m.

For further information, contact Miriam Luoma of 51 Garfield St., West Quincy, 472-0380.

Quincy Point Youngsters Hold MDA Carnival

Six Quincy Point youngsters recently pooled their initiative, enthusiasm and the contents of many cellar boxes and trunks to hold a backyard carnival for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Valerie Princiotta of 112 Main St., Alan and Pam Guest of 91 Main St., Cheryl and David Kerr of 110 Main St., and Darlene Bowness of 31

Harrington Ave., raised a total of $11.65 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

The carnival was held at the home of Darlene where many neighbors, friends and relatives gathered to enjoy the day's fun.

The youngsters sold an array of items such as jewelry, toy soldiers, bottles and clocks. Raffle tickets were sold for a puzzle and mystery box.

Games entertained youngsters the day through with water-balloon throwing, wishing well and pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey as the favorites.

The planners of the carnival recently sent their check to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, enclosing a short letter. It read:

"Dear Sir, Three days ago, we decided to have a fair and send the money to you. So today, we set everything up and had many customers. We made $11.65. Inside is the check."

Delahunt On Panel For Biomedical Research

Rep. William D. Delahunt has been invited to participate as a speaker in a symposium entitled "Biomedical Research: A View from the Outside," scheduled for the Bicentennial Meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. It will be held in Boston from Feb. 18 - 24.

Delahunt will appear on a panel with Asst. Dist. Atty. Newman A. Flanagan and Atty. William P. Homans, the prosecutor and defense counsel respectively in the famous Edalin trial recently held in Boston, as well as other distinguished attorneys and medical researchers.

Delahunt, who is chairman of the Legislative Commission on Medical Research, will further the legislature's perception of the status of medical research and the legal and moral implications involved.

Approximately 5,000 scientists, educators and journalists are expected to attend the meeting.

Toland Urges More Community Schools Here

Mrs. Patricia Toland, candidate for School Committee, would like to see more community schools in Quincy.

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Amendolare of 103 Oxenbridge Rd., Wollaston, she said:

"New buildings and swimming pools are not necessary for establishing community schools. Our high schools and junior high schools are well-used for adult education in the evenings. Why shouldn't we use our elementary schools in the same way?

"I would like to see our school buildings used both in the evenings and on week-ends. A variety of craft courses, public service education, and physical education opportunities could be offered. The programs would vary according to the physical facilities of the buildings."

"Each neighborhood would have a convenient location to schedule events of community interest. Many people, especially our numerous senior citizens, would take advantage of opportunities offered so close to home.

"An increase in the number of community schools could also result in another benefit to the taxpayers of Quincy," she continues. "Recent statistics indicate a marked decrease in vandalism occurred when schools were open at night. I think that this could be an interesting way to increase opportunities for all the citizens of Quincy and hopefully decrease the school vandalism problem."

Labor Day Mail Schedule

Officer-in-Charge Richard E. Samuelson announces the following mail schedule for the Labor Day weekend, Aug. 30-31 and Sept. 1:

Saturday, Aug. 30 - Normal Saturday carrier, window, collection and special delivery service will be provided, with the exception of the 5 P.M. Airmail collection which will not operate.

Sunday, Aug. 31 - Collections will be made from boxes in front of stations and branches only at 4 p.m., including the white top airmail box.

Monday, Sept. 1 - Holiday schedule will be in effect. No carrier delivery or window service will be provided. Regular holiday lock box and special delivery service will be in effect. All collection boxes will be picked up starting at 12 Noon. The special white topped airmail boxes will be collected at 5 p.m.

STATE HOUSE TOUR - Rep. Joseph E. Brett (left) recently gave two youths a guided tour of the State House. Their visit brought them to the office of State Secretary Paul Guzzi. 'Must Clamp Lid On Taxes', Says Saphir

"We must clamp a lid on soaring taxes," says Grace Saphir, mayoralty candidate. "The property tax has almost doubled in just 10 years and has tripled since 1952."

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chandler of Belmont St., Wollaston, Mrs. Saphir urged cutting nonsensical expenditures to hold the line on taxes.

A major concern of the people is the failure to enforce the leash law, she said. The unleashed dogs are responsible for dumping trash barrels now complicated by combined trash and rubbish, she said. Most people present, however, agreed that trash and rubbish combined has not been a problem yet.

People seem to be concerned about a rapist in the area.

"Therefore," Mrs. Saphir said, "perhaps a curfew may be a good idea for the protection of the people. There seems to be a lack of surveillance around the MBTA station."

Ruth McDermott Attends Real Estate Seminar

Ruth McDermott, GRI general manager of the Ruth E. McDermott Real Estate Agency in East Milton Sq., recently attended an advanced seminar in Boston on real estate marketing.

Entitled "Managing an Effective Marketing Program", the seminar defined marketing, its goals and components, and assisted real estate professionals in developing and evaluating their own marketing programs.

Mrs. McDermott is a director of the Greater Boston Board of Realtors and is also director of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors. She is currently serving as treasurer of the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the Women's Council of the

RUTH E. McDERMOTT
National Association of Realtors.

Awarded membership in the Multi-Million Dollar Club of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, the McDermott Agency specializes in sales, consulting, appraising and the financing of residential property and land in Quincy, Milton and all surrounding towns.

The seminar Mrs. McDermott attended is one of several leading toward the award of the Certified Residential Broker designation achieved to date by only 600 realtors throughout the nation. The C.R.B. designation was created in 1968.

The seminar was sponsored by the Realtors National Marketing Institute of the National Association of Realtors.

Laurence Henchey Joins Conway Quincy Office

Laurence Henchey, of Melrose, has joined the Quincy office of Jack Conway Realtors, announces L. Paul Galante, manager of the firm's commercial-industrial division. Formerly a commercial specialist with Palmer Russell Company of Brookline, Henchey will concentrate on greater Boston office, retail and industrial space as well as retail projects throughout Conway's South Shore coverage area.

Henchey holds a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College and an MBA from Boston University. He is a member of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and Realtors National Marketing Institute.

Henchey will be working out of the commercial office of Conway located in Quincy Center. Conway presently has 15 offices from Quincy to Hyannis with two more in the development stages.

Christo Appointed Assistant To President At Dickinson

Jeffrey D. Christo has joined the mail marketing firm of Dickinson, 67 Federal Ave., South Quincy, as assistant to the president.

In this new capacity he will work closely with Donald R. Dickinson, especially in the areas of client service and sales development.

Christo also will be responsible for all marketing phases of the Colonial line of calendars and date books, sold primarily through book stores and gift shops. Colonial Publishing is a division of Dickinson and maintains its home office in Quincy.

Christo graduated from Newton Junior College and New England College, Henniker, N.H. He lives in Newton.

Edward Keohane Director Of MFDA

Thomas Sampson, president Massachusetts Funeral Directors Association, announces the election of Edward J. Keohane of the Keohane Funeral Homes of Quincy, as a member of the Board of Directors for the State Funeral Association.

Keohane, 31, and a resident of 163 Clay St., Wollaston, is married to the former Joan Hagan of Quincy. They have three children, Kristin 9, John 7, and Dennis 4.

Born in Quincy, Keohane graduated from Providence College, the New England Institute in Boston and took graduate courses in funeral service at the Nolte Center for continuing education at the University of Minnesota and the National Foundation of Funeral Service in Evanston, Ill.

Keohane joined with his father, Cornelius V. Keohane in 1965 and is now the manager of the family owned firm.

In addition to the MFDA, Keohane is a member of the National Funeral Directors Association, the International Order of the Golden Rule and the National Selected Morticians. He is former chairman of St. Ann's Parish Council, Past Grand Knight of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, secretary on the Board of Managers of Public Burial Places in Quincy, treasurer of the Quincy Rotary Club, director of the Building

Association of the North Quincy K of C, and a member of the Quincy City Club.

Keohane is representing the Norfolk County area for the association and is a member of the Long Range Planning Committee for the MFDA.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Hanabury Backs 10-Story Height Limit

Marilyn Hanabury, candidate for the Ward 5 City Council seat supports the Quincy Citizen's Association petition limiting the height of buildings to 10 stories in certain districts.

Mrs. Hanabury, referring specifically to residential district D, business district C, and industrial districts A and B, says she feels even though it would not be an absolute ruling, it would give the community the right to object should a variance be sought.

She believes "the people affected should have some say as to what is done in their neighborhood. With Planned Unit Development it could mean the sky's the limit with no recourse for the community. Whatever building is planned in a city should be done for the good of all and not just for special interest groups interested mainly in making big money from the project."

Brett Urges Same Precincts For State, City Elections

Rep. Joseph E. Brett urges passage of a bill which would make designation numbers of certain wards and precincts the same in both city and state elections.

Davis Committee Providing Transportation To Register

The Davis for Councillor at-Large Committee announces it will provide free transportation to city hall Saturday, Aug. 30 for Quincy residents who have not registered to vote.

The city is sponsoring an all-day voter registration session from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Davis reminded unregistered voters the previous six month residency requirement has been declared unconstitutional.

Davis, manager of Economic Development for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said many residents are deeply depressed by the actions of government in recent years.

"I have met too many residents who ask 'What difference does it make if I vote or not?' Davis said, 'However, one can remember how close the Kennedy-Nixon race was in 1960 and how a few votes in each precinct may have changed the course of history. The recent U.S. Senate contest offers another example of the significance of the individual's vote in the electoral process."

Unregistered voters wishing transportation to the all-day session may call 773-0155.

Sabina Stenberg Pledges Help To Elderly, Handicapped

Stressing the need for a cost of living increment for the elderly who are receiving Supplementary Security Income and the opportunity for expanded recreational programs, Sabina Stenberg, candidate for councillor at-large, has pledged her support for the elderly and the handicapped.

"The elderly have not had a cost of living increase for over a year while inflation has eroded their income by more than 10 percent," she said. "Many of the elderly are forced to use more of their income for electricity, rent and other basic necessities, thereby diminishing available funds for food and staples."

She told a group of neighbors who met at her home recently that she is a business woman who owns three businesses.

"Running the City of Quincy is a business and I firmly believe that a business person should be a member of the City Council," she said. "In addition, there are more than 4,500 registered women voters than men voters and women should be represented on the City Council which makes decisions affecting all the citizens of Quincy."

She also noted the handicapped are relegated to remaining in nursing homes and institutions because of a lack of recreational activities and said that she would like to improve prevocational, social and personal opportunities for both the elderly and the handicapped.

She reiterated her promise to donate all her salary earned as a councillor to Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc., for she is aware of the need to help the cerebral palsied.

She urged all the women voters to consider her candidacy when they vote in the primary Sept. 23.

Mullaney Sees Double Sessions At NQHS

School Committee candidate J. Thomas Mullaney predicts high school double sessions will be "inevitable" during renovations at North Quincy High School.

At a coffee hour held at the home of William Murphy of 135 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck, Mullaney pledged:

"If elected, I will do anything financially and educationally reasonable to limit the time spent on double sessions."

"I believe double sessions will be at Quincy High School probably starting in 1977. As a parent at North Quincy High during this period, I have a personal interest in seeing that double sessions are well-planned and administered."

Political Advertisement

"Nobody likes double sessions. They hurt the educational process and disrupt extra-curricular activities. The challenge is to minimize the problems created by double sessions and to get on with the business of educating the students."

Morrisette Seeks National Title In South Dakota

By TOM SULLIVAN

The most fantastic year in Morrisette Legion Post's 30-year baseball history is not over yet. Coach Ray Cattaneo and his players today are in Rapid City, South Dakota, to begin its fourth "season" as it seeks the national championship.

The Morrisette group, including a large number of rosters, took off from Logan Airport Tuesday morning for the Legion World Series, being held this year at the same site the first tournament 50 years ago was played.

Morrisette's first "season" saw it winning its 19th Zone 6 championship with a 10-2 playoff win over Weymouth.

"Season" number two found the team winning its first state crown with four straight wins in the state championship round robin in Lynn.

The third "season" ended last Sunday with Morrisette, the host team as well as the state titlist, winning the Northeastern Regional [Region one] title at Adams Field. The locals won the eight-team event with five wins and one loss.

It appeared Morrisette would sweep through both tournaments without a defeat, something few teams have ever done, but it was upset by Oldtown, Me., Monday, forcing another game.

To win the state crown Morrisette defeated East Bridgewater, Lawrence, Dudley-Webster and Lawrence again.

In the regionals it defeated Depew, N.Y.; Milford, N.H.; Cranston, R.I.; Lawrence and Old Town, Me.

In the states the batting carried it through as the pitchers were hit fairly hard but in the regionals it received both top pitching and continued powerful hitting.

Morrisette will face the winners of seven other regional tournaments in South Dakota. The other regionals were the Atlantic in Virginia, the Southeastern in South Carolina, the Mid-South in Mississippi, the Great Lakes in Kentucky, the Central Plains in Iowa, the Pacific Northwest in Wyoming and the Western in Colorado.

Everyone played a key role in the team's success, which saw it win 18 of its last 19 games and take a 32-3 record into the World Series.

But one of the big Morrisette heroes in the post-season tournaments has been a player who saw little action during the regular season. Paul Messina was the starting shortstop and a fine one, but he suffered a freak eye injury which sidelined him after the opening game in the state championships at Lynn.

Cattaneo called upon Dave Perdios to take over and his batting and fielding have been so outstanding that Messina has been unable to get his job back.

"Paul is naturally very disappointed about not playing, but I told him I couldn't very well bench Dave the way he has been going," Cattaneo said. "And Paul has taken it very well. He is a real team player just as every member of the squad is."

Morrisette's success is a source of satisfaction to North Quincy High coach Charlie Bunker, who has seen six of his 1975 players sparking the Legion team.

Representing this spring's Raiders are Morrisette's top battery of pitcher Tim Clifford and catcher Steve McKinnon, second baseman Jack Rabel, outfielder-pitcher John Lawlor and outfielders Frank Miceli and Dennis McGuire.

"These boys are real keys to our success and are outstanding players," Cattaneo said. "Their performances reflect the fine coaching they received from Charlie Bunker."

Four of the Morrisette players were coached at Abp. Williams by Connie Carozzi, Morrisette assistant. They are Messina and Perdios, third baseman Jim Roberts and reserve pitcher Brian Corcoran.

Morrisette began its march toward the regional crown with a 5-0 win over Depew, N.Y., as Clifford pitched a three-hitter for his 16th win. He struck out 13 and walked five.

Perdios had three hits, Joe Glynn a triple and single and Rabel and Mike DePolo two hits each.

Next it was a 17-3 lambasting of Milford, N.H., as Mark Dwyer hurled a four-hitter, struck out six and walked only one.

Perdios blasted two triples and a double to spark a 16-hit attack. McKinnon and Miceli also had three hits and Roberts and Dwyer two apiece.

Morrisette next romped over Cranston, R.I., 9-2, as it received still another route-going performance from Lawlor, who allowed six hits, struck out nine and walked three.

Roberts had three hits and Rabel and Lawlor two apiece.

Clifford returned to handcuff Lawrence, 5-1, to run his season's record to 17-1. He gave up only three hits and struck out 15, while Joe Glynn drove in three runs with three hits.

Oldtown, Me., earlier eliminated Cranston, R.I., 8-2, to set up a Morrisette-Oldtown finale. The game was rained out Sunday and Monday Oldtown surprised Morrisette, 6-4, to force the showdown battle Monday night. The win for Oldtown was its fourth in a row following an opening day loss to Cranston.

It took Morrisette 11 innings to finally out Oldtown, 4-2, and the next morning the squad was on a plane to South Dakota.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

TOO SLOW CAN KILL

Driving too slow can be just as dangerous as driving too fast. Here's an actual case to prove the point.

It's a beautiful Sunday in autumn. You and your spouse decide to drive into the countryside along one of those peaceful two-lane highways that wind through the hills, with maple, sycamore and oak in their showy colors all along the road. The speed limit is 55 but the beauty should be savored, so you're doing about 30. Before you know it, a line of cars is queuing up behind you. They can't pass because of the hills and curves.

Finally a teenager in a souped-up, aging sedan gets impatient, pulls out of line and floors the gas pedal. He just makes it, but only because an auto approaching from around the next bend has to take to the ditch to avoid a head-on collision and rolls over. The injury toll is three dead and two seriously injured. The moral: don't drive too slow for conditions and if you have to sightsee, get OFF THE ROAD and enjoy the scenery.

Memorial Scholarship To Honor William F. Ryan

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board has established a William F. Ryan Scholarship Fund in memory of the late city recreation director who died last week.

The seven-member Board, together with three officials of the Park and Recreation Department, launched the fund with a $100 donation. Donating $10 each were:

Board Chairman Joseph Burke, Board members Theodore DeCristofaro, Miss Katherine McCoy, Gerard Coletta, Joseph Brophy, Joseph Lydon and Harold Davis.

Also contributing to the fund were Commissioner of Natural Resources Richard Koch and Raymond Cattaneo and Charles Alongi, administrative assistants in the Park and Recreation Department.

Matching this $100 contribution, the Recreation Department personnel donated $100 to the fund.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will act as honorary chairman of the William F. Ryan Scholarship Fund Committee while Koch will serve as general chairman. Other officers are DeCristofaro, vice-chairman; Miss McCoy, secretary and Cattaneo, treasurer.

Seven other individuals have been named to the committee and each will be assigned a different area to organize a scholarship drive. They are: Earl Vermillion, Marion Andrews, Lionel Buckley, Joseph Shea, John Gillis, Frank Brillo and Barry Welch.

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board issued its first resolve in a salute to the late Mr. Ryan. Copies of the resolve will be sent to Mrs. Barbara Ryan, wife of the late recreation director, Mayor Hannon, City Council President Arthur H. Tobin and members of the City Council. The resolve will become a permanent record of the Board minutes.

The resolve cites Mr. Ryan's long and fervent involvement with the city of Quincy and praises his work within the Recreation Department over the past 20 years.

Koch noted a sub-committee will be formed at a later date to establish criteria for the scholarship awards.

He said contributions to the William F. Ryan Scholarship Fund can be made at the North Quincy branch of the Hancock Bank, 415 Hancock St.

Anyone wishing to become a member of the Scholarship Committee to help organize a fund-raising drive can contact Koch or any member of the Committee.

Hobomock Chiefs Tryouts Scheduled

Quincy players are invited to try out for the Hobomock Chiefs Youth Hockey Association teams at Hobomock Arena in Pembroke Saturday and Sunday. Players from many South Shore towns also are eligible for the teams.

A nominal fee will be charged and boys should be at the rink 45 minutes ahead of the times listed below.

Squirts will try out at 1 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. Pee Wees will report at 2:15 Saturday and 4:15 Sunday. Bantams at 3:30 Saturday and 5:30 Sunday and Midgets at 4:45 Saturday and 6:45 Sunday.

St. John's Cadets Eliminated

St. John's CYO Cadet baseball team represented the Quincy-South Shore Vicariate for the second straight year and the third time in four years in the state championship playoffs played recently in Dorchester and Brighton.

St. John's won the opener, 4-3, in the best of three final series against St. Mark's of Dorchester.

Jim Mullarkey was the winning pitcher and Jeff Marcel and Paul Bandera were the outstanding hitters.

St. John's lost the second game, 4-2, and then was eliminated, 5-4, on a squeeze suicide bunt which broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning.

The series was marked by fine pitching by both teams, excellent fielding and timely hitting. League officials, umpires, coaches and the large crowds which attended the games applauded the fine display of good sportsmanship of both teams.

Rock Island Cove Club Plans Field Day Monday

The Rock Island Cove Club will sponsor a Labor Day Field Day Monday, Sept. 1 at 52 Allerton St.

The day's events will begin at 9 a.m. with a Horribles Parade at the top of Rockland St. Following the parade, there will be races for children and games for adults. Prizes will be awarded.

Raffle tickets will also be sold and pony rides will be offered.

Members of the committee planning the event are Harry Crispo, general chairman, Mrs. Harry Crispo, Mr. and Mrs. John Urbanus, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Urbanus, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. James

The teenage club will have its own booths with Pat Cummings as chairman. Committee members are John Urbanus Jr., Karen Keeley, Sandy O'Connor, Karen Arsenault, Michelle Garcia, Scott and Mike Bjork, Peter and Joseph Chernicki and Seve Doyle.

Track Club Shines In Boys', Girls', Men's Division

The Quincy Track Club hosted the New England States championships last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Quincy dominated the boys' division, did well in the girls' division and Men's division: but didn't fare as well in the women's events.

In the boys' division Quincy swept three events and Dan Flannery, 13-year old Central Junior High student, was the outstanding athlete in the division as he won the 100, long jump, 100-meter hurdles, and shot put and anchored the winning relay team.

Quincy's scores: Boys' Division: Flannery, first in 100, long jump, 100-meter hurdles and shot put; Todd Veale, first in 880, second in long jump; Joe Irvine, second in 100, third in 100; Shawn Burns, third in 440, second in 100-meter hurdles and third in shot; Bill Bourikas, second in high jump; Mark McGillicuddy, third in 100-meter hurdles; Tom McHugh, second in shot put; Rich McCarthy, third in long jump; Jake McCarthy, third in high jump; "A" relay team first and "B" team third in relay. Quincy scored 51 points to 11 for Old Rochester.

Girls' Division: Gail Clougherty, first in 100-meter hurdles; Loretta Carrigan, first in high jump; Jean Cramond, first in shot put; Marie Voelkel, second in shot put, third in long jump; Carolyn Buhler, second in high jump; Joanne O'Leary, third in hurdles; Jean Vella, third in high jump; Patrice McDermott, third in shot put; "A" team first and "B" team third in relay. Quincy scored 29 points to finish second to Old Rochester's 30.

Men's Division: Jeff Hennessy, second in hurdles and long jump; Roger Conboy, second in discus and third in javelin and shot put; Tom Bowen, third in long jump; Mark Canavan, third in high jump. Quincy was second in scoring.

Women's Division: Paula Constan, second in 440; Debbie Brennan, third in 440; Dottie Irvine, third in mile. Quincy was fifth in scoring.

Janice Kelly Wins 4 Events In Track Club City Title Meet

Janice Kelly was the outstanding performer last week as the Quincy Track Club held its second annual city championship meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium to wind up the club's second year. More than 230 competed.

Janice won four events and broke two records and was presented the MVP award for senior girls. She set records in the senior girls 100 with an 11.5 timing and the 220 with a 27.8 clocking. She also won the long jump at 14-1 and was a member of the winning relay team along with Kathy O'Brien, Rory Nolan and Joanne Troy.

The other MVP winners were Joe Dudek, elementary boys; Loretta Garrigan, elementary girls; Dan McIntyre, junior boys; Patty Irvine, junior girls, and Bart Petracca, senior boys.

Sixteen records were broken including two each by Joanne Troy, Florence Lorenzano and Tim O'Neill.

The winners:
100-yard dash - Shawn Burnes, elementary boys, 13.3; McIntyre, junior boys, 11.9; Jenny Seamans, junior girls, 13.1 and Harry Williams, senior boys, 10.8; Kelly, senior girls.

220 - Williams, senior boys, 24.7; Kelly, senior girls.
440 - Burnes, elementary boys, 67.0 [new record]; Lorenzano, elementary girls, 70.0 [new record]; McIntyre, junior boys, 59.8; Mark Canavan, senior boys, 56.0 and Paula Conostas, senior girls, 69.0.
Mile - Canavan, senior boys,

4:41.5; Dottie Irvine, senior girls, 6:11.5 [new record]; Charlie Cahill, open mile, 6:18.

Low hurdles - Mark McGillicuddy, 10.0 [tied record]; Joanne O'Leary, elementary girls, 11.1; O'Neill, junior boys, 8.4 [new record]. Sue Callahan, junior girls, 9.7; Ed Colletta, senior boys, 7.2 [new record], and Joanne Troy, senior girls, 9.4 [new record].

Long jump - Rich McCarthy, elementary boys, 13-9 [new record]; Lorenzano, elementary girls, 13-5 3/4 [new record]; Dan Flannery, junior boys, 15-8; Marie Voelkel, junior girls, 14-4, and Neil McPartlin, senior boys, 20-6, Kelly, senior girls.

High jump - Rich and John. McCarthy, elementary boys, tied at 4-2; Garrigan, elementary girls, 4-2 [tied record]; O'Neill, junior boys, 5-4 [new record], and Canavan, senior boys, 5-11.

Shot put - Tom McHugh, elementary boys, 28-5 [new record]; Suzanne Clark, elementary girls, 25-4 [new record]; Joe McCormick, junior boys, 35-6, and Troy, senior girls, 27-1 [new record].

Discus - Brian Marsters, elementary boys, 65-7 1/2; Ginny McIntyre, elementary girls, 51-6 1/2; Ted Koberski, junior boys, 113-11; Phil Robertson, senior boys, 121-5 1/2, and Marianne Sylvester, senior girls, 76-8 1/2.

Javelin - Steve Burns, elementary boys, 73-10 [new record]; Koberski, junior boys, 98-9, and Jeff Hennessy, senior boys, 133-5.

Pole vault - Steve Doherty, senior boys, 11 feet [tied record].

Relays - Elementary boys, Burnes, Andy Levitsky, Mike Cullen and Tony Quintiliani; elementary girls, Clarke, Lisa Nolan, O'Leary and Garrigan; junior girls, Voelkel, Patty Stanziani, Sue Callahan and Rosanne Eleuteri.

There were many who helped make the QTC season another big success. Frank Kelly and Lou Tozzi conducted the weekly meets with the help of Paul and Brian Doherty, Bill Popsie, Maryann Sylvester, Mark Canavan, Kelly Tobin and Jeff Hennessy. Hennessy took care of publicity and also held special Friday night practices with individual instruction for the elementary boys and girls.

The club officials also offer their thanks to parents, Mrs. O'Brien for handing out medals and ribbons at all meets, Messrs. Levitsky, Whitman and Garrigan who acted as timers, Mr. Clarke, the official scorer, and Mr. Popsie, who handled the discus and javelin events at the soccer field. Also Mr. and Mrs. Seltzer, who provided transportation for meets at White Stadium, Boston.

On Channel 5

Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Sunday, Monday

The Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon will be broadcast for the first time over WCVB-TV Channel 5 beginning Sunday at 8:30 p.m. and ending at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

The annual supershow of comedy, music and dance benefits the research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association [MDA].

While the national broadcast with Jerry Lewis will be seen from Del Webb's Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas, Channel 5 will broadcast from New England Life Hall, Boylston St., Boston, with remote segments from Paragon Park, Nantasket Beach.

Channel 5 will cut away from the network show for ten minutes every hour to introduce leading citizens, physicians and dignitaries and to report on MDA activities in Greater Boston.

The telethon, beamed to over 190 stations in continental U.S., including Alaska, will feature such celebrities as Sammy Davis Jr., David Hartman, Wayne Newton, Carol Lawrence, Don Ho and Chad Everett.

Co-hosts of local segments will be "Good Morning" stars

John Willis and Janet Langhart. Supporting their effort will be radio personalities from WMEX in Boston.

Last year's telethon raised over $16.1 million for the fight against muscular dystrophy and Jerry Lewis is predicting an even greater response this year.

Quincy Delegation Backs 'Irretrievable Breakdown' For Divorce

By RON IACOBUCCI

STATE HOUSE - The House last week approved 171-52 a bill to add irretrievable breakdown of a marriage as a ground for divorce.

The process to initiate action on the ground of an irretrievable breakdown is the filing of [A] a complaint; [B] a notarized statement signed by both parties that they agree to a divorce on such ground; and [C] a notarized dissolution agreement executed by the parties.

Rep. William Delahunt said, "The bill will make divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown more difficult because of the waiting period that follows. This will give lawyers more time to work out an acceptable agreement and possibly a chance to patch up the marriage." The entire Quincy legislative delegation Reps. Joseph Brett, Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and Delahunt voted in favor of the bill.

B.U. Heart Attack Screening Sept. 2

Boston University Medical Center will conduct a heart attack screening for Quincy men aged 35 through 57 beginning Tuesday, Sept. 2 at Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

This prevention screening program, will continue Monday, Tuesday and Thursday until Sept. 30.

Conducted under contract with the National Heart and Lung Institute and in cooperation with Southeast Massachusetts Chapter of American Heart Association, this free program represents a nationwide attempt to prove heart attacks can be prevented by cutting back or eliminating three major risk factors: heavy smoking, high blood pressure and high blood cholesterol.

To date, the program has screened some 12,000 men in this area to locate 700 "high risk" cases which will be the subject of a six-year study.

The National Heart and Lung Institute wants to determine if heart attacks can be curbed by intensive intervention into the lifestyle and physical condition of men having triple-risk profiles.

Participants in the screening will be informed within three weeks of their eligibility to continue with further testing. For those eligible, the second screening will take place at the Westgate Mall and will be far more comprehensive than the preliminary screening.

57 Youngsters In Circus Acts At A.S. Library

The exhibition hall at the Adams Shore branch of the Thomas Crane Library was turned into a circus ring for two performances recently.

Twenty-six children of the area plus 31-story hour children took part in the program which consisted of 16 various acts. At the opening all the children wore clown costumes and special makeup applied by artists Nancy Gott and Carolyn Doane.

A skit entitled "Robots, Robots, Robots" was performed with the children dressed in aluminum costumes. Janet Dennis and Cheryl Carmody played the leading characters. Also, in the skit were Lisa Hagerty, housekeeper, Natalie Nigro and Christine Donovan as the entertainers. John Sullivan and Stephen Antonetti were the baseball players, Ann Marie Shea, Fix-it, Chipper Griffin, Medical and Ray Welliver the VIP robot.

Another skit was performed entitled "A Wandering". Marty Griffin and Robby Roche were sitting by a railroad station waiting for the morning train. Not knowing where they were headed for, they had a wish that wherever they arrived they would become tycoons and their lifestyle would change.

Additional acts were jumping ropes, a little tiger, Kazoo band, dancing hands, a robber, Nellie the horse, strong man, little dancing man and special clowns who were Robert Fanning, Dennis Hines staff members and two friends Chuck Uhlar, Leo Bottary. William Bloomer staff member acted as the master of ceremonies.

The program was directed by Blanche Eckert, Children's librarian.

Performers were: Brian and Stephen Antonetti, Corinne and Kerry Bonadrick, Cheryl, Kathy, and Michelle Carmody, Janet Dennis, Christine Donovan, Chipper and Lori Griffin, Marty Griffin, Lisa Hagerty, Michelle Holbrook, Brett Loud, Natalie Nigro, Matthew O'Brien, Liz Morrison, Debbie Peach, Terri Roche, Robert Roche, AnnMarie Shea, John Sullivan, Sandy Walter, Sandy Walsh, Ray Welliver, Lisa Mulaney.

Story Hour Clowns: Lynn Beven, Susan Blowers, Laurie Joyce, Christopher LaForest, Elise Last, Hank Miller, Maureen McIntyre, Suzanne Rich, Andrea

McCauley Calls For Probe Of Anselmo Vo-Tech Charges

School Committeeman Francis X. McCauley has requested an investigation of recent charges made by a colleague that storage of maintenance equipment has caused a dangerous settlement of the basement floor at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

McCauley suggested School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon request an inspection of the area by Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald.

Making a recent tour of the area in question, McCauley said Dr. Creedon pointed out the settlement to him but indicated it was not a serious problem.

School Committeeman Frank Anselmo charged the basement floor is sinking and cracking.

Dr. Creedon has suggested alternate uses of the basement area, saying the maintenance department has outgrown its present quarters. He has proposed the department move to a location behind the Myles Standish School, thus freeing the basement for alternate uses.

Disputing Anselmo's charge the area is a "tonnage junkyard," McCauley said:

"I found the equipment was properly stored with ample access and egress to the storage and maintenance areas."

McCauley also labelled as "unwarranted" Anselmo's charge that Supt. of Maintenance John Brown showed "a lack of judgement" in using the area for storing heavy equipment. McCauley said:

"Mr. Brown has long favored the moving of the maintenance department site. I feel Mr. Brown's criticism of Mr. Brown is unwarranted."

McCauley also requested the School Committee receive a report on the findings of Inspector MacDonald.

Hannon Seeks Amendment To Allow Flood Plain Variance

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will submit a proposed amendment to the City Council that would allow the Board of Appeals to grant a variance for new structures within a Flood Plain district below the 100-year flood elevation.

The amendment, prepared as a result of public meetings organized by Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, and Ward 1

Councillor Leo J. Kelly, would permit new structures to be erected on lots of one-half acre or less surrounded by lots with existing structures constructed below the 100-year elevation.

The amendment would also allow structures listed on the National Register of Historic Places or on the State Inventory of Historic Places to be restored or reconstructed.

Hannon said the amendment would eliminate the possibility of new structures which are to be built in a flood plain area being four to five feet above the elevation of the existing neighborhood.

"This amendment does not alter the city's stand on restricting development in serious flood-prone areas, but it does allow home construction in neighborhoods without imposing serious restrictions and hardships on the owner and the abutters," said Hannon.

Both Kelly and Sheets noted that in several cases real hardships had been created for families that wished to construct a home but found that they would have to build foundations several feet higher than their neighbors because of the federal law.

Petitions Seek West Quincy Improvements

Residents of the St. Moritz area in West Quincy have signed a petition asking the Metropolitan District Commission [MDC] to begin as quickly as possible improvements on Bunker Hill Lane, the Curry Ballfield and adjacent areas, and the St. Moritz Pond.

According to Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, the petitions were circulated by Robert Meenan, President of the St. Moritz Association and several other residents in the immediate area.

Sheets said MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker seemed willing to move ahead on some of these projects but wanted the consent of area residents in the form of a petition.

The petition will now be forwarded through the office of Senator Arthur Tobin to Snedeker.

Sheets said he hopes each individual project will then be given a scheduled deadline for completion.

Robberies, Shoplifting Auto Thefts Up

Hannon Launches Crackdown On Rising Crime

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Faced with grim statistics on crime escalation in Quincy, Mayor Walter J. Hannon has recommended a series of positive programs aimed at reducing robbery, larceny and auto thefts in the city.

Outlining the proposals at a Tuesday news conference held in his office, Hannon proposed:

- Close all-night convenience food stores at 12 midnight to curb robberies.

- Coordinate and implement a security program - a type of Neighborhood Watch for businesses - with Quincy's merchant organizations to make stores as safe as possible from shoplifters and vandalism.

- Continue the Police Department's bicycle engraving program to deter thefts.

- Re-vamp parking procedures at MBTA lots to cut the number of auto thefts.

- Comb MBTA parking lots for unlocked vehicles and leave a police-initiated card on all cars found unlocked.

- Institute a constant patrol of General Dynamics parking lots by plant personnel to watch for potential car thieves.

Complementing this newly-announced crackdown on crime, Hannon signed Tuesday a $40,000 federal grant application aimed at preventing juvenile delinquency through counseling programs, thus diverting youth from involvement with the courts.

The grant request has been submitted to the state's Committee on Criminal Justice for approval. Funding for the program would be authorized through the Law Enforcement Assistant Act. If approved, the program would begin Jan. 1, 1976.

Rooftop Signs Going, Plants Coming

Downtown Beautification Underway

The city's downtown beautification program began this week with the removal of rooftop sign bracings, and the installation of 20 redwood planters and 97 trees and shrubs.

According to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, the program, announced earlier this year, will be completed in the next 60 days.

"The Office of Downtown Development has been working with merchants and property owners for the removal of the unsightly sign brace skeletons on top of buildings," Hannon said. "I congratulate the owners who have cooperated with the city by paying for the removal of the braces from their buildings."

Workmen from Sign Erectors of Braintree removed braces Tuesday from buildings owned by Boylston Properties [Child World], Norman Pitnoff [Nationwide Furniture and Olde Colony Stereo], Clarence Sherman [Community Opticians], and Harold Slate [South Shore Television and Bernie's Modern Formal Shop].

The removal was supervised by Joseph Kelley of Sign Erectors, and coordinated by Arthur Keefe, Quincy's downtown rehabilitation specialist, and David Leitch, President of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Mayor Hannon also approved a contract for the purchase of 20 redwood planters. The 36-inch round planters will be installed on Hancock St., in the downtown area. The low bidder for the planters was Rosenwack Tank Company, Inc., of Brooklyn, N.Y. The planters are expected to be installed by Oct. 1, at a cost of $3,816.

Keefe is now working with the city's Forestry Department on specifications for 97 trees and shrubs for downtown, including several 22 foot live Christmas trees. These are expected to be planted by November.

Funds for the downtown beautification are coming from the city's Community Development Block Grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, according to Geoffrey A. Davidson, Director of the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

The Beautification Committee appointed by Mayor Hannon to develop plans for the downtown area consists of Natural Resources Commissioner Richard Koch, Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, Jack Kerrigan and David Leitch of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and Nancy Cynamon of the city's Planning Department, and Keefe.

3 - Alarm Downtown Fire

Mutual Building Stores Open For Business Despite Blaze

Stores in the Mutual Building block opened for business Tuesday despite a three-alarm weekend fire which gutted the Kincaide warehouse at the rear of 1609 Hancock St.

The fire - which broke out at 1:07 p.m. Sunday - is now under investigation by the State Fire Marshal's Office and the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau.

Capt. Francis Daly of the Fire Prevention Bureau said building inspector Allan MacDonald and the State police will investigate the fire scene. With an inventory of merchandise loss still underway, no estimate of damage could be made.

The building is owned by Eamy Realty of Brookline.

Unofficial estimates placed the damage as possibly as high as $500,000.

Deputy Chief Thomas F. Maguire, acting fire chief when the blaze broke out Sunday, described overall damage as "extensive" but confined to three floors of the warehouse.

Sumner Cohen, manager of Kincaide's Furniture, told The Quincy Sun:

"Fortunately, the store was not hurt by the fire so we can operate at full blast."

Ted Johnson, manager of Granje City Hardware which abuts Kincaide's, said 18 inches of water flooded his basement storage area while firefighters battled the blaze. Although he could not estimate the extent of merchandise loss, Johnson said cement, fertilizer, lawnmowers, paper goods and paint numbered among the goods damaged. Electricity in the store was out during part of Tuesday.

Firefighters pumped out the store basement, Johnson said, after the warehouse fire was extinguished at around 4 p.m.

Preservation Package Readied For Presidents Adams Birthplaces

Quincy Heritage Executive Director John R. Graham will present to the mayor and city council within 15 days a total preservation package to correct "major deficiencies" at the Presidents Adams Birthplaces.

Graham said he will ask for approximately $15,000 to correct deficiencies in three areas at each of the houses.

Requiring immediate attention he said are:

- Installation of a comprehensive fire alarm system, approved by Underwriters Laboratories, and connected to the Central fire Station.

- An electrical heating system and wiring for both houses to prevent freeze thaw cycles, thus preserving the houses more easily.

- Repair of structural deficiencies which are causing settling and cracking of walls within the building framework.

"In light of the need to preserve and protect these historic assets," Graham said, "it seems particularly important that these projects be undertaken as soon as possible."

The proposed improvements and repairs to the houses are based on a recently completed survey of the sites by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, and upon the recommendations of city officials and Quincy Historical Society representatives who have been meeting with Quincy Heritage.

Attending those meetings were:

H. Hobart Holly, President, and Joyce Baker, House Chairman, of the Quincy Historical Society; Assistant Wiring Inspector Thomas Purpura; Jack Savits, Engineering Consultant for the Quincy Public Schools; Superintendent Jack Smock and Robert Campbell of the Fire Alarm Division of the Quincy Fire Department; Gordon MacPhee, Information Officer for Quincy Heritage, and Graham.

"Initially, the committee met to review inadequacies in the fire alarm system at the birthplaces," Graham said. "We were prepared to ask the city council for an estimated $9,800 to put in a fire alarm system."

However, following an inspection of the houses by the assistant wiring inspector, it was learned that new and improved wiring would also be needed.

"At this point it was the recommendation of the committee that necessary repairs and improvements be presented as a total package in order to save money by having the work done all at once," Graham said.

Graham said he hopes to present the proposal to the city council's Historical Places Committee, and its chairman, Warren Powers by mid September, after review by Mayor Hannon.

"If council approval is received, then work on the houses should begin by the middle of October," he said.

Graham pointed out that in addition to improvements in the areas already mentioned, work should begin shortly on placing new roofs on both houses. The roofing comes as a result of $4,000 worth of material donated to the city by Certain-Ted Products Corp. of Pennsylvania.

"A $4,200 matching bicentennial grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission will also be used toward work at the birthplaces in order to keep costs to the city at a minimum," Graham said.

A year ago Quincy Heritage hired the Society - for the Preservation of New England Antiquities to perform a structural survey of the houses.

"We have asked Jack Savits, who acts as an engineering consultant for the school system and the city, to review the report and make cost estimates on structural repairs," Graham said. "These repairs will be included in the proposal to the city council," he added.

Bicentennial Commemorative Wedgwood Plate Now Available

The first of two commemorative Wedgwood plates from England is now available in a limited edition of 1,200 at the Quincy Heritage Visitors Center in the Quincy Center MBTA Station.

The plates, entitled "City of Presidents", were commissioned by Quincy Heritage to commemorate the 200th birthday of the nation. Each plate is individually numbered up to 1,200 and bears the designs of the Adams' birthplaces, the Adams Mansion, and the Josiah Quincy House, printed in blue on white.

Plate numbers 1 through 100 will be sold at $25 each while numbers 101 through 1,200 will be $17.75 each.

The second plate, entitled "City of Patriots", is due to arrive from Wedgwood in England at the beginning of October. It was commissioned by Quincy Heritage to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the founding of Mt. Wollaston. Each of these plates will also be individually numbered up to 1,200. They will bear the designs of the Dorothy Quincy House, the Adams Academy [now the museum-home of the Quincy Historical Society], the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy City Hall, John and Dorothy Quincy Hancock, printed in pink on white.

Prices will be the same as for the first plate. All monies received help support the city's programs in commemoration of the city's 350th anniversary and the nation's bicentennial, according to Quincy Heritage.

Renovations Completed, S-4 Ward Reopens At Hospital

By DEIRDRE SULLIVAN

Mayor Walter J. Hannon officiated at recent ribbon-cutting ceremonies for the re-opening of the S4 ward of Quincy City Hospital.

Closed down June 3 for complete renovations, the ward re-opened in record time with George Tull, Chairman of the Board of Managers, Harlan Paine, Director, Richard Newcomb, Assistant Director, and Mrs. Martha Zenopoulos, Director of Nursing, attending the opening ceremonies.

The ward has been completely repainted, air-conditioning installed, bathrooms redone, patient and nurses rooms remodeled, and the furniture refinished. All the renovation work, except the installation of air-conditioning, was done by hospital personnel.

Cost of air conditioning was paid for through the $1,500,000 capital bond issue recently appropriated the hospital. It was the first instance of any spending of the bond issue. The cost of refinishing all the furniture in the ward as well as that in the rest of the wing was absorbed by the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital.

A new exchange cart system will also be initiated in the renovated ward. On an experimental basis, carts stocked with medical-surgical supplies, will be sent up to the floors daily and exchanged nightly.

This replaces the old system under which all the supplies were kept in the ward permanently. Richard Newcomb, Assistant Director, estimated that the new cart system, if successful, could save the hospital $40,000 annually.

The Quincy Art Association will sponsor monthly exhibits in the ward, featuring local artists. The paintings will be displayed throughout the ward and changed monthly.

The renovation of the ward and initiation of the new systems is one of the early steps in the hospital Long Range Planning Program which has had the special attention of Mayor Hannon.

Tied With Forget-Me-Nots

QCA Files 5,439-Name Petition For 10-Story Height Limit

The Quincy Citizens Association (QCA) Tuesday filed its 10-story height limit initiative petition, symbolically tying it with a ribbon and a bouquet of forget-me-nots.

In a prepared statement delivered in City Council Chambers, QCA President Pasquale DiStefano urged the City Council to enact the height limit into law immediately.

A total of 5,439 Quincy voters signed the petition, representing 12 per cent of the city's registered voters.

City Clerk John Gillis said the signatures will be verified by Monday.

If the City Council does not enact the measure into law, the question will be placed on the ballot.

Referring to the forget-me-nots-designated as the city's official bicentennial flower - DiStefano said:

"Let this small symbolic token serve as a reminder that although the Council has seemingly forgotten our request of nearly five years and has apparently forgotten to act on the public hearing of a year and one-half ago and has forgotten our request they place the question of a referendum and has also forgotten to answer our many communications on this matter that the QCA has not ever forgotten this important matter. In the final analysis we have gone to the people who have spoken loud and clear."

DiStefano said less than one per cent of those queried refused to sign the petition. He added, "Most who signed felt 10 stories was too high."

Alluding to a "special interest" group which has begun its "familiar chant" opposing the petition, DiStefano said the QCA respected the rights and viewpoint of the group but added:

"Let us all now examine the overwhelming voice of the people and allow our great democratic process to take its course."

Women's Political Caucus

To Open Membership Drive Sept. 8

The South Shore Women's Political Caucus will hold its first fall meeting Monday, Sept. 8 at the Hollow Restaurant at 8 p.m.

Program for the evening will be "Women and Political Consciousness Raising."

The meeting will mark the beginning of a membership drive for the 1975-76 year.

A social hour will follow the meeting. Mrs. Joyce Baker, recently elected acting chairwoman of the Caucus Steering Committee, will explain the structure and goals of the multi-partisan Caucus.

Recently elected acting treasurer of the Steering Committee was Mrs. Carol Leman of 18 Whitman Rd, West Quincy.

All interested women are encouraged to attend Monday's program.

Free Flu Clinic For

Quincy Residents Sept. 20

A free flu clinic for Quincy residents only will be conducted Saturday, Sept. 20 at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy.

Adults and children over 14 may be immunized from 1-4 p.m.

Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney strongly urged immunization for people suffering from chronic conditions such as emphysema, asthma and bronchial or heart disease. He also recommended immunization for everyone. He noted:

"This will be the only clinic and every effort should be made to attend."

WHO

FIGHTS TO KEEP OUR TAXES DOWN?

HANNON...

Countless senior citizens are expressing their support for Mayor Hannon. James V. Gardner, 37 Lorton St. says, "Thanks to Mayor Hannon, I still own and live in my home. Living on a fixed income at my age hasn't been easy, but without Mayor Hannon's help, it would have been much harder."

He has kept our tax rate down as much as possible for the past four years and through his efforts I was given assistance in filing a property tax exemption which has helped many people over 70 years of age. Walter J. Hannon has been good for all of us who are senior citizens. Please join me in re-electing him our Mayor. That's the good word for Mayor Hannon from James V. Gardner of Quincy.

You Can Believe Him!

POINT BLANK Families find fun at home

By JOHN C. MOON
Copley News Service
Dear John:
My wife and I like to go out. However, the price for food and drink in restaurants is outrageous.

And the cost of gasoline has gone up and up.

What is a family to do?

Priced Out of Going Out

Dear Priced:

Join the crowd. Stay at home.

Life at home has more meaning nowadays for more people.

A recent survey taken by a leading home and garden magazine shows:

— 90 per cent of the people are spending more time at home.

— 48 per cent are doing more entertaining at home.

— 48 per cent are learning crafts at home — sewing, woodwork, furniture repair, plumbing, tending house plants.

— 52 per cent of the homes now are supported by two incomes, meaning that, in addition to the breadwinner working, so is a wife, son, daughter, grandfather or someone else in the family.

The days of eating out, bar hopping and water spidering about in an automobile are just about over for a lot of Americans. So seek a full, joyful home life, instead of the hollow happiness of the merry-go-round of life outside.

Dear John:

Several times you have advised those writing you to attend church to meet a better class of people.

I don't mind going to church, but I get tired of being asked to work for the church.

I often think churches were designed to work hell out of people before they went to hell.

No Churchgoer

Dear No Churchgoer:

You are right about the ministers and churches working the very devil out of a person.

However, I saw a sign at a church, which read:

"Work for the Lord. The pay isn't much, but the retirement plan is out of this world."

MINIBIKE INJURY EPIDEMIC

The main danger with minibikes is that they are usually operated by "minipeople". This lack of driving experience can lead to all sorts of personal injury. According to a research study recently conducted at the DuPont Institute in Delaware, at least 10,000 accidents involving child or adolescent operators of minibikes occurred last summer. At least 1,000 of the youngsters involved will be handicapped for life.

"So many children have been injured in motorized minibike accidents that the problem has reached epidemic proportions", state the study researchers. Control of this epidemic can only come about through public education. People must be made aware of the fact that the operation of off-highway vehicles, in many cases, can have tragic results. Parents must make sure that their children are properly trained before presenting them with minibikes. Also, laws for regulating off-highway vehicles should be enacted in all of the states - not just some of the states.

Today's Women

Luncheon Punch!—Kangaroo Sandwiches

Excitement! Change! The first crisp breezes of Autumn touch the rocky New England coast reminding us it's time to get back to work and back to school. And, once again, it's "What to pack for lunch?" time. The answer is a crisp, fresh one — kangaroo sandwiches, of course! Three tried and true favorites all dressed up in a new package — syrian style pouches.

Chicken Spread

- 2 cups diced chicken
- 2 tablespoons Pimiento
- 1/4 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Salt and pepper to taste

Tuna Spread

- 2 cups flaked tuna
- 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle
- 2 teaspoons sweet pickle juice
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Salt and pepper to taste

"NEW ENGLAND CORNER" HINT

Include a few chips of pickles and potato chips in each lunch. They are great tucked into sandwiches at the last minute. Extra crunch! Extra goodness!

Egg Salad

- 1 1/2 cups cooked chopped egg
- 2 tablespoons crumbled bacon
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon soured cream (optional)

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Salt and pepper to taste

For each recipe, simply combine ingredients thoroughly and in order. Give your favorite lunch-box people their favorite fillings for this idea for lunch with a happy punch.

New Lockerroom Exercise Room For Women At YMCA

A new remodeled lockerroom and exercise room, exclusively for adult women members will open this fall at the Quincy YMCA.

The facility includes air conditioning, wall to wall carpeting and Sauna. Exercise equipment includes duplex twister, leg press, wall pulleys, rowing machine, incline abdominal board, exercise bike and vibrating belts.

The facility will be available to members Monday through Saturday, from 9 a.m. - 10 p.m. In addition, there will be a special Sunday availability for women members. This will include the gym, pool, exercise area and locker room facilities, to be available from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, beginning Sunday, Sept. 27 and running through April 18. There will be a minimal fee for Sunday usage.

Also to be offered this fall are a new Physical Fitness Program for Women, in addition to the regular gym, slymnastics, Aerobic Dance, Swim Lesson, Recreation Swim and Special Interest Programs.

For further information, the professional staff will be available to show facilities and discuss program the week of Sept. 8. Those interested may also call the Quincy Y at 479-8500.

A Calendar Towel For Christmas

By BETTY W. KINSER
Here's something to be thinking about during those long weeks before Christmas ... a special gift idea: "Buy a calendar towel and sew sequins on the birthdates and anniversaries. I have six children, so I used six colors, one for each family." — (from Tina Arnold)

There you are. A thoughtful, yet inexpensive gift. Thank you, Tina.

Dear Betty:

To sew on a collar, have you tried this: Sew one side at the notch, then start sewing on the other side. It is so easy to work in the fullness evenly.

— Marilyn DeWitt
Certainly sounds worth a try, Marilyn. Thank you.

Angie stays slim on beer and popcorn

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Angie Dickinson, the shapely star of "Police Woman," stays slim on a diet including — of all things! — popcorn and beer. "I just happen to be nuts about popcorn and beer, particularly at the end of a long work day," Angie confesses. "Actually, though, I don't recommend popcorn and beer to anyone trying to lose weight. If you're serious about slimming down, the only thing you can do is push yourself away from the table. "Weight is determined only by what you put in your mouth and digest. "I watch myself carefully and make sure I get all the vitamins and nutrients I need. What I do and how I do it might not work for everyone.

"The only thing I'm sure of is this: if you want to lose weight, you have to curtail your eating. "But maybe just a little beer and popcorn will help see you through the day."

Tatum O'Neal whose father, Ryan, announced her retirement after "Paper Moon," proclaiming she wouldn't work again until she was at least 16, is making another movie at the age of 11, "The Bad News Bears" for Paramount.

Co-starring with Oscar-winner Tatum is another Oscar-winner, Walter Matthau.

Tatum who's playing a hot-shot baseball pitcher with a dynamite curve ball is being coached for the part by old dad.

U-Mass Boston Buses For Quincy Students Rejected

MBTA Chairman Robert Kiley has denied a request to provide special MBTA bus service from Quincy to Columbia Point for South Shore students travelling to the University of Massachusetts campus.

During a meeting with Kiley last month, Mayor Walter J. Hannon said a survey conducted by his office showed 165 students would use such bus service. Thirteen respondents indicated they would not use the bus service if offered, Hannon said.

Kenneth Campbell, MBTA director of public information, said implementation of MBTA bus service to Columbia Point would be "a money-loser" generating only 20 per cent of the projected cost of the service.

He said, too, the MBTA Red Line provides sufficient transportation service to students travelling to the Columbia Point campus. He said a chartered shuttle bus leaves Columbia Station on the Red Line and carries students to the Columbia Point campus.

"There is transportation available," said Campbell. "To set up a parallel and competing system would be a money loser, would bring up Quincy's local service and be reflected in Quincy's tax bill...There is a balance, a delicate balance, between the needs of transportation service and the limit which can be afforded by taxpayers and riders. We feel the Red Line meets these needs sufficiently."

QHS Prize-Winning Band To Perform At Patriots Game

By POLLY DREDGE

The Quincy High School Band will be the featured band Dec. 14 as the New England Patriots meet the Buffalo Bills at Schaefer Stadium, according to band director Michael J. Cahill.

Cahill expects 160 members of the band to be present for the performance of the national anthem and the half-time show. If the Patriots are in good standing, the game could be broadcast from coast-to-coast as the game-of-the-week.

The Quincy High School Marching Presidents were awarded the Mayor's Trophy and a $1,000 cash prize as the Best Marching Band in the Charlestown Bunker Hill Day Parade Sunday. Present at the awards ceremony at the Bunker Hill Monument were School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, School Committeemen Charles Sweeny and John Sullivan, band director Michael Cahill, drum major Doug King and color guard captain Julie Ahern.

Throughout the year, the band performed at:

The halftime shows during the Quincy football season, the United Fund kickoff in Quincy, a keel-laying ceremony at General Dynamics shipyard, the Fall Foliage Festival in North Adams, St. Patrick's Day Parade in Lawrence, the Pops Concert at the army in Quincy, a cultural exchange with Bergenfield, N.J., Veterans Day, Memorial Day and Law Day parades in Quincy, and the high school's and junior college's commencement exercises.

In competition, the band received Best Marching Band in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade, Best Color Guard in the Holyoke St. Patrick's Day Parade, Best High School Band in the Bunker Hill Day Parade and a Division I rating with a perfect score in the Southeast District Auditions Festival sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators Association.

They also won second place in the parade competition and second prize in the halftime show competition in the state championship at Boston College.

Trophies were presented to 34 graduating seniors at the band's recent banquet. They are:

Barron, Doug King, Lauren Scarnici, Jean Marie Norton, Carol Cellucci, Catherine Hodgkins, Kathy Cannon and Valerie Voegtlin.

Co-winners of the Ivar O. Nelson Award were Rachel Hult and George Vallatini. Richard Aramian and Ken Anderson were awarded the John Philip Sousa Award, while Joseph Pearson and Timothy O'Leary were awarded the "Mr. President" award. Lauren Scarnici and Laurel Peddie were named the "First Ladies".

Special plaques were presented to drum major Doug

King, color guard captain Julie Ahern and head majorette Karen Crowley.

George Vallatini was awarded the Ivar O. Nelson scholarship and the Maude Howes Scholarship was awarded to Doug King, Elizabeth Sullivan and Scott Mitchell.

Over 10,000 Expected For USS Massachusetts Launching

Plans for handling what was expected to be the greatest traffic problem in the history of Quincy were tackled at a meeting of city and state officials, police and Fore River executives. The occasion was to be the launching of the USS Massachusetts.

It was expected that more than 10,000 visitors would come to Quincy to witness the launching.

Police Chief John Avery said tentative plans called for the blocking off of all streets between River St. and the Southern Artery and between Washington St. and Quincy Ave.

COAST GUARD TAKES OVER MAYOR'S YACHT

The U.S. Coast Guard officially took over Mayor Thomas Burgin's 34-foot power cruiser "Aries" at ceremonies at Quincy Yacht Club.

The "Aries" would be painted gray and designated the CGR-7. She would be used for general patrol in Massachusetts Bay waters.

The boat would be returned to her owner at the end of the national emergency.

TAXPAYERS CALL FOR PLAIN CLOTHESMEN

William Edmonston, secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, recommended that plain clothesmen be given assignments on Saturday nights near bar rooms and in the municipal parking areas.

Edmonston said such precautions were needed because Quincy was taking on some of the aspects of a boom-town.

"Anyone going through the center of the city on Saturday night, with its crowds augmented by the youth, which has suddenly come into spending money, knows that a firm organized police body is needed to keep our city within reasonable bounds," he said.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT UP

Quincy's annually decreasing school enrollment was expected to increase, though actual figures would not be available for several days.

It was reported that there were more out-of-town students registering this year because of the number of new people working in Quincy defense plants.

At Central Junior High School, principal David Goodspeed reported that 75 out-of-town students had registered to date.

USE OF NON-QUINCY GRANITE QUESTIONED

Costanzo Pagnano, business agent for the Quincy Granite Cutters Association, protested the use of non-Quincy granite for the curbing of Centre St. [in the heart of the city's granite district].

He met with John Lane, city purchasing agent and Commissioner Ezekiel Sargent to ask for an investigation of why Chelmsford granite was being used in the city.

Calling some of Quincy's crime figures heartening and others dismaying, Hannon cited the city's Neighborhood Watch program as the factor decreasing the number of burglaries during the first six months of 1975. Comparing statistics during the first six months of 1974 and the first six months of 1975, Hannon said burglaries in Quincy dropped from 700 in 1974 to 608 in 1975.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, present at the meeting, said burglarization of homes in Neighborhood Watch areas has nearly halted.

Zeroing in on the added categories of robbery, larceny and auto theft, Hannon revealed the following statistics comparing Quincy crime rates during the first six months of 1974 and the first six months of 1975:

- Increase in robberies from 43 to 52 - a 20.9 per cent jump versus an FBI National Average increase of 28 per cent.

- Increase in larceny [shoplifting and bicycle thefts] from 1,426 to 1,507 - a 36.4 per cent jump against the National average hike of 19 per cent.

- Increase in auto theft from 463 to 660, a 42.5 per cent jump versus the National Average increase of six per cent.

Commenting on these crime increases in Quincy, Hannon said:

"These are all part of the problems of running a city. We want to make it clear to the people where the weaknesses are and we are going to correct them."

Hannon said he plans to request the MBTA to formulate its own plan to curb auto thefts in its parking lots.

During the meeting Detective Barbara DiNatale of the Quincy Police Department's Juvenile Bureau, explained the $40,000 grant would provide for two full-time social workers and a part time psychiatrist to counsel "pre-delinquent" youths and juveniles involved in minor offenses.

Citing the large juvenile case load in Quincy District Court, Miss DiNatale estimated the new delinquency prevention program could slash the court's number of police-referred cases by one-quarter.

Out of the total 2,200 juvenile cases handled by Quincy's Juvenile Division in 1974, 386 were referred to Quincy District Court, according to Juvenile Division statistics. DiNatale said that number could be cut by an added one-quarter through implementation of the Delinquency Prevention Program.

At the present time, the Quincy's Juvenile Division refers first-time offenders to private agencies for treatment. But this system neither provides for follow-up evaluation nor early detection of pre-delinquent juveniles. Early detection and prevention can decrease Quincy's crime rate and save costs in the criminal justice system, DiNatale said.

The program will be completely voluntary, requiring the consent of the juvenile and one parent. The project will maintain totally confidential progress records on each referral. Referrals will often come from officers within the Juvenile Division and a "well-defined arrangement" will be made - subject to the approval of the Committee on Criminal Justice - to issue general progress reports on cases in treatment.

Police Chief Finn said even he would not have access to the records of individual cases.

Through this system, the department hopes to eliminate the stigma often associated with a youth's involvement with courts - a stigma which DiNatale said contributes to potential recidivism of defendants.

The program will also offer counseling to families of the juveniles and will offer follow-up treatment in the areas of emotional and physical handicaps, learning disabilities and other problems.

The program posits that without intervention and treatment, pre-delinquent juveniles will end up in court, involved in more serious offenses.

Quincy Promotional Movie 'Gifts To Nation' To Premiere Sept. 30

Quincy Heritage announces plans for the premiere of the city's first promotional film, "Gifts to the Nation".

The motion picture produced through a $25,000 grant from General Dynamics, will be shown first to the citizens of Quincy at the Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St. at 8 p.m. Sept. 30.

"This is going to be an old fashioned movie premiere," said Quincy Heritage Executive Director John R. Graham. "There will be search lights, dancing to the music of the Riccatone, and special awards.

The motion picture was produced for the city by the Film Group of Cambridge which has been recognized nationally for its tourism films. Their film, "Two Faces of the Sea", was one of the 10 most honored motion pictures in Business Screen's awards for 1973, and they have just completed, "Massachusetts-There's no Place Like Home", spots for the Commonwealth's Division of Tourism.

Their film, "The Wonderful

World of Ohio", was nominated for an Emmy. Bell Telephone of Ohio, which commissioned the picture, called it the finest and most successful film the company has ever produced.

The staff of the Film Group, including President Lowell Wentworth who wrote the script for the Quincy film, will attend the premiere. Also attending will be Peter J. Vollstadt, Vice President for photography and creative services, who was in charge of the filming itself at locations all around Quincy.

The premiere will mark the beginning of the distribution of the motion picture both locally and nationally. Quincy Heritage will distribute the film throughout the eastern United States, through Modern Talking Picture Service of New York.

"Gifts to the Nation" will be seen on television and as a short subject in motion picture theaters. It will also be available to local groups and organizations without charge through Quincy Heritage.

"We are extremely grateful to Quincy Lodge 1295 of the Sons of Italy for making a grant of $5,000 so that we can distribute the film to a very wide audience," said Graham. "This is why we are able to show the film free. However, we are encouraging local groups to make contributions to a special fund to further aid the distribution of our picture," he added.

Christine Gibbons of the Quincy Heritage staff is coordinating the premiere and Mary Collins of Squantum is working with volunteers, who will act as hostesses. H. Winslow Bettinson of WIDA will serve as master of ceremonies.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Dr. Lawrence Crendon, the General Chairman of Quincy Heritage, and Graham will present special awards during the evening.

General admission is $3, with tickets available through Quincy Heritage. Special senior citizen tickets are $2 each and on sale through Marion Andrews of the Senior Citizens Activities office of the Quincy Recreation Department.

Bus transportation will be available for senior citizens.

Question Of Week

What Is Status Of Equal Rights Amendment?

"What is the current status of the Equal Rights Amendment?" a caller recently asked the Voter Information Phone.

The Voter Information Phone volunteer replied that 34 states have ratified the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, including Massachusetts. Ratification by 38 states before March 1979 is required for E.R.A. to become part of the federal Constitution.

The Equal Rights Amendment to the Massachusetts State Constitution has twice been approved by both houses of the state legislature, sitting in joint Constitutional Convention. The proposed State Constitutional amendment will appear on the state ballot for voter approval in 1976.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VPhone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Delahunt Best Bet For District Attorney

By HENRY BOSWORTH

It's a good bet that Rep. William Delahunt will be Norfolk County's new district attorney.

In fact it's the best bet if you are trying to mentally line up a successor for Wollaston's George Burke who has resigned to return to full private practice.

Although Delahunt himself is remaining quite mum about his chances, he definitely has the inside track.

An, sources close to him, report he has "indicated" to Gov. Dukakis that he "is interested" in the post, one of the most prestigious in county and state political circles.

And, according to the same source, Delahunt is giving "a very serious consideration" to accepting if it is offered to him.

Political observers feel that if Delahunt has indicated he is interested—the job is his. He served as Dukakis' local coordinator in the latter's run for the governorship last fall and the pair are not only very close to one another, but have a strong mutual respect for one another.

Delahunt, according to the source, actually has "mixed feelings" about leaving the State House to take the job.

He is a member of the Legislative committee on Redistricting which will recommend the new district lines for the House of Representatives.

The House will be cut from its present 240 members to 160 in 1976 to become effective for the 1978 election.

Delahunt in the past has voiced concern that the present Quincy districts could get carved up with Quincy being tossed in with Dorchester, Braintree, Weymouth and/or Milton.

As a member of that committee he would be in a position to serve as a watch dog for Quincy's best interests.

Delahunt has served in the House for three years, was Ward 5 councillor 1968-69 and served as legal counsel for the Quincy Police Department in 1970. He's been an attorney eight years.

The opportunity to suddenly become district attorney would seem to be just too much to resist for a young [34] talented, rising lawyer.

IF DELAHUNT DOES take the post, it apparently is too late to remove his name from the Sept. 23 preliminary election ballot.

He is a candidate for councillor at-large. Even if he wanted to drop out of that race, it appears that it is already too late.

He could remove his name from the final ballot in November, however.

AND, of course, if he is named district attorney, a successor would have to be found for him in the House of Representatives. He has more than a year to go on his term. Chances are there would be a special election to fill the vacancy.

MILESTONE: Senior citizens are tossing a little party for Mayor Walter Hannon today at City Hall. His birthday—his 44th.

A READER REPORTS driving along Fenno St. near Quincy Shore Drive Sunday morning and spotting a man doing a little raking and picking up debris. The good samaritan: Rep. Joseph Brett who lives nearby on Fenno St.

HERE'S ONE: John Blake of Colony, Inc. is setting up a program with Sheriff Clifford Marshall to teach certain inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction how to weld. When George Studley, Blake's representative, arrived at the jail to discuss it with Marshall, he walked in on an attempted jail break. Studley called Blake and asked: "Do you mind if I wait another day?" [In case you're wondering, the inmate students will not be using blow torches].

FRANK KELLY who was pretty good snooping out news as a photographer-reporter not too long ago, got caught napping the other day on a very special event. Wife Irene sent him off to the store and while he was gone a large number of the Quincy Track Club members descended upon his Copley St., Wollaston home to give him the surprise treatment when he returned. It was his birthday... but he isn't saying which one. A cake, baked by Kelly Tobin and frosted by sister, Tracy [or was it the other way around] was presented to him. Frank, of course is vice-president, a founder and a moving force behind the successful Quincy Track Club.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, says he has a friend who is really an equal opportunity employer. Dislikes everyone equally.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Chamber Favors Bookmaking

By ERIC SWIDER

"I don't believe it," blurted Harry, "it says here in the newspaper that the South Shore Chamber of Commerce favors legislation to legalize gambling, primarily through sports pool betting and off-track betting as a way to raise revenue, reduce the resources of organized crime, and as a way of taking a realistic and practical position on the practice of gambling."

"What's so amazing about that," I asked, "doesn't the Chamber Board impress you as a group of practical people?"

"You mean to tell me that your Board of Directors took that stand," chuckled Harry. "I was sure it was a decision you had made by flipping a coin."

"You know better than that," I assured him, "every policy decision of this Chamber is made by our Board, and lots of homework goes into presenting them with well researched information to consider, or else."

"Or else, what?" he asked.

"Or else they throw it right back in my lap and tell me to get a knowledgeable group of people to get the research done, that's what."

"Well," asked Harry, "what are some of the facts that the Board considered in coming to this conclusion?"

"Facts like these," I said, "Illegal gambling provides the main source of organized crime income but conventional law enforcement efforts are unsuccessful in curbing it."

"Legalization of two major wagering systems - Off-Track Betting [OTB] and Sports Pool Betting, could have substantial impact on organized crime income, and provide an estimated $60 million annually in added state revenues."

"Sports Pool betting, similar to the football card concept, is already a $2 million per week illegal business in the Greater Boston area. Legalization would not affect the image of professional teams or players, and instead would probably enhance their popularity. It can be implemented at a minimal cost."

"Off-Track Betting [OTB] would not reduce the $35 million in state revenues from race track or harm the tracks' income as long as they are compensated for the use of their facilities. Compensation can easily be allowed from the OTB's gross income. The race track's own study of OTB conservatively estimated a return of $48.9 million to the State from such a system."

"Not being the gambling type," said Harry, "I really don't know what some of these things mean... what is sports pool betting, anyhow?"

"Well, according to the experts," I explained, "Sports Pool wagering is a system whereby the names of competing professional sports teams are listed on a card, and the bettor attempts to select the winners in a number of contests, ranging in number from 3 to 16. The prize a bettor received depends on the number of contests on the card; but the bettor must normally be correct in all cases to win. Consolidation prizes for bettors who are correct in almost all of their selections may be devised to increase the popularity of the system. The odds are high in sports pool betting because of the number of contests the bettor must correctly predict; but the "pay off" is also large, sometimes ranging to odds of 5000 to 1."

"And what about Off-Track betting," Harry asked, "how does that work?"

"Well, according to my uncle who knows about these things," I said, "Off Track Betting is a wagering system in which bettors place wagers on horse and dog races, but do so at offices established for that purpose, rather than going to the race track. By providing easily accessible betting offices, those wishing to wager, who might otherwise consult a book maker, are deterred and the revenue from their wagers diverted to the Commonwealth."

"Sounds good so far," Harry assured me, "but who will administer it and can the State pick up some decent revenue on this deal?"

"You bet," I advised him, "It is expected that the State will net $60 - $80 million as a result of legalizing gambling. The legalized gambling would be administered under the Massachusetts State Lottery and would be set up in a similar fashion. As an example, at the present time the State Lottery is limited to 15% of the gross for its actual operating costs and 45% of the monies taken in must go back to the people. In the legalized gambling of the above mentioned items, it is estimated that 65 - 70% of the money would go back to the people who placed the bets but, at this time, the remainder of the details are yet to be worked out."

"Sounds better and better," said Harry, "but what's happening in other states with legalized gambling?"

"Well, Montana and Nevada have sports pool betting; New York has off-track betting [picked up $60 million revenue last year]; Connecticut is implementing Jai Alai, and New Jersey, Michigan, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island are currently in the process of considering Off-Track betting and Sports Pool betting."

"Must be a lucrative business," Harry mused.

"Sure is," I assured him, "The National Gambling Commission estimates that $50 billion was illegally gambled last year."

"Amazing," said Harry, "so how come I've never found a place to place an illegal bet?"

"Must be that the South Shore is clean?" I stated.

"Must be," agreed Harry.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

LIVING TODAY

'Do You Need A Project?'

By DR. WILLIAM KNOX

Nan and Chet had been haggle for several weeks over trivial things ... each showing resentment ... disagreeing without ground or reason. "If I say it's white, he says it's black" ... Nan said. "The thing that gets me is her silent treatment" ... said Chet.

This went on for several weeks in a counseling as they argued on insignificant things which made no real difference ... like which baby sitter she called ... what time he got home from work ... what she did with the change from a $5.00 bill ... which newspaper to cancel since they couldn't afford both. They were both correct ... "they just didn't agree on anything."

One afternoon when they came in Chet said, "We've started a project. We're going to build on to our house, a bedroom and small office." I was surprised. I wondered how they could have made such a major decision since they'd been fighting with each other over the change for a $5.00 bill.

"What happened?" I asked.

Nan said "Well ... we got to talking about how we felt and we remembered that when we were doing something together ... we weren't fighting. We were happy. One year we landscaped our grounds ... another year we built the tool house. One winter we took dancing lessons together. "We figured that our problem is that we need a project." "So, Saturday we start" ... said Chet ... "and even now before we start the work we've quit our silly haggling."

Perhaps more couples need projects together. One couple I know have a large garden. They plow it ... plan it ... care for it together. They can freeze vegetables. They built a beautiful basement storage closet for the canned food ... even use their home canning for gifts to friends. The sizable amount of money they save from their freezing and canning is second in value only to the fun and closeness they feel as they work together on their garden project.

Another value of a project is that you have SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT. We keep emphasizing the importance of communication. But ... just what shall two people talk about who now know each other well ... their feelings about each other ... politics, religion ... their children. It isn't surprising that conversation wains ... unless there is fresh new material to feed the dialogue. Having a project meets that requirement.

Three weeks after the project had started, Nan and Chet were relating what was happening to them in my office. "For one thing" ... Chet was saying ... "I had forgotten how wonderful Nan is. Man ... is she fun! Talking with her ... planning with her is great fun."

"I think back there when we were fighting over those silly little things," Nan said ... "it was because we were frustrated and blaming each other, that neighbor provided an interest. So ... to kill the dullness we had those silly fights. What a waste."

"Another thing" ... I pointed out ... "YOUR PROJECT HAD DRAWN YOU TOGETHER". You pooled your skills in a common interest and you found satisfaction in the creation of a worthwhile thing the end product which you will enjoy together."

Whatever alienates a husband and wife is a vicious enemy. Whatever joins a husband and wife together in mutual love is a precious jewel. For Nan and Chet their project was a jewel. Maybe you two need a project?

How To Pick The Best Savings Account

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

And Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham

8 - 6 Weekdays

8 - 7:30 Thursdays

You may think you are well off to have your savings in a commercial bank, but the magazine Consumer Reports suggests you can do better.

The article "How To Pick the Best Savings Account" recognizes that savings accounts and time deposits in thrift institutions and banks are "among the safest investments you can make." Most purchase Federal insurance that covers individual accounts up to $40,000.

But the magazine notes that for several reasons thrift institutions like ours are measurably superior to commercial banks for returns on savings.

First of all, it is a fact, which some savers ignore, that thrift institutions are allowed by law to offer a higher rate of return than banks. The reason is that our institutions have been established to provide funds for residential mortgage loans. Aside from that, many more commercial banks than savings and loans do not offer the maximum interest rate allowed by law. A Federal Reserve Board study noted that 23 per cent of all bank savings deposits were in accounts "paying a below-ceiling rate of 4 1/2 per cent-and some were at even lower rates," as little as 2 per cent.

More importantly, Consumer Reports pointed out, S&Ls and savings banks "tend to compute interest in more liberal ways than commercial banks."

The magazine article referred to a Kansas State University study which applied 40 variables in interest-computing policies and found that interest payments in S&Ls and banks varied by as much as 171 per cent.

Here is one way in which returns on savings vary. The Kansas State study discovered a difference of almost 68 per cent on the same annual rate of interest in terms of the methods by which interest was computed.

Thirty per cent of commercial banks, according to a study last year by the American Bankers Association, still paid only on the smallest amount of money in the account during the interest period. This, as Consumer Reports mentions, is the "most punitive" to savers. About 16 per cent of commercial banks used a method of deducting withdrawals from the starting balance of the interest period; this is known as first-in, first-out [FIFO]. It is the next disadvantageous way of figuring earned interest. Only about 5 per cent of commercial banks used the method of last-in, first-out [LIFO], which deducts withdrawals from the most recent deposits in the quarter and is therefore less damaging to the depositor.

Payment of interest for the actual number of days the money remains in the account, a day-in day-out concept, provides the highest return for the savers' dollars. It is used by almost 50 per cent of the commercial banks and 60 per cent of insured S&Ls.

There are of course many other variables which prompted Consumer Reports to recommend that a saver seek a thrift institution like ours rather than a commercial bank for the highest legal interest rate and the most liberal methods of computing interest.

MDC To Continue Removal Of Wollaston Beach Debris

MDC Commissioner John F. Sneedaker has made assurances the MDC will continue to patrol Wollaston Beach to spot and remove any accumulation of debris and seaweed.

The assurance came in response to a communication from Rep. Joseph Brett which stated area residents had complained to him about seaweed conditions at Wollaston Beach. In a letter to Brett, Sneedaker explained:

"Wollaston Beach is patrolled on a daily basis for removal of seaweed and debris and I think the public concern relayed to you was from a couple of weeks ago when the tides washed ashore more than the usual growth. This could not be handled by the regular patrol and had to be removed over a few days."

Wollaston Recreational Facility QCA Topic

A representative of the Norfolk County Commissioners office was scheduled to address the Quincy Citizens Association [QCA] Wednesday on the conversion of the Wollaston Golf Club into a year-round public recreational facility.

The QCA supported the County's recently-launched work at the site in place of a proposal for high-rise apartments there.

The meeting was scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd.

Following a refreshment break, a business meeting was planned to discuss the incorporation of the Association as a non-profit organization and to formulate plans for an October candidates' night and a flea market.

Wollaston UCT Dinner, Meeting Saturday Night

Wollaston UCT Council will hold a regular business meeting Saturday at Atlantic Masonic Temple, 57 Hunt St.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m., followed by a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling Albert Sherman at 696-5636.

As one of the first events of the fall season, the Wollaston Council has planned a square dance night Friday, Sept. 26 at Kramer's Hayloft in Weymouth. Caller Bill White from the K" Bar Squares will provide music from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight. A door prize will be awarded and a bar will be set up for the evening.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Stan Campbell, 773-5159.

Albert Vasile To Host 'Catch 44' Program

Albert J. Vasile of 88 North Central Ave., Wollaston will host a WGBX-TV "Catch 44" program featuring the chiropractic profession and its role as a member of the health delivery system.

The program, to be aired Thursday, Sept. 11 at 9 p.m., will include a demonstration of a spinal posture analyzer used by the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society.

Vasile is a publicity relations consultant for the society.

A group of doctors participating in the program will answer some of the most frequently asked questions about the chiropractic profession.

Curriculum Most Important Says Marie MacIntyre said:

"I seem to have been misquoted. It has been reported that I thought discipline was more important than the curriculum in the schools. This is absolutely in error.

"There is nothing more important than curriculum. You cannot have or maintain quality education without constantly reviewing and evaluating what is being taught. This process of review belongs to teachers, students and the school committee as a responsibility to the community."

"As for discipline, I can only say I believe it starts at home. Respect for people, property and the law are started at an earlier age than when children start school. The role of the school committee in terms of discipline should be to encourage and support teachers in the classroom. Also, the school committee should try to get the PTA and other community groups to work together in terms of the process of bringing up children to become good citizens in our community."

Judith Klingelhofer

Exhibit At N.Q. Library

Mrs. Judith Klingelhofer of Squantum is exhibiting her work in the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library during September. The show will predominate in oil portraits.

Mrs. Klingelhofer graduated from Scott Carbee School of Art. All branches of art interest her. She studied watercolor at the Providence School, air brush techniques with Samuel Fraser, the inventor of the air brush, perspective and dynamics with Roy Morse, composition and color theory with Waldo Murray of the Royal Academy, anatomy and portraiture with H. Bingham Ballou.

Mrs. Klingelhofer has exhibited, and won awards in Quincy, Braintree, and St. Augustine, Florida art associations.

For several years she taught drawing for the beginner at the Braintree Art Association. She also teaches at the Woodward School for Girls, and in her own home. This fall she will hold classes at the Chit Chat Ceramic Studio in Dorchester.

QJC Offering New

Course On 'American Film'

Quincy Junior College will offer a new evening course this September entitled "The Development of the American Film."

Taught by Anthony Daniele, the course will introduce the student to many types of motion pictures, exploring such classifications as the western, the comedy, the gangster film, the musical and social comment.

At each class meeting, a different film will be shown, among them such classics as "The Golden Years", "The Great Train Robbery", "Fall of Babylon", "The Vagabond", "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde", "Stagecoach", and "Citizen Kane".

Daniele will deliver a lecture during each class and class discussion will follow.

The three-credit undergraduate course will be offered Wednesday evenings beginning Sept. 10. For more information and an evening brochure, Call Richard Mula at 471-2470.

Ruth Adams President

Survival Board Of Directors

Mrs. Ruth Adams of 151 Sea St., Quincy, has been named President of the Board of Directors of Survival, Inc., the multi-faceted drug and youth program serving the South Shore.

Mrs. Adams succeeds Ted Pina of Randolph.

Mrs. Adams has been serving as vice-president of the agency since the beginning of 1975. She has been active on the board since 1972, serving as chairwoman of the Supporters of Survival, an auxiliary fund-raising group affiliated with the agency.

Mrs. Adams will serve as president of Survival until the end of 1975.

The agency operates four treatment centers in Quincy and offers a variety of services for troubled area youth.

Applications Extended One Month For Atlantic Self-Help Program

The Atlantic Self-Help Improvement Program Committee announces a one-month extension in the acceptance of homeowners applications to have their homes painted at little, or no cost.

Mrs. Joanne Condon, president of the Atlantic Civic Association, said the association's volunteer committee will continue to accept and process applications throughout September at Atlantic Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St., but at the new hours from 7-9 p.m. on Thursdays and 10 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays.

The Self-Help program, which is funded through Community Development money, was initiated by the Atlantic Civic Association and works in conjunction with Mayor Hannon, Ward 6 City Councillor Dennis Harrington, and the Quincy Planning and Community Development department.

"Because of the limited funds available to the program," said Mrs. Condon, "we will paint homes and do very minor repairs only so that we may serve as many homeowners as possible."

Mrs. Condon said a substantial number of applications were received throughout August but she urges additional moderate as well as low income resident homeowners of one and two family homes to take advantage of the self-help program by visiting the church in September and filling out a brief application.

Moderate income eligibility levels range from a gross of $7,700 for one person to $15,450 for a family of eight with deductions allowed from that gross amount for such things as tuition and second-mortgage payments, child support, medical bills and health insurance payments.

"All information received will remain confidential," said Mrs. Condon. We look forward to meeting with all of the homeowners of the Atlantic area who feel that this program may benefit them.

Residents Must Unite In Neighborhood Involvement, Says Saphir

Mayorality candidate Mrs. Grace Saphir told a group of supporters Quincy citizens must unite in neighborhood involvement to help solve neighborhood problems.

Speaking at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Cardwell, Mrs. Saphir said:

"We need to get back to the community concept in Quincy where everyone knows his neighbor, his shopkeeper, his policeman...City government is too big and too many people have lost their voice. We need to get involved."

Mrs. Saphir said citizens could aid in easing the crime rate as well as eliminating "litter, blight, and parking problems in the neighborhoods."

Mrs. Saphir said the city must "cut the fat" from the city payroll by eliminating job duplication and avoiding unnecessary appointments. She also urged first consideration of qualified Quincy residents to fill job vacancies.

Operach Releases Results Of Voter Survey

School Committee candidate Paul Operach has released the results of a telephone voter survey conducted the last two weeks in July and random periods in August.

According to Operach, voters indicate:

- * A strong anti-busing attitude.
- * Acceptance of a teacher as Political Adversment a Quincy School Board member.

* Concern over any "open campus" at the city's high schools.

* Need for increased financial responsibility on part of School Committee members.

* Membership on School Committee seems a political or person responsibility rather than a community responsibility.

Christopher Kennedy School Committee Candidate

Christopher F. Kennedy of 27 Barham Ave., North Quincy announces his candidacy for School Committee.

Dean of Students at Northeastern University and past president of the Montclair School PTA, Kennedy has pledged to foster better communications between schools and the community.

Noting the vast number of educational innovations developed over recent years, Kennedy said many have not been accepted or do not fully comprehend these new teaching methods. He said:

"Parents, especially, remain in the dark because things are so much different from when they were in school. I plan to make the problem of educational communications my primary concern. If, in the process, more parents become involved in the schools, we shall all benefit."

A resident and homeowner in Quincy nearly 25 years, Kennedy has eight children who have graduated from or are now attending Quincy public schools.

President of the Quincy Parent-Teacher Council for 10 years, Kennedy has served as chairman of Quincy Public Schools' Educational Development Committee since its creation in 1967.

Stressing "efficient and responsible use" of the city's resources in an "unending pursuit of quality education" for all Quincy children, Kennedy said:

"By far the most important natural resource of our city is our children. It is vital they be educated in the best school system which is possible to provide.

"Education is very expensive today and the economic resources of the city are very tight and eagerly sought after. This is why money spent for the schools must buy for us the finest and most efficient education obtainable."

Kennedy also said he will work to establish "a proper climate" in which technical, business and other non-college programs "can command the respect they deserve." He said:

"Every student should be able to pursue whatever program and goal is consistent with his or her interests and capabilities without the added concern that the course might be socially or otherwise less acceptable than another. I shall work hard for the establishment of such a climate."

A graduate of Boston Latin School and Harvard College, Kennedy received a master's degree in education from Boston State College. He serves as chairman of the Board of Trustees of Newman Preparatory School.

Last year, Kennedy received from the School Committee a public service award citing his "outstanding volunteer service to the Quincy schools."

"The School Committee is charged with a weighty responsibility," said Kennedy. "Its members are the guardians and protectors of the public interest in all matters which pertain to the schools. It needs able, qualified and dedicated citizens who are willing and can afford to put forth the time and effort which are required."

LaRaia Asks Timetable For New Fore River Bridge

Mayorality candidate Joseph J. LaRaia says he is urging state authorities to quickly establish a plan and timetable for the construction of a new Fore River Bridge.

LaRaia told the Rotary Club he has sent a letter to Gov. Dukakis emphasizing the importance of a new bridge in the future expansion of the General Dynamics Shipyard.

This, he said, would lend to improving the potential for increased ship-building at the yard.

In his letter, LaRaia said the new bridge would accomplish three important goals:

* Guarantee that the shipyard will remain in production, thereby securing the future economic well-being of the South Shore.

* Provide immediate construction jobs which would definitely help alleviate Quincy high unemployment rate.

* Allow for increased shipyard production.

"I have asked the governor to move quickly," LaRaia said, "because the completion date of this project, once approved, is estimated at 10 years."

"It is therefore imperative that approval and construction begin as soon as possible so that General Dynamics can plan and bid for larger ship contracts," he said.

"This will increase the number of available jobs and generate related business activity. That is why immediate state action is vital."

McDonough Vows To Put Axe To Property Tax

"My No. 1 purpose if elected to the City Council will be to 'axe the property tax' in any way I can," says James L. McDonough of 115 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, candidate for Ward 1 Councillor.

A 30-year Houghs Neck resident, he is married and the father of six children.

"My next aim is the protection of our families and especially our children from crime on the streets or wherever it may occur, and to protect the elderly wherever the need," McDonough said.

For 35 years, McDonough was the owner-manager of Overland Express Transportation Co. Now retired, he said he will give full time to the City Council if elected. He was educated in Boston Schools and attended Quincy Voc-Tech nights for two years.

McDonough is an active member of the Quincy Citizens Association and of the Houghs Neck Community Council, which he helped organize in 1954. He was a member of the U.S. Government Transportation Alliance of World War II, based in Washington, D.C.

He served on a committee with George Burke, chairman, to tormulate ideas on how to update the city of Quincy in business and traffic, and was appointed to sit on the Traffic Committee by the MDC Commission to expedite traffic on the Southeast Expressway.

McDonough is a past member of the Quincy Democratic Committee and said he will run again in 1976. He is also a past member of the Quincy Auxiliary Police. He has sung in the choirs of five Ward 1 churches, and is a former member of the Milton Elks Choral Society.

"If elected, I will execute the wishes of the people of Ward 1 to the best of my ability," McDonough said.

McCauley Notes School Department Strong Financially

The Quincy School Department ended fiscal 1975 in a strong financial position, according to Quincy School Committeeman, Francis X. McCauley, candidate for re-election to a second term on the School Committee.

Speaking at a house party at the home of Mrs. Marion Osborne, 33 South St., McCauley pointed out the School Department not only lived within its budget, but returned over $164,000 to the city treasury. These funds can be used to reduce this year's tax rate or kept in reserve for emergency needs, he noted.

McCauley also said over the past few years, the School Department is one of the few city departments that has not found it necessary to return to the city council for additional operating funds.

Raymondi Seeks Improvements At Point-Webster Schoolyard

School Committeeman Daniel G. Raymondi, candidate for Ward 2 City Councillor, is investigating the possibility of improving the schoolyard area at the Point-Webster School complex.

After receiving many calls from parents and youngsters concerned about the playing surface in that schoolyard area, Raymondi said he discussed possible improvements with the school department's Director of Plant Facilities John Browne. Raymondi said:

"The basketball courts there are among the most widely used in the city and provide recreation space for many youngsters who otherwise would have no place to play.

"I think it is important that we upgrade and improve recreational facilities in order to encourage our young people to stay off the streets and engage themselves in athletic activities."

WHO

BROUGHT SPECIAL RECOGNITION TO THE WOMEN OF QUINCY?

HANNON...

The nation's most famous women have come from Quincy — Anne Hutchinson, Abigail Adams and Dorothy Quincy. Women have always played an important part in the life of our city.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has furthered this great tradition by establishing the Commonwealth's second Commission on the Status of Women for the City of Quincy.

Mayor Hannon has charged the commission to help women participate more fully in the life of the city. And that's exactly what's happening! The group of 40 women is hard at work on employment, child care, and career planning projects. Thanks to Mayor Hannon's leadership women continue to play an important role in Quincy.

'Man'

Lesson Sermon

"MAN" is this Sunday's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon subject at all Churches of Christ, Scientist, including First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy. The Responsive Reading is from James: "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed."

Church Service and Sunday School return to the regular hour of 10:45 this Sunday.

Jewish New Year

Rosh Hashanah Observance Begins With Services Friday

By LESTER GLASSER

Rosh Hashanah [Lit. "head of the year"] is observed in the beginning of the seventh month [Tishri] as the Jewish New Year.

This year it will begin Friday evening in Quincy with services at Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton St.; Temple Beth El, 100] Hancock St. and Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St.

Nisan, the month in which Passover occurs, is regarded as the first month of the Jewish calendar, and all the festivals are arranged according to this reckoning. The first of Tishri marks the anniversary of the creation of the world, which occurred, according to tradition, over 5,736 years ago. Jewish chronology begins the year with this day.

The name "Rosh Hashanah" does not appear in the Bible. It is referred to as the Day of the Blowing of the Shofar [Yom Taruah], the remembrance of the blowing of the Shofar. It is also considered the Day of Judgement when all mankind is judged by the Creator and the fate of each individual is inscribed in the Book of Life.

Congregations the world over, except many of those affiliated with Reform Judaism, observe Rosh Hashanah for two days. This is in accordance with the Talmudic dictum that the two days are "like one long day", thereby indicating that both days have equal sanctity.

Kosh Hashanah inaugurates the Ten Days of Penitence, the most solemn season in the Jewish calendar, which has been set apart for retrospection and introspection. While Rosh Hashanah is not accompanied by the gay merrymaking which marks Jan. 1, it is not by any means a somber or sad holiday.

As a matter of fact, Jewish tradition declares that it should be a happy one, for Jews are convinced prayer and good deeds find favor in the eyes of God. One of the beautiful customs of Rosh Hashanah is the eating of an apple or some other fruit dipped in honey, to express the hope that the coming year may be full of sweetness.

Yom Kippur [The Day of Atonement] is the last day of the "Ten Days of Penitence" which began with Rosh Hashanah. This 10-day period, according to Jewish tradition, is a time for repentance, prayer and charity in preparation for the holiest day of the year, Yom Kippur.

On this solemn and important day almost all Jewish men and women refrain from eating and drinking, and even young children try to fast for at least a part of the day. The Bible also requires that Jews do no manner of work on Yom Kippur. The people spend the entire day in prayer and worship.

The word "atonement" explains the nature of the day. For "atonement" is made up of two words - "at" and "one", and on the day of "At-one-ment" Jewish people seek to be "at-one" in harmony with God. Yom Kippur is, above all, a day on which Jews seek forgiveness not only from God, but also from man.

Judaism teaches that one cannot ask God's forgiveness for wrong-doing unless he has also asked others to forgive him for any evil he may have done to them. The wrong must be righted whenever that is possible. There must be a true feeling of repentance. God recognizes the sincere desire of the worshipper to undo his evil and to live his life better.

Just as the best-known part of the Rosh Hashanah service is the blowing of the Shofar, so in the Yom Kippur services, the part best-known and loved by the Jewish young and old is the famous Kol Nidre prayer.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct the services at the Beth Israel Synagogue, starting Friday evening at 6:45. There will be services Saturday morning at 8 and evening services at 6:45. There will also be services, Sunday morning at 8.

Services at Temple Beth El, conducted by Rabbi David J. Jacobs, and Cantor Morris Semigran will be held Friday evening at 8; Saturday and Sunday mornings at 8, Saturday evening at 6:45.

Services at Congregation Adas Shalom, conducted by Rabbi Samuel Kenner and Cantor Tevele Ring, will be held Friday evening at 8; Saturday and Sunday mornings at 9 and Saturday evening at 6:45.

Kol Nidre services Sept. 14 at the Beth Israel Synagogue and Congregation Adas Shalom will be at 6:30 p.m., and at Temple Beth El at 6:45 p.m. Services will be conducted all day Sept. 15 at all the synagogues.

Disappointment In S. D., But A Season To Remember

The finest season in Morrisette Legion's 30-year baseball history ended in disappointing fashion last week when the team was eliminated in two straight games from the Legion World Series in Rapid City, South Dakota.

But the 1975 season will be remembered for a long, long time by the players, coaches and fans.

Morrisette opened the World Series against Cheverly, Maryland, and handed Cheverly an 11-inning 12-11 win.

The next day Morrisette dropped a 4-3 decision to Yakima, Washington, to become the first team ousted from the double elimination tournament.

Morrisette's defense, which had been superb all season, was its undoing in the opening game as costly errors enabled Cheverly to tie the score in the ninth and 11th innings when Morrisette apparently had the game sewed up. The defense also played a part in the loss to Yakima.

"Well, it was a great season and let's be thankful we got to the World Series," a disappointed Coach Ray Cattaneo said. "The way we lost, especially the opening game, was the most disappointing thing. Our pitching and defense, our strong points all year, just fell apart and we handed them that game."

"It is too bad we made some of the mistakes we made, but you just can't explain it. The boys played terrific ball throughout the playoffs and then we came out here and everything seemed to go wrong. We had that real bad game in the opener and we just couldn't bounce back."

At the start of the season Cattaneo had one thing in mind, the Zone 6 championships, and he predicted a three-way fight between Morrisette, Weymouth and Braintree. It took a playoff win over Weymouth to give the team its 19th zone title.

Morrisette then breezed to its first state championship, winning four in a row in the championship round robin in Lynn, and then took the Northeastern Regional crown with five wins in six games.

Tim Clifford, the team's ace hurler, had one of his worst days against Cheverly as he gave up 12 hits and nine runs, eight earned, while striking out eight and walking five. But the loss went to Mark Dwyer, who pitched the last two and two-thirds innings.

In the second game John Lawlor went all the way, gave up eight hits and eight walks and also struck out eight.

Clifford, headed this month for Harvard, had a great season with an 18-1 record. Dwyer was 10-4 and Lawlor 4-1 as Morrisette finished 32-6 for the season.

Morrisette pounded out 17 hits in the opener, including three by Dave Perdios, who opened the tourney with a home run. The ball was retrieved and will be sent to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown. Joe Glynn and Clifford also had three hits and Mike DePolo, Jim Roberts and Frank Miceli had two each.

The team had eight hits against Yakima, two each by Jack Rabel, Lawlor and Dennis McGuire. McGuire's triple had given Morrisette a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning.

Cattaneo loses some outstanding players but will have his number one battery of Clifford and catcher Steve McKinnon back, as well as outfielder McGuire, Shortstops Perdios and Paul Messina, third baseman Roberts and reserves Brian Corcoran, Chuck LoPresti and Jim Mize.

It is expected Cattaneo will move either Messina or Perdios to second base in order to be able to start both next year. Messina was the starting shortstop until suffering a freaky eye injury in the second game of the state finals and Perdios did so well in his place that Messina couldn't get his position back until Cattaneo started him in the finale against Yakima.

Remick's in the Bank and Retail Softball League by defeating South Weymouth Savings, 8-6, while Remick's was upset by Hancock Bank and Trust, 9-8, in extra innings.

Remick's and South Shore have 10-2 records.

It was Frank Fiske's pitching and defense, along with the hitting of Steve Partello, Bob Dunphy and Bill Buerard which enabled Hancock to win in the eighth inning. Fiske started two double plays to help himself out of trouble.

In a near-upset back-to-back home runs by Bill Lomanno and Phil Greenspan powered Quincy Savings Bank to a 14-13 come-from-behind win over the winless Quincy Bank.

Down by two runs with two outs, Lomanno stroked a bouncing liner to left past the left fielder, scoring Pat McAuley

Flate - Kelly Team Wins Cade Cup At Furnace Brook

George Flate of the host club and his guest, Jim Kelly of Ponkapoag, won the Cade Cup championship in the annual tournament held over the weekend at Furnace Brook.

Flate and Kelly won over Dick Corbin of FB and Charley Kusser of Braintree, as the match ended on the 15th hole. Due to the rain on Saturday, two nine-hole matches were played on Sunday.

The medalists on Friday were Joe Videtta and Skip King with a 66.

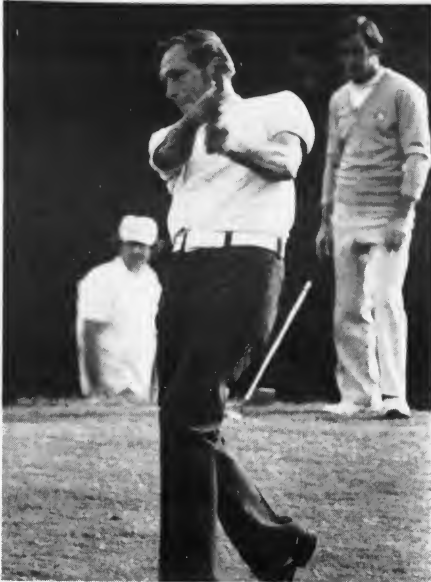

With 48 teams entered, a medal tourney was held to cut down the field. The winners were Larry O'Neill and Lou Scrocco.

The semifinalists in the championship flight were Roger Milmore and Rich Olson, Joe Gilmartin and Roy Cavicchi Jr.

In the championship consolation Bill Montgomery and Tom Gleason were the winners and Hank Berry and Hank Berry Jr. runnersup.

Winners in the first flight were Bill Bemis and Jack Darsch. Runnersup were Joe Caruso and W. Mathew and the semifinalists Bill Crowley and Bill Crowley Jr., Bob Garvey and Frank Guilfooy. Consolation winners were Matt Smith and Dave Bailey and runnersup Larry Buckley and F. Romeo.

Second flight winners were Lou Cugini and Art Bemis. Runnersup were Gary Buchanan and Ken Parsons and Semifinalists Art Keefe and Bob

Sundial Benefit Tennis Clinic At Harbor Marina Sept. 24

A Sundial tennis clinic to benefit eye research and the prevention of blindness will begin Wednesday, Sept. 24 at the Boston Harbor Marina, 542 East Squantum St.

Sundial clinics, launched by the Eye Research Institute of Retina Foundation in Boston, will be held at indoor tennis facilities throughout New England in an effort to affiliate the tennis world with eye research.

Wayne Schell, manager of the Marina, said there will be five six-week sessions beginning Wednesday, Sept. 24. Classes will be held from 10-11 a.m. Registration deadline is Monday, Sept. 15. Clinic fee is $25.

Following the sessions, two weeks of tournament competition will be organized for participants.

Dr. Charles Schepens, founder of the Eye Research Institute, noted blindness in the U.S. is increasing at a rate nearly double the increase in population. But he added:

"Real progress in eye research and blindness prevention is also on the increase and unusual opportunities now exist, making possible substantial advances in the prevention - and even cure - of blindness at a relatively modest cost."

To register for a Sundial tennis clinic, call Mrs. Eileen Biachi at 742-3140.

'Sign-Up Night' For Scout Troop 17 Friday

Boy Scout Troop No. 17, of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, will hold "Sign-Up Night" at their first meeting in the school hall Friday Sept. 5, at 7 p.m.

Area boys who have completed the fifth grade or are 11 years of age but have not reached age 18 are invited to attend. Troop activities for the year include several weekend campouts at various spots, such as Peddock's Island, Duxbury Stockade, and the Blue Hills.

The final camping is for a week in Barnstead, N.H. Two Parents Nights will be the occasion for awarding earned Merit Badges.

QCA Sends 185 To Camp

The Quincy Community Action Organization has received more than $20,000 from the Public Welfare Department enabling it to send 185 children, ages eight to 15 to overnight camp for two week periods.

The agency has run campership programs for the past seven years, sending eligible children from Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth, Cohasset, Hull, Hingham, Scituate and the Randolph area to camps.

The QCAO received an additional $11,000 from the State Department of Community Affairs for a summer youth recreation program. The funds were applied to a campership program for youngsters ranging in age from eight to 14, from low-income families living in the Quincy area.

The agency noted camps have also established campership programs of their own for low income families.

said Bicycle Revival located in the Parkway block suffered no apparent damage due to flame, but did have smoke and water damage.

According to the report, heavy smoke billowed from all floors of the warehouse when Quincy firefighters arrived on the scene. Heavy flames issued from the south side of building on the second floor with lighter flames coming from the third floor.

A second alarm was called in at 1:15 p.m. followed by a third at 1:20 p.m. Firefighters from Braintree, Boston and Weymouth manned the Quincy fire stations during the blaze.

Although the fire was under control by 4 p.m., Deputy Chief Maguire said a detail of firefighters remained at the scene throughout the night, wetting down charred warehouse merchandise.

Firefighter John Cummings of Engine 5 suffered a laceration of the hand during the fire and was relieved of duty.

Maguire said very heavy smoke made the fire especially difficult to fight and several men were administered oxygen at the scene.

SHARK-LIKE FIN, sighted Saturday in Quincy Bay near Post Island Rd, slices close to shore as youngster - glad to be on land - watches. Sighting of the fin triggered a shark scare in Adams Shore but Quincy police identified the visitor as an 800-pound ocean sunfish usually found only in deep waters. A special Quincy police boat detail tracked down, shot and killed the already-injured fish which later washed to shore. Police officials say although the fish was harmless, it could have capsized small craft in the event of a collision.

Delahunt New District Attorney, Drops Out of City Council Race

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

William D. Delahunt, sworn in Monday as Norfolk County's new District Attorney, has pledged to Quincy residents a continuing interest in local issues and policy-making.

The 33-year-old Quincy attorney and legislator succeeds George Burke of Wollaston who resigned the post to return to full private practice.

While pinpointing county-wide community involvement as a goal of his new administration, Delahunt stressed his commitment to present and future progress in Quincy. He told The Quincy Sun:

WILLIAM D. DELAHUNT

"Just because I have been appointed district attorney does not mean I have lost interest in the city of Quincy. I was born here. I have lived here all my life and God willing I will always be here. I have an active interest in what happens in this city, not only as a district attorney but as a citizens and taxpayer."

40 Firms To Seek Employees At Job Fair Saturday

The South Shore Council for Full Employment will sponsor its fourth Job Fair Saturday, expecting to draw over 2,000 potential employees to the Quincy Vocational Technical gymnasium between the hours of 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Harold Davis, spokesman for the Council, said some 40 Quincy and South Shore companies and firms will conduct preliminary interviews for job vacancies during the day. He said:

"Each company and firm participating will have jobs available. No company will be present for mere public relations value."

A total of 5,200 letters announcing the Job Fair have been sent to individuals listed in the active files of the Division of Employment Security. Job openings range from unskilled professionals to clerical positions to skilled machinists to insurance salesmen, Davis said.

Based on past records of Council-sponsored Job Fairs,

Good News

No Increase In Real Estate Tax Rate

It was good news for Quincy taxpayers this week.

The city's 1976 property tax rate will remain unchanged, Mayor Walter J. Hannon announced Tuesday.

Property owners in Quincy will pay the same $159.90 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as they have for the past year.

City officials had expected some upward change in next year's taxes, but Mayor Hannon said that "our fiscal management team was able to win out over spiraling inflation." Working with the mayor have been City Auditor Charles Shea, Treasurer Robert Fay and Budget Director William Grindlay.

"We were obviously pleased when Elmer K. Fagerlund, the city's chief assessor, returned Tuesday afternoon from the state offices with the good news of no new tax increase," said Hannon.

Hannon explained the announcement came just two weeks before the mayoralty election, because "We had to wait for the figures from Norfolk County."

Hannon was referring to last week's legislation authorizing a return of some $604,000 in county funds to the city. Governor Dukakis signed the bill last Wednesday, making it possible for Quincy to recover the funds.

"It probably will be said that this is an 'election year tax rate' " the mayor added.

"Well, all anyone has to do is take a look at the record of the last three years and the tax rates for which I've been responsible,

Quincy Sun Begins 8th Year With New Publication

The Quincy Sun is seven years old with today's issue and will begin its eighth year as "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper" next week.

The Sun is celebrating this milestone with the creation of a brand new publication, "Dorchester/South Boston Shoppers Guide".

The new publication, an advertising full-sized tabloid, made its debut Wednesday. Delivered free to 15,000 selected homes in the South Boston and Dorchester areas, it will appear monthly.

Prime purpose of the new publication is to bring more business to Quincy retail stores by reaching for them a profitable new market that is just down the street from them by auto or MBTA.

Quincy businessmen have indicated they are interested in reaching this new market.

The Quincy Sun's "Dorchester/South Boston Shoppers Guide" will do just that.

As a special bonus option, merchants running ads in the new Shoppers Guide have the opportunity to repeat the same ad in the same week's issue of The Quincy Sun for half-price.

Thus, The Quincy Sun can now bring a Quincy merchant's advertising message to 15,000 specially selected homes in Dorchester and South Boston—a new market for them.

And, deliver the same message to nearly 9,000 homes of regular Quincy Sun readers in Quincy-right in their own backyard.

That's approximately 24,000 homes.

And it is all available at special reduced advertising rates.

This has been a momentous year for The Quincy Sun.

In March we moved from a second-floor office at 1601 Hancock St. to spacious, modern street-floor facilities in the old Quincy Savings Bank building at 1372 Hancock St. in Quincy Sq. The present location has five times the space as the former quarters.

In addition to moving and launching a new publication, The Sun has also expanded its commercial printing division.

The Sun now prints high school and college newspapers, newsletters; brochures, ad-books, flyers, stationery, envelopes etc.

The Quincy Sun was established in September 1968 as a community oriented newspaper concentrating on Quincy news and Quincy people.

We now have the Copley News Service and other features and will add more as time goes on.

But we will faithfully remain a Quincy oriented newspaper. That's not only our purpose, but our job, and we intend to carry it out to the best of our ability.

We have expanded local coverage considerably since we started. Today, there is more Quincy news, sports, photos, features in The Sun than in any other newspaper.

That's a fact.

The Quincy Sun is a paid circulation newspaper published Thursdays by The Quincy Sun Publishing Company, 1372 Hancock St.

The Sun is still only 10 cents a copy at newsstands and by carrier boy or girl. Yearly mail subscriptions are $4 inside Massachusetts and $5 outside the state.

As we begin our eighth year we want to again sincerely thank you—our readers and advertisers—for your support and encouragement these past seven years. You are as much a part of The Sun as we, the staff.

We have said it before and we will say it again: without you, we wouldn't be here.

33 Graduate From Vo-Tech Practical Nursing Program

Thirty-three students including 14 from Quincy graduated Tuesday from Quincy Vocational Technical School's Practical Nursing Program.

Martha A. Zenopoulos, R.N., Quincy City Hospital Director of Nursing, delivered the commencement address to the graduates, their families and friends gathered at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

Each graduate carried roses given to them by members of the Class of 1976.

Quincy graduates were:

Linda M. Carini, Barbara Cleaves, Patricia Doyle, Cynthia S. Fitzgerald, JoAnne Flynn, Marjorie S. Foley, Dorothy Gott, Jacqueline Griffith, Teresa A. Hitchcock, Martha Lamphere, Judith Pino, Janet Roberts, Janet Tinney and Pamela Treco.

Other graduates were Ellen F. Brennan and Doris Foley of Milton; Carol M. Buotte of Hull; Suzanne M. Calvi and Betty Potter of Hingham; M. Colette Castellanos, Beverly Doherty, Pamela Hull, Nancy Lyons and Ruth Macdonald, all of Braintree; Geraldine Hicks, Brenda MacDougall, Helen McHale, Maureen C. Shepherd and Kathleen R. Vaillancourt, all of Weymouth; Nancy C. Penney of Norwell; Eileen F. Sargent of Cohasset; Gloria M. Walden of Rockland and Bonnie Weners of Pembroke.

Graduation ceremonies opened with the playing of the National Anthem by soloist Celest Rioux. She also performed a musical selection later in the program.

Rev. David F. Delaney, Quincy City Hospital chaplain, offered an invocation and Laurence H. Babin, director of Quincy Vocational Technical School, welcomed the graduates and all gathered for the ceremonies.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon extended greetings and congratulations from the city and Edyth McGlone, L.P.N. and member of the class of 1972, addressed the graduates.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Cresson presented the graduating class which recited the Florence Nightingale Pledge.

Mrs. Barbara Cleaves of Quincy received the faculty award for "superior achievement" in classroom theory and nursing practice. Presenting the award was Madeline C. Papile, R.N., head of the health occupations division.

Ellen Brennan of Milton earned the alumnae award, combining superior academic achievement and responsiveness to her classmates. Presenting the award was Patricia Mahoney, L.P.N., Class of 1974.

Rev. Delaney closed the evening's ceremonies with benediction.

Planning Board Zoning Change Hearing Sept. 17

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Sept. 17 to consider a proposed zoning change and proposed subdivision of land.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. in City Council Chambers.

The proposed zoning alteration involves a change from Residence C to Residence A on land located on the northwesterly side of Willard St. between Bunker Hill Land and Furnace Brook Parkway.

The second proposed change to be considered involves subdivision of land located on the southeasterly side of Willard St. between street numbers 760 and 812. It includes the land north of Thistle Rd and south of St. Moritz Ave.

and they can see what's happened."

"Property taxes went down $1.10 in 1973 and then remained unchanged in 1974, while going up only $5.60 last year," he pointed out.

"Don't kid yourself," the mayor added, "keeping taxes down is tough. Everybody knows how the price of fuel oil, and just about everything else keeps jumping."

Hannon credited several factors with keeping the tax rate from increasing.

"Even though some people were unhappy at the time, by combining rubbish and garbage collection we saved the taxpayers of Quincy $560,000," he said.

He also said that because Treasurer Robert Foy had invested city funds wisely, some $700,000 had been earned in the past year. "That's three bucks right there on the tax rate," he noted.

"We also went through some tough labor negotiations. We didn't cave in and that saved the taxpayers even more money."

"Budget Director Grindlay has used computers to monitor all the budgets of city departments. As a result, we've been able to control our spending and keep the budgets in line."

City Auditor Shea pointed out that the state had reduced county budgets some 15 per cent for the coming year and that "this will reduce our assessment to Norfolk County by about $200,000, adding further to our tax savings."

Foy said the tax bills will go into the mail about Oct. 15.

Attending the announcement in city hall council chamber, in addition to Hannon, Shea, Foy, Grindlay and Fagerlund, were Council President Arthur H. Tobin; city council Finance Chairman John J. Quinn; and assessors John Comer and Henry Bertolon.

City attorneys obtained a waiver Tuesday morning from Norfolk County Superior Court allowing the setting of the tax rate.

This waiver has been obtained each year since 1967 when the Quincy Taxpayers Association filed a suit requiring the city to reassess property at 100 per cent valuation. Without the waiver, the city tax rate cannot be set.

POINT BLANK Hanging onto home pays off

By JOHN C. MOON

Dear John:

My wife and I will retire in 10 years. To save money, we are thinking about moving out of our comfortable home — the kids are all gone — into a mobile home.

I hate to think about living in an aluminum, jacked-up house with a flower pot on a slab of concrete outside.

What do you advise?

Save My Home

Dear Save My Home:

I would do just as your signature indicates.

Save your home.

Life in a mobile home isn't bad, say my friends who live in them.

However, the market value of your home is growing like mad.

Rate of inflation during the 1973 to 1974 period was 12.1 per cent.

And, get this from the experts:

A normal three bedroom house by 1985 — when you plan to retire — will be worth $125,000!

Those dollars will be worth one-third as much by 1985, if the trend holds, but at least you will have those dollars upon retirement.

Dear John:

I am 14 and called pretty in face and figure by my family and friends.

But I still wear braces on my teeth.

I hate to smile, because I can feel the eyes of anyone I am talking to go right to my mouth.

My dad calls me "sober-sides" because I won't smile and tickles me in the ribs. He says I will end up with an inferiority complex if I don't just go ahead, smile and "let it all hang out."

Sober-sides

Dear Sober-sides:

Your dad is right. Go ahead, grin from ear to ear and enjoy life.

If you are like most girls wearing braces, you will grimace instead of smiling when you hear something funny.

Then, when you get older, you still will grimace when you smile, instead of letting go.

And, when you get a bit older than that, your mouth will look like an old tobacco sack with the drawstrings pulled.

You can usually spot older women who wore braces on their teeth as kids. They act as if they grew up sucking persimmons.

Dear John:

How do you get rid of stains in a terry cloth towel that has been hanging on a wire coat hanger?

Housewife

Dear Housewife:

I must be getting someone else's mail.

My advice:

Throw the towel away.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

GAS + KIDS = DANGER

Since the gas shortage and consequent hoarding of gasoline, the rate of gasoline-caused burns in children has skyrocketed. Last summer this resulted in a number of extensive burns to children who found and spilled gasoline.

Research has shown that children are less apt to note the distinctive smell or even the taste of gasoline and thus, fail to be warned of its potential dangers. It is also hazardous to breathe the fumes from the fuel.

In fact, what makes gasoline so dangerous is that the fumes as well as the liquid are combustible. Gasoline vapor expands and tends to fill all the available space in a container. The pressure can split the seams of an unvented can or plastic vessel, but the vapors can even leak from a vented "safety" can. All that is needed are sparks from a light switch, electrical appliance, car ignition, or a short in the tail-light or brake-light circuit combined with the fumes to trigger an explosion. The explosive power of one gallon of gasoline equals that of 14 sticks of dynamite.

READ AND LISTEN Parents help children adjust

Starting school can be a traumatic experience for a child.

How can a parent help make it less so?

Professional educators advise that the most important thing a parent can do is to read to their children — and to listen to them. It will go a long way toward helping them make the adjustments that will be necessary in the days ahead.

Teachers are conscious that they cannot satisfy the individual needs of 30 or more boys and girls in a class, but they believe parents can play an important role.

They say the average dialogue between a parent and a child on its return from school goes something like this:

"What did you do today?"

Answer: "Nothing."

This is a major understatement the teachers point out. Instead, they say, parents should take trouble to learn how to question youngsters, to get them to act out what happened in school, to ask them what fun things happened.

The first day in school is particularly tough on the kindergarten-age tot of 5 or under.

One way of making it easier for the child to cope with this entirely new experience is for a parent to take it to the school for an advance look at the classroom, to show the youngster what the room looks like and how to get to and from home.

All the same, it is difficult for the average child to visualize that first day at school.

"They cry and fret," said one teacher. "It is quite a scene. The children are not MOTHER CARES — It is the first day of school for Melody, and the first day away from mother. It is a trying experience for both. Educators say the main thing is to listen and read to child exposed to school for the first time.

malicious, just confused." Having at least two adults in the kindergarten classroom tends to give a child a better sense of security and therefore helps toward its adjustment.

Some principals, following the theory that two heads are better than one, team children in order to lessen the possibility that one or both will be lost.

Going to a new school for the first time is usually difficult no matter what the age. Again, the parent can help by listening to a youngster's problems and drawing out what happens during a crucial day-to-day situation away from home.

Dialogue, one of the most overworked words in the language, does nevertheless apply accurately to the need for communication between parent and child.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Resist the temptation to play hooky from your job; serious results could occur. Concentrate on career and practicality. Choose companions carefully. Seek those who bring out the best in you.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Start the week with a night out for fun with a special friend. Curb tendency toward impatience when dealing with others. Family social life is accented — perhaps a wedding is on the agenda.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Gather your scattered thoughts and concentrate on business. Be responsible, reliable and leave nothing to chance. New responsibilities should be accepted with good grace — it's part of a test of your ability.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Good news about money makes it possible to plan a savings program or investment project. Consult experts. Guard against oversensitivity. New jobs, educational programs require total commitment.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Hard work occupies your mind and emotions now. A good time to lay plans for the future. Deal with very trustworthy people when seeking advice of any kind. Things are looking up now and should show steady improvement.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Stick up for your rights without being quarrelsome. Responsibilities may increase and you cannot take the rest you want. Pay off social obligations by reciprocal entertaining. New friends are fun.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — This is a good week to take care of home repairs and maintenance. Be thorough instead of making do. A long-held hope or wish could come true now. Opportunities for real estate investment may be around you.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Work carefully with budget. Account for all money outgoing. You need to cut expenses wherever possible. Past performance pays off in successes now. Stress cooperative attitudes; resist impulse.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Legal matters pending from the past, move ahead now. Children provide an emotional boost. Hobbies are favored. New study programs, possibly in languages, could be started now.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — A promotion carrying a title and prestige could come through for you now. Increase in salary should be a part of it. Guard savings — plan toward a future major purchase. Curb extravagance in your male.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Patience may be strained and your work load is heavy. Be sure to get plenty of rest, guard diet and resist excesses. Use persuasion instead of legal resorts to accomplish your ends in cooperative matters.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Cooperation on a difficult project could be hard to retain. Be philosophical about it, and all turns out well eventually. Meditation is favored; answers to knotty problems could come at these times. Use abilities.

OUR CHILDREN Her daughter reads X-rated best seller

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Q. In my 16-year-old daughter's room I found a copy of what I would call an X-rated novel. Just because it has recently been a best seller and written by a woman doesn't make it any more acceptable to me. The words it uses and the situations it describes certainly peg it for what it is — trash.

So what do I do now — confront her with what I think is wrong (reading such junk, I mean) or ignore the situation?

I'd like to tear up this and all similar books, or burn them, or ban their being printed.

A. You'd have a huge job on your hands, and even if accomplished the result would probably be to drive them underground.

As hard as this fact is to accept, we live in an environment far different from the one of our own childhood.

If through our families and schools we can give our youngsters a sense of right and wrong and the ability to separate facts from fiction and to see themselves objectively, perhaps they will then be able to stay on an even keel in what is a strange new world for many of us.

Books and movies that you feel are trashy or just plain filthy and the dishonesty that they see in many personal and business relationships then won't faze them much or at all. So important is the foundation we can give our children to sort out the good and bad around them.

It's a tough task, but the most significant one of most parents. Together with the second difficult one of being able to "cut the cord" gradually that binds them to us, it adds up to the main job of parenthood.

Quincy's Yesterdays

September 11-17, 1959 - 16 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Open Mayoralty Headquarters

Mayoralty candidates Della Chiesa and McIntyre, opened their headquarters this week, across the street from each other.

Mayor Della Chiesa's headquarters was located in the Central Building, while Council President McIntyre was in the Adams Building.

Since there were only two candidates for Mayor, there would be no preliminary election.

Frank Lyons of Wollaston, a student at St. Michael's College in Vermont, was in charge of the McIntyre office.

BRETT DRAWS TOP POSITION ON BALLOT

Councillor Joseph Brett drew top position on the ballot for councillor-at-large.

The drawing, conducted in the council chamber by assistant City Clerk John Gillis, was attended by more than 100 persons [candidates and their supporters]. Councillor Carl Anderson drew second spot, followed by George White, John Quinn, Francis Adams Crocker, Joseph May, Francis McCauley, James Riley, William Pratt, Daniel MacLeod and David McIntosh.

PLANS FOR CIVIL DEFENSE CENTER DISCUSSED

Federal funds were being sought to help pay for the proposed annex to the Quincy Police Station. The annex to the 35 year-old station would be used as the city's civil defense center.

An alternate plan called for the construction of a combination civil defense headquarters and fire station in the Adams Shore-Merymount area.

Council president James McIntyre was chairman of the committee set up to study the matter.

INCINERATOR PROPOSALS STUDIED

The city council committee on incineration wound up two days of meetings with engineers and representatives of manufacturers.

Engineers from Metcalf and Eddy said that the city would need an incinerator of about 350 tons, which would cost over a million dollars to build.

Councillor Joseph Brett, head of the incinerator study committee indicated that his committee would soon have sufficient material to bring a report to the city council.

Councillors Edna Austin and David McIntosh were associate members of the committee.

40 Firms To Take Part In Job Fair Saturday

Davis said he expects 150-200 people will be employed by companies represented at the Job Fair. He noted the past three Fairs have placed a total of 500 persons.

Individuals attending the Fair will also have access to the Boston Job Bank which lists several hundred openings in firms which will not be represented at the Quincy Job Fair, Davis noted.

As each person enters the Job Fair, he or she will receive a listing of each firm, its location in the gymnasium and the type of job opening available. Following a preliminary interview with a company representative, Davis noted qualified candidates are usually invited back to the company home office for an in-depth interview.

Commenting on the average attendance of 2,000-3,000 at each of the council sponsored Job Fairs, Davis said:

"Those attendance figures show a substantial number of South Shore residents want to work. We wish we could do more but we think this is one constructive effort which can be made, exposing people to jobs."

A partial list of those companies which will offer job opportunities at Saturday's Job Fair follows:

State Street South, Kemper Insurance, General Dynamics, Howard Johnson's, Michigan Abrasives, Sun Life of Canada, Jack Conway Realty, Burgin-Patterson, United Parcel Service, Friendly Ice Cream, Premco Inc., President Chevrolet, Plymouth-Brockton Street Railway.

Hills Department Stores, Cumberland Farms, High Vacuum Equipment, Sullivan and Cogliano Designers, Grossman's, Halliday Lithograph, Office Specialists and the U.S. Army.

The South Shore Council for Full Employment includes the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Office of Manpower Services, the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security, The Norfolk County Labor Council and the South Shore Women's Caucus.

Davis said any company wishing to participate in the Job Fair can contact him at 479-1111.

Youths Collect 167 Bags Of Debris

Quincy Youth Volunteers, 23 junior high school students ranging in age from 13 to 15, have collected 167 bags of debris, along with branches, car parts, and wood, from 23 locations in the past three weeks.

The students, under the direction of John Hemphill, are assisted by volunteer truck driver Sgt. Thomas Foley of the Quincy National Guard. Assistant directors of the program are Ann Donoghue and Michael Dwyer.

The volunteers are: Diane Somontes, Suzanne Carty, Joanne Burke, Nancy Younrie, Noreen Keane, Sally Abraham, Lisa Grazioso, Paul Lamie, Bob Lavigne, Susan Ferruzzi, Brenda Allen, Elizabeth

Keefe, Kathy Doolan, Laurie Bersani, Nancy Pansulo, Jeanne Farulla, Kathy Nicklas, Lisa Morocco, Michael Mariano, Martin Grey, Doreen McFerman, John Scott Balonis and Hedi Peterson.

The teens will continue to pick up debris, water the Lincoln-Hancock school area grounds, and follow their motto, "Helping to keep Quincy clean."

Letter Box

'A Tree Grows In Germantown'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the Germantown Heritage Society, our thanks for the generous coverage you gave to the efforts of the Germantown community in restoring and beautifying the Shed Memorial in Germantown.

As one might expect in a project which involved the active participation of several hundred individuals it would be impossible to give ample credit to all who contributed to the success of the project. A number of the organizations and individuals who helped were mentioned specifically in The Sun article. I would like to specifically recognize the contributions of the Vissa Construction Co. which contributed labor and equipment for construction of the stone dust path and provided us with several granite boulders which were strategically placed to add variety and interest to the plantings. It would be impossible to give adequate recognition to the efforts of Mr. Joseph Fanning for the countless hours of time that he devoted to seeing this project through to its completion.

Unfortunately no news article can adequately portray the tremendous impact that this community project has had on the Germantown community! If ever there was an example of a total community involvement in a project this would have to be it. Most significant was the involvement of several hundred young people ranging in age from pre-school through young people in their early twenties. It was their labor [numbering several thousand hours], their enthusiasm, and their pride in the community they live in which made possible the completion of the project and which has made possible a record of six months with a total absence of any vandalism or damage to the many plantings. If a memorial were to be erected to commemorate the work that was done it would have to be dedicated to the young people of Germantown!

In summary, the project's success should be viewed as but an illustration of what can be done to build community pride and to improve a community's image through meaningful community involvement. Let it be said that now "A Tree Grows In Germantown" and hopefully like a tree the good that this project has brought about may spread and bring forth new seeds as the years go by!

Delahunt's Appointment Opens Up Council Race

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Appointment of William Delahunt as Norfolk County district attorney this week leaves the open city council at-large seat really up for grabs.

Most political observers agree that Delahunt had the best shot for the seat being vacated by Joseph LaRaia to run for mayor.

As state representative and former Ward 5 councillor, Delahunt had to be given the edge to take that seat.

Delahunt's name will appear on the Sept. 23 preliminary election ballot even though he is withdrawing from that race to serve as full-time district attorney. The ballots are already being printed.

If his appointment as district attorney had come a few weeks ago, he could have removed his name from the preliminary election ballot. He will get it off the Nov. 4 final election ballot.

The irony of it all is that Delahunt could "win" a nomination in the preliminary election despite the fact he is now out of the race. And that could cause a little confusion for a little while.

Certainly the challengers in the at-large race will be helped by Delahunt's departure. They are Harold Davis, Paul Harold, Sabina Stenberg and Helen McDonald.

Incumbent Arthur Tobin who is seeking re-election will not be affected much but incumbent John Quinn stands to gain strength as a result.

DELAHUNT'S APPOINTMENT now sets the stage for a special re-election to fill the state representative seat he is giving up to become district attorney.

The primary election for that one will probably be sometime in the latter part of November.

Already being considered as potential candidates are three ward councillors—Ward 3's John Lydon, Ward 4's James Sheets, Ward 5's Warren Powers, along with Joyce Baker, Herbert Reppucci and John Slomkowski.

The district includes West Quincy, part of North Quincy and Wollaston.

IT WAS CAMPAIGN sign sprouting time over the weekend for mayoralty contenders Walter Hannon and Joseph LaRaia.

We caught some flak a few weeks ago by reporting on who seemed to have the most campaign bumper stickers around town. But it appears LaRaia has the most signs—either that or they are in the most conspicuous places. Sources in the LaRaia camp say 500 of them went up Saturday.

QUINCY'S RUTH GORDON guest stars tonight [Thursday] on the new "Medical Story" series on Chan. 4 at 10 p.m. Opening episode is entitled: "The Right To Die."

She also played the mother of Carlton the doorman on this week's "Rhoda" show.

And next week she's off to Hollywood to do a TV film, "The Prince of Central Park."

Not bad for a gal who's going to be 79 this month. She must have discovered work to be her fountain of youth.

HIGHWAY Supt. Fred B. [unclear] has been discharged from Peter Bent Brigham Hospital after recuperating at home, 16 Miller Stile Rd. You might like to drive by and stop by for a visit. He'd love to hear from you. Fred, of course, is the father of School Committee member Daniel Raymond who is seeking the Ward 2 City Council seat this year. Fred would love to be out there campaigning for him.

TWO POLITICAL-SOCIAL events are on tap for School Committee candidate Kenneth Runge and Councillor at-large Paul Harold Friday, Sept. 19.

A reception for Runge will be held at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall from 7 to 9 p.m. and midnight. For tickets call Ed McDermott at 773-8888.

An evening of old-time music featuring W. C. Fields and featuring a 1939 news reel is planned for Harold at the Bryan VFW Post. Tickets available by calling the post headquarters, 472-6188.

BUILDING A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Statehood For The South Shore?

By ERIC SWIDER

Harry was sitting there sipping on his beer and said, "It becomes increasingly more apparent to me everyday that the South Shore needs more full-time attention to its economic, transportation and planning problems."

"We're a collection of small cities and towns whose official elected bodies do a reasonably good job in taking care of local affairs but when it comes to regional solutions, we haven't anyone officially addressing themselves to them with the intensity that is required."

"Oh come on, Harry, we have a proliferation of government agencies that are analyzing and working on our problems: the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the Joint Regional Transportation Committee, the Central Transportation Planning staff, County governments, and virtually every State secretariat," I explained.

"Sure," said Harry, "and each and every one of them lumps us in as part of the entire metropolitan area, so when it comes to dealing with the needs and problems of this marketplace specifically, we have to wait our turn."

"That's quite a hasty generalization," I suggested. "Where do you see the system bogging down because we're part of a larger area?"

"Eric, look around you—the Wood Rd and Granite St. intersection is a classic example of government decision making that is too far removed. That, by all criteria, should have been a two-month project and already a year has passed, $8,000 invested by 'your members in police services, and still the problem exists."

"The Capen's Circle bridge that collapsed recently is another beauty," said Harry. "If the South Shore had control of the situation, we would have given it the same emergency treatment that the Tobin bridge received last year."

"Look at the dangle we're getting on this Commuter Boat thing. If the South Shore could make that decision, it would have been operational a year ago," stated Harry.

"For years we have been demanding better access to Boston via public transportation, and not only via MBTA and commuter boat, but by express bus lanes and peripheral parking lots. You don't mean to tell me that if the South Shore was running its own show, these things wouldn't have been accomplished by now. No, No, No, we're just not getting what we need and its about time we looked towards a delivery system that is exclusively ours," demanded my friend.

"What would you do," I asked Harry, "create a regional government of some sort?"

"No," said Harry. "I think that the answer is applying for Statehood."

"Harry, that's absolutely ridiculous. The State of South Shore. How in the world could that possibly work?"

"Very well, I suspect," retorted the man. "I see one of the important components being a South Shore-Port Authority, which would not only be activists in redeveloping our Port facilities but could have that Commuter Boat operational in weeks."

"A South Shore Economic Development Department would be able to offer the same tax advantages to new business development that they do in Southern New Hampshire but have the advantages of a much more skilled labor force from which to draw. Yea, said Harry, I see nothing but pluses in creating the State of South Shore."

"Harry," I retorted, "that's talking like an anarchist. What we have to do instead is figure a way to make the existing delivery systems even more responsive to this area. Maybe we should encourage governmental leaders from throughout the South Shore to pool their resources and create a unified lobbying effort, similar to that undertaken by the New England Congressional Delegation."

"That sounds like a good start," said Harry, "but who do you think might staff and finance a South Shore Caucus?"

"Well, if elected officials on the South Shore thought the idea might work, I'm sure the Chamber might be willing to tackle that problem," I offered.

"Why don't you go ahead and suggest it to them, and see if there's any interest on their part," my friend replied.

"I'd like to do that Harry, but I think it might be better if our political leadership initiated the effort. In that way we can assure that they'll use it and make it work," I said.

"But who will put the bug in their ear?" he asked.

"Why don't you do it, Harry. You're good at planting ideas."

"Let me think about it," he said, "but I still think the State of South Shore has lots more sex appeal."

LIVING TODAY

My Visit To The Dump

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

I took my little red utility trailer to the dump one afternoon last week. The dump man and I began to talk as I unloaded. A lady drove up and handed him a bright shiny toaster. She said, "I think it needs a new timer." In his hand he was carrying a small transistor radio. "Picked it up yesterday," he said. "Is that a ping pong table over there?" I asked. "Yes," he said. "someone threw it off this morning ... take it if you want it." I did.

The Boston Globe reported recently a study of how Americans discard, daily, a fortune in food. The study was made by a large number of students at the University of Arizona, who pawed through the trash of Tucson, a city of 450,000 people. They found that 10% of the food the Tucson people buy is thrown out as waste ... which does not include the waste which goes into the sink disposer. The researchers found whole steaks ... half loaves of bread ... apples half eaten. The calculations come out that in this one city of 450,000 people $570,000 worth of beef was wasted ... $1,300,000 of vegetables and $750,000 in pastries in one year. Totally, 9,500 tons of edible food, worth up to $10 million annual food waste. That's just one city ... my arithmetic extended to our 200,000,000 people becomes astronomical in dollars wasted ... while people are starving in the world. Something is seriously wrong with our way of life.

But that's not the worst of it ... the waste of human life is an even greater travesty. I'm thinking of the lost mental energy from people whose lives are so weighted down with personal problems.

Under the severe strain of personal problems most people simply can't function up to normal capacity. A middle aged business man said in counseling recently ... "I'm just not able to keep my mind on my work." He had a marriage problem. A divorced woman with three children who was working daily to put food on the table ... there was no child support ... said "We're making it ... but there's no time for my personal development. I'm too tired at night to read or do anything but fall into bed." What a terrible waste!
